It is but reasonable to assume that many Christian ministers have neither studied deeply nor thought carefully on this subject, but have merely followed the beaten path of their various denominations without inquiring for the Divine authority of their ordination, titles, and honors of men as titled ecclesiastics. But our sympathy should not hinder us from freeing our minds of the shackles of ignorance and superstition, nor hinder us from helping others to the liberty wherewith Christ makes free.

The persecutions of the Second and Third Centuries undoubtedly tended to keep the Church humble and free from hypocrites, but the prosperity dating from the beginning of the Fourth Century had a bad effect. Many of the bishops, according to Church history, neglected to follow the example of Jesus and the Apostles, and became lords, dignitaries in the Church seeking to impress the worldly, especially the rulers, with their importance.

In the year 330 A. D., under the patronage of the Emperor Constantine, all Christians who acknowledged the Nicene Creed were not only protected but honored, the Emperor seeking to strengthen his political power thereby. By him the Bishop of Rome was granted special honor as a chief amongst the Bishops, this also suiting the Emperor's plans of making Rome the center on both political and religious influence. In the century following, the power of the Bishops was greatly increased by various false doctrines which gradually crept in. The doctrine of a fiery Hell of torture was one of these, followed later by a theory that members of the true Church would never be sent to it, but instead to Purgatory, the tortures of which would furnish them a second chance for purification and preparation for Heaven.

The clergy gradually grasped more and more of the power and money for services in this world and beyond. Every marriage not performed by them would not be valid. Those married otherwise would be living in sin. The theory of infant damnation made the ministers additionally necessary to sprinkle babes, to preserve them from eternal torture. Then followed classification of sins and the fixing penalties and arranging for masses for the sooner deliverance of the culprit from Purgatory. Rites and ceremonies connected with the dead were also declared necessary. All of these served to bind the people to the clergy, and more and more separated them from the simplicity of the Gospel and the example of Jesus and the Apostles, to which we are seeking to return, but are fought at every step by ignorance and superstition within and without.

A POINT NOT GENERALLY KNOWN

Favored by conditions prevailing, the Bishop of Rome became more and more prominent, while the Roman Empire gradually went to pieces. The Bishop of Rome took to himself the title Pontifex Maximus, which signifies "highest religious dignitary," a title which previously had been held by the Caesars. Another step in the wrong direction, which thoroughly separated the clergy from the laity, was the doctrine still held by the Church of Rome; namely, that the clergy alone constitute the Church, and that the common people are the "children of the Church." Many Catholics are not aware of this fact, but think that they are members of the Catholic Church. They forget that while they are privileged to call the unordained students by the title Brother, all the ordained number must be recognized as Father.

The year 800 found Pope Leo III in great honor, and the Church flourishing and making higher claims than ever before; namely, that the Church became at that time the Kingdom of God. Catholics still hold that the Millennium, or Christ's thousand-year Reign, began that year. They claim that the Popes, each in turn, represent Christ in His Throne; hence the declaration that the Popes are Christ's Vicegerent reigning instead of Him.

When the Pope represented Christ, the Cardinals as an order were brought in to represent the highest order of the Church in Glory; then Archbishops, Bishops and the lower clergy all separated from the people by a great gulf the Clergy, the Elect of God, holding the power and the destinies of the laity in their control; the laity dependent upon the clergy for baptism, marriages, funerals, holy candles, holy water, consecrated burying-ground, and finally, an entrance into Purgatory instead of into eternal torment, with the ultimate hope of rescue to glory and with assistances by the way obtainable through the office of the Mass.

I am discussing the Church of Rome only, because for a time there was no other. Indeed, for a time it was dangerous to even suggest another. The Pope and the College of Cardinals, representing the Almighty, instructed the people who should be their kings and princes; and, as a matter of course, they were instructed to be obedient only to such as recognized the papal power, and they were absolved from obedience to others.

Thus the separation amongst Christ's followers of clergy and laity was established for centuries before the Protestant denominations of today were born. It was but natural that the Protestants should more or less copy the practices and many of the doctrines with which they had been familiar from childhood. The Greek, Armenian and Anglican Churches copied very closely the "Mother." They still preserve the likeness in many respects, even though they came out of her as Protestants and have sought to return to the Bible teachings and methods. But power and ceremony are difficult matters to get rid of. In consequence we see everywhere forms of godliness without seeing much manifestation of its power. We see much lip reverence without much manifestation of the Spirit of Christ.

PROTESTANTS AND CHRIST'S KINGDOM

Protestants are much confused respecting the papal claim that Christ's Kingdom has been set up. They, of course, deny that the Popes are Christ's vicegerent. Nevertheless, they have followed Papacy's lead in telling earthly kingdoms and rulers that they are part and parcel of Christ's Kingdom—"Christendom." They send their chaplains with the armies and navies of these kingdoms. They receive financial support and recognition from them, and call upon the civil power to suppress so-called heretics, refuse them license to preach, etc. Thus they follow closely in the footsteps of their Brother. Altogether these false doctrines are surely responsible, not only for many of the wars of the past, but also for the present European war.

We may assume that some of the clergy, Catholic and Protestant, are thoroughly confused and honestly doing what they believe to be the Lord's will in these matters. But, on the other hand, we are bound to assume that in the light of our day there are thousands of ministers who are not deceived who know full well that the world is ruled, not by Christ and His teachings, but by self-seeking kings, princes, nobles, financiers, politicians, etc.

But knowing these things, seeing the people in ignorance, what have the ministers of so-called "Christendom" done to open the eyes of the people to the truth on this subject to tell them that these kingdoms are not Christ's Kingdoms in any sense of the word? How few of them ever even refer to the Second Coming of the Redeemer! How few of them have ever pointed their people to St. Peter's words respecting the glorious Times of Restitution which Messiah's Kingdom will usher in: "Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you, whom the Heavens must retain until the Times of Restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy Prophets since the world began." Acts 3:19-21.

Policy, self-seeking, lack of candor, are certainly manifest in the course of the preachers of all denominations. Now as the hour of their judgment approaches they deserve our sympathy. They have held on so long to the errors of the past that they are ashamed now to turn about and make confession. Many of them think that the safer course is to "bluff" the people. But it will not do. The light is shining too brightly for that. Knowledge is increasing every moment. Many in the pews are as well educated as the occupant of the pulpit, and decline to be any longer fed on chaff and wind. Hence the complained of decline in church attendance.

PASTOR RUSSELL'S ORDINATION

In an endeavor to intimidate their people, to hinder them from hearing me and from reading my books entitled "Studies in the Scriptures," the preachers are going to absurd lengths. They have tried all kinds of slander and vilification, but still the common people are hearing gladly in all parts of the world the Message of the Bible its anti-clerical Message. They have published me as a heretic, only to find that the most thoughtful and intelligent of their people realize that their creeds are unsatisfactory and are the more anxious to know what I have to tell them respecting the Bible Message of God's Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power, operating through Jesus now for the blessing of the Church, and during the Millennium for the blessing of the remainder of the world.

Let me make plain the subject of ministerial ordination. Each sect ordains, that is, authorizes its own preachers. A Pastor passing from one denomination to another, is, therefore, properly reordained. In a word, ordination is a human authority to be a preacher for the ordaining sect. Certain vows of ordination are required before the ordination service takes place. The vow is that they will preach the doctrine, the creed, of the sect, and not otherwise. The entire matter is a fraud; for no educated or intelligent minister in any denomination believes the creed of his own denomination. He knows that more than half of it is absurd nightmare from the Dark Ages. He takes his vow to preach that creed, knowing that he does not believe it and intending never to preach certain features of it. The preacher is bound by his Ordination Vow so far as an outward nominal course is concerned, but privately he acknowledges his disbeliefs and thereby stultifies himself.

An occasional minister will be found in country districts willing to preach the Creed of his denomination in full. But they are few and generally uneducated and, therefore, excusable. Some, however, when called to task respecting things which they preach, but which they admit they do not believe, make Answer-that their denomination stands back of them and is responsible for the Creed and bound them by Ordination Vow to preach it. Thus are the people deceived. The glorious Truth of the Bible is largely hidden. Sectarianism, Churchianity, is maintained, and hypocrisy and unbelief stimulated.

Personally, I would not have such an ordination to preach false doctrines, misrepresent God's character, deceive the people and stultify myself, if it were backed by all the wealth of the world. On the contrary, I rejoice in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made me free and in the ordination which comes to me through God's Word, "Go, teach all peoples" and the ordination mentioned in the Scriptures as the Divine authority; namely, the anointing of the holy Spirit and the understanding of God's Word. Isa. 61:1-3

I am glad that they are making know that I am not an ordained minister of their kind as St. Paul says, I am not ordained of man or by man, but by the Lord. (Gal. 1:1) In mentioning ordination, these ministers are counting on the ignorance of their people on the subject. Let me make the subject plain. The Church of Rome does not recognize the ordination of any Protestant minister. Until quite recently the Church of England recognized the ordination of the Church of Rome and the Greek church, but did not recognize the ordination of Lutherans, Methodists, Presbyterians, etc.; nor do the others recognize each the Baptist ordination. If a preacher goes from one denomination to another, it is not requisite that he change his mind at all respecting the creed however different but it is necessary that he be re-ordained by the denomination which he enters. As I refuse to be identified with any of these earthly churches, I, of course, do not wish an ordination or an authority to preach from any of them.

THE ONLY ONE TRUE CHURCH

Nothing in the Bible gives authority for the organization of any of these churches. The Church which Jesus founded, and of which the Apostles were the inspired teachers, is Scripturally declared to be “the Church of the First-borns, whose names are written in Heaven.” This Church is joined only upon God’s terms, and the names are written or blotted out only by the Redeemer Himself. On its roll-call we doubt not there are saintly persons who are members of all denominations; but their earthly membership, contrary to the Scriptures, does not promote them in the Lord’s esteem; but, on the contrary, they are hindered thereby.

According to the Bible, whoever joins the Church of Christ does so by joining Christ Himself by surrendering his will to the Master by becoming His pupil and follower by exercising faith in Him by being begotten of the holy Spirit by cultivating the fruits and graces of that Spirit by thus being made ready for the inheritance of the saints the Millennial Kingdom. These, as the Apostle declares, are children of God and, if children, then heirs heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ their Lord, if so be that they suffer with Him, that they may be also glorified together in His Kingdom, now soon to be manifested. Rom. 8:17

The Church of Christ, according to the Bible, has an early association, but it is not a bondage. It has no creed but the Bible. All of its members are brethren. None of them are lords. None of them are of the clergy class. None lord it over God’s heritage. In their voluntary association as brethren some are recognized as Elder brethren, and are given more particular charge in the Church by the stretching forth of the hands of the Congregation in voting for them and by the subsequent co-operation of the holy Spirit assisting them in the service of the Ecclesia. There are also Deacons, or servants in the Ecclesia who specially attend to other matters. There are also, according to the Scriptures, some who may be recognized as Pastors or shepherds of the flock, under the great Chief Shepherd and Bishop of their souls, the Lord Jesus Christ.

So far from separating God’s people into clergy and laity, the Scriptures insist that only One is the Master, that all others of the Lord’s people are brethren. They are all ordained of God to be Divine ambassadors, to speak forth the Word of God as they have talent and opportunity. The qualifying ordination set forth in the Scriptures is that they shall have received the begetting of the holy Spirit. This is said to be “an unction from the Holy One” an anointing.

This is typified in the holy anointing oil used by the Jewish high priest. As that anointing was poured upon the head of the priest and ran down to the skirts of his garment, so in antitype the anointing of all the members of the true Church took place in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ. He was anointed of the Father to be the Bishop of our souls, to be the Head over the Church which is the Royal Priesthood. He is our great High Priest. His ordination and anointing is the one which extends to all the members of His Church, giving the humblest of the Lord’s people full ordination of God to speak His Word in His name and to expound the same to the extent of his talents and opportunities.

This ordination came upon Jesus at the time of His baptism, and was recognized as coming to the Church a t Pentecost and has been with the Church ever since. Whoever, therefore, comes into the true Church of Christ by union with the living Head comes under the Scriptural ordination. What was prophesied of the Head is applicable to all his members; namely, “The Spirit of the Lord God is upon Me; because He hath anointed Me to preach good tidings unto the meek; to bind up the broken-hearted; to declare the acceptable year of the Lord.”

EVERYBODY’S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--Does the Bible teach Universal Salvation?

Answer--The Bible does clearly teach that because of the disobedience of Adam the judgment of death came upon all, and that it is the will of God that all men shall be saved and brought to a knowledge of the Truth (Rom. 5:12-19; 1 Tim. 2:3-6). The death of Jesus was for the benefit of all men; as we read, “Jesus Christ, by the grace of God, tasted death for every man.” Thus we see that the redemption of the human race is universal, and that the coming to a knowledge of the Truth of what the Lord has done for mankind will be universal, and the purpose of this is that all may have one fair trial for eternal life. But there the universal feature ceases, because eternal salvation is promised only to the “willing and obedient.” In the present Age the Church is on trial, and the willingly obedient ones will have eternal life; as we read, “Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.” During the reign of the Messiah in the incoming Age, all who did not have a trial during the present Age must then have an opportunity for life, the Word stating, “God hath appointed a day in which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man (Christ) whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead” (Acts 17:31). Then “it shall come to pass that every soul which will not hear (obey) that Prophet (Christ) shall be destroyed from among the people” (Acts 3:23).

Q.--Why is it that quite good people are great sufferers, invalids, etc. Who is responsible for all the distress and suffering in the earth?

Answer--No difficulty more frequently presents itself to the inquiring mind than this. Certainly God is not responsible, for he is a God of love merciful and gracious, long-suffering, kind even to the unthankful, abundant in goodness and truth. The guilt lies at Satan’s door. He is the god of this world, God having permitted him, for wise reasons, to usurp authority. Through Satan’s temptation Adam fell, was sentenced to death, and so death passed upon all because in him all have sinned (Rom. 5:12, margin). Suffering and pain are concomitants of death, and because all are involved in condemnation to death, these have passed upon all, good and bad alike. “The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children’s teeth are set on edge” (Ezek. 16:2). Many aggravate their sufferings through their own sin, and bring additional pain on others. But death and sorrow are the lot of all through heredity. God has provided, through the death of his Son, for a release from the grave for all who have suffered through Adam. “As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive” (1 Cor. 15:22). Before the promised return from the grave takes place the Kingdom of Christ will be established, and Satan will be bound. Then it will be possible for all to realize the wisdom of God in permitting the long reign of evil. It will be observed how suffering has been useful in the formation of character, in restraining from further wickedness, and in showing the intense sinfulness and hatefulness of sin. Everyone admits that experience is the best teacher.

Q.--In what sense can the death of one man become the ransom price for millions of people, if apparently justice demands an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth?

Answer--The Apostle Paul answers the question in Romans 5. In verse 12 he says: “As by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, in whom (margin) all have sinned;” and in verses 18 and 19, “As by the offence of one, judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so, by the righteousness of one, the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life. For as by one man’s disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous.” Adam alone was a perfect man. His sin was willful. Without weakness of mind or imperfection of understanding he sinned against the light. All other sin has proceeded from this first transgression. Because of it man has been born mentally and physically weak, unfit to resist temptation, often imbecile and insane. All that was necessary, therefore, for the satisfaction of the claims of justice, was that one perfect man should be found who was willing to take the place of Adam, and die on his behalf. If Adam could be legally set free all who were involved in his condemnation would be entitled to liberty as well. Jehovah found a ransom in his own Son. Our Lord Jesus Christ left the glory which he had with the Father, and was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man" (Heb. 2:9). He was, like Adam, a perfect man the only other perfect man the world has yet seen therefore it was possible for him to become the ransom (corresponding price) for all, so that "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Cor. 15:21).

Q.--In Josh. 24:2 we read that Abraham's forefathers "served other gods;" then in Gen. 25:8, that Abraham "was gathered to his people." Does this mean that Abraham and his heathen ancestors went to the self-same place?

Answer--Yes. All go into one place, "Sheol," the condition of death, and their organisms return to the dust (Eccl. 3:20). While they are in the death condition they know not anything (Eccl. 9:5; Psa. 6:5; 146:4; Isa. 63:16); they praise not the Lord (Psa. 115:17); they are to come out of that condition (Psa. 90:3; 104:29-30; John 5:28-29). "Gathered unto his people" means to join his ancestors in death. Joseph explains it in this way (Gen. 49:29-33; 50:5).

Q.--How can Satan be bound with a chain? See Rev. 20:1-3.

Answer--The entire book of Revelation is symbolic, figurative. The woman, wonderful beasts, voices, thunders, lightnings, etc., are figurative illustrations of great truths. So with the chain that is to bind Satan. It will not be a chain of iron or gold, but his binding will be a divine restraint of his evil power. As light dispels darkness, so knowledge overcomes ignorance, and truth destroys error. Satan has been deceiving the nations and people for centuries past, but when he is restrained "he will deceive the nations no more, until the thousand years be ended." During the period of restraint "the knowledge of the glory of God will fill the whole earth as the waters cover the deep."

Q.--Will you please explain 1 John 2:15, "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him," and harmonize the latter part with John 3:16, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Answer--This quotation has reference not to the race of mankind, nor to the physical earth, but to the order, methods, and institutions, as clearly shown in the next verse. These are all to pass away (verse 17), in order to make way for the "world to come" (Heb. 1:6; 2 Pet. 3:6) a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness, contrasted with the "present evil world" of which Satan is the god (2 Cor. 4:4) or prince. The latter term was applied to him by our Lord (John 14:30). It is very evident to every child of God that he is not to love the evil order of things, and our Lord prayed (John 17) that such should be kept from the evil not taken from the world. James tells us that friendship with the world is enmity with God, and we would understand this friendship to mean sympathy with the general principles that govern the world at the present time. John 3:16 refers to the love of God for the lost world of mankind, the human race which was condemned in Adam. He so loved the race that he gave his only begotten Son to redeem it. Jesus tasted death for every man. He gave himself a ransom for all (see Rom. 5:18). So, while the Lord's followers are exhorted to set their affections on things above and not on things of the earth, they are also instructed to do good unto all men, and to love even their enemies, those who would do them a wrong.

Q.--In 1 Pet. 4:6 we read that the Gospel was preached to them that are dead; Isa. 38:18 says: "They that go down into the pit, cannot hope for thy truth." Can you harmonize these texts?

Answer--The Scriptures do not apply the word "dead" exclusively to those who are in their graves. The whole world is dead "in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1), and Jesus said to one who desired to be a disciple: "Let the dead bury the dead" (Luke 9:60). Mankind are all dead in the sight of God, being under condemnation in Adam. The Lord's own people are also dead. Though alive unto God, they are dead to the world, to sin, and to themselves. They are "buried with Christ by baptism into death," "planted together in the likeness of his death" (Rom. 6:4, 5), and the Apostle declares in Col. 3:3: "Ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God." It is to the latter class Peter refers in the above passage. The Gospel has been preached to them that are dead, so that while the world judges them as in the flesh, like other men, the Lord judges them in the spirit according to the intention and desire of their hearts. Isa. 38:18 is part of Hezekiah's prayer of thanks when he recovered from his sickness. Those in the grave have no hope. In that very day that man's breath goeth forth "his thoughts perish" (Psa. 146:4). There is no "work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave" (Eccl. 9:10). The dead are asleep, unconscious. Though the living have hope on their behalf, and may understand and delight in the truth as God is pleased to unfold it, the dead "know not anything" (Eccl. 9:5). If it were true that God tortures his enemies eternally, the atrocities of the dark ages might be lauded as supreme manifestations of Christian virtue.

NATIONS ARE DRUNK WITH FALSE DOCTRINES

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 13 Pastor Russell delivered an address today at the "Chicago Temple," taking for his text, "The inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication.." Rev. 14:8; 17:2; 18:3

He explained that the Book of Revelation declares itself to be a book of symbols. The Woman of the text is the symbolical Woman of the Bible; namely, the professed Church of Christ. The context declares that the Women herself (the Church Nominal) was drunken with her own success in overcoming the saintlier followers of Jesus; that she attained great outward splendor as the price of her unfaithfulness to the Redeemer the price of her illicit intercourse with the kingdoms of earth receiving their support in return for her recognition of them. At the same time she held in her hand the Golden Cup the Word of God, which is full of testimony against her, but which she used in such a manner as to deceive and corrupt them, and to make all the people drunk, as our text declares, individually and nationally.

The speaker adverted to his discourse of the previous Sunday in which he had pointed out some of the false doctrines which led to the exaltation of the Scarlet Woman, the unfaithful Spouse of Christ. She had not followed her Redeemer's footsteps in humility and self-sacrifice. She had especially separated herself from the people under the clergy title; she had practiced and prospered; she had fought down the true followers of Jesus, causing them to suffer for righteousness, sake, even as the Jews had crucified Jesus, and as the Apostles had suffered for loyalty to Truth.

Intoxicated by her successes, she went to great lengths of boasting, establishing herself as the Queen of Heaven, ruling over the kings of earth, yet having fellowship with them and drawing support from them. Both kings and peoples were made drunk, infatuated, with the thought that they could have so close dealings with the Divine Kingdom and still live after the flesh. Degradation, mental and moral, ensued, while kings and peoples went into a drunken sleep from which they are not yet fully aroused.

DAUGHTERS OF BABYLON

The Sixteenth Century brought a partial awakening, but the Adversary was at hand to re-entangle those mentally confused by the adulterated wine--the mixture of Heavenly

Truth with earthly selfishness and deviltry. The time had not yet come for the binding of Satan, and the Lord allowed him to continue to make the way narrow for the zealous, saintly few. To have allowed the full light of Truth to shine in upon the world at that time would have meant the permission of the great Time of Trouble nearly three centuries too soon; for the Lord's Kingdom would not be ready for establishment until the full end of the six thousand years of the reign of Sin and Death, and the completion of the elect number of the True Church.

For these reasons God permitted the various Protestant Churches to be born, and to develop under the influence of the intoxicating Cup of their Mother. This being true, we are not surprised at the prophetic declaration that the Daughters had the Mother's disposition and became Harlots like her to the extent of their opportunities affiliating with the kingdoms of the world, co-operating with them, modifying doctrines so as to meet with their approval, etc. Each Daughter has done her share to perpetuate the intoxication of the world.

BABYLON IS FALLEN, IS FALLEN

The name Babylon fits the entire household. The word contains a double thought: first, the Gate of God; and second, confusion. Thus it imports that the professed Church, the Gateway to God and righteousness, became confused, impure and adulterous. Each must judge for himself as respects who and what these symbols of the Divine Revelation signify. I believe that not many of God's people who are awake and even partially sobered up from the false doctrines of the creeds and their perversion of the Scriptures will need further assistance in seeing that Babylon, the name originally applied to the Mother Church, has become a family name, applicable equally to all human systems fraudulently posing as the True Church.

The Scriptures tell us that this True Church has not yet been glorified; that her members are being called, developed, perfected under afflictions, in preparation for their exaltation to be the Bride, the Lamb's Wife. The true members of this church, whose names are written in Heaven, are all Virgins, pure, in that they are justified through faith in the Redeemer, and are not in relationship with worldly systems, not organized by them, not serving them and not dependent upon them.

As the Lord prophesied this Babylon system, He evidently purposed to permit it to have the control it has had. When telling us that "Babylon is fallen," He intimates that throughout the past some of His saintly ones have been in Babylon. Otherwise He would not say, "Come out of her." Rev. 18:4

The Lord's voice calling His people out of Babylon at the time she is rejected for destruction, is not a literal voice from Heaven.

It is the voice of the Truth. As knowledge respecting God, His character and His Plan, as revealed in the Bible, now comes to the attention of any of God's consecrated people, the voice of the Truth, appealing to his honesty, calls him to come out at any cost and stand separate from all earthly institutions. The Divine Message tells us that the literal fall of these great systems is a hand, and that everybody in them will suffer justly in proportion to enlightenment.

THE MORNING HOUR, THE DRUNKEN AWAKE

According to Bible chronology, the six thousand years of the reign of Sin and Death have ended. We are in the dawning of the New Dispensation, when old things are passing away and the New Order is being gradually introduced. Properly, the awakening came first to God's consecrated people, who have long waited and prayed for the Morning—"Thy Kingdom come! Thy will be done on earth, even as it is done in Heaven!"

The awakening in the Church has gone on gradually during the Parousia of Christ. Meantime, the Millennial blessings beginning to come to the world have made the drunken sleepers restless. As they awaken to the rich blessings of our time, they are seized with feverish acquisitiveness, individually and nationally. As individuals have been racking their brains in respect to money-getting, so nations, impelled by the same spirit of avarice, have been plotting and scheming for extension of territory, trade, etc. As education has permeated to the lower strata of society, it has awakened the whole world. Hundreds of millions are keenly alert to take advantage of every circumstance and condition; and everything except the material interests of this life seems to be ignored.

But the awakening of the people, as we might expect, exhibits all phases of human character good, evil and foolish. The sufferings of the war-stricken people touch deeply a sympathetic chord in human nature, prompting generosity and sometimes even leading public servants to forget that they have no right to donate public money to any cause, but that the people they serve have the right to exercise their own charity at their own expense. However, the disposition to give food and clothing to those in need clearly indicates that in the hearts of humanity in general there continues to abide some measure of the Godliness with which our race was originally endowed the chief element of Godlikeness being love; for "God is Love."

HALF-SOBERED FOOLISHNESS DISPLAYED

We are liable to a certain amount of foolishness as we awaken from the ignorance and superstition and get our first glimpse of the sufferings of those in the war zone. To illustrate: The cables recently told that a United States war ship had cleared from an English port, laden with Christmas toys to be distributed to the unfortunate children of the war refugees in Belgium and France.

It seems a joke to send a war vessel on such an errand. Thousands of dollars' worth of coal were required, besides the time and attention of a ship's crew, to take a lot of dolls, teddy-bears and knick-knacks to children much more in need of food and clothing. We are not faulting the kind hearts that desire to do something for the sufferers, but we do wonder that the heads of our intelligent statesmen should lend themselves to such foolishness; even though it emanated from hard-hearted journalists who induced school children to such folly. The effect of this mental confusion is to awaken thinking people to the real facts of the case and greatly to discredit all effort on behalf of the war sufferers.

Thinking people are saying to themselves: The warring nations should each look out for the victims of their war. They are bound to do this through self-respect at home and abroad. Assistance from us should not be necessary is not necessary. Money spent thus benefits the givers more than the receivers; for those who should look after the needy will probably content themselves with saying to the unfortunates, "Did you not get your share of the American donation?" Thus our intended generosity may merely help to prolong war and do injury to those we wish to benefit.

On the other hand, the "submerged tenth" at home are in straits and likely to suffer this winter perhaps fully as much as the Belgian refugees. Hundreds have already been evicted because of inability to pay their rent and, with their few belongings in the street, are certainly nearly as much to be pitied perhaps more as the war refugees across the ocean. Surely charity begins at home! We therefore highly commend a general movement toward HOME RELIEF, believing it to be a safe and sane policy in accord with the teachings of the Bible—"He that provideth not for his own... is worse than an infidel."

The people at our doors are our own responsibility. In many respects the war is more injurious here than in the warring countries. There, government contracts for army rations, clothing, military apparatus, shipbuilding, etc., are causing great business prosperity, especially in Germany and Great Britain. Here, on the contrary, the avenues of business are dislocated. The foreign absorption of gold causes financial embarrassment and stringency, the discharge of clerks, mechanics, etc.

Few of the awakening ones realize that the present war is permitted for the weakening of the nations, preparatory to the utter collapse of the present order of things and the ushering in of the New Order of things the Reign of Righteousness, under Messiah's Kingdom. The aroused sleeper should face about to the rising Sun of Righteousness with healing in His beams and blessings for all nations. (Mal. 4:2) Were this recognized, there would be less of the war spirit here at home, less of a fear of what could be accomplished by enemies across the deeps, more of a confidence in the Lord, and an endeavor to please and obey Him. But the maddening wine still intoxicates many Americans, and will yet probably embroil our nation in strife.

RELIGIONISTS ALSO AWAKENING

As for religion, the awakened ones reject the major portion of the creeds of the past, yet carefully cling to any rights or privileges which those false doctrines give them. Thus the Divine rights of kings, nobles, princes and governments, and rites and ceremonies, civil and ecclesiastical, are firmly clutched and held high above the people in the interests of the rulers. This is the secret of the willingness of the earthly kings, emperors and princes, financial princes and subservient religionists to engage in the present horrible strife. The argument with all is that the end justifies the means. The ends sought are commercial supremacy, political supremacy; and, incidentally, the religious systems are praying for a backing-up of the various contestants whom they have long taught are kingdoms of God, guided by Divine Wisdom and Providential care.

The Lord no longer restrains these; for His time has come that iniquity should have an end; that the Harlot systems should make manifest that none of them is the Bride of Christ; and that the kings of earth might humble each other and thus make ready for the true Kingdom of God for the Reign of Christ and His Church, glorified.

The masses of mankind have been slowly awakening for some time; but the present war is sure to thoroughly awaken the whole world, and the maddening effect of the false doctrines will anger the entire human family. As they realize how they were drugged with the false doctrines, the tendency with the majority will be to go to the opposite extreme to lose faith in everything. The result undoubtedly will be pandemonium, as the Scriptures portray—"Every man's hand against his neighbor" anarchy.

PATCHING THE OLD GARMENT

Many, realizing to some extent the matters we here portray, are earnestly advocating some kind of patched-up compromise a reformation in the churches, a discarding of the creeds in fact while holding to them in theory, a laboring on the part of all for social betterments, etc. We commend this spirit as better than the "stand-pat" program of others; but it is too late. The opportunity for such a reformation has passed. As the Scriptures declare, "We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed." (Jer. 51:9) There was a lack of desire for healing, for purification, for forgiveness, for turning away from illicit intercourse with the kingdoms of this world to affiliation with the Lord alone. Only the few had the proper spirit. They are the Lord's Jewels. Mal. 3:17

This Christian Age in many respects corresponds to the Jewish Age, which was its prototype. Hence our Lord's words respecting Natural Israel apply here also. He declared the New Dispensation so different from the Old that it would be like putting a new patch into an old garment; that it would be like putting new wine into old wineskins, which had lost their elasticity, and could not withstand the strain. Hence the Jewish Dispensation was entirely set aside, and the New Order of things was inaugurated.

So here, there is sufficient contrast between the things of this Present Order religious, financial, social, political and the New Order of things that the two cannot possibly intermix, cannot possibly be patched up. Instead, the Lord declares that the Present Order of things, symbolically represented by "the heavens and the earth," the ecclesiastical heavens and the social earth, are to pass away utterly, absolutely, in the great conflagration, which will not be literal fire, but symbolic anarchy. Meantime, however, the Lord promises us that the New Order of things to take the place of the Present Order, will be "the desire of all nations" "a new heavens," the glorified Church; "a new earth,; a new social order. This is the hope of the world. There is none other.

In view of these things, it behooves every child of God to heed the voice of God to stand free from Babylon, to manifest the spirit of the Lord, to become a true Bible student, a true overcomer of the world and its spirit, faithful unto death, that he may be accounted worthy of the Crown of Life and a share with his Master in the Millennial Kingdom Throne. And as respects those who are not the Lord's consecrated people, but who love the Truth and righteousness, there are but two courses open. The first and better one is a full surrender to the Lord, a full consecration of the heart, will, time, influence all for the service of the Truth; or, second, but less satisfactory, an endeavor to live soberly, righteously, justly, truthfully, sympathetically, mercifully.

The National Labor Tribune, December 31, 1914

A NEW EPOCH STARTS AS WELL AS A NEW YEAR

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 27 Speaking at the Detroit Opera House, Pastor Russell took for his text St. Peter's words, "A day with the Lord is as a thousand years, " and the Prophet's statement, "A thousand years in Thy sight are but as yesterday. " (2 Pet. 3:8; Psa. 90:40) He said in part:

All resolutions against sin and in favor of righteous thinking and living are commendable and helpful. But I recommend a comprehensive resolution; namely, to get right with God through His appointed Channel, the Lord Jesus Christ, and through the instructions of His Word, the Bible. While progressing in the knowledge of the Truth and in its spirit, the individual will be abiding in God's Love—" under the shadow of the Almighty."

But this implies faith in God, faith in Christ, faith in the Bible and the study of it so as to get fully into alignment with the Divine purposes and away from the perverting influences of the creeds. While every creed may be said to contain some elements of Truth, nevertheless these creeds are so horribly mixed with errors in such poisonous combinations that it is a wonder we did not all follow blind leaders into the ditch of infidelity long ago.

From the Divine standpoint we see that the six thousand years of earth's history, from Adam's day until now, are merely the work-day portion of a great Week whose Seventh Day, or sabbath, of a thousand years is "the day of Christ," "the last Day," "the Day of Judgment, or trial for the world--the Day in which "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess, to the glory of God;" The Day in which "the righteous shall flourish, and evil doers shall be cut off" in the Second Death; the Day during which God will "pour out His Spirit upon all flesh," as He now grants it to His servants and handmaidens.

In the Divinely arranged custom of the Jews the new day began at sunset. Thus we are in the evening, or beginning, of the great Seventh Day of the Divine Week the Day which means so much of blessing, uplifting, privilege, opportunity of Divine favor to our race through Messiah's glorious Kingdom, which throughout this Seventh Day will reign "from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth," putting down everything contrary to the Divine standards, and uplifting the world of mankind (bought with the precious blood at Calvary) from sin, degradation and the tomb up, up, up, step by step, the human perfection in a world-wide Eden. The unwilling, resisting Divine favors and privileges, shall be destroyed in the Second Death. Acts 3:19-21, 23

WEARIED CHILDREN FALL ASLEEP

"Six Days shalt thou labor and do all thy work; but the Seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work." Whoever reads carefully, intelligently, the pages of history must be struck with the energy which has been manifested by our race. The pyramids and the ruins of ancient cities and civilizations all tell us of humanity's ceaseless struggle against the adverse conditions prevailing in the earth, including the strife against sickness and death and, by a few, a noble fight against further degradation.

Well does the Prophet express the truth of our observation, saying, "We have not wrought any deliverance in the earth." (Isa. 26:18) a few have gained fabulous riches, name of fame, place or power; but during all this period the majority have gone down to the tomb, slain by the great associated monarchs whom the Bible declares are reigning Sin and Death.

Even the comparatively few who have gained eminence and whose victories are most loudly extolled in human history have fallen also many of them in the very prime of life all of them in comparative childhood. Why should not a man live for a hundred years when we have the Divine assurance that even under the Divine sentence Father Adam resisted death for 930 years so vigorous was his constitution?

From the Divine standpoint the children of Adam, all born in sin, shapen in iniquity, of few days and full of trouble, fall asleep in death, like children wearied in their play; albeit that it is a play grim with tragedy, in which each actor performs his part most realistically.

From the Divine standpoint human ambition, strife and energy are accomplishing a useful purpose, even though the efforts are usually selfish and often brutish. The lessons now being learned by Adam's children will not all be lost. The greater mellowness of heart and the broader views of the majority of those who have thus battled selfishly for even fifty years suggest that our race as a whole might do better work in a second century than in the first. Moreover, the Scriptures indicate that the great drama of sin, selfishness and passion being enacted by humanity is furnishing a lesson to angelic hosts respecting the exceeding sinfulness of sin its downward tendency, its bitter fruit, and the hopelessness of any escape therefrom except by Divine assistance.

HUMANITY'S NEXT LESSON

The forbidden fruit of Eden was from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Doubtless the Creator would eventually have given our first parents a full knowledge of both good and evil, and merely forbade them an immediate plunge into knowledge to their own disadvantage. Craving knowledge before its due time, Mother Eve disobeyed her Maker, and enticed her husband also into disobedience. The result has been that instead of learning the philosophy of good at first and of evil later, they and their race have been precipitated into lessons respecting evil first, with the knowledge of good to come later.

The holy angels, who have never transgressed the Divine Law, have continually the lesson of good and appreciation of the Divine character, the principles of righteousness, etc. Their lesson in respect to evil they are gaining by observation instead of by experience the way recommended to our first parents by the Creator, but in their ignorance rejected. But God foreknew the course which His human children would take under the influence of temptation; He foreknew that they would fall into sin and would therefore experience its penalty of sin, sorrow and death. While for six thousand years His eye has pitied His poor creatures, nevertheless He has allowed His great original Plan of the Ages to move along slowly to a grand climax the Plan which He had purposed in Himself from before the foundation of the world.

That climax in human affairs, we believe, is at hand. It marks a great change of dispensation. The six thousand years of the reign of Sin and Death are ending with a terrible Time of Trouble which not improperly might be termed the natural result of human selfishness (sin) operating under the influence of the great principles of the New Dispensation, now being ushered in. Selfishness, as represented in the accumulated financial power and energy called trusts and combines, is about to come into conflict with selfishness (sin) represented in the combining forces of humanity, labor unions, etc.

The “head-on collision” which thinking people foresee, and which the Scriptures graphically portray, will give society an earthquake shock. More than this, the graphic picture is that of a world-wide conflagration which will involve the heavens, or ecclesiastical powers, as well as the earth, or social system, and the mountains, or kingdoms, of the world. The picture would be too terrible to paint, and useless as well, were it not for the silver lining of the cloud.

The awful shock, which God’s people are warned to avoid, so far as possible, by following peace and benevolence, will merely prepare the way for the glorious blessings of the great Seventh Day, in which man will rest from his own schemes and endeavors, and will come fully under the control of the great Messiah, whose Rule of Righteousness for human uplift has been prophetically pictured for centuries.

THE PICTURE IN RETROSPECT

Still looking from the Divine standpoint at the Six great thousand-year Days in which Sin and Death have reigned, we perceive that one effect has been just as foretold to

Mother Eve—“I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conceptions.” We perceive that our race has multiplied much more rapidly than it would have done had it remained perfect, as at first; for the first children, in the days following the Fall, were frequently born when the fathers were one hundred years old.

We have already referred to the lesson respecting the sinfulness of sin which comes to all mankind most fully, most consciously, to those favored by contact with the people of God, who have received the Divine Revelation. The enlightened ones have been but a small proportion of the whole. After two thousand years of the reign of Sin and Death, God fore told in an obscure manner the blessing which He purposed to bring subsequently to the race. To Abraham He said, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

That Message, followed in Israel by the giving of the Law Covenant, has been the light of the world. For eighteen centuries it was the only light of hope, of prospect. Then, in partial fulfillment of that Promise, came Jesus, the first practical expression of Divine Love for our race. No longer would God content Himself merely with promises. He would now begin the

WORK OF HUMAN RESCUE.

But if any hoped that world-wide blessings would immediately spring up as a result of Jesus' work, he was mistaken. On the contrary, Jesus Himself was combated by the Prince of Darkness and his deluded subjects. For nearly two thousand years the same principle has obtained all followers of Jesus have been obliged to take up their cross and suffer for righteousness, for godliness, in the midst of a perverse people, amongst whom they have shone as lights and whom to some extent they have assisted in enlightening, civilizing, etc.

Thus for Six Days of the Week, so far as light, truth, knowledge of God, is concerned, have all been dark Days. The lights which God provided in His people have been as candles set upon candlesticks. They have indeed reprov'd the darkness, but they have been powerless to scatter it. Nor did God so design. His declaration through the Prophet is, "Weeping may endure for the night, but joy cometh in the morning." (Psa. 30:5) Again, "darkness covers the earth, gross darkness the people;" but "the Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in His beams." Isa. 60:2; Mal. 4:2

This promised Sun of Righteousness which is to scatter the darkness of earth consists, we are distinctly told, of Jesus and those who have walked in His footsteps throughout the Gospel Age. These, approved by the Father, will be glorified beyond the Veil by a resurrection to glory, honor and immortality. Then speedily will these "shine forth as the Sun in the Kingdom of their Father." (Matt. 13:43) This will mean the ushering in of the great Seventh Day Messiah's Day.

GOD HAS NOT NEGLECTED US

From this Divine standpoint God is not slack concerning His promises. Only Six Days of the Week have yet passed. The glorious Seventh Day, in which the Great Mediator between God and men will assume His Kingdom powers, is just at hand. Instead of thinking that God is neglecting us and forgetting to fulfill the Messianic promises, we should with the eyes of faith realize that He is working all things according to the counsel of His own will. We should consider the matter from the standpoint that God has exercised great patience with humanity in not blotting out the race. He has been long-suffering; and this fact assures us that the Unchangeable One would prefer that none of His creatures should perish in death, but rather that all, if they would, might turn unto Him and live. Ezek. 33:11

The great opportunity for the masses of our race to turn to the Lord and attain life everlasting will be after the darkness shall have passed, and the Sun of Righteousness shall be shining forth; after the Highway of Holiness shall have taken the place of the Broad Road to destruction; after Messiah, the great King, shall have dethroned Satan, the Prince of Darkness, from the control of the world; after the Prince of Peace shall have established lasting peace upon a proper basis. We can sing heartily with the poet:

*"A thousand years! earth" s coming glory!
'Tis the glad Day so long foretold;
'Tis the bright morn of Zion' s glory Prophets foresaw in times of old!"*

WAITING FOR THE MOTHER

Our race was generated by Father Adam as well as condemned to death through his disobedience. What the race needs is another father, or life-giver, and this is exactly what the word Savior signifies Life-Giver. At the cost of His own life the Redeemer became the purchaser of Adam and his race, with a view of their resuscitation, their resurrection from sin and death. Is it not one of the Redeemer's titles "The Everlasting Father" the Father who gives everlasting life? (Isa. 9:6) Unquestionably He has not yet fulfilled this glorious office of Life-Giver to Adam's race. He will fulfill it, however—" in His Day."

Speaking to His faithful disciples, His followers in the Narrow Way, Jesus promised them, "In the regeneration ye shall sit upon twelve thrones." (Matt. 19:28) That regeneration period corresponds exactly to St. Peter's "Times of Restitution," or years of restoration (Acts. 3:19-21): and both of these statements agree to the general teachings of Scripture respecting a resurrection, at the last Day Messiah's Day the Thousand years of regeneration, resurrection, restitution, which will afford Adam and his race fullest opportunities for attaining perfection of human nature in an Edenic world-wide Paradise.

The Lord through the Prophet assures us of the wonderful success which will attend the establishment of the New Empire of earth, the Dominion of the Prince of Light, which will supersede the dominion of the Prince of Darkness, when Satan shall be bound for a thousand years, that he may deceive the people no more. Thus it is written, "Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet; and the hail (Truth) shall sweep away the refuge of lies." Isa. 28:17

But why the delay, do you ask? Ah, we answer, God did not permit Adam to begin the establishment of his race until first He gave him Eve as his bride, his wife. The world needed not merely a life-giver, but a mother, a care-taker, a helpmate.

Similarly, in the Divine arrangement God has provided that the Restitution Time, the world's uplifting period, the regeneration Epoch for man kind, shall not begin until first the true Church, the Little Flock, the Bride of Christ, shall have been completed and united to the Heavenly Bridegroom beyond the Veil made partaker with Him of glory, honor and immortality.

Thus the great Plan of the Ages, timed by Infinite Wisdom, has delayed long enough to permit all of God's spirit-begotten children to make their calling and election sure to a share with our Redeemer in His glorious work. How glad we are that the Heavenly Father and the Kingly Redeemer are beckoning us to share the things which eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, but which are reserved for all who love God sincerely more than they love houses or lands, parents or children or self! The Divine Plan of the Ages rolls onward toward completion, and at every stage its progress makes for new blessings and revelations of the glorious things which God purposed in Himself from before the foundation of the world.

NEW CREATURES— PERFECT IN HOLINESS

"Be ye Holy, for I am Holy." (1 Peter 1:16)

The Word "holy" is related to our word "whole," which signifies to be complete, not broken, not partial. Viewed from this standpoint, this is a wonderful exhortation. Our Lord Jesus also exhorted us, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in Heaven is perfect." Very properly we notice who are thus addressed. It is not the world; for the Bible is not addressed to the world. The world in its fallen condition, out of harmony with God, and not seeking to know God's will, is not in a position where God can thus address them. They are aliens, strangers, foreigners, as the Lord speaks of them through St. Paul. They have neither part nor lot in the things of God at this time. The world by its wisdom knows not God. His great Plan, so far as the world of mankind is concerned, is yet future. The world is loved sympathetically by the Heavenly Father, and they are ultimately to have a glorious place in His provision, but not yet.

During the long period of time from Adam to the making of the Covenant with Israel, God recognized no nation of people. They were cut off from fellowship with Him. He did, indeed, speak through a few, such as Enoch, Noah, and Abraham and He made certain declarations to them not clearly understood by any at that time. None were permitted to come into covenant relationship with God, except in the sense that Abraham did, and through animal sacrifices, which typified the great sacrifice for sins yet to come. Then came God's dealings with the one nation of Israel. He separated them from all other nations, and said, "You only have I known [recognized] of all the families of the earth." He commanded them to be holy. He gave them His law, and promised that if they would keep the law they should have everlasting life; they might have those gracious privileges which God mentioned to Father Abraham; namely, that through them all the families of the earth might be blessed. They thought they could keep God's Law; they thought they could be holy; but they found they could not.

This holiness was briefly comprehended in the command, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." What holiness, what completeness, that would be! But the difficulty with the nation of Israel was that they could not keep the Law Covenant because they were imperfect. No imperfect man could keep a perfect law. They could not be holy that was the long and short of it.

You remember that God permitted them to offer typical sacrifices year by year for over 1,600 years, and thus they renewed this arrangement yearly on the annual Day of Atonement. This arrangement made them acceptable to God for the ensuing year, and thus they were kept in covenant relationship with Him. They tried over and over again to keep the Law, and continually failed. The Apostle Paul tells us that not a single Jew during all that time was justified through keeping the law. "By the deeds of the Law shall no flesh be justified" in God's sight.

HOW CHRISTIANS CAN KEEP GOD'S LAW

Then came the Gospel Dispensation. Jesus, by His life and by His preaching gave forth a message of mercy, a message of peace, even to those Jews who could not keep the Law, saying still to them, "Be ye holy." They had tried to be holy during all those many centuries but failed, and how could they be expected to be holy now any more than before? How could they be complete, lacking nothing, any more than previously? Ah, there was a secret, which Jesus disclosed to the earnest and sincere, the "Israelites indeed!" The reason why any could keep the Law after Jesus came, while the Jews could not, was that Christ accomplished an important work; applicable to those who become His disciples. The Jews could not succeed, but we can. How can Christians keep God's Law when the Jews could not? Are we wiser or better born than they? Nay, verily. Naturally "we are all children of wrath, even as others." How, then, do we keep the Law?

In the absolute sense we cannot keep God's Law any more than could the Jews. You have proven to your satisfaction, no doubt, and I have proven to my satisfaction, that we cannot keep that perfect Law in the sense that we would have no imperfection of word, thought or action. We do not in that sense keep the Law. What, then, did the Apostle mean by saying that "the righteousness of the Law is fulfilled in us?" He means that God has made an arrangement through Jesus which legally cancels our imperfections, and makes them as though they did not exist. Thus, by keeping the Law in spirit, and having Jesus cancel the infirmities of our body, which is merely our temporary property, we are perfect before God, we keep His Law.

DIFFERENT OFFICES OF THE GLORIFIED CHRIST

We see, first of all, that the Lord Jesus, according to the Father's Plan, laid down His life as a Ransom, a corresponding price, for the life of Father Adam, and this included all the race of Adam, because they fell in him, before they were born. Father Adam sinned and the penalty was death. That penalty must be met. Adam died, and all his children have been born under the conditions of sin and imperfection and death during the past six thousand years. They have been dying because sin entered into the world by one man's disobedience, as the Apostle explains. What, then, did Jesus' death accomplish? This: through His death He secured the right to annul Adam's death sentence and to take possession of all the world of mankind. Thus Adam and all his posterity will be awakened from death. Otherwise the entire race would have to suffer eternal death; for the penalty of sin was not merely dying, but remaining dead forever.

When will Jesus take possession of the world? At the beginning of His Messianic Kingdom. Mankind are something like a scrap-heap of old machines, engines, boilers, etc., all rusted and twisted out of shape. They do not see fit for much of anything. But the One taking control has infinite power and ability to rejuvenate and reorganize all of these defective beings. This will be His work during the thousand years of His reign. It will affect all the dead as well as those now having a measure of life. He will bring mankind up out of the conditions of sin and degradation and death, back to the perfection lost in Eden, redeemed by Himself at Calvary.

Why has God not yet done this work for the world? Because this is not His Plan. God purposed to allow sin to demonstrate for six thousand years its awful fruitage, and then to bring in a great Sabbath Day, the great Millennial Sabbath of a thousand years, and in that time to do a work for mankind which they cannot do for themselves. He is to do this work through Jesus, His appointed Channel. In the meantime He has been selecting and preparing the classes who will be His agents, under Christ, to accomplish His great work for man first an earthly class and then a spiritual class. God has purposed that Jesus shall be the great King of the world, and that the spiritual class, the Church, shall be associate kings under Him.

Moreover, the Heavenly Father has purposed that Jesus and the Church shall be a Priesthood to bless and instruct the world over whom they will reign as Kings. Such a work was the portion of the priests who were appointed under the Law of Israel. They were teachers and helpers of the people. This Priesthood that God is preparing has Jesus for its great High Priest and the Church as under priests. They are also to be the judges of the people. These different features of their future work were shown in type in the anointed priesthood of Israel, in their anointed kings, and in their judges. The Apostle says, "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?" (1 Cor. 6:2) The Christ, Head and Body, are also to be the world's great Prophet, and antitype of Moses. (Acts 3:22, 23)

All this shows us that the Church is separate and distinct from the world at large. As Jesus said, "Ye are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." "I have chosen you out of the world." There are two different camps. What God will do for the world through Jesus in the incoming Age, by restoring whosoever will to all that was lost in Adam, bringing them back to human perfection, is something very different from what He is doing for the Church now. The inheritance of the faithful Church is to be spiritual, not earthly. It is the Church that is now called upon to be holy.

All the world, in due time, will be called upon to be holy. That will be the rule of the Millennial Age. All mankind will then have the standard of holiness set before them, and by the assistance of The Christ, Restitution to perfection will be accomplished in all who will then be willing and obedient, and they may become holy as was Adam in his perfection. He was holy until he sinned. Jesus was holy in the perfection of human nature while on earth. The whole world will be expected to come up to the condition of holiness, of completeness, nothing lacking, nothing imperfect. The merit which Jesus has, by virtue of His faithfulness to the Father even unto death, gives Him the right to purchase the human family and help them back to that condition of completeness, of perfection, where they can be holy as God is holy. The angels evidently are holy as God is holy. They have no sin, incompleteness or imperfection.

GOD'S NEW CREATION--HIS CROWNING WORK

What, then, is the difference in the call to holiness now extended to those who have an "ear to hear" God's present Message? The point is right here. It is not our flesh that is holy. It is the New Creature that is holy. Our human imperfections are covered by the imputed righteousness of Christ. This unique dealing with the Gospel Church is for a specific purpose. We understand that God, who had already created various ranks of angels and other spirit beings, and who then created man, a little lower than the angels, had it in His Plan before the foundation of the world that He would in due time have a New Creation, different from anything created before, and that this would be the greatest, most wonderful creation of all.

This New Creation, God tells us (2 Pet. 1:4), is to have the Divine nature, which is His own nature. It will not only be higher than the human nature, which in perfection is the image of God, but it will be higher than the angels, who are also in the image of God. It will be higher than seraphim and cherubim and all forms of spirit life. It will be the very pinnacle of life, spirit nature in its highest form.

It is this New Creation that God first began to develop in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ when He was here upon earth, and at the time of His baptism. The Father's purpose in sending Him into the world was, first, that He might be the world's Redeemer; second, that He might become the Leader of the Church. The Apostle declares that "in bringing many sons to glory" not bringing the world back to the earthly sonship lost in Adam; for he was not then discussing the world's salvation; but in bringing the Heavenly sons to glory, honor and immortality it pleased God to "make the Captain of their salvation perfect through suffering." God has made Him to be Head over the Church, which is His Body. The Church is a body in the same sense that Congress is a body. Jesus will be the Executive Officer. The work of the Gospel Age has been to gather the members of this Body. The blessings promised to the world cannot go to it until this work of gathering and developing the spiritual Body of Christ has been completed. We believe that this work is now almost accomplished.

The Bible tells us that for the joy that was set before Him Jesus endured all His sufferings even unto death. No doubt He had some of the joy before He left the Heavenly condition and humbled Himself to become a man. He had set before him by the Father the joy of being the greatest servant of God, of doing His will and of redeeming the world of mankind. For this joy He despised, or set at naught, the shame, and was crucified, for which cause the Father supremely exalted Him to a place at His own right hand. Jesus did not need any one to be His Redeemer, to make good for Him, because He was able to keep the Law. He was perfect before He came into the world, as the Father was perfect, and in the same sense. He came into the world as a perfect babe, He became a perfect man. "He knew no sin." "He was holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners."

The Bible explains how Jesus could be so different from the remainder of the race. It was because He was specially conceived and born; He had a different Father; He came not from Adam. His life came from the Father Above. It was transferred from a pre-human condition. He had an earthly mother, and received the human nature thus. But He had a separate, distinct life from Heaven, and therefore His perfection. As a man He was whole, complete.

After our Lord had finished His sacrifice in obedience to the Father's will, and had been resurrected, and had ascended to the Father, the next thing was the calling of the Church. The Father alone could do that, and it was the Father's purpose, after the Son had made reconciliation for iniquity. Therefore, although Jesus gathered and taught some disciples, even these were incomplete, not yet New Creatures. He had to speak to them from the viewpoint of faith, of their prospective sonship. They did not receive the begetting of the Spirit until Pentecost, because, as the Apostle explains, "Jesus was not yet glorified." He must first die and be resurrected, and then ascend on High and appear in the presence of God and be recognized as the One who had fully kept the Divine Law, as the One whose sacrifice was all-sufficient to be a satisfaction for sin, as the One worthy to be the Head of the Church, the Channel through which the blessings would come to all His "fellows," the members of His Body, who will be associated with Him in the Kingdom.

THE HOLINESS OF THE SAINTS

Now we see what the Apostle means when He says, "Present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." We should rejoice to know that if we offer to God the little we have, Jesus will make up what is needed to make our sacrifice fully acceptable to the Father. When the Holy Spirit comes upon one, an unction from on High, it constitutes him a son of God, on a new plane. He is no longer counted as a human being; he has been begotten as a spirit being.

But he has no spirit body as yet. He still has the old body, the brain. A new will is there, a new mind. We have the mind of Christ. We had the mind, the disposition, of Christ to present ourselves as a sacrifice, but when we were begotten of the Holy Spirit we received from the start, the embryo, of a new nature. We became New Creatures in Christ.

This New Creature must use the old body to practice on. The Lord says, in effect, "I will not give you the new body now, but I will give you an earnest, or hand-payment." When you make a purchase of real estate you are expected to pay something down to bind the contract, and you may pay the remainder when you get the deed. So when we enter into this contract with the Lord He binds the contract by giving us the begetting of the Spirit, the beginning of our glorious inheritance. If we continue to walk humbly and faithfully before Him, and seek to do His will as we agreed to do, we will be more and more filled with the Spirit, until eventually God will complete the matter by giving the birth of the Spirit. That will be the resurrection "change." The new mind will then be transferred to a Divine spirit body. Then the New Creature will be complete. During the present life the New Creature must dwell in this earthly tabernacle, the human body. "We who are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened." (2 Cor. 5:4) Why do we groan? Because, first, this tabernacle is twisted and weak and unsatisfactory in various ways; and second, because an earthly body is not adapted to the cravings and aspirations of a spiritual mind. With the new body the New Creature will be complete. Now the New Creature has the mind of God, desiring in all things to do His will, but the body in which it is tabernacling has inclinations and desires toward earthly things. The New Creature desires to live separate from and above sin and all the things of the flesh. So, as the Apostle tells us, there is a continual warfare between the old nature and the new, the flesh lusting against the Spirit, and Spirit against the flesh.

The human body is your body in the sense that a dog may be your dog. The dog is yours, not you. It is not the same with the world. They do not have a new mind. They have not received the begetting of the Holy Spirit. They merely have a natural mind in harmony with a natural body.

But the fallen human body of the saints cannot do the things that the New Creature would have it do, and never will do these things perfectly. How, then, can we be holy? We become holy by having Christ's merit imputed to us, and this merit keeps us holy. The Bible speaks of this imputation of Christ's merit as a robe to cover us, constituting us acceptable to God. We are entirely acceptable if we have this wedding garment on. If we take it off, we lose our lives as New Creatures. But so long as we have the merit of Jesus covering our unintentional blemishes that belong to the fallen nature, that we are not able to overcome, the Father does not regard us from the standpoint of sinners, but from the standpoint of our new nature “Ye are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of Christ dwell in you.”

It is the New Creature that is to be holy like the Father in Heaven; it is the New Creature that is to be perfect as the Father in Heaven is perfect not the flesh. Does this give us liberty to sin with our bodies? God forbid. “How shall we who have died to sin live any longer therein?” says the Apostle. If we made a voluntary surrender of our lives, if we consecrated ourselves unto death in opposition to sin, how shall we live in sin, how shall we find pleasure in sin? If we enjoy sin it is a sign that we do not have the Holy Spirit. The mind of the Lord does not enjoy sin. We are to make a clear distinction, however, between the impulses of the flesh and the desire of the heart. Any one of God’s people might be overtaken in a fault through the impulses of his fallen human nature, and under stress of circumstances be led to do or say something that he did not approve. But so surely as he is a New Creature he will wish to make amends for his faults, toward fellow men or toward God, in order to come back into full harmony with the Lord.

NEW CREATURES TO JUDGE THEMSELVES

God is judging us according to our heart. “Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.” The world cannot know all about you and me. They may say, “I do not believe there is any difference between us.” They may think our position is all hypocrisy. But we must not judge them. They are looking at things from the natural standpoint, and when they see that we have said or done something that is unkind or improper, they draw their conclusions accordingly. We wish to do the Lord’s will. That must be the attitude of our heart. If we willingly consent to sin, we are partakers of the sin. If we have love for sin, a sympathy for sin, it would be a sign that we have lost the spirit of holiness.

If we are overtaken in a fault, then, what shall we do? We must correct this. The Apostle says, “If we would judge ourselves, we should not be judged; but when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord.” (1 Cor. 11:31, 32) We see that St. Paul’s thought is this: If you and I as New Creatures are seeking to be holy as God is holy, we will watch our words and conduct and try to keep a strict rule over our body; that if the mortal body makes some break and gets temporarily from under control, we will get after it and will make it do something in the way of punishment; we will correct the body to make it remember for the future. Suppose you had a dog quite well trained, so you thought you had him well in hand. If he were to break away some day and do something you did not want him to do, you might put a muzzle on him and chain him up. You might give him a little switching also, and all of this would be to make him remember that he must not do so again.

So the New Creature, when he finds that his old creature has transgressed, must bring it back into proper subjection, and then give himself some kind of chastisement. A little child had a mother who was quite wise in knowing how to deal with him. Of course, all children cannot be dealt with alike. But to punish her child when disobedient this mother had the custom of sending him into a certain closet, where he was made to sit for a half hour or so to think over what he had done and to make up his mind to do right thereafter. One day the mother missed Johnnie. She looked all over the house for him. By and by she found him in the closet. She said, "Why Johnnie, I did not send you in here; why are you here?" Johnnie replied, "Me is taking some thinks." He was administering punishment to himself. That is certainly the thought. If we as God's children would judge ourselves, the Heavenly Father would not need to send chastisements upon us. If we neglect this, if we are heedless, He will send the chastisements, because He does not wish us to be "condemned with the world."

All true Christians should be on the alert to note God's providences. Nothing can come to us by accident; for all things must work together for our good. If anything occurs to God's consecrated people, it must be something that would be good for them or that He has permitted to teach some lesson. If we meet with what would appear to be an accident, if we get into some dilemma, if some peculiar experience comes to us, we should say, "Is this something to teach me a special lesson or is it a chastisement from my Father for wrong-doing?"

The Apostle intimates that even physical sickness in one of the Church may be accounted for in this way. I do not mean, however, that all our sickness can be thus accounted for. We read of one of the Lord's faithful children who "was sick nigh unto death," because of over-work in the Lord's service, which had seemed necessary, and there is no intimation that he was miraculously healed. But every experience of a faithful child of God works out for his good and the Lord's glory.

Every child of God needs to be disciplined in order that his character may be developed. Even the Lord Jesus had disciplining, we remember. They were never punishments for sin in His case. And it is for us to be on guard to see that our disciplinings be not in the nature of punishments, so that we may get the greatest benefit from them. "If we judge ourselves, we shall not be judged." How shall we judge ourselves? We made a suggestion recently in the WATCH TOWER respecting the keeping of a careful watch on our thoughts, of starting out properly in the morning, and seeking during the day to cultivate the Spirit of the Lord, the spirit of love. We suggested that at the close of the day an examination be made to determine to what extent we have been successful, to what extent we have walked in a manner pleasing to the Lord, and have been faithful to our opportunities of service. By so doing, we will be able to judge ourselves.

We should first go direct to the Lord for forgiveness if we have done anything displeasing in His sight. Next we should seek to make good any wrong we have done to another. If some one has been wronged, and we cannot make it good, we should try to make amends in some way, so as not to profit by that which was wrong. In these ways the body will be taught that it must do right. It will not be pleasing to the old creature to humbly make acknowledgment to the Lord and to those who may have been wronged, and then to make restitution where restitution is in order. But it must be done.

I am reminded of a story. It is said that a Christian man, who had been by nature inclined to be penurious, was driving along a country road. He saw a poor man and was about to pass him by. Then he thought, "I will give this man a quarter." He was about to give him the money when he thought, "Oh, a nickel will do." But he caught himself and said, "See here, old flesh of mine, you are mean! You could give a quarter, you know you could. You were going to cheat me out of a blessing. Now I will give the man a half dollar." And he did so. So in this way the New Creature can discipline the old body. The Lord will look down and see how anxious we are to do His will; how we are striving every day to keep as near as possible to His standard, and His love will go out to us more and more as He sees this spirit demonstrated in us.

HOLINESS INCLUDES WISDOM, JUSTICE, LOVE

There is another part to this matter of holiness, or wholeness. How much it includes! We are to study God's character and see what His wholeness, or completeness is. You and I as New Creatures are coming to see how wise is our Heavenly Father. So we will try to be wise also. The Bible explains how the Lord's children are to be wise. They are to have "the spirit of a sound mind." Our minds were not sound, being blemished through the fall, but the new mind is loyal to God. The Scriptures tell us what God's will for us is, what His mind is, and we are to copy Him. As we see that God plans ahead, we become wiser by planning ahead.

But did not Jesus say, "Take no thought for the morrow?" Jesus said that you should take no anxious care for the morrow. You may think about tomorrow and plan about it. God knew His entire Plan before the foundation of the world. He thought of the morrow and did not create the world recklessly. We should not bring children into the world recklessly nor do anything else recklessly. We should be as wise as possible in what we do and say. It would make a great change in men's lives if they all tried to be as wise as God is wise.

A brother came to me and said, "Brother Russell, I owe so much to Present Truth. Not only has it made my heart happier, but it has changed my entire life. I am a carpenter. As such I am occasionally sent here and there by the firm which employs me. They have increased my wages; they say I am doing better work. I am sure I can think better and reason better." He was learning to be wise, to be more Godlike, and it was profitable to him even in earthly matters.

I think of another brother, a rather bright looking man above the average in appearance. I said to him, "What is your occupation?" He answered, "I am foreman for such a building firm." "Have you been long at this?" I asked. He replied, "I was working at it before I came to the knowledge of God's Word, but I was not foreman; I did not then know how to read. My study and reading has been altogether in the SCRIPTURE STUDIES. My firm has now put me in as foremen. All the business of the firm passes through my hands." Thus the knowledge of God applied to his life made this man wiser in respect to his avocation. We have a wise God. If we try to be holy, it will include this quality of wisdom.

It will include another quality that of justice. What a wonderful thing justice is! My appreciation of justice is growing every day. I see that it is the most wonderful thing in the world to be simply just. Some say, "Anybody can be just. I would not take a penny from any man." But it means more than this. It means not only not to take a penny, but not to take a thousand dollars. There are people who would take a thousand dollars or ten thousand or a million who would not take a penny. A penny would not be sufficient inducement. But to be just includes not only financial matters, but it means to be just with our neighbors, with those to whom you sell and those of whom you buy. It means to give right value, and to be willing that those you buy from shall have a decent profit on their sale. It means that you will not haggle them down until they will not have a reasonable profit. It means to deal justly, generously, as you would be dealt with.

Moreover, the Christian may be unjust in his thoughts of his neighbors. You have no right to think evil of any one. That does not mean that you should trust every one indiscriminately. Keep your eye open, but do not think evil. It is unjust, and we wish to be copies of God. Some of the Lord's people are lacking in complete justice. Their old bodies have minds badly twisted, and the New Creature has not yet discovered what the trouble is, and has not taken the matter fully in hand. I believe we need to practise on this, to think along the lines of justice. Let us try more and more to criticize our own deeds and thoughts, because, unless we have this quality of justice well developed as New Creatures, how can we expect to be fitted for a place in God's Kingdom? If we are not just, how could we be fit to judge others then?

We need also another quality, and that is love. This is the bond of perfection, the great completeness of all. Nothing would be complete without love. Love comes in as the crown, the climax. "God is Love." He has Justice, Mercy, Wisdom, Power, but He IS Love. That is the essence of His character; that is the dominating feature. But He will not be loving at the expense of Justice, in the arrangements He has made for mankind. So let us copy God in His love. Love extends into every avenue of life. It is an essential quality of holiness.

Finally, all these noble qualities are to find their outgrowth in the Church of God, which is the Body of Christ. We should make up our minds, too, to Love especially all who are the Lord's. Not all of the Lord's people are just what we would like to have them. But God has not given us the work of making them over. He will attend to that. Our chief work is with ourselves. We are interested in the brethren, however. We are all soldiers under the one great Captain, we are members of the same Bride class, all called with the same Heavenly Calling. We have been begotten with the same Holy Spirit, have one Father and one Savior and Elder Brother, if we are in the School of Christ and are learning of Him. How we should love the brethren, then! The Bible puts this as one of the unmistakable evidences that we have passed from death unto life if we love the brethren.

It is not enough that we have said, I desire to be a child of God, I would like to sit with Christ in His Throne. Any reasonable person would like to be with Christ in glory, honor and immortality. If we hope to be of that class, we must qualify ourselves for that place. We have promised to give our human nature and all our earthly interests. We have consecrated ourselves to be dead to these and alive toward God. It is pointed out to us in God's Word what it is to be holy as our Father is holy, to be perfect as He is perfect. Then let this mind be in us which was in Christ

Jesus our Lord. "Humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time."

1915 Convention Report Supplement

SOWING TO THE SPIRIT

I have taken my text this afternoon, dear friends, from the Apostle's words, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

I believe that there is a very important lesson centering in those words. There are certain things in our lives and in our characters that we have nothing to do with. You had nothing to do in sowing yourself in your character that which you received from your parents. You had nothing to do with Adam's sin. You have to do only with what you, yourself, sow. As to all the other things that have come to us by heredity (no matter where, or how, or when it came), if it has come not by our own volition, but is something outside of us, then it is all covered by the great arrangement which our Heavenly Father has made. In Christ He has made provision for covering all the imperfections coming through the fall, so that we are not responsible for anything but what we sow. He will attend to what Adam sowed. We see how definitely God has arranged this, and not along any lines of preference, but He has provided a just sacrifice for the unjust sinner, for, as by man (Adam) came sin and came death, so also through the man Christ Jesus comes deliverance from those things which were upon us through Father Adam.

Now this is not only applicable at the present time to the church, but it will also be applicable to the world during the millenniums age. The whole world of mankind will not be held responsible for what their fathers sowed. We now suffer for the things which our father sowed. You will, in the present life, have to do with these things and suffer these things, but in the new life only what you do counts. So with the world. They will have to do with what they do or sow. The seed of the wilful sowing will bring a certain crop, and the same as sowing wheat will bring wheat, the sowing of one kind of grain will bring that kind, just so with the sowing in the moral sense. Whatever we sow that we will reap. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

What are the things the world are sowing at the present time? We see the world sowing to selfishness to self-gratification. Nearly all the world is sowing to selfishness. What are you doing? One might answer, I am trying to serve my tastes, and preferences for food, and for clothing, and for everything under the sun. He is trying to satisfy his desires. As a matter of fact, most of the natural man's desires are to sinful things to his injury. Why? They are so because he is a fallen creature. He still has in his brain a capacity for some good things, but these are not so near to him because he has received a selfish bent, and thus the selfish powers are more active than the other powers. But the higher powers of the mind lie in the top of the brain, such as the sense of right and wrong, reverence, good qualities, those that the Lord approves, those that are the highest blessing.

Whoever can live in the top of his head instead of down in the cellar or base of the brain, his will be the nobler life. There are the organs that belong to the flesh. Some people live for food, live for drink. Some are fond of drinking; some are fond of eating. Some do not care for these things. If we did not have that quality in our minds we would not like to eat, and then it would be a mere matter of form, but we have a love for food, we have a good relish for the dinner, and this leads along to thankfulness to the Lord from whom they came.

Now, that organ being in control and being served particularly and continually, it would mean that the person only lives to eat and drink. He lives down there in that part of his head. He would not have the highest joys. That is an extreme, an overbalance of the brain. It is right for one to have this quality of relish for food. God wanted us to have it. It is only when it runs to an extreme that it is undesirable. It runs to an extreme because we have gotten unbalanced. We got unbalanced away back in Eden, and we have had six thousand years of development in that direction, so that, by this time most of our heads are empty.

We have been too busy with the eating, planting and building, and we have been living more like horses, and dogs and animals. What does the dog do? He spends most of his time running around looking for a bone. The horse has to pull the wagon lest he get the whip, but he wants the oats. These things are alright. There is nothing wrong in a man enjoying his food. It is when we make this to be about all there is in life, it is when we sit and loll around to kill time, and just do this, that and the other thing as it comes along, it is this that shows an empty head. Some very fine people spend much time in playing cards and dancing. I cannot play any game of cards. To me it seems that those who have time to burn, to kill or to destroy, and spend so much time in merely thinking about these things things on the same level with the horse and dog they are living on a very low, animal plane. They do just about like a fine animal would do, like a fine dog would do; not like a cur would do. They are too particular for that.

But God has given man his brain so different from the other animals. Our brains are so arranged that we can calculate. We have the quality and the powers of the mind to reason out matters along theoretical lines. We can study mathematics, dynamics, astronomy, geology, political economy; we can discern between right and wrong; we can know God's will and study His word. Animals cannot do those things. The average natural man does not care to think about God.

He does not want to think about dying, about hell. He ought to think, there is a great God; He has a sympathy and love for me, and I would be glad to know what He has to say. It would be natural to ask what God has for us, and to reason, it must be something good, because God is good; something great, because God is great. He is also wise, just and loving.

Therefore, if things were right, man would be feeling after God feeling after Him if haply they might find Him. They would want to know about the divine plan of the ages, how sin came into the world, how God had sympathy, how He sent His Son to be our redeemer to make satisfaction for our sins, how His sacrifice makes satisfaction for our sins now and how it will, in due time, make satisfaction for all the world, and how it is that we now know this beforehand so that we may be associated with Jesus in blessing the world bye and bye. How their eyes would open when they would hear that! Why do they not do that? Because false doctrines have come in. Where did they come in? They came from Satan and from the fallen angels. The god of this world has blinded men's minds.

Saint Paul says that the god of this world has blinded the minds of men. They do not believe because their eyes are blinded; because Satan does not want them to see the glorious goodness of God. How could it be seen? Shining in the face of the Lord Jesus Christ. If they could only get a glimpse of the goodness of God in Christ, it would convert the whole world.

Why then, does not God do this? He intends to do it in the millennial kingdom. It is to open the blind eyes, unstop the deaf ears and cause all men to know the Lord from the least to the greatest.

Why, then, does He not do this now, and why did He not destroy the devil in the beginning? fallen man may inquire; but, he is asking questions too deep for him. He is trying to get out into the deep things where he cannot swim. God has allowed Satan to take his course. God will take control in due time. He let our first parents know that they would die. It was Satan who said they would not die. If they chose to believe Satan, that is their own responsibility. God allowed them to take that way. Why should He do this? Because He wished to give a great lesson.

To whom give it? First of all, to the angels. The angels are learning every day. The angels desire to look into these things, as the Apostle assures us. They are watching right along, and through the six thousand years in which God has permitted evil, the angels have been looking on. It was a great test to them at first. When some saw the power of Satan at the first, and God did not correct him, they concluded that God did not have the power to correct him. So, some of them decided to follow Satan.

Did God want this? Yes; because if their hearts were not loyal He did not want them associated in the Kingdom regulations; so

He let them have the test. He let them take their own course, and now they are over with Satan, they are finding that God has the power, and they have demonstrated that they are not in harmony with Him. The other angels were, for a time, bewildered, but, they trusted God anyhow. They are finding out that they took the right course. All the while God had the power, but He simply did not exercise it. They see how foolish it would have been for them to have chosen sin. They can see that doing the right thing is better than doing the wrong thing. All the holy angels are perceiving that they did the right thing, even though for a while it looked as though God could not stop Satan, and could not restrain sin and save the fallen race.

Then, the world of mankind has been going down into death, but the world is not lost, we see. In one sense of the word, it was lost, but not lost from God's standpoint, because He knew all the time where they were, and all the time He had a plan for them. They were always only asleep in death, so far as He was concerned, because God, before He revealed His plan, had it in mind for man. In fact, He had it all in mind before the foundation of the world. In that plan Jesus was the very essence and center of the divine program. He was to be the great ransom sacrifice for all, and after that, the great King of glory to lift mankind out of death.

All this was known to the Father from the very beginning, and Jesus was the Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world. It is a good thing to find out how great a God we have; to learn that He is not only all-wise and all-powerful, and also all-just, but still more precious to find out that the very essence of His character is love, love.

Now then, this great plan which He is carrying out has a still further purpose in developing sympathy in us, and otherwise benefiting mankind. He is letting the world go down to the tomb, but no one is suffering very much. This has been going on for more than six thousand years, but no one person has suffered for that length of time. Many have been taken away very suddenly; some have died of consumption; others have been killed with bullets; and still others have died from poisonous gases. But, what if they did? It did not last very long. It is not like roasting through all eternity. But, for a person to suffer for a few days, to have a toothache, a corn, a heartache, a headache, or what not, it may do them good for aught I know. I think it will. I think my corns even, have done me good. How? It may develop patience and give me sympathy for other people.

All of our aches and pains only give us sympathy for others. If you did not have any, you could not imagine what was the matter with the people when they talked about having aches and pains.

But now, since we have had aches and pains, corns, bruises, etc., we know what they are and can sympathize with others who have them. Then, besides, these experiences are only for a moment light afflictions, as the Apostle views them.

These things are giving the world a great lesson, and then, they are not going to eternal torment. They are simply falling asleep. It is better that they fall asleep than that they should stay awake; better under present conditions. Better for themselves if they were inclined to do right, for the reason that their experiences were not so prolonged, and not so much of a conflict. Better also for those who know how to do wrong, and to do evil, who know how to make bombs, and all kinds of deadly instruments for injuring their fellow creatures. If they were not cut off, I do not know what they would know in a thousand years. Some would get all the money in the world. It is a good thing they are dying off, my dear friends.

We are glad, however, that they are merely falling asleep, and not dying like a dog. God has a glorious future for them. We are content to see it more and more, that our Heavenly Father has a most wonderful plan. There are some things that we do not fully appreciate, but we are sure that our Father knows what He is about. We need not worry. We see enough to fully convince and satisfy us. We rest it there. That's the way I do. Don't bother about this and that. It doesn't make much difference to us. You ought to think about it, but don't worry about it. Don't worry about anything but about pleasing the Lord. If you do not please the Lord, then you have something to worry about. If not, go right along and trust also in Him.

But these things are going to have a beneficial effect upon the world. The world goes to sleep with certain knowledge and certain experiences. Even those errors God permitted to come in even they will work out some good. How could they ever work for good? In this way: Imagine some of the poor people awakening in the resurrection day and having the next thought to the one with which they fell asleep. They will, therefore, be looking for the devil's horns. They will come out, saying, where am I? Where is the devil? No devil around at all.

Where is the fire? No fire around. You had a bad dream; that is what you had. You had a nightmare. Why, those things told you when you were alive on this side they were simply some scare things which the devil used to drive you away from God. They are the very things that made you hate God, but the Bible tells about the love of God, and nothing about these evil, bad things. They were made up in the dark ages. They are doctrines of the devil. Cheer up, brother, you are just entering into the best time in your life. Are you deceiving me? Oh, no; no deceiving here. Satan is bound for a thousand years that he might not deceive the people any more. You are going to have a good time for a thousand years, trying to get into harmony with God, getting to know Him whom to know is life everlasting.

Will I become an angel? No; you are too late for that. You knew some saintly people when you were alive, did you not? Yes; my father and mother were very devout people. Well, they are in the Kingdom and ruling things now with Jesus. They are joint-heirs with Jesus and are reigning with Him. I am not, then, to be an angel? Oh, no; that was only the call during the Gospel Age, during which anyone who would walk in the footsteps of Jesus might have a change of nature and have a special resurrection to the heavenlies. What can I get? Restitution.

What is restitution? It means to restore you, to bring you back again to what Adam was when God created him in His own likeness. Can I become perfect and lose my imperfections? Yes; they will all gradually disappear from you, and you will be getting more and more nearly perfect every day, week, month and year, until, by the close of the reign of Christ, you will be absolutely perfect (if you have been going on), and in that condition, if you will remain in harmony with God, you will have everlasting life given to you by the Father himself. This is not too good to be true, but too good not to be true. You did not know God before; you only knew the devil. You are now getting to know God's side. He is good. Follow God and be one of those who will live for God. In the past you sowed to the flesh. You wasted your time. You practiced and did things you ought not to have done. You used your being and whole body improperly. You were sowing wrong; were you not? If you had lived over that life as you could have done, you would have been better than you are.

You are quite degraded because you took the course you did. I can show you some much better than you because they sowed better than you. You could have died a noble woman or man, but don't cry over spilled milk. Now is your opportunity. You have learned a lesson. Now put it to good use. Hereafter, try to live in harmony with God's will, and this will be sowing properly, and by and by you will get a good crop in the end. But you will have all these things to contend with because you had more knowledge than you put to good use. But never mind the past now. Jesus has died for your sins and made full satisfaction for them not for those blemishes which came from your own willfulness you will have to make up for them yourself. Other things than these Jesus satisfies for, and now, go on and make progress, and help others along the right way. Some who will come forth then, will love God more because of the horrible doctrines that they were taught during their previous experience.

Having looked at the world, we come now more particularly to the church, and to the other application which the Apostle has made: Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. This principle applied to the church means that, whoever has intelligence of mind, whatever such an one sows in life, whatever he sows is the kind he will have, that is the crop he will reap.

Applying this specially to the church; if we live according to the spirit, we shall reap life everlasting; and if we sow according to the flesh, we shall reap corruption death everlasting. Is that more applicable to the church than to the world? Yes; because the church has more enlightenment than the world. Some in the world are brighter than some in the church, naturally. Not many wise, rich, noble are called. But whatever they have, in proportion as they have knowledge, they have an opportunity of getting information that God gives to His people, but not to the world. When? When they become His people. When they consecrate and become living sacrifices, Jesus takes them and makes them acceptable.

Then God gives the begetting of the Holy Spirit, and whoever is begotten of the Holy Spirit, after that begins to have an enlightenment of the mind, and so it was in the case of our Lord Jesus Christ. When Jesus had made His consecration at the River Jordan, and had gone down into the water and had symbolically gone into death, when He came out then the Holy Spirit came upon Him like a dove, and John the Baptist made his remark. We read further that, when He then came up out of the water, the heavens were opened up to Him. All the higher things began to open to his mind things that He did not see before things not seen by the natural mind things to be seen by this power of the Holy Spirit. Just as soon as the Spirit came upon Him, then He began to make rapid progress.

He then went into the wilderness for forty days. He was not tempted of the devil for forty days, but was there having a Bible Student's Convention for forty days, and was the only Bible student present. His was a very great mind. He had been studying the Bible all His years but had not understood it, except certain things not the deep things, because the natural mind cannot understand the deep things of God's word. Not until He was begotten of the Spirit could He discern spiritual things. He knew the various features of the law, had read the prophecies, and knew they were there, but He did not understand them fully. He was familiar with the writings of Moses, and had read about the serpent lifted up in the wilderness, but did not know what it meant. He had read about the bullock and the sacrifices made on the Day of Atonement, but did not know what they meant. He was acquainted with the prophecies relating to the Messiah, but when He read about Him being led as a lamb to the slaughter, He did not know what it meant. But just as soon as He had made His consecration and His eyes of understanding became anointed with the Holy Spirit, all the higher things began to open up before Him.

What did He begin to see? He was driven of the spirit into the wilderness not driven of the devil but driven by His own spirit, His own mind. His will. He went there to get away from everybody. He wanted to see things, and He went into the wilderness so as to get away from anything that might confuse Him. He knew all about the Bible. In His own town He had been the regular Bible reader. Not many could read at that time, but He, being a perfect man, was a very fluent and able reader.

The leader would hand Him the book when He came into the synagogue, and He would read for them. Now then, during all these years He both read and heard read the Bible, page by page, lesson by lesson, so that by the time He had reached the age of thirty years, He had heard the Bible, in entirety, read many times. Everything He would hear would be fastened in His mind, and He would be able to repeat any part of the Scripture, anywhere, at any time. I have know people with fallen heads who could repeat whatever they heard. But a perfect mind would be able to repeat anything and everything it had heard.

He did not need a Bible or a concordance to refresh His memory or to run references. He went away into the wilderness to think over the things which He knew were in the Bible. Those things there in which He had previously wondered about, He now began to see into and understand. He was now illuminated. He was so busy in His Bible study that He forgot all about eating. After forty days He was an hungered. He was so busy thinking He had no time to get hungry. But after forty days, during which He had studied the whole Bible until all those things became clear which had previously been obscure to Him, He became hungry. He did not understand everything, for He afterwards said, "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, neither the angels nor the Son, but the Father only." He did not know the time for the setting up of the kingdom, because it was not for Him to know. God had not given this out, as yet. But He knew all that was due to be known. He told His disciples that, as His Father would reveal things to Him, He would reveal them to His followers in due time.

Our Lord Jesus Christ had the illumination of the Holy Spirit, and thus was an illustration of how all of God's people would receive an illumination. Not in the same degree, however, because His life was a perfect one, and far beyond that of fallen man. He had left the glory He had with the Father and had humbled himself to come down and be made flesh. He was perfect now as a man, and He was having the illumination of a man, and this was instructing and guiding Him. His entire life from that time on was one of daily guidance by this spirit of continuous enlightenment.

This enlightenment was with respect to the Father's will, as to what was His Father's will, for He said, "I come to do my Father's will in heaven." He was on earth and His Father was in heaven. He had come to this earth that He might do the will of His Father in heaven. What did He do? He sowed to the spirit? How? This way: The Father's proposition to Him was that He should present His body a sacrifice, and be faithful even unto death. He was not to settle beforehand how it should be done. All that was for the Father to direct. He kept looking into the word of God, and His mind was kept open to see what the word instructed Him to do, and thus He was guided by it. He ordered His life by God's will. He did the things that the Bible said He was to do. This led Him to be out of accord with the people of His time, and this meant that those who would be in harmony with Him, would be out of harmony with men.

They were to have only one Master. He had the one Master even the Father. He has set us an example that we should walk in His steps.

You and I having received this invitation to be like Him and to cast in our lot with Him, and to consecrate our lives as He did, we are also called to share with Him the sufferings of this present time, and also the glory that shall follow. He had the sufferings and the glory one depends upon the other and He has invited us to have a share with him in these sufferings here below during the present time, that eventually we may have a share with Him in the resultant glories above in the future. We have accepted this offer. We have consecrated. We have received the illumination. What illumination? Your mind began to open to see things more plainly than ever before, and you are now seeing things that your neighbors, children, parents, and others do not see, as the case might be, because you have the mind of Christ, because you have the illumination of the Holy Spirit.

This illumination shows to you the will of God, and it does this to you because you have taken the right steps, and He has accepted you and has given you this earnest of your inheritance the Holy Spirit; and through this Holy Spirit you are able to discern the will of God, which causes you to be separate and different from the world. Blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear. Others did not hear, or see.

The great majority who heard Jesus did not comprehend His teachings. Those who could comprehend, blessed were they. It is for these illuminated ones to sow to the spirit, and not to the flesh. They are to use their wills, and their talents, and their influence for the spiritual things, and not for the natural, earthly things. They have given up the earthly things. They need, of course, to have the necessities of life. Your Father knoweth what things you have need of, and He has promised to give you what you need. You cannot tell Him what you will need. You are not wise enough. He knows, and all will be well. He is our Father with the knowledge of what things we need. If He should grant us so many earthly blessings and privileges, we should feel all the more fearful lest we should make a mistake in using them.

If you have only one hundred dollars, you have only the responsibility for the one hundred dollars. If you should lose one hundred dollars by mistake, you are responsible for that. That is to say, you are responsible only for what you have. Whatever may be your talents, they are given to God, and you are to use them, and according as you use them that is the sowing. You are either sowing these for the earthly, natural things, or else you are sowing them for spiritual things. Which way are you using them? If you sow to the spirit, you are using your time, talents, etc., to the best of your ability, then God is very gracious in dealing with you.

How much can we do? Nobody knows really just all he can do. We must surely do the best we are able, and then leave the matter with the Lord. But if we should give our lives over to the flesh, to live according to our own natural preferences, in the base of the brain, minding natural, earthly things, and give your time and attention to pet cats, dogs, pony, automobile, and the pleasures of every little thing of that kind, and your own gratification in various ways, then, even though you do not murder, steal, or lie, you will be living after the flesh. If you live after the flesh, you shall die. Yes; you will die for that.

How is that? You say you are no murderer, no blasphemer; how would God have us die if we should live after the flesh? Well, you have consecrated yourself. The world has not. You have been begotten again of the spirit. Others cannot come into the condition whereby we may die, now. We have given up these natural things that we might get the spiritual things. The giving to us of His spirit is the indication of our acceptance by the Father, whereby He says, I beget you to a new nature; living according to the spirit and you will attain to the spiritual resurrection. You have given up all the earthly things, so, if you turn around and break your contract with the Lord, and mind earthly things, then you will die. That would not be as favorable for us, as for those who shall be on trial in the future? I believe it would.

In the future, while no one may live a thousand years unless he be obedient to the terms of the kingdom, and unless he shall turn his heart to the Lord and seek to do His will, and manifest outwardly the Lord's spirit, yet he would not be accounted worthy of everlasting life at the end of the thousand years. They must all have the spirit by that time, for during that thousand years He will pour out His spirit upon all flesh the spirit of the Lord in the human nature.

The human nature perfected is able to have God's spirit working in his body. If, at the end of the thousand years, anyone chose to live according to the flesh, selfishly, he would not be granted everlasting life. But I do not believe, if we choose the spiritual things, He will begrudge us the gift. He is willing. It won't do for one to say, if I can only crowd in, in some little place, that will do me.

No one will enter in in that way. It will either be an abundant entrance, or none at all. If you are worthy, you will get the abundant entrance. If not, no entrance at all. The bride must be without spot or wrinkle or any such thing. That will be our time of triumph when the great Redeemer shall present us blameless and unreprouvable in the Lord's presence, because we have manifested the Lord's spirit. You have lived according to the spirit of the Lord, not according to the will of the flesh.

You have been willing to sacrifice all these earthly things. Then, the Lord says, you are a jewel. I gave you these trials to polish you. I wanted polished jewels. I have given you these trials because I loved you. The more I gave you, the more I loved you. A very fine stone gets the most attention, and extra care. After being polished on one side, it will get polished on the other side. And thus it is with God's chosen ones. He wants them to shine forth through all eternity.

Ye are God's workmanship just what He is making. He made you. God did not make everything. He made the Lord Jesus nothing else. All else was by and through Him. But now, He steps out and does His work. Christ is the great elder brother, but the whole matter is the Father's workmanship. We are His children. We are begotten by His spirit, and we are to reflect His glory throughout all eternity. He is showing us His favor now, but this is going to continue in the future. In the ages to come He will continue to show the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness toward us through Christ Jesus. There will be plenty of opportunity.

I do not know what the Father is to do. But, for the present, here is a great contractor, and you are working on his building. He does not tell you about other buildings, but about the one you are working on. He might have many others, but that is not your business.

Our Father has many other things to do. We will not sit down through eternity and be idle. I cannot imagine any great being being idle. Inferior beings might do that, but any great being will always have plenty to do. Our Father is great. What will we do then? We see this great world whirling about us at night. What are those stars?

By the use of great telescopes we now see that these are suns hundreds, thousands, millions of them. Astronomers tell us that they figure about one hundred twenty-five millions of these suns, and around each one of them revolves a planetary system like our own, which would make about one billion worlds. Are these empty? So far as we know yes. So far as we know, His work will extend to these planets. The foundation may have been laid and we are to have a work to do in connection with them all under our Father's direction, and in association with our Lord Jesus. In the ages to come God will continue to show the exceeding riches of His grace toward us, and His loving kindness in Christ Jesus.

I tell you, my dear brethren, I am getting to know my Heavenly Father better, and as I find out more of His loving kindness, it begets more of this loving kindness in us. Not that we first loved Him, but He first loved us. The more we see, the more we love in return.

Here we are. What are we going to do? Shall we sow to the flesh and reap corruption, and reap death? Certainly not. On the other hand, are you going to sow to the spirit and reap life everlasting? Yes, we want to do that. How much? There are different degrees. Remember what the Scriptures say: He that soweth sparingly, shall reap also sparingly. You are sowing to the spirit, are you? How much? If we sow abundantly, we shall reap abundantly. There will be a great difference in the reaping.

As star differeth from star in glory, so great will be the difference in the rewards of God's people. Jesus illustrated this himself. He showed that some will have dominion over two cities, others over five cities, and still others over ten. There is a difference; isn't there? Yes, indeed. That is only for all those that sow bountifully. Those that sow sparingly will not get a share of that at all. Many spirit-begotten ones will not get the Kingdom part. They will come in as bridesmaids. The Lord invites us to be His bride. Let us not be content to be anything else. In order to be in that class we must have the Lord's own spirit. In a small degree? No. We must be filled with the spirit. We must be copies of God's dear Son in order to get the best of the blessings which God has promised.

OUR BODIES TEMPLES OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

This applies only to the true church, not to the world.

Church in the flesh in the tabernacle condition church beyond the veil in the temple condition each member of Christ now a temple—" Be ye holy, for I am holy" Defiled temples to be destroyed future temple of glory.

Pastor Russell gave a very interesting address, from the text, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are" (1 Cor. 3:16, 17). He said in part:

In times past, the Israelites had a Tabernacle, built by God's command and under His definite and specific instructions. This Tabernacle was used in connection with their worship and sacrifices. It was the center toward which all the people looked as the avenue of communication with God. God's presence was indicated there in the Most Holy by the Shekinah glory. The Temple was erected later, after they had come into the Promised Land; it was erected under Solomon, for the same purpose, and also by God's command. The Church of Christ is the antitype of this tabernacle and of this Temple. The Apostle Peter explains that we are now living stones of God's great Temple, which is being prepared for construction. There is no Temple of God now, in the fullest sense, though each saint of God is spoken of as a temple of the Holy Spirit. The Church is now marching from the temporary Tabernacle condition into the Temple condition. The Temple is to be the Church glorified, in its permanent condition.

God is now getting ready, then, this great Temple, through which He will teach and uplift and bless the world by and by. We are instructed as to what our business is, while in the flesh. Our first business is, as living stones, to gladly submit ourselves to the great hammering and chiseling processes of Almighty Providence, preparing, polishing, and making us ready for a place in that glorious Temple of the future.

The word "temple" is used by the Apostle in three different senses. There is the great completed Temple. Then we are now the Temple of God in the prospective sense. Wherever God's people are meet, they are counted as the Temple of God, because He is already in our hearts. The Holy Spirit dwells in us. Again, each individual saint is a temple, because each heart that is illuminated by the Lord's presence becomes a temple, or tabernacle, of God. The Holy Spirit being in you, your body is a temple, however imperfect it may be. God is tabernacling in you.

In the next age, that glorious Temple which God is now preparing will be the Temple of Glory, the great meeting place between God and men. The glory of the Lord shall soon fill this Temple; for its preparation is nearly completed.

Let us note how the Temple construction was illustrated in the type, when King Solomon built the natural Temple. The stones were all prepared in the quarry. Each stone was chiseled and shaped, polished, and marked for the place it was to occupy, so that when all the stones were ready, the Temple was put together without the sound of a hammer or an ax. All the hammering was done at the quarry. This represents beautifully how the Lord is doing all the preparing and polishing of each of our characters here in the present life. If we are not fitted and polished here, we will not be a stone in that great Temple.

HOLINESS MEANS WHOLENESS, COMPLETENESS

It is God who is doing this work in His people. As the Apostle Paul says, "Ye are God's workmanship, ye are God's husbandry." He is working in us through His providences in our experiences, as we come in contact with the world day by day. But this work of God is being done through Christ. All of these providences are so supervised of Him as to produce in us the right kind of character, if we submit heartily to the disciplinary process. What is the right disposition? It is the disposition of holiness. What is holiness? It is completeness. The thought is like that of our word "whole." God's people are to be complete in character, lacking nothing.

Such is not our condition when we start in the Heavenly way. No, we come to the Lord as sinners. That is the only way we can come; for we cannot cleanse ourselves. It is quite the proper thought that every one in the world should seek to cleanse himself in word, thought and deed to the best of his ability. Every one should make his life as clean as may be. Every one should try to put away all filthiness of the flesh and spirit. But not every one has a disposition to do so.

Those who come to the Lord are told, You cannot be of this chosen class unless you are holy. This is the prime qualification. The Father in Heaven is holy, and He is calling upon you to be holy, if you would become His son. This is at first a reckoned holiness only, but it must by degrees become more and more actual. As His children, you must be exercised by the Spirit of God or you cannot remain in His family. Each one of us had to agree to this before we could come into His family at all. Moreover, we had not only to turn our backs upon sin, but also on many things that were not sinful. We relinquished the human nature with all its rights and privileges. It was not sin alone that we renounced.

Everything that you had of value had to be consecrated to God before you were accepted. But even all this was not enough to secure God's favor. Why not? Because you were imperfect, and could not be accepted as a sacrifice upon the Lord's altar. You needed the great High Priest to impute His merit, that your offering might be presented to the Father. That is the way we came. Holiness not only represents an avoidance of sin and purity of heart, but a complete giving up of our will to do the will of the Lord to be WHOLE. And in the Gospel Age this means sacrifice, a denial of self.

THE TEMPLE OF YOUR BODY

I trust that many who hear these words have given themselves fully to God and have been accepted in the Beloved One. All such are realizing that they are God's temples. St. Paul in the same Epistle (1 Cor. 6:19), says: "What? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" This thought would be having a greater influence upon us day by day. How clean the home should be in which God dwells! The Apostle calls attention to the fact that the Lord declares He will dwell in His people and walk in them. What manner of persons, then, ought we to be? How careful we should be as representative, ambassadors, of God! If God were coming into your home, how clean you would want every corner of every room to be! You would say, "We cannot make it too clean!" You would scour and burnish everything to make it appear well. We would do that if even an earthly king were coming to our home. Then, if the Heavenly King is coming, and to dwell, how pure and clean should His dwelling-place be!

This is the least that we may do if we would have Him abide with us. I believe that you will wish to be cleaner in word, in thought, and in conduct by reason of thinking yourself as God's temple, and that He is willing to take up His abode in you. If we do not seek to be cleansed, He will not remain. That is the condition upon which He enters, and upon that condition will He abide with us.

"If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy," declares our text. It does not say that he will be sent to eternal torment for all eternity. We have read those things into the Bible which were not there. "Destroy" is a plain English word. There is no excuse for any misunderstanding. The difficulty was that we had the doctrines, the creeds, of the Dark Ages in our minds, and when we read "destroy," we had a sort of transformer in our heads that made it mean "fire" and "torment," and that sort of thing. To be destroyed is sufficiently terrible as a penalty of willful sin, and this will be the fate of the incorrigibly wicked.

What is life worth to you? Is it worth anything? Yes, it is worth everything. And the glorious life offered the Church is beyond all computation. You are coming to see more of the lengths and breadths and depths and heights of the great love and Plan of God. It is so wonderful! You rejoice to have a share in the joy which God's true people have now, and your hope I trust is strong that you will have a share with Jesus in His thousand years' reign in the Millennial Kingdom. Suppose I had the power to offer you the whole world if you would give up your hope of the Kingdom. Many of you, I know, would say, "The world I never could get much out of; it has always been a disappointment. I would not exchange my hope for all the world could offer!" That is right, brother. To be in harmony with God, and to have the hope of being associated with Jesus Christ as a part of the great Royal Priesthood, to help uplift the world out of sin and degradation back to perfect life and perfect happiness, is truly worth more than all this present world.

Our work throughout eternity, too, will be most glorious. The work of the thousand years will be only the beginning. When the world is turned over to the Father at the end of the Millennial Age (1 Cor. 15:24-28), there will be a great future work for Christ and the Church to do. God has not told us the particulars about those "ages to come" beyond the Millennium, but He has given us the great Book of the heavens to study. There by the aid of powerful telescopes we see millions of worlds. If God "formed the earth not in vain, but formed it to be inhabited," we may be just as sure that He formed all of these other worlds for a definite purpose. If they are to be inhabited, agencies will be needed for the ordering of these worlds for habitation, and for their later training and instruction.

When Christ and His Bride shall have brought the earth and mankind back to perfection, they will have become properly prepared for their work of the everlasting future. Is there anything in the Bible which refers to their future beyond the Millennium? Yes. The apostle, in his letter to the Ephesians, chapter 2, v. 7, says, "That in the ages to come, God might show the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness toward us through Christ Jesus." So we know that a glorious eternity of happiness and blessed service awaits us in the limitless ages beyond the thousand years.

What would you take as a child of God for the Millennial Age and its blessings? You could not estimate its value. What would you take for the joys of your everlasting future in the ages to come? Nothing that could be imagined by the human mind. I am going to come nearer home. What would you take for the comfort and blessing that you have as a loyal disciple of Christ every day, right here and now? You would not take a goodly sum, and the sum will increase as you grow in knowledge of the Lord and in appreciation of Him.

The apostle says that if we defile the temple of God, He will destroy us. That would be a terrible thing, would it not? What is it to defile the temple of God? We could not defile the future Temple of Glory when completed. And no one who will be a part of it will desire to defile it. The great Temple of Glory will be secure from defilement. But you may now defile your body, which has become a temple of God. If we willingly consent to the defilement of our body, it would be indicative of a depraved and wicked condition of mind, and we would be subject to the condemnation of our text. You will be very careful how you deal with the brethren, will you not? The Apostle tells us of many being defiled by a root of bitterness springing up. What if you or I should do something that would cause a root of bitterness to spring up in other children of God.

The Bible does not say how much or how little of defiling will condemn us, but we wish to be like the man who responded to an advertisement for a driver of a family carriage. A careful driver was wanted. Different applicants had been asked, "Are you a good driver? Do you drive carefully? How near to the edge of a precipice can you safely drive?" And each man had declared his qualification, and one had said that he could safely drive so many inches from a precipice, and another could go ever a little nearer. Finally the man in question was asked, and he replied, "I always keep as far away from a precipice as possible." The employer said, "You are the man I want."

A CLOSING WORD OF EXHORTATION

So with you and me as servants of God. It is not a question of how near we can come to defiling some member of the Church of Christ without actually stumbling him, or of defiling the whole Church, by starting a root of bitterness or a slander, and then seeing if we can check it before it has accomplished the undoing of the brethren. "Let us fear lest, a promise being left us of entering into His rest, any of us should even SEEM to come short of it." Any suggestion of coming short would be dreadful, would it not? We may be either stumbling others or encouraging them. Our attitude should ever be to do all we can to help others. It is true that some will stumble over you, no matter what you do, but that you cannot help. If you are doing all that your powers will permit to be a helper in the Body of Christ, you cannot do more.

We are to build one another up in the most holy faith, not merely in doctrinal matters, but in character, by a noble example, by love and encouragement and helpfulness. We are to have the faith that goes with holiness. The two properly go together, when all is rightly arranged. Are you helping to build the brethren up in our most holy faith? Are you encouraging them in the good way? Are you saying and doing what will help lift the burdens of the brethren, or rather the contrary? Shall we not all be more faithful, loyal sons, knowing that we are temples of God, and that these temples must be holy?

I trust that in the near future we shall have a glorious entrance into the Heavenly Temple, when the living stones are all brought together. Is there anything more? Yes. Then the glory of the Lord shall fill the Temple. I do not know just what this will signify. It means some wonderful blessing that God will give the Church after they have passed beyond the veil and received their spirit bodies. We do not fully know what the "Marriage Supper" means. The union of the Bridegroom and the Bride will take place. Then our Bridegroom will present us to the Father, unblameable and unreprouable. Then the Great Company, those who have "come up out of the great tribulation," who have "washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." will be brought in, and then will take place what is pictured by the Revelator as the "Marriage Supper." It will be a great festival. We know it will be grand, and we want to be there. We long to enter into the joys of our Lord.

Do what you can, dear brethren, to keep the temple of your body pure, that you may be a living stone in that great Temple of the future. Do what you can to help any one who is endeavoring to come near to the Lord. Be ruled by the Lord's Spirit. Do nothing to offend, to stumble, one of these little ones that belong to Christ, not even one who seems to be the smallest or most insignificant of them. If the Lord considers one worthy to bring into His family, and to give him the begetting of His Spirit, we should consider that one worthy of being treated as a brother or as a sister. You cannot do less without dishonoring the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. May the grace of God more and more help us and keep us. We trust that in the coming days we shall have His choice blessing, and shall be indeed "made meet for the inheritance of the saints in light."

FAITHFUL IN TRIAL

Saint Paul pointing down to our day says, "The fire of that day shall try every man's work of what sort it is." He proceeds to say that some have built with gold, silver and precious stones, and that their work shall stand the fire, whereas there are others who have built with wood, hay and stubble, and that their works shall be burned up, even though they themselves shall be saved, if they have built upon the rock. They shall suffer loss in the destruction of their works, but they themselves shall be saved because they have built upon the rock foundation. The Apostle shows us in this that he is pointing down to the end of the age to our time.

Now, we notice, dear friends, that, all through the Bible our time is referred to as "That Day,": the day of Christ, and the day of Jehovah the various names given to this period of time as indicating a special change from the old order to the new order.

Saint Peter when speaking about this same time speaks about it as a time of fire, saying, the heavens shall be on fire, the earth also, and the works therein shall be burned up. By this we do not understand him to mean the literal earth, the literal heavens, the literal things in the earth, but rather to the symbolical earth, and the things therein, and the symbolical heavens. By the earth he means the social order; and by the heavens he means the ecclesiastical order of things. These pass away, but, in their stead we will have a new order of things. He says we are looking for the new heavens and the new earth wherein will dwell righteousness. We acknowledge that there is much wrong in the present heavens the present ecclesiastical system of the world. We are all subject to the imperfections belonging to our race and to ourselves as Christian people. We recognized more or less wrong because of the doctrines that came in during the dark ages. We are looking for a new heavens and a new earth. The new heavens will be the new church. The new earth will be the new social order. We shall constitute the light of that new order of things. The church will be the light in that day. In the time of harvest the wheat will be gathered into the heavenly barn. The resurrection change will gather them together on the heavenly plane, and then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. We are hoping that we will be that new light and have much to do with the new organization of things. When we see the fire coming upon the world and upon the churches, we say, things are all imperfect anyway; things are not satisfactory. We are not to judge others--not at all. We are merely to judge our own selves. We need not judge them. We have enough to do to judge ourselves, and can't do that perfectly.

Looking forward then to that day, the Apostle says, there will be a fire in that day. The same fire that the Apostle Peter has reference to, when he speaks of the heavens burning. Saint Paul says the fire of that day shall try every man's work of what sort it is. Present institutions are to be consumed, and the church shall be destroyed, because the great majority of the members of churchianity are built with wood, hay and stubble the very things that fire feeds upon things that will be consumed and go up in smoke. Nothing but the true and real shall stand in this day. The fire will try every man's work of what sort it is. Every man building with the wood, hay and stubble of error will surely be unable to stand the trial of this day, but those who have built themselves up in the most holy faith (gold, silver and precious stones used to represent such), they build up true character they shall stand. They are the kind that God has called for the kind that they profess to be real, true, genuine all this class are builders with gold, silver and precious stones. They will all be protected in this day. They will all be spared. The fire of this day will not consume them. This fire, of course, is not to be literal fire. The fire is just as symbolical as the wood, hay, stubble, gold, silver and precious stones. And we see, as we look about us, dear friends, there has been a great deal of building of faith structures character structures, with very flimsy material. Many have claimed certain erroneous things to be doctrines of Christ. Only one thing is right, and that is the truth of God's word. Those who build with that will be able to stand all kinds of tests. We are finding what things are true now. In proportion as we have built up ourselves in the true things of God's word, in that proportion we have strength of character, strength of faith, and we know in whom we have believed, and we have a reasonable hope that makes us not ashamed because God's love has been shed abroad in our hearts. But before this, we were building with more or less of wood, hay and stubble of human theory, traditions, and teachings of various kinds. As an illustration, some thought if they had been sprinkled in infancy, that this would constitute them members of the Church of Christ. They thought that, because of having water sprinkled in their faces, and a few words mumbled over them, that this would somehow protect them, keep them, and they would be heirs of all that God has to give. We can now see how foolish all this is. We no longer think along that line. We are seeing wonderful things in the Bible. We see now the real meaning of baptism, and that it is not applicable to infants at all, but only to those who surrender their wills to God, who consecrate their all to the Lord, and signifies the death and burial of our wills. This is an illustration of what kind of teachings we once had. We also thought that eternal torment would be the portion of nearly all, that our Heavenly Father was the worst being in all the world, and while trying to say "God is Love" were all the time imagining Him as doing what no human being would do.

We are glad then, dear friends, we found out in due time the difference between building up characters with proper things, and the building of them with false things. We are glad we have been changed over, and have been privileged to build up our characters with the gold, silver and precious stones of the Word of God.

And now the day has come, we are in this time, and the fire is testing us. Some are being burnt up, that is, their works are being destroyed, their false structures are tumbling down. If you ask the majority of Christians today, what do you believe, how few can tell us what they believe. They would say, I b-e-l-i-e-v-e-, I believe, in the Lord Jesus Christ. Good! Good! We are glad you believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. What do you believe about Him? Well, I don't know, but that He is the Father, the Holy Spirit, and the Son; that He is His own Father, and His own Son, and at the same time they think of Him as being another person. Poor things. We were once there. What more do you know, we ask? Well; I don't know much more not much more. I believe Jesus died for me. Do you believe He died for you? Oh yes. Do you realize that His death was a ransom? I don't know what the word ransom means, they will respond. Think of it! Don't know what the word ransom means. They have certainly built with wood. A little fire destroys it entirely. A little wind blows them away. And some of them were good characters, too. The majority of us now in the truth were consecrated beforehand. And so we should think of some of these who are still holding to these foolish things. We should think of them very generously and very kindly, as being children of God, building upon the rock foundation. For all that, they do not understand what the rock foundation is, they are nevertheless, in a way, holding on to the Lord Jesus Christ. I am glad they believe that much, even though it is not enough. Glad they have gotten on the foundation and have been begotten of the spirit at all, if so be that they have. I fear that many who call themselves by Christian names have never been Christians at all have never known what it means to be a Christian, because they have never taken the steps the Bible tells us of. Ask them:-did you ever make a full consecration of yourself to God? No; I don't know what consecration means. Think of it, my dear brethren, not to know the first steps to be taken to become a Christian, to come into the Father's family. Think of it! After eighteen hundred years of preaching every Sunday, after attending so many prayer meetings, after hearing, seeing and doing all kinds of things, with a quarter of a million clergyman occupying their pulpits, and after sending so many missionaries to the heathen, and then after all, to think that they know so little not even the first steps it is sad indeed. It reminds me of what Saint Paul said in his day, "For the time you ought to be teachers (they had had some opportunities), but you need that someone should teach you again the first principles of Christ." They were babes in Christ, and not able to see how much God has provided, just as the babe is not able to eat the strong food, but has need of milk. The simpler truths have indeed been provided in God's word, but we should go from these and get clearer and clearer understanding of His gracious provisions which He has made to enable us to make our calling and election sure. That is what God intended.

With all these conditions about us, we see that many are losing all that they have ever built. They are beginning to see that nearly all that they have been taught are fables. To fill our minds with the doctrines of devils is a serious matter, and that is what has been done. The children's minds have been filled with these false doctrines, too, so that instead of thinking of God as a kind Father instead of that, we find, they have been taught things that cause them to dread God. As an illustration, I recall a story I read in a newspaper of a little child and its conception of God. A Sunday school superintendent in addressing the Sunday school, asked the question, "What will be the first thing you will do when you get to heaven? One little girl held up her hand, and the superintendent asked. "What will you do, little girl? She answered, "I would run and get behind Jesus so that the Father won't see me." What a pity! To think of God sending nearly everybody to eternal torment who didn't walk a straight chalk line. That was the result of teaching such things to little children, as brought out by that Sunday school superintendent. This also is the result of our catechisms, and of all our orthodox teachings. We sing "Jesus loves me." We have changed it to read "Father loves me," because, in the song as it originally reads, the love of Jesus is put in contrast with the lack of love of the Father.

As we look out today, we see that the nominal church people are members of the church because it is fashionable to be so, the church is a good club, a good place to keep in touch with business men, and business women. They are only social Christians. They think very little, if they think at all, and they are woefully ignorant of what the Bible teaches. They will tell you, when asked about points in the truth, I have wondered about this, and about that. It is all a mere matter of wonder. But it is no wonder, for "to you it is given to know the mysteries of God's Kingdom." Then, there is another class of Christian people who are really Christians and spirit-begotten ones, who are bewildered and are coming to be more greatly bewildered all the time. As matters shall go on from bad to worse, and as they see that "All around their souls give way," they will know that something is wrong. But what is wrong? Their teachings are wrong. They have built upon what the creeds say instead of what God says. We were all too careless. We were too much like the heathen in that respect. We ought to inquire, where is the evidence for what you say? Give me the word of God for what you say. We are now doing this, and we are getting God's words and reasons, and are content with them. As we build up our faith on that word, what a wonderful faith we have. It is compared to gold. What does gold symbolize? It symbolizes that which is divine--divine things. Everything in the Tabernacle was of gold, representing God, the divine nature. So God has given unto us exceeding great and precious promises that by these we might become partakers of the divine nature. We cannot now be gold, but we can build up our faith with the gold. God has given us the promises, and it is for us to take them, use them, and let them work in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure. Is that the idea? Yes. We see then how important it is to have the real word of God. How weak we are when we have the words of men. That makes our hearts weak. The wonder to me, is, that people have any faith when they have been taught by men. But when, from the Scriptures, we see that we are the seed of Abraham, and that, if faithful, we shall be joint-heirs with Christ in the Kingdom, according to the promise "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne," that is something real to us. It must be a real throne. It will be. Messiah's Kingdom is a reality. It is not mere picture. It is something real. We are glad of this, my dear friends. It gives us confidence before God, as we begin to see His great character how He has been planning from before the foundation of the world for blessing every member of our race. That is the God to go to in the time of trouble, the kind you can go to when you are sick or distressed. He is the One you can trust. He sympathizes with you a real God. David says, in respect to Him, "My heart cries out for the living and true God." There are many false Gods. We want the living and true God. We have found Him, and we have His word. Now this real God His words come to us and transform our hearts and characters. They build us up in the most holy faith. It is a faith that is full of holiness. It is a faith that is teaching us that God declares that we must have His own spirit the spirit of His Son. While He provides for the covering of our imperfections through the merit of Christ, nevertheless He requires of you and me and everyone, that we must have His spirit, the desire to do His will. His promises will work in us first to will right, and then, to do right. We will never succeed in doing all that we would like to do. We cannot do the things that we would. We would be perfect, but we can't. That is the only excuse for not being and doing perfectly, and that is, because we can't. We would if we could. But we must have the mind to do right, the fixed will and endeavor to do His will, for anything less would be coming short. When you and I are willing perfectly, and are doing our very best to be so, the mercy of God has provided, very graciously, a covering of all our blemishes in the flesh which we have received from our fathers. To represent those who are thus building upon God's word, the Apostle uses the most valuable things, gold, silver and precious stones.

Now the fire is on us. What kind of fire? A fire of doubt, a fire of bewilderment, a fire of error. The professors in our colleges, and our leading scholars, are telling us that the hope of the world lies in evolution. It is all a mistake, they think, to say that we were created in God's image. Instead of that, they teach that we began as microbes, and these microbes developed into a tad-pole, the tad-pole into a frog, the frog into a monkey, the monkey into a man, and the monkey made progress for hundreds of thousands of years (some say more, some less), and finally he landed into some chair in some college. They are welcome to believe that and boast about their pedigree and lineage if they choose, but that won't do for us. Now, they say, we are very high up. Man is able to do wonderful things nowadays. He can build up railroads, cast up highways, carry water around the earth in trenches, lay great cables, and communicate by wireless telegraphy. He is able to do so many things. Here is the proof of it, they say. What do you say? Well, those who have not the understanding of God's word are not able to get the right view of things. They cannot tell what is wrong with all this. They accept what the professors tell them. Then go to the minister and ask him about evolution. Reverend, is it right, do you think? Yes; our professors have this pretty well established. Do you believe in evolution? Yes, they say, our professors did not say this in so many words, but we came to see it for ourselves as we progressed. We saw it in the textbooks, and as we listened to lectures, and read the books more and more, we finally came to see it for ourselves. Then you don't believe what the Bible says about Adam and the fall, the death penalty resulting, etc.? Oh, no; no intelligent person believes that now. No one now believes it that way. This Genesis account contains some good lessons, and we can get some good lessons from it if we would take the time, but it is not to be believed at all. Then Doctor, don't you think Jesus and the Apostles when they referred to these things were wrong? Well, you know, I am not to contradict Jesus and the Apostles. They certainly did teach something about the deluge and such things, but we now know better. Under such teachings, what do you think about the condition of the people? Nine-tenths of the ministers do not believe in the fall, and consequently cannot believe in a redemption from the fall. Neither do they believe in a restitution from the fallen condition. Neither do they believe in the selection of the church to be joint-heirs with Christ in glory to do this restitution work. So, you see, the whole thing is nil in the average mind. An Episcopal minister to whom I talked a while ago came into the truth. He gave up his parish in the Episcopal church in the United States because he could no longer teach their doctrines, and had to go to work to make a living for his family, while he preached on Sunday. He said to me, "I went to see one of the chief ministers in our city. I asked him many things about what he believed. Do you believe this, do you believe that, I asked, but received such evasive answers, I finally said, 'Oh you don't believe in anything, do you?' 'O yes,' he said, 'I believe in Jesus.' 'What do you believe about Jesus? Do you believe he was miraculously born?' 'Well, you know, we cannot believe just that; He was a wonderful man. But what do you really believe about Jesus what was there so wonderful about Him?' 'Oh, He was so divinely human.' 'What do you mean by that? You are just trying to bluff me, just as you throw dust thereby in the eyes of the people.' 'Well,' he said, 'while Jesus said some very nice things, I think he lost His opportunity for doing good by dying on the cross.' Now, we know, that there is not an atom of truth in all that. When the great teachers hold these things, what do you think the people have? The stream can hardly rise higher than the fountain from whence it springs. The people are not very definite in their faith. The minister only takes his text from the Bible; that's about all. One took his text from Shakespeare and thought he was taking it from the Bible.

At the conclusion of a meeting in the Boston Opera House at which there were about four thousand people present, an editor of a paper came to see me. He said, "I was much interested in that great audience that was such a wonderful audience, and then, so many of them stayed two hours to listen to it all. I can't understand it. Explain it to me. You know we have some very able ministers here in Boston some very able men, such as Reverend so and so, Doctor so and so. If they had out on the same day some forty, fifty or sixty people, they would think they had a very fair audience for a hot, summer morning, and yet, with you there were four thousand crowded in, and some turned away, on a hot day. How do you account for it?" We answered: The Bible tells us about a time when there would be a famine in the land, not for bread or water, but for hearing the word of the Lord. Those people were hungry, were they not? They had not had a square meal of victuals for a long time. There was a time when they were fed on the doctrine of eternal torment, right here in Boston. Then people became too intelligent to believe such things. Nobody believes that now that God prepared for this before the foundation of the world. Now the professors tell you that your great, great grandfather, a great way back, was a monkey. Cheer up, they say, you are getting along fine. You man not attain unto perfection in this life, but some of your children will in due time, when they have mastered certain things. You ought to rejoice because your children in the future will know all these things. Do you think this will satisfy people? No, not a bit. No wonder, then, the people are hungering. They want the message that God gives them. When the people see that the bankers, merchants, et all are backing up these ministers and churches who teach these things, and then see that the Bible does not back up such doctrines, they do not know what to do, but they are hungry and want something that will satisfy the longing of their souls. Because of prevalent conditions, only a special few are able to see the truth at the present time. Only these are able to build with the gold, silver and precious stones.

The fire of that day will destroy all false works, all errors and false doctrines. They are going down, and going down rapidly. The Salvation Army still holds on to eternal torment, as do also the Plymouth Brethren, but very few people any longer believe it. The Salvation Army and the Plymouth Brethren do show that they believe it by their efforts to keep people out of it. I appreciate this. If I still believed it, I would go wild trying to help people to escape it. I am thankful my eyes are opened so that I can see better. How glad we are that every such thing is passing away. In this time of great shaking, everything that can be shaken will be shaken, and only those things that cannot be shaken will remain. We have the unshakable things. We have received the Kingdom which cannot be shaken. Let us have confidence and rejoice that our eyes have been opened to see these things. Having received them and holding to them, indicates that we have made our connections with the Lord, and that our wireless is operating. We are in communication with the Head, and He is giving us answers. This wireless telegraphy beautifully illustrates our relationship to God. The power house sends out waves that jump through the air, sometimes for thousands of miles. One such sends messages clear across the Atlantic ocean. They use different tuning instruments. If you would take or receive a message you must have what they call a co-hearer. They catch these vibrations, but only certain ones only the ones they are tuned up with. Unless your co-hearer be properly attuned, you would not get the message. Tune up your instrument more and more until you get in tune with the sending instrument, and you can get the message well. So God sends forth His message and very few receive it because only a few people have co-hearers the begetting of the spirit, and some who have the co-hearers are not in tune with the sender. That is for us to do to come into tune with God. What is this tune with God that enables us to receive His message? We get the instructions from the Word of God--the Bible. It tells us what to do. It teaches us to make a full consecration of ourselves to the Lord. This consecration becomes acceptable to God through the great Redeemer who is our justification. We must come into the school of Christ and learn of Him, and by obedience become more and more copies of His dear Son. Let your nay be nay, and your yea, yea. Say what you mean. Do not try to deceive God or man. Speak the things that are true. How shall we act? According to the golden rule. Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you. Many in the body of Christ have not built themselves up with these precious things as they should do. If you have a piece of wood in there instead of the golden rule, it will burn out. We should use this golden rule in dealing with our families, our neighbors, our butcher, our baker, and with everybody. Use this with all. Measure your conduct in life by it. You must see to it that you do to me as you would have me do to you not the reverse. You are not responsible for me, but for yourself. This golden rule comes in then. It represents the divine law. Nothing less is satisfactory to God. You need not say that you are acceptable to Him, and pleasing Him unless you are living up to the golden rule. It must be used every day. Saint John was told to measure the temple with a golden reed. So then, the church is being measured by this golden rule, the golden rod. You are to do the measuring for yourself. Thus we are coming nearer and nearer to the golden standard God has given us.

Is there anything beyond the golden rule anything beyond? Yes; you can do more. You cannot properly do less. But what more can one do than practice the golden rule everywhere and at all times? You can give up your own rights relinquish your own rights in the interest of others. That is love; that is sacrifice. The golden rule first; sacrifice afterwards. Cases have come to my attention in which parents have been very unjust to their children by not observing the golden rule; cases in which husbands have not treated their wives according to the golden rule, and yet claiming to be followers of Christ. To follow the golden rule is the very least that we should do. Oh, but, you say, this would never do with my husband, or this would never do with my wife. Leave that with God. God points out the path and we must not lean to our own understanding, but take His will take God's standard the golden rule. It should regulate all my conduct and all my affairs with everybody, and thus God will be pleased. You will thus grow in grace; you will grow in knowledge. Then, you will ask; is there not something else I can do? Yes; you can sacrifice. All such are building with gold, silver and precious stones, and are building characters that will pass through the fiery trials that are now here. We have had some already, but do not know how many more are coming.

In their picture of fiery trials concerning the church Elijah and Elisha God has used them as types, as pictures. Their experiences were typical of experiences that would come to God's people Elijah representing the overcomers of the church. God sent him from place to place. When God sent him to a place, he would go, and then God would send him to another place. He knew that he was to be taken away, but he did not know where it would be. While Elijah went from place to place as directed by God, he was expecting his change, and waiting for it, and in this was a type of the church expecting its change but not knowing just when or where. The Lord did not say to Elijah, Go to this place and there you will be taken up. The Lord said go there; then go beyond; but He did not take him up. And then, we read: "As they still went on" going beyond the place where the Lord last sent them as they still went on, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven." What does this mean? In a general way, it seems to me this fire always seems to represent trouble. This represents a destructive trouble. We are expecting to be taken up by some kind of a fiery trial, pictured by that chariot. We don't know just how, nor when, but just as Elijah and Elisha were still going on, so we are still going on. Where would you go if you did not go on? If I did not go on, I would not know where else to go. This is all I know to do. Can't go back to sectarianism. At one time some of Jesus' disciples said to Him, "This is a hard saying; who can receive it; there is no sense in what He is teaching; we will not be His disciples any longer," and they left Him. Then to the twelve, he said, "Will ye also go away?" They said, "Lord to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." So it is with us. We have started out to follow the Lord. He is giving us the Word, and while some have turned back who were unable to understand Him, let us go on! To whom else can we go. There is no one else to whom we can turn.

As they two went on the chariot of fire separated them; so some kind of fiery tribulation will suddenly appear. I know not where; whether in Canada, the States, or where. We will be true to the Elijah picture, true to the Lord, and then, when His time comes, whatever kind of an experience it will be, we will welcome it. We have been expecting the fiery trouble to come. What is the difference, how? Whether by bullet, or what not. Our times are in God's hands. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints." He is not indifferent. He is not careless. No accident will come to the Lord's faithful people. In the case of the Lord Jesus, he waited for his hour to come. Until then nothing could come. Our course is not marked out so definitely as was His, but in God's arrangements, we have our place the same as the Master had. We have a place and His providence is over all such. May we then, dear friends, go on like Elijah; waiting on the Lord; content to abide His time; not feeling discouraged or disappointed. We wish the Lord's time, His way, everything to be as He would have it to be; and thus, we shall ultimately have a share in His glorious blessings.

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD

I have before my mind, dear friends, the first verse of the twenty third Psalm: "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want." Amongst the people of the world, in all the great families of the world, the aristocracy, they have coats-of-arms that represent their own ideas, and differentiate them one from another. Some use figures of lions, others have various kinds of birds and peculiar beasts, so that when you look upon them you might wish that you might never fall into their clutches. But no family that I know of has ever yet adopted the symbol that God has adopted for His, viz.: the lamb, the sheep; and there is nothing ferocious about the lamb or sheep, nothing great about it. The Lord is my Shepherd, and that means that I am His sheep. It is a very wonderful suggestion, dear brethren, that the Father of Mercies, the Almighty One from whom comes down every good and perfect gift, the One who is so high, and in comparison with whom we are so small, that He should be willing to take charge of, and care for us. I am so thankful that He has been willing to take me in charge. I am not anxious to escape from Him. I am anxious to abide in His care, and abide so fully that ultimately, under the care of this Shepherd I may attain unto all the blessings which He has in reservation for all His faithful people. We do appreciate this great favor which God has bestowed upon us, and the more we consider it, the more we appreciate it. When I have before my mind such a great God, a man in comparison would be something like comparing a man to an ant. You pay little attention to the little ant. You have no special interest in its welfare, for it is of no account to you. And I believe, my dear brethren, that, when we compare mankind with God, there is a still greater contrast. We are like the small dust in the balance, not worthy to be accounted of. In the grocery store the salesman will not stop to take off every little mite of dust on the scales. It is not worth paying any attention to at all, and that is the illustration that suits our case. How little and insignificant we are when we can be compared to the small dust in the balance! Nevertheless, God has favored us, and made a great plan, not only for our redemption and eventually for every member of our race not only that, but especially do we see God's particular love and care manifested in that He has invited us to become partakers of the divine nature, to be associated with our Lord Jesus Christ, and have a share in His glory, honor and immortality. It seems more wonderful every time we think of it. The matter grows upon me all the time.

It seems strange indeed that our Heavenly Father should have adopted such a plan. It seems so strange to what you or I would have thought. You would never have thought of such a plan, that would include the high calling of God which He has given to us. You and I would only expect, if He had some great gift to offer, that he would do well if He had offered it only to the Lord Jesus Christ. He did indeed give Him the first opportunity. His Son who had always been faithful to Him, He desires to give Him still greater blessings, in connection with the blessing of others. He said, "I will test Him out further, and if He be willing, He shall have the best I can give," and so the first offer was made to the Lord Jesus Christ, who, by faithfulness and obedience unto death became the Head of this Company which He intends to bring from a lower nature to a higher. Then observe the conditions upon which this offer was made. He would grant Him the blessing only after thoroughly proving Him. and His trial would take place in the midst of the adverse conditions prevailing in the lost world that He would come to redeem by sacrifice, and from which fallen race His foot-step followers would be selected, to whom the Father in His great plan, would say: "I will also give to them an opportunity to become associated with Jesus in this great work." This latter part of His wonderful plan would never have occurred to our minds. We would never have thought of taking humanity into the plan in such a way and stooping down to those who were fallen creatures, and after they had been under the curse and in a fallen condition for four thousand years, after all that, to make an offer to these fallen sinners, and give them an opportunity of not only having their sins forgiven and of being reconciled through the death of His Son, but also of becoming followers of His Son, and by passing through the necessary trials and experiences, to become joint-heirs with him. We could never have conceived such a plan. Therefore,

As we gaze on this ocean of love;
While over its waves to our spirit,
Comes peace, like a heavenly dove.”*

It may be well for us to notice, dear brethren, that our Father has a plan in which Christ shall be the first One. Our Father, the Shepherd, has made a plan whereby His Son shall be His representative and our shepherd, and whereby we may come in as the first flock of His sheep. There will be others who are not of this particular fold, but the sheep of this fold are the ones in which we are specially interested. The sheep of the next fold will be those who shall receive restitution blessings. The sheep of this first fold are the ones referred to in our text, for they, with our Lord Jesus as head, can truly say of Jehovah at the present time, “The Lord is my Shepherd.”

To Jesus, because of His loyalty, He gave the first opportunity to become a partaker of the divine nature on the divine plane. There were none before of this divine nature. All were of a lower nature. The Logos, being next to the Father, was still upon a very different plane of being. He was indeed above the principalities, powers, and every name that is named, including the cherubim and seraphim, but still He was not of the divine nature, and it was to this divine nature that God wishes to exalt some. He wanted to have some on that higher plane. But, at the time that this went into effect God had already created Jesus, and through Him all the ranks and orders of angelic beings even down to man.

His next creation, instead of going downward, was to be upward on a still higher plane--the divine and thus, in harmony with this purpose, we see that in Christ we are to be God’s new creation, as the Apostle explains. So God gave the only-begotten of the Father, the One through whom all other beings were created, the first particular offer the offer that He might demonstrate to the Father His love, His devotion, His loyalty. But, you say, has He not always done that? Yes; my brethren, He has always demonstrated it under favorable conditions, among the holy ones in harmony with Jehovah, in which there were no requirements of sacrifice. But now God has put Him to a special test, and made to Him a special offer at the same time, and the two must go together.

If He will be loyal even unto death, among the unholy ones out of harmony with Jehovah, then He shall have the exaltation far above angels, principalities, powers, dominions and every name that is named; and the Apostle sums it all up, after he has told how the Lord accepted these terms, after He left the glory He had with the Father before the world was, He was made flesh, and dwelt among us, and being found in fashion as a man, He humbled himself and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross he sums it all up by showing that He was found worthy, in that He, for the joy that was set before Him, endured the cross, despised the shame, and is now set down at the right hand of the divine majesty on high not a seat or place, but a position, an honorable situation.

Just as we say that General Kitchener is at the right hand of King George his right-hand man, placed at his right hand, the most prominent man in Great Britain at the present time, representing the King; not meaning, of course, a literal seat, but a place of service, an honorable position next to the one who gave him this honor. So, our Lord Jesus Christ was to have the honor of being next to our Heavenly Father. At what cost? We may not have known at one time what the cost was, but, looking in the Bible, we are learning what it cost. He needed to be tested.

Are you sure that He was tested? Where is the evidence? Well; I see evidence of it all through the Master's life and experiences every trial and test that came. For instance, every High Priest before he could enter the most holy, was first to offer sacrifice and take the blood, and offer incense at the golden altar in the holy, representing perfect human nature, and then, after offering the incense, and it was satisfactory, the high priest would then pass under the second veil into the most holy the veil representing death itself. If any high priest did not fulfill every requirement to the very letter, he would die as he passed under the veil. That priest was a type of the Lord Jesus Christ, showing that He would have perished if He had not fulfilled every requirement to the very letter. This being the requirement, He indicated that there was a great distress upon him, even as the Apostle has written: "Who in the days of His flesh, when He had offered up prayer and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto Him that was able to save Him from death, and was heard in that He feared."

What did He fear? He feared lest His death would be an utter destruction. He feared that, in passing under this veil it would mean death to Him as the priest, and that consequently He would never rise again. He knew that He was on trial, and that it was a trial that would eventuate either in life or death everlasting. Knowing this, he appreciated the life and other blessings He had, and in a very marked degree appreciated His life on the higher plane. Why did He cry? Because He wanted to know if He had been faithful. He wanted to know if He might expect the resurrection change. He was heard. How did He hear and answer. God sent an angel to minister unto Him, and to assure Him that He was all right. From the moment that Jesus got that assurance, we remember what courage He had. None of the disciples had such courage as He from that moment on. Through all that night and the next day He was the calmest of the calm. To the weeping ones he said, "Weep not for me, but weep for yourselves and your children."

A picture that goes away back before our Lord came into the world, a picture that shows God's plan, recorded in figurative language, was shown to Saint John on the Isle of Patmos, in which he beheld Jehovah God sitting upon a throne, and holding in His right hand a scroll, written within and on the back side, sealed with seven seals, and he heard a proclamation made, Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof! Saint John waited to see. He listened, and looked, and he saw no one no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to unloose the seals thereof no one in heaven or earth. What does that mean no one in heaven nor earth found worthy? It means that, among all the angels, including the Lord Jesus, the Logos, there was none among them, neither was there any one among men, to whom God could entrust His plan.

No one found worthy. What does that mean? It means, not only that no man was found worthy because all were sinners, but further, that no one had ever yet proven himself worthy of this great honor, of carrying out this great plan which God has. In that symbolical language, the scroll represents all things that God had prepared in His mind before the foundation of the world, respecting what He would do with reference to the church, respecting also the great work for the world in the millennial age, and respecting the future things that Messiah would do.

All these things were represented by the scroll held in His right hand the hand being symbolical of power. On one occasion, after His death and resurrection, His disciples came to Jesus saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel? And he said unto them, "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath kept in His own power." God had not communicated it, as yet, to any one. On another occasion Jesus said to His disciples, "But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father." The Father had not let it go yet out of His hands. Even Jesus did not yet know.

He had not proven Himself worthy, as yet, and for this reason it was withheld from Him. Saint John wept when he realized that God had some great purpose to reveal and execute, but there was not found any one in heaven or earth worthy to attend to that matter and carry it out perfectly. He knew that we had missed some great blessing because no one was found worthy to carry out God's plan. Then it was that one of the elders said unto John, “Weep not; behold the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof.” The Lion of the tribe of Judah had shown Himself worthy.

When had He done that? Not before He came into the world because He was not the Lion of the tribe of Judah until He came into the world. He was born of the tribe of Judah, but had not yet become the Lion, or strong One. Our Lord was the Lion of the tribe of Judah from the time that He made a covenant with the Father at the river Jordan. There He became the strong one of Judah, although He did not finish His sacrifice until Calvary. It required, in one sense of the word, the entire three-and-one half years of Christ’s ministry to demonstrate Himself to be this strong One, and so, in the picture in Revelations, we read, “Weep not; the Lion of the Tribe of Judah has prevailed to take the book, open the seals, and to know what is therein.” He is the One through whom it is to be accomplished. John says, I looked to see what it meant, and behold, “A lamb stood, as it had been slain”—(A lamb newly slain, says the Greek) the Lamb thus representing the Lord Jesus and His sacrifice.

By that sacrifice of Himself, He had prevailed and was found worthy, and then, as John looked and saw the Lamb, the people were heard, saying, “Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory and blessing.” There it is! There is where Jesus became worthy not without blood, not without sacrifice, not without being tested by the Father, not without coming off conqueror and thus proving himself to be worthy to be the Father’s representative in opening the scroll. Even if we were of the world, and not of the church, how glad we would be for the redemption in His blood, how glad that God will ultimately recover all from the death curse and bring them back again to harmony with Himself by restitution processes during the millenium, during the reign of Christ! But we who are of the bride-class, when we think of being invited to come and join in with the Savior, and be partakers with Him, both in the suffering of this present life, and in the glory that shall follow, how glad we are! And this is indeed our privilege and portion, dear friends, in carrying out the Father’s plan.

We might well rejoice that, by the Christ of God, we have heard the glad message; we have been invited to become footstep followers of the Lord Jesus, and to prove ourselves worthy to be joint-heirs with Him in the kingdom, even as He proved Himself worthy, by the laying down of our lives in the service of the truth. Oh, but you say, it seems to me, brother Russell, nobody is worthy.

True indeed unworthy without our Redeemer. But aside from all the mercy of God, this call comes in as a special thing over and above all justification. There is something else, and you must be worthy according to this call, and prove yourself worthy, or never get in. The worthiness is just the same as that of our Lord Jesus, who has provided for the covering of our blemishes through Father Adam and the fall. The test is the same as in the case of our Lord, viz.: loyalty to the truth, faithfulness to God, putting away all selfishness, seeking to do only the will of our Heavenly Father. You can't do God's will as perfectly as He could.

Therefore it is important for us to do what is possible for us, and therefore the blood of Jesus cleanses us from all unintentional blemishes, but we are required to have the same spirit, the same mind, even as the Apostle Paul admonishes us, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." What mind? The mind to do God's will, the mind willing to humble ourselves in order to do the will of God. And the Apostle further says, that, "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, the mind of Christ, he is none of His." He has not got that same mind that was in Christ Jesus, that same spirit, that same disposition.

So, you see, it is important that we realize our need of justification, and to note the difference between justification and the high calling. I am sure that not many Christian people see this distinction clearly. The Bible everywhere teaches that we are to be justified, freely, from all things. It is God that justifies, and not you that justifies yourself. It is God who does that. This justification comes through our Lord Jesus. Being justified by faith in His blood. So that it is not of works, lest any man should boast, but it is by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. That justification merely brings us to the threshold. It would make us worthy to be sacrificers. He will not go any further than that for you. You must present your bodies. "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." He does not say, brethren, you have nothing to do with this matter, and you have no sacrifices to make, and Jesus does all the sacrificing.

His sacrifice made good for Adamic sin that sin of Father Adam which came down upon us all in the way of imperfection of body, mind and morals. The effect of Christ's death for you and me is the same as He will give to all eventually justification to perfection to human nature. In the world to come He will help them up out of imperfections, but in the case of the church, He simply imputes a sufficiency of His merit to make up for what they lack, in order that they might be acceptable sacrificers, and become eligible to the High Calling of God in Christ Jesus which is held out during this gospel age.

The word justification means to make right. Take for instance a pair of scales. Put something into one side, and something of equal weight on the other side, and thus make them balance exactly. Thus mankind has become a sinner in Adam on the one hand, and Jesus has become our Savior on the other hand and makes things right. Just so. That is to be done for all men, because Jesus Christ, by the grace of God, has tasted death for every man. But, neither before Jesus came, nor since Jesus came, have the heathen been justified; neither has anyone been justified except a special class the church. God has willed that the whole human race shall go down to the tomb unjustified in sin, and wait until the millennial age, and in that millennial day Jesus who died for them, will be their justifier. He will make it right for them during the thousand years. He will bring them up from the tomb, help them up the highway during the thousand years, and at the close of that time, will present them to the Father blameless.

He will not present anybody to the Father in any other way than blameless. So the whole world, at the end of the millennium, will be presented to the Father because He will have justified them, made them right. He gives to the Father the ransom price for them, which is His own death. The penalty was Father Adam's death, and Jesus has given His sacrifice, and in due time He will make application of it for the world and take control of this world, which is His purchased possession. Jesus paid the very price that was due by Adam, and God has dealt only with Adam so far. He is not dealing with the world, as yet. Only Adam was condemned to death. Only one was found to be a sinner, and only one was condemned to death. All others were simply condemned in him. Therefore, only one man needed to be ransomed, and it only took one man to redeem the whole human race. As by a man came death, so by a man came the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive every man in his own order.

But now then, in this gospel age you and I have a different kind of justification. That will be the actual justification then actual perfection in body, mind and morals, but now, with us, God, in His manifold wisdom, has a different plan, so that from the time you hear the Lord, and the time you accept His conditions, you receive justification by faith not the real thing, does not make perfect at all, we have the same brain, the same mind, the same everything, we are not changed a bit. It is merely a matter of faith. But why will God call us right when we are wrong? He does not call your body right. He does not justify and bless it.

What does He do? You and I in order to obtain this invitation, accept the One who is pointed out to be our Advocate. We have an Advocate with the Father. The world is to have a Mediator by and by. Now the Church has an Advocate. We have an Advocate, Jesus Christ the righteous. We come to the Father through Him. We give ourselves by consecration in Christ to God, realizing that God's arrangements are all in Christ.

We say, Father, I have heard that you will have mercy for the world in the age to come, and it will be extended to them through Christ His death being the basis; I heard of the time, but I also heard that now, in advance, during the gospel age, those of mankind who hear and will respond are privileged to come, and so I come. Dear Heavenly Father, I understand that I must trust myself to you through Jesus and so I do, in the name of Jesus, surrender myself to thee, and engage to do His will and to walk in His steps, and seek through Him to be acceptable in thy sight. The Father says, that is the way I want you to do, and Jesus says, very well, since you have made that kind of a consecration, I will accept you, even your body which is imperfect. I will make it all right. My merit is sufficient for the sins of the whole world, so I will simply impute to you not give, but impute my merit.

What effect will that have? That will make it as though your blemishes were covered no longer recognized by God, because the merit of Christ has been imputed. This is called a wedding garment a plain, white garment to be put on by all those who are invited to the house, given to all those who come to be disciples. He gives his figurative wedding garment to be put on by all those who are invited to the house, given to all those who come to be disciples. He gives his figurative wedding garment and we put it on. Now, we are not appearing in the filthy rags of our own righteousness, but in the robe of Christ's righteousness.

We are accounted now as New Creatures. When we gave up our own wills and God accepted that sacrifice, and we received the spirit of begetting, we became new creatures in Christ. Old things passed away, and behold all things became new. This robe covers the flesh, which is imperfect. The new creature needs no covering because he has not sinned. It is only because the new creature has not its new body, that it needs this old body. The new creature has this old body as a tabernacle, in which we do groan. This was not so before you became a Christian, but only when we became new creatures. The body is the house in which the new creature shall temporarily reside and progress.

God has prepared a heavenly, spiritual body for every one of those who are His people. He will give us this spiritual body in due time, but not now, because He wishes us to progress in these old bodies. The Father says, you just keep this old body for a while, and let me see how you will make out with it. Let me see how you will fight against the flesh. You are not to fight with carnal weapons, but with the weapons of my spirit. We have the helmet of salvation, the girdle of truth, the breastplate of righteousness, the shield of faith and the sword of the spirit, with which to fight against the imperfections of the flesh. This is our great fight. We are all surrounded by the imperfections of the old nature, and this makes it necessary for us to wage a continual warfare, and fight a good fight, and come off conquerors.

So then, here we are new creatures in Christ, and yet we wear the robe to cover the imperfections of our flesh.

God is not looking on coldly and indifferently, but as a father pitieth his children, and a good shepherd cares for his sheep, so the Lord with respect to those who have become His children and are seeking to walk in the footsteps of his Son. He is deeply interested in them. The Father Himself loveth you. Oh, that is one of the most precious texts in the Bible, and one of the most wonderful ones as well.

He might feel an interest in us, but to think that God loves us, if we have become members of the Us class. God so loved the world (that is a broad love) that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him, should not perish, but will ultimately get everlasting life, but this love God has for the church is a special love such as He had for His own Son. They are as dear to Him as the apple of His eye.

What tender care has one for the eye. He sees that nothing will hurt his eye. The eye has the attention of the whole body when in trouble. So it is with God's care for the members of the church they are as dear to Him as the apple of His eye. We are glad of this special love which causes God to put the robe of Christ's righteousness upon us a beautiful figure of speech. Our Father is not looking upon us as sinners at all, but as new creatures.

The flesh is covered by the robe, but the flesh is not to be preserved. Your body has been presented as a sacrifice. It is to be consumed. It is wrong though to suppose that God will give me the best of everything for my body, and will so guard me as to prevent any injury to my body. It is the new creature that the Father is preparing for glory not the natural man; and He is doing this by means of those precious promises, which are made to the new creature.

The old man is perishing. God will not give us restitution; that is for the future. We who have received the high calling cannot get restitution. It is like the child who cannot keep the penny and get the cake also. If he gets the cake he must give up the penny. No more can we get the glory of the high calling and at the same time hold on to earthly things and blessings. We have become heirs of the heavenly things, and have been begotten again as spirit beings like the Lord Jesus Christ. Earthly restitution will be for mankind in general in the future.

Therefore, let us not think that God is offering restitution, and that we can accept such things. We are to sacrifice, and if you find that you have no sufferings for Christ, you have reason to question whether God is dealing with you as with sons. God delivered up Jesus freely for us all, and He allowed His enemies to smite Him, to spit upon Him, to put the crown of thorns upon His head, to mock and crucify Him. God allowed all this. It was truly said, The birds of the air have their nests, but the son of man hath not where to lay His head. His Father permitted all this because He was dealing with Him as His son who had been begotten to a new nature, and who was demonstrating His worthiness by obedience to the things which He suffered. It will be so to us if we are true to the Lord, even as it is written, "My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of Him; for whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not? But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons."

Unless we have been chosen, we are not sons, but bastards. He did not choose angels, but all who have received the begetting of the spirit now, who have been received to become joint heirs with Christ He chooses every one of them, because of the great, and honorable and high position to which He has called them. It is such a wonderful thing, that God wishes to test the loyalty and faithfulness unto death of every one who will be in that glorious company. So then, instead of thinking that you are having a great number of trials, that you are always in some kind of trouble, and that you are peculiar in that respect, you will rather think, I wonder how it is that the Lord lets me have so few of these terrible trials; I would think that He would want to prove me more.

He has not yet proven how much I must suffer for His sake in order to demonstrate my loyalty. That is what the experiences of Jesus and the Apostles proved. Not many therefore, will prove themselves to be worthy. "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Fathers' pleasure to give you the kingdom." It is only a little flock that the Lord is calling out now. He is the Shepherd of the little flock, who walk in the narrow way. "Straight is the gate and narrow is the way, and few there be that find it." The Heavenly Father is the Great Shepherd, and He is the one who has called us. We are following Jesus because God has pointed Him out to be the Captain of our salvation, whom He made perfect through suffering, and thus it must be with every one who follows him he must be called, proven, and found faithful through sufferings unto death. The Father is deeply interested in all this, and so the text says, "The Lord is my shepherd."

I remind you, dear friends, you whom He has called, if indeed it be that you have heard His voice, that Jesus did nothing but what He heard from the Father, even as He said, My message is My Father's message. So, whatever message He gave us, is the message of the Great Shepherd, the Father. This message coming from the Heavenly Father is for the purpose of calling us to be His sheep. "Gather my saints together unto me," saith the Lord that is the Father's word—"Gather my saints together unto me; those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice." Thus saith Jehovah, but what kind of a covenant is this that we make with him? It is one by sacrifice. You see your calling then, or, as the Apostle puts it, "Ye know your calling, brethren." Do you know your calling, brethren?

We are not called to be Lutherans, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, etc., but called to be sons of God. "Gather my saints together unto me, those that have a covenant with me by sacrifice" this is the call. Not gather them together unto Russell, Luther or Calvin, but unto God. Who are they? Those who have made a covenant with Him by sacrifice not a covenant with the church, but with HIM by sacrifice. It is not a general covenant., It must be made by sacrifice. There are those who will come into covenant-relationship with God without sacrifice, but those who come now, and are of the sheep now called, they are called to sacrifice. There are no exceptions.

If you are not a sacrificer, then you are not one of them. The Lord's true sheep have heard the shepherd's voice and have presented their bodies to be living sacrifices, holy, acceptable unto God, because Jesus, our great High Priest, has made an atonement for our imperfections. He has become our surety, our Advocate with the Father, and He makes us acceptable and we become sacrifices. We must be satisfied as to what we will do. Jesus at the age of thirty came to John at the river Jordan. He came as soon as He was thirty years of age to John at Jordan, and there and then presented Himself to the Father.

What He did on that occasion, you know we all know. The Prophet speaking for Jesus and telling what were the sentiments of his heart, says, "Lo, I come to do Thy will, O God"--everything written in the Book. What book? The Book of the Law. The Book of the Prophets. Everything which God had caused to be written respecting the Messiah, Jesus was ready to do. There was the serpent on the pole lifted up in the wilderness by Moses, even as it is written, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of man be lifted up;" there was the bullock slain by the High Priest Aaron on the Day of Atonement in connection with the tabernacle service; and there was the lamb that was slain every spring at the Passover time; all this was written in the book concerning Him, the Lamb of God. Also He would be led as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a lamb before her shearers is dumb, so He opened not his mouth. And so Jesus says, at the time of His consecration, "I come to do Thy will, O God, as it is written of me in the Book." He could not understand at the time all that was written in the Book, but He said, "I come to do Thy will, O God" everything written in the Book, whatever you have written there, show it to me, dear Father. I cannot see it clearly now, but whatever there is, I will delight to do it. No matter how severe, nor how great a sacrifice it will require, I will do it. And then, Jesus symbolized his consecration unto death by His baptism in the river Jordan by John, showing forth His death and consequent resurrection.

This same figure comes to you and to me, and becomes an outward confession that, whatever is written in the Book concerning us, and comes to us in His providence, we will be glad to do. We are rejoicing to do the will of God, and desirous that His will be done in us, even as it was done in our Lord and Master. This is the only kind of sacrifice God will accept. One says, I have consecrated myself to be a Christian, and I think I will be a pretty big Christian, too. Such may have their ideas about consecration, too. Others say, I will consecrate myself to God and will try to do some kind of mission work. God did not ask them to do that. That will not be an acceptable sacrifice. I will consecrate myself to work for God in the temperance field. God did not say you should do it, but we should consecrate ourselves to God and put no restrictions, whatever, around our sacrifice. "Thy will be done in me," whatever that will might be, should be the sentiment of our hearts.

So then, my dear brethren, we see what God has arranged for us, and how reasonable it all is, and thus we have been invited to become partakers of Christ's sufferings now, in order that we may become sharers in His glory that shall follow. It has been an invitation not a command. A command would not have been right. God set before you a great prize. It was set before you. He did not command you. He made no threat, used no force. If we do not wish to come without being forced, we cannot come at all. He has merely set forth His message, and wherever that messages goes, it appeals to certain hearts only. It is like the wireless messages that go forth from the telegraph instrument.

Waves of sound go out miles and miles clear across the Atlantic Ocean. They go from New Jersey clear over into Germany. It is not every one that can catch the message. The sending instrument is tuned to a certain key. If you have a good co-hearer, or receiving instrument, and yet, do not have your co-hearer properly tuned, you cannot receive the message at all. If you have a good co-hearer and get it in line with the message that is coming in, you can get the message. It is often necessary to tune it up higher and higher before it gets in tune with the sending instrument. And so, you and I have to be in tune with God before we can hear His message, and we must continue to keep in tune with Him, if we shall continue to receive messages from God. They pass over the heads of millions of people, and they do not hear. Eyes they have, but they see not; ears they have but they hear not. "Blessed are your eyes for they see, and your ears for they hear not." "Blessed are your eyes for they see, and your ears for they hear." Many in Jesus' day having co-hearers that were not properly attuned to receive the message, did not receive the words of Jesus. They did not hear from His lips God's message. Their thoughts were not in tune. Instead of thinking that, whosoever will humble himself shall be exalted in due time, they were attuned to the other thought that, whosoever will exalt himself now shall be exalted hereafter.

So it is today. God is only finding the humble and sincere ones, those who are in tune with the Infinite One. I trust that we have been in tune to receive the message which our great Shepherd has sent to his sheep, that we have become true co-hearers, and that we are keeping our instruments in tune with the Infinite One, so that we are able to hear the message more and more, and are abiding in the love that rejoices to lay down our lives in His service, continuing therefore in the spirit of Christ and of all them who shall ultimately be accepted in Him. In the eighth of Romans we read that God has foreordained that all those who would be of the church class in glory, must be copies of His dear Son else we will not get that prize no one else will get it.

Now, my dear brethren, I cannot tell you when we will reach the end of our race course. As far as I can see, judging from the Word, we must be near, very near, even at the door. We are certainly down to the time referred to by Jesus as characterized by "Men's hearts failing them for fear" every financier and statesman is fearful it is a fear respecting the future rather than for the things present. The things coming upon the earth are causing perplexity. When we see these things beginning to come to pass then are we to lift up our heads and rejoice: rejoice that your deliverance draweth nigh. The time for the glorification of the church is close at hand.

When the door shall once shut, no one else will ever enter therein. The door of mercy for the world will then be thrown open wider than ever, but the door to the bride to enter into the marriage will be closed forever. So, then, if we hope to be joint-heirs with Christ, suffering now and glorified shortly, now is the time to make our calling and election sure. Sure! It is not sure, yet, is it, my dear brethren? It is not uncertain, but sure upon the terms to which God has agreed. He will never fail you. It is absolutely certain with Him. The only uncertainty is with ourselves. If you are faithful to the best of your ability, God asks for nothing more. All things are yours if you abide in Him. Continue in the same spirit of the Master, growing in grace and in knowledge, and becoming stronger and stronger. His grace will be sufficient for you, for His strength will be made perfect in our weakness, and all things the trials, the suffering, the persecutions, the misunderstandings all shall work together for good to those who abide in His love, the called ones according to His purpose. This applies to us, dear brethren, I hope, and as we see the terrible trouble drawing nearer, I hope we are becoming stronger in the Truth and stronger in His service, and will be pleased to lay down our lives in His blessed service.

Look at the type of Elijah. At the close of his life, he being a type of the church, he was taken away by a whirlwind to heaven. That is a picture of the church being taken away. Elijah was a type of many things to the church, but we now notice, that at the close of his life previous to his departure, knowing that his time was at hand, God sent him thither and thither, and beyond. He went here and there as God directed. Wherever God said go, he went.

After thus going from place to place, as directed by the Lord, he finally came to the last place, and there God did not say anything further as to where he should go. And thus it has been with us. God said to us, go there, and we went. Then to another place, and we went, and then came down to 1914, and now he is saying, go to the last place. Of Elijah we read, "As they went on--beyond the place where the Lord last sent them--as they went on, behold there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven." All of this, I think, is a picture.

The church is to be taken into glory. It will not be by a literal, fiery chariot, but by a symbolical one. Fire stands for persecutions or sufferings of some kind. So, we see, some kind of a fiery trial will come. We do not know exactly when, but in expectation. We know what to expect. The fiery chariot parted them, and then Elijah went up in a whirlwind a whirlwind of trouble. When the wind blows from four corners, it represents general strife. We do not know just what it means, but we will watch every day. We do not know how soon it will come, but we are waiting for it. I am looking for it and am anxious to get into that whirlwind. All the faithful ones must pass through that experience. I am giving you this as a consolation. This is what is coming, no matter how.

Don't make a chariot of fire for yourself. The Lord will make the chariot of fire. Leave everything in the Lord's hands; do not worry; leave all with the Lord. Do your best and leave everything else to Him. He will bring it all to pass, and will do exceedingly abundantly above all that we can ask or think, through our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

HEAVENLY WISDOM VS. HUMAN FOLLY

“Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness. And again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain. Therefore, let no man glory in men.” (1 Cor. 3:18-21) He said:

Our topic for today is Wisdom, and our text points out the strong contrast between worldly wisdom and the wisdom that is from above. The Apostle draws a very sharp line indeed, and from the world’s standpoint his words must seem like a very strange statement—“The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. Let no man deceive himself. If any man seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool that he may be wise.” There is a great deal of worldly wisdom among men on every subject. We can see that when Christians have yielded to the spirit of worldly wisdom they have very generally made a great mistake. The world has its own way of viewing every matter religion as well as other things. The world has taken what they consider a very practical view of things at the present time. They are saying, “We must keep things running on in the present way. The existing order must not be changed. If any one has received a different idea from the Bible, he is very foolish.

From the view point of the world the Church is merely to keep things from going from bad to worse, to keep society as moral as possible. You and I know that nearly all the preaching of today is along the lines of worldly wisdom. the preachers preach civil reform and morality of life. They are now leading men to war, contrary to the Word of God, which tells us not to war with carnal weapons; that we are to be followers of peace, lovers of peace, and are to be known as peace-makers. But worldly wisdom says, “You must approve yourself to the government; you must stand for what everybody else wants. Worldly wisdom is very different from Heavenly wisdom. We are to seek to learn God’s wisdom.

WORLDLY WISDOM DEVELOPED AN APOSTATE CHURCH

The Apostle James tells us that “the wisdom that is from Above is first pure, then peaceable (mark that), gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits.” That is the wisdom God’s true children wish to have, that is the wisdom our text enjoins upon us. St. Paul declares that if we have the spirit of the world, and worldly wisdom, it is foolishness with God. What is worldly wisdom trying to do? Some centuries ago worldly wisdom among the leaders in the Church concluded that it was time to set up the Kingdom of God. There was knowledge enough at one time so that they might have known that the Kingdom would not be set up until the Lord Jesus Himself should come. But after the Church had studied and observed for two or three centuries and Christ did not appear to establish His Kingdom, they feared something was wrong with their hopes. They thought that they must take the matter into their own hands and appoint a representative of Christ and begin the Church's reign. So ever since they set up their pseudo-kingdom of Christ they have been claiming to reign and expecting to conquer the world.

The Church became prosperous by getting in with governors, kings and emperors. Their numbers began to greatly increase. Heathen tribes came pouring in.

The Emperor of Rome, Constantine, said "I will associate myself and my Empire with the Church, and that will help me and my people; it will strengthen the Empire." The Church had become so prosperous that the government could not get along without it. And the Church came to the conclusion that the government was dependent upon it. They thought, Surely this is the auspicious time for the Church to become the ruling power in the world. It was because they had neglected the Word of God and followed earthly wisdom that they sought to set up the Kingdom in the absence of Him who was to be its Lord. What neglect of the Master's words! In His parable of the Nobleman He had pointed out that the Kingdom of Heaven was "like unto a nobleman who went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to come again." And he said, "My kingdom is not of this world arrangement, order, else would my servants fight." "If I go away, I will come again."

But neglecting the instructions of the Lord, they set up a kingdom. They said, "Christ, of course, is the real King, but He must have a representative." They established a reign of popes, and called the pope "Vicegerent of Christ." The word vice-gerent is derived from two Latin words gero, to carry on, and vice, instead of. They said, the Bishop of Rome, the highest official we have, shall be the Pope. They then separated and exalted a "clergy" class as the Church, and termed all the others "the laity." So in the Catholic Church to this day only the dignitaries the Bishops, Archbishops, Cardinals and Popes are the Church; they are the Hierarchy. All the others are only children of the Church. They said. As a spiritual Kingdom we will delegate authority to earthly kings. We will permit them to reign over their respective countries if they will recognize the Pope of Rome as the supreme Pontiff over them all. That was worldly wisdom. They dictated terms to these earthly rulers, and all the kings recognized the Pope as a spiritual Emperor whom they must obey.

They said, "Christ's Kingdom has come, His representative is at Rome, and all nations must be in subjection to this Kingdom." Worldly wisdom! It was far from the teaching of the Bible.

That worldly wisdom continued. If any earthly prince failed to keep in harmony with the Pope he was censured. If he did not repent, he was told that his kingdom would be taken from him and another prince appointed to take his place. So Germanic kings and others did penance when they had offended the representative of Christ in the world. Then came a split, in the time of King Henry VIII of Great Britain. He said, "See here! this Pope of Rome objects to my having a fourth wife, and I want a fourth wife. We will do without the Pope, and I will be the representative of Christ myself to the British people; I will be the heard of a new Church, and it shall be called the Church of England. Now all of you English Bishops must stand by me or it will go hard with you. I will reward you if you are loyal to me. You shall be members of Parliament, and you shall be called hereafter, Lord Bishops." So we have since had another Kingdom of God (?) in Great Britain.

Luther had gotten in with the Germans, who had come into line with the Reformation work, and they said, " We will appoint you as head. We will back you and your system." Later, the emperor became head of this Lutheran state church. So today we have the German Kaiser as the head of the Lutheran Church, supposedly representing God's Kingdom in that country. In Russia, we have the Czar representing God's Kingdom (?) in the Greek Catholic Church. The Pope of Rome declares that he is the only proper representative of Christ and that all these others are in rebellion. The Church of England claims to be the only true Church. And so with the others. We see the confusion they are all in. All are fighting, each thinking they are fighting for God's Kingdom. It is all because worldly wisdom got the control. The kingdoms of this world are not God's Kingdom, any of them, and never were.

BECOMING FOOLS THAT WE MAY BE WISE

The only way to become truly wise is to become foolish from the world's standpoint. The Apostle Paul tells us that we "are counted fools for Christ's sake," because we wish to follow the Lamb of God, because we wish to guide our faith and actions by the Word of God. Not only are we counted fools from the standpoint of the world at large, but also from the standpoint of the educated clergy. How so! Because nearly all of the educated have now repudiated the Bible. They have the spirit of the world. Believe the story of Adam and the fall? Nonsense! This is the worldly wisdom they have gotten from the colleges of our day. Every college, for the past thirty years, has been turning out Higher Critics and Evolutionists. They say that man has developed from a frog or a tadpole. They even go farther back, and say that he started from a microbe, and has evolved to his present state of development. You are not worldly-wise if you believe in the fall of Adam, and the redemption from the fall through Jesus Christ as our Ransom-price. And foolish people you are if you believe the story of the Deluge, and the story of Jonah and the great fish! It is no matter if Jesus did speak of Noah and the Flood and give it His endorsement. No matter if He did declare that Jonah's being in the belly of the fish for three days typified that Jesus should be three days in the bowels of the earth. No matter if He did speak of Adam and his race as being the "lost sheep," and declare that He "came to seek and to save that which was lost," that He came to "give Himself a Ransom for many." None of the great and wise believe these Scriptural stories and declarations! On, no! They are not so foolish!

You see the Apostle had the right gauge on the matter. How many of us are willing to be a fool for Christ's sake a fool in the eyes of the wise people? But the worldly-wise who are measuring these plain statements of the Bible according to their own ideas, according to their own foolish reasoning, are coming to naught. The Apostle Paul declared that the time would come "in the last days" when these wise (?) men should "proceed no further, for their folly should be made manifest unto all men."

WORLDLY WISDOM NOW BEING DEMONSTRATED

This time is rapidly nearing, indeed we are now entering into these days. Look at the things being done today in those countries declaring themselves to be Christ's Kingdom. See how these so-called kingdoms of Christ are acting like devils, mad men! The Germans have the shibboleth, "On to victory! God is with us!" So also with the Austrians. So with the British, and the Russians, etc. Yet each is desiring commercial supremacy and control; and for their own selfish interests they are fighting each other to the death.

Ah, yes, the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God! By the time this war is over, and the succeeding revolution and anarchy shall have utterly overthrown all these false kingdoms, the world will recognize how foolish they have been. What has the wisdom of this world amounted to? How vain have been all their hopes and ambitions and schemes! How their pride and ambition for power will soon be humbled into the dust! "The lofty looks of man shall be humbled, and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that Day." (Isa. 2:10-22; 28:21-22; 13:6-13.)

The world has its own conception of what constitutes a Christian. You will notice when worldly people speak of Christians, the matter of whether or not you go out slumming or promote social reforms, whether you seek to improve the conditions of labor, etc., weigh considerably. The majority think we should be out haranguing the lower element of society rather than spending time and effort upon those already church members. Many Christian people have that idea. They think the Christian is to preach Hell or do something to terrorize the people and get them into the Church. They have been doing that for centuries, and how many of the people have they truly led to Christ by such methods? Look at Europe today. Away in the past the emperors said, "We want the people to be subject to the governments. Can you Christians bring it about? If you can, you are the ones we are looking for. How will you do it? We will tell them that if they are not obedient they will be sent to a place of eternal torture, was the answer. We will tell them that this is the Bible Hell. We will fix up a Purgatory, too. Don't fear, we will make these places hot enough for the people, and they will believe it all and be afraid to disobey. Thus by false doctrines suggested by heathen religions and enlarged upon, they drove the people into the churches. These very nations are now engaged in this most terrible war of all history.

You would never suspect that all these are saints, yet only saints are Christians, the Bible plainly declares. This driving of people by the millions into an outward profession and form of religion by telling them that they will go to Hell if they do not come into the Church, has had its legitimate effect. This is readily seen as we look across the water today.

You know they had the theory back in the days of St. Augustine that nobody who was not baptized with water was in the Church, and that anybody not in the Church would go straight to eternal torment. Hence the movement by him to "baptize" babes into the Church, through water sprinkling, which they called baptism. We are glad that we have a real God, One whom we can worship in spirit and in truth. Wrong teaching led these people to put all these little babes into their church organization and declare them church members, this expression being loosely used, for only the Hierarchy were really the Church, the "priesthood." All of this is contrary to the Bible and is the wisdom of this world, a deception of the great adversary. When we come to see the Plan of God, how different it is! We see that God has not commissioned the Church to convert the world. This wrong idea, as we have seen, crept in back there when the Church was exalted to a position of power. They said, We are now ruling, and we must bring the whole world into subjection, we must make them children of the Church. They quoted those Psalms prophetic of the Millennial Kingdom to prove their authority to thus rule. They set out to compel everybody to become a Christian, overlooking the fact that such is not God's Plan at all;

for a Christian is a follower of Christ, one who walks in His footsteps of sacrifice. Only the Gospel Age Church is called to do this. God's Call to any to be disciples of Jesus has been a still, small voice which only a few have heard and heeded.

THE MEEK, THE CONTRITE, NOW CALLED

Jesus said to His disciples, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear." Of all the Jewish people the only ones that saw and heard what the Lord was telling them were about five hundred brethren, up to the time of His death. All the way down the Gospel Age the masses have not been able to hear. The time for the whole world to hear has not yet come. All will hear when the Millennial Kingdom is established and the knowledge of God covers the earth. All will then have an opportunity to come into harmony with the Kingdom of God. Now the Message is, "He that hath an ear to hear let him hear." If you find one who has a hearing ear, tell him the blessed story. If you meet those who do not have the hearing ear, do not worry about it. Their time is not yet. Go on to those who have the ear to hear.

Among what class may we expect to find the hearing ears? The Bible shows that the meek are the ones who now have the hearing ear. The average man and woman have not an ear for the Truth. Let me remind you of the words of Isa. 61:1, used by our Lord Jesus in His preaching. He preached in the right way. The verse reads: "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon Me, because He hath anointed Me to preach good tidings to the meek, He hath sent Me to bind up the broken-hearted." The Bible does not tell us to go out and seek to reclaim thieves and murderers and criminals generally, but we are to present the Message to the meek, the contrite. You see the difference. And what shall we tell those who are teachable. We used to think that when we had told them that Jesus died and rose again for their salvation there was nothing more to tell them. When they had heard this they were to go out and tell some one else about Jesus how they were to escape eternal woe through Him.

The Bible Plan is very different. When we have heard of God's great Plan, and believe that Jesus died for us, our salvation is only begun. If we are properly exercised, this leads us to a consecration, to the giving up of our whole life to God. But the majority never think of consecrating their lives to the Lord. There are a great many very nice people who are not of God's family. The Message now is only for those who are meek enough to hear His word and act upon it, and this means sacrifice.

The Spirit of the Lord God that is upon Jesus' followers, as upon Him, has commissioned, or ordained, us to "bind up the broken-hearted." There are plenty of people going around with hammers to break others' hearts. We are to tell them of God's love. His mercy, His Plan. We are to tell them how He will give beauty for ashes and the oil of joy for the spirit of heaviness. That is our commission. In doing this we are developing along the lines that God designed. We are called to walk in the “narrow way.” Not one is called merely to live a decent life. The Call is to be members of the Body of Christ.

CHURCH’S PRESENT WORK NOT WORK OF REFORM

Worldly wisdom would lead us to another course altogether, and we are, therefore, to fight against the spirit of the world. Some say, “Come, let us consecrate ourselves to working for temperance.” Temperance is a good work, but did Jesus work for temperance? Not at all. Jesus was on the side of temperance, and so are we, but it is not our present mission to reform the world. It is worldly wisdom, the worldly mind, that wants to go slumming or to engage in civic reform. Did Jesus or the Apostles spend their time in trying to clean up society? Not a bit of it! What was their work? Their work, first of all, was to find those having ears to hear the Gospel Message calling out the “peculiar people” for a special future work, and second, after finding them, to instruct them and build them up in the most holy faith. If we are to be true followers of Jesus we are to note what He did, how He used His time, and then do likewise.

TRIUMPH OF LOVE OVER JUSTICE

The Apostle says “Mercy rejoiceth over Justice.” This text signifies that love gained the victory over justice, because mercy is merely the outward or actual expression of love, and so we might reason in what way does divine mercy or love gain the victory over divine justice, and in so doing, I believe we will be learning something for ourselves, because we should be copies of God. We are to study His method, His manner, and His many ways, in order that we may have His wisdom, and, in proportion as you and I receive His spirit, His mind, in that same proportion we will have the spirit of sons. When, therefore, we shall see how God’s love gains the victory over His justice, we shall learn how it ought to be with us, in order that we might become like Him.

In the case of divine love and divine justice, we are to remember that our Heavenly Father is perfect in all these qualities and attributes. His justice is perfect, and His love is perfect, but, inasmuch as these are inherent, invisible qualities of the divine nature, we could not study them unless they were manifested. They have been manifested. It is the manifestation of these qualities, therefore, that especially interests us. We are not to think what He is to do to attain perfection, because we know that He has always been perfect, but we are to see how these attributes manifest themselves, that thus we may learn valuable lessons.

It seems to me, and increasingly so, that there is no lesson that the Lord's people need to learn more than this particular lesson of the relationship of justice to love, and how we may practice them as God practices them; and yet, with some variations too, for He has some rights which we do not have.

In the case of God, we see that His love operated in the very beginning when He created His Son to be His logos, and it was afterwards seen in angels and man. Then we see that the fall of our race brought into operation divine justice, for it was justice that decreed that man, on account of his disobedience, should not live, but die. "Dying, thou shalt die" was the fiat of justice, and at the same time, love was obliged to agree with that. When justice decreed that death must result from transgression, love responds, and said, "Yes; that's the proper thing. Love agrees that it is altogether proper for man to die as a result of sin, not only because it is right for God to be just and He must be in harmony with His own law, but also because it would not be good for man to live everlastingly in an imperfect, fallen condition. If He had allowed him to live on in imperfection and not die, we can hardly imagine what a tremendous power he would have had in the world by this time. Even as it is, we see that some of our race in three score years and ten are able to cultivate such qualities of mind and character as to give them the ascendancy over the remainder of the race, and were they permitted to live on indefinitely, they would undoubtedly bring all the others into captivity to them. They might become so powerful as the years go on that one might become a giant and be able to do whatever he might desire to do, and thus be very tyrannical. Except man should exercise the attributes of his character in harmony with those of the divine nature, because of the great injury he would do to others of the race, he ought not to be permitted to live. And thus, in the divine arrangement, we see love agreeing with justice that sinful man ought not to live, but die. Then again, when our whole race came under the sentence of death, God might have cut us off much more quickly than he did, had He not had in mind the very plan which we are now learning the divine plan of the ages. Man was to learn certain lessons during the present in order that he might profit by them in the future. So, now, we see that God has arranged a very reasonable and loving way in dealing with the sinner in harmony with His great plan. In His wonderful plan He has arranged to redeem man from this death condition, because He intends to restore him in due time. All of the experiences of the present life will have a bearing upon the members of the fallen race during the time of their restoration in the age to come. He has planned it, so that we may have these experiences and learn these needful lessons and then go down into the tomb and thus, quietly, for six thousand years, the world has been getting its first lesson in its education along the line of sin as to what a terrible thing sin is, how hard it is to control, what its downward tendencies are, what it means to encourage it in one's heart, how hardening of the heart inevitably results from its practice. Thus twenty thousand millions of our race have had a great schooling time for six thousand years.

It seems to me, I can see a great deal of wisdom in His plan. His love was not inactive, but since He could not show man any love could not resist justice in this matter love had already arranged a plan whereby redemption would come, whereby love would triumph over justice. After justice had reigned for six thousand years, during which the world had learned its lessons with respect to the heinousness of sin in all its various forms, and had consigned its subjects to the silence of the tomb the triumph of justice love redeeming became love restoring, calling them forth from the tomb during the thousand years of its reign, so that ultimately when death and hell shall have delivered up all that were in them, and death shall be no more, love will have triumphed over justice, and so we read, "O death where is thy sting; O grave, where is thy victory? But thanks be unto God (God is love) who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

This is one of the wonderful things I see in the Bible the more wonderful, the more I understand it. God always maintains His justice, and He always maintains His love, and we are being blest by both. Justice having triumphed over the world for six thousand years has brought our race down to sheol, hades, death, the tomb. Love, in the meantime, began to operate in harmony with justice, and has given the great sacrifice of Jesus, and at the time of the return of the Lord, has arranged through His reign of a thousand years, to awaken them from the sleep of death, to raise them from the tomb. We can thus see in the Bible proposition what a great equality or balance God has manifested. Since twenty thousand millions of souls have sinned, it would, in some way, require twenty-thousand-million redeemers, but when we see how God is operating, we wonder at His arrangement. He saw to it that only one man would ever be condemned to death. Through one man condemnation came upon all men. "As by man came death, by man came also resurrection of the dead." One man was a sinner; one man was a redeemer. Beautiful! We never heard of anything like this except in God's plan. Just think of a great plan covering six thousand years in which the salvation of nearly twenty-thousand-millions of human creatures is involved, and yet, all so easily and perfectly poised and balanced that through the disobedience of one man sin would enter the world, and death by sin, in order that, in due time, the redemptive work of one man might fully offset the degrading work of the other one, and thus balance the account of the great day of justice, wherein all were condemned in one, by the sacrifice of the one redeemer, through whose sacrifice love provided for the recovery of all from the power of death, so that death would no longer have any dominion over them justice and love co-operating to produce that great balance love gained the great victory! While justice will never be cheated out of its part, yet love gains the victory and provides the way out of the difficulty, and does this at the expense of the one by whom the whole plan has been consummated.

While the penalty is upon all, but one has been required to pay the penalty. This had to be done by His sacrifice. How is that? Is that not unjust? Oh, no! The Bible assures us that God stated the proposition beforehand to Jesus, and Jesus was in full agreement with it not merely the man Jesus, but primarily it was made to the Logos, the Word, the Messenger Michael, the God-like One. In this whole matter then, He acquiesced. It was even presented to Him as a great bargain, that, by the purchase of the whole race through His sacrifice, He might obtain the great honor and glory of Messiah the opportunity of blessing the thousands-of-millions of humanity who were condemned to death; and then, what more? Oh, much more, viz., that He would be exalted to the divine nature through all eternity, far above angels, principalities, powers, and every name that is named, and ALL OF THIS IS THE GREAT TRIUMPH OF LOVE OVER JUSTICE. While justice remains forever inviolate throughout eternity, yet love gains the victory, and justice and mercy rejoice.

My dear brethren, when we see what the Bible teaches about the divine plan, it gives us the confidence in the Bible that we can get from no other quarter. It is the study of the Bible from the outside, by those who try to pick things to pieces, and the employment of their brains against the Bible, that proves that the professors of our day are the worst of all times. It is only when we perceive from the inside, that we see the strength of the Bible. No human mind ever made such a plan. It is surely divine. It is surely biblical. We did not discover it. It was shown to us in due time. We know it is of God; and the book that contains that message is surely the Word of God, and it must be that all those holy men of old spoke and wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. Wonderful message! God's spirit indited this message. The many men who uttered the words did not know what they meant. They were meant for us, not for them. They were written for our instruction upon whom have come the end of the Ages. And then, we could not understand their words until something occurred to us, and that something was that we received the begetting to the Holy Spirit with the subsequent and consequent enlightenment, and this brought these things to our attention and enabled us to understand their meaning. So the Apostle writes to some, you remember, "After that you were illuminated.” We now understand what it means to be illuminated.

The illumination is primarily the work of the Holy Spirit of God which we received when we came into His family at the time of our consecration unto death. This illumination of the church had its beginning at Pentecost. Up to that time the spirit had not yet been given. The early church had to wait until Jesus had finished His sacrifice for sin, had ascended up on high as the great High Priest to appear in the presence of God for us, to sprinkle the blood of His sacrifice upon the mercy seat on our behalf, and become the Advocate of all those who would follow in His steps, having made satisfaction for their sins, and by the imputation of His own merit to the consecrated, and thereby making them acceptable to the Father not until then could they receive the begetting of the Holy Spirit. But ever since then this Spirit has been with the church, begetting each one who would come into the same class.

This, however, is not all, for after that comes the Illumination as the result of the begetting. Because we are sons, God has sent forth the spirit of His Son into our hearts, whereby we cry ABBA, FATHER. Not only does this illumination enable us to understand things previously hidden from our eyes, but thereafter all the word of God becomes food for us, that we may grow thereby in grace, in knowledge, in justice, in all the qualities of the divine character, that thus we may become more and more like our Father who is in heaven.

Having then seen how divine justice operates in the blessings of mankind up to the present time, we will now look further and see that divine mercy is about to gain a great victory for the whole world. It will require the entire thousand years of Messiah’s reign before mercy will have triumphed over justice. All through that thousand years, dear friends, we perceive what love will be doing for the world of mankind. It will be doing everything that can be done to lift man up from degradation. It will all come through the Lord Jesus Christ, who will be God’s agent of justice and love, through whom the blessings will come through all that thousand years; and then, the church will be associated with Him in His kingdom, glory and honor associated with Him in this work of love. It will operate through us also. In order that we may be of that same character, we must not only be begotten by the spirit, but must also manifest this spirit, must be quickened by it, and eventually in the first resurrection be born of this spirit, share His glory, and be associated with Him in this work of love for mankind during the entire thousand years, at the conclusion of which, this uplifting work of divine love will have been accomplished. The world by that time will have received its blessings. All though this wonderful plan the principles of absolute justice and absolute love will be observed both operating in full harmony. Christ is the connecting link between them His sacrifice, the connecting link, making it possible.

How will God's justice during the future operate toward the world of mankind? Some have difficulty in thinking along this line that the world in the future will have its sins forgiven. Is it not true that God has a reckoning? Will He not hold against the world something for wrongs committed in the past? Will the murderer have the same opportunity as those who have been more noble in their lives? Where will justice be represented in the future in His dealings with men? We believe that God's dealings will be associated with justice all the way through; that, while love will be specially operative during the whole of the millennial age, yet justice will never be violated. Will mankind, in the future, be punished for sins of the present time? Yes, and no. No; not in the sense that we are punished for sins in the past, for this would nullify the work that Christ accomplished in His death in making satisfaction for Adamic sin. Satisfaction having been made by Christ for the believer's sins, he is no longer punishable for them. The same principle will operate in the future.

For the present, we will consider the church. Suppose a man or woman had lived in such a way as to have gotten himself or herself into a very bad condition of body, mind, or what not. These things will have more or less of a penalty upon them after they have become Christians. Suppose Mr. A, B, or C, had been living a profane life in some way a dishonorable life. Suppose that God's grace now reaches them and they learn the provision that God has made in Christ, and see that God is ready to forgive their sins and cleanse them from all unrighteousness; they accept His terms, and we say, their sins are forgiven. What do we mean?: We mean that God no longer holds any displeasure against a person who has come into harmony with the divine authority. Whenever anyone comes into harmony with God in His appointed way, His justice is no longer opposed to such an one in the sense of condemning him. Nevertheless, he will have in his body or mind certain punishments resulting from his previous sinful course of life. In the event he has lived a sinful life for a long time, then will the evil be that more deeply entrenched in his mortal body, and he will consequently have all the greater fight to overcome these deeply imbedded tendencies to sin. Whereas, in the case of one who has previously lived a good, moral life in all good conscience, that one will have just that much less to overcome. If, through evil deeds, the mind of a person has become poisoned, that person will have to battle all his life against the seeds of error thus sown, not in the way of a direct punishment for his wrong doing, but in the way of a natural law of punishment, because the new creature is to be developed in the flesh wherein the bad seeds have been planted.

It is like a piece of land which had been given over, for a long time, to some kind of weed, in which case the roots will have become deeply entrenched in that time.

This land may afterwards be changed into a wheat field, and you might sow wheat in that field, but we know from experience that the weeds will be there also, and the wheat will not do so well because of this previous foul condition when it was given over for the time to the weeds. It is even so with our hearts and our bodies. After we have given them to the Lord they are what they were before, only He has accepted them as new creatures. His grace has provided a way whereby our sins are covered, and they are no longer chargeable to us, but the evil seeds are still there, and that individual who has a large planting in early or later life, will have to his dying day a great battle against these poisonous weeds, and that will be proper punishment for the wrong course which he had previously pursued.

Thus it is that justice is not relieving us of anything, but mercy is passing our sins by and counting us as new creatures, while justice continues to operate. You and I know full well that, to whatever extent we yield our minds to sinful practices, to that same extent we become favorable to the wrong conditions for the growth of wheat. The weeds are there. It behooves us to fight a good fight against these wrongs and errors entrenched in our minds. We are new creatures, but we must fight a great fight against the weeds in the field. We must be all the more on guard against every sinful, evil thought of mind so that we may be pure in every word, deed and thought. All new creatures know that this battle is on.

So it will be in the future. The world will get retribution for their sins the same as we do for ours. While their sins will be set aside so as not to exact a penalty on account of being turned over to Christ, yet every member of the human family, in so far as they know wrong and do it intentionally, will be under a poisonous influence, and it will require years and years of the millennium to get free from it. Should we think that God would give the world any more than we get? Surely not. We are glad for all that God has done for us, as well as for what He intends to do for the world. The opportunity is ours now, but it will be to the world in the future. There will be a difference, however, for whereas our sins are covered for a certain purpose, theirs will be blotted out.

This matter of covering our sins is to permit us to be treated as new creatures. This covering lasts from the time we become Christians on during all of our experiences unto the end of our journey here below. If one should become a Christian at the age of thirty years, and should then live to be sixty, that one will have thirty years during which to fight against these bad seeds. Each Christian will have to battle against all such evil tendencies clear down until the end of this present life, and thus each one will have had a great conflict, and, by that time, will have demonstrated to the Lord to what extent one has been loyal and true in really striving against sin.

It is not merely striving against error, but against sin. We have all been under a cloud of error in times past. Our minds have been in error. We all see that. But this is not the main thing. It is important indeed to have recognized this condition and come out into the light, but this is not the main thing. It is important only in a relative way. The most important thing is to get rid of SIN itself. There are errors of mind or doctrine, of thought, of morals, of character, of justice by practicing injustice all of these things had been going on in common life from childhood. We did not know what they really meant.

Nobody preached about them; parents did not teach about them; but now, we see very clearly what the Bible has to say about these things. Now, God wishes His people to be free from the doctrinal errors, but He especially wishes them to be free from any sympathy with sin, unrighteousness, iniquity, or injustice. In other words, God wishes you and me to be very loyal to the Golden Rule. That is the first proposition; and to learn that lesson is sometimes the experience of years. I know some who are highly esteemed, and yet they seem to be lacking along this line not referring, however, to anyone present. Very many have not practiced JUSTICE in their lives.

They are unjust in their dealings with their families husbands deal unjustly with their wives, and vice versa, parents deal unjustly with their children, and children with their parents in some, it seems that injustice is the rule rather than justice. From the time we become followers of Jesus, and see how justice is written in the law, from that time we begin to know that He expect us to observe the Golden Rule. We should begin right in our own families, with our parents, our children, our companions in life. This should, and will affect all the little affairs of life. Time would fail to enumerate them. It will affect our walk the way we walk in the house the way we clean our shoes at the door, in fact, everything we do, or say. It applies everywhere, and in everything. Do unto others as you would they should do unto you. If we could get that thoroughly worked-down into our hearts and lives, it would indeed prove to be one of the greatest blessings in our lives, not only to ourselves, but also to many others. There are brethren, and there are sister, who, from outward appearance, and sometimes I know these things from letters (I do not intend to judge) but from their letters I know that many are not as far advanced as they might be in this respect.

Measure not by the world. The world does not know this rule. We are not to measure them by this rule. We are not to expect from them as much as we do from ourselves. Neither should we measure ourselves by other Christians. Some who are called Christians are morally inclined, and we appreciate their characters, but we are not to measure ourselves by them, because many of them have never been begotten of the spirit at all, and have never come into the school of Christ at all; so, we should not measure ourselves by them, but by the word of the Lord which says, "What manner of persons ought ye to be in all holiness of living and Godliness."

This statement of the Apostle implies that we are a special class, different from every other people in the world a peculiar people, as he elsewhere puts it not in dress, but zealous for good works, zealous for everything that is right, laying down our lives for the truth, in the service of others, not only endeavoring to say nothing to our families that would injure them, but rather studying to give something to them.

This is the principle. I notice that some who seem to be exact in their dealings with the world they would not keep one cent from the world that was due them, and yet in dealing with themselves and their loved ones, they appear to be very careless treating them in a wrong way. But in following the Golden Rule, we are becoming more and more like our Heavenly Father. He only does to others what He might wish them to do to Him. No roasting then, nor anything of that kind. Let us keep the Golden Rule in mind, and it will furnish us with the very essence of the teachings of God's word. First and always, treat others as we would wish to have them do to us, and afterwards do a little more, but never come short on this fundamental.

We should indeed give more than this, but NEVER LESS. Love will cause us to do more, even as it did in the case of our Lord Jesus Christ. He kept the Golden Rule inviolate in every instance. He never did less than that, but more. He gave His life for others, and that is what all of us are to do. We engaged to do this. This is our covenant. Follow the Golden Rule, and then, do more. We are to give up our lives for our brethren. This is the Bible thought. It is one that should appeal to us even from the human standpoint as being the highest ideal. A young Jew who had come into the knowledge of the truth was explaining how he formerly felt before coming into this knowledge. He was studying music in one of our larger colleges.

One evening a rainstorm drove him into one of the meetings of the friends. He was favorably impressed by what he saw and heard. He therefore returned. In time he was more impressed, and subsequently received the truth, and made a full consecration of himself to the Lord. He said, I had been thinking for quite a while before I went into that meeting, before I believed in Christ, before I became a Bible student, thinking of what I would do with my life. I said, I would like to make some noble use of this life. Various persons came before my mind. For myself, I had tried to keep the law all my life, but I wanted to know how I could make the best and noblest use of the life I had.

This young Jew wanted to know how to make the most of life. He was just the right kind. He thought that some people had done great things, in making money, some were great musicians, etc. He considered those in the world who had been the best pianists, best singers, etc., and reflected, what if I had been some celebrity in music. Oh, I would like to sacrifice my life for something. That is natural. It was to that young man. It is to many until other things become entrenched in their minds. There is a great tendency that way with children at about the age of twelve. It is then that we should give them a helping hand from this viewpoint. They are seeing different things. Without any talking, they are thinking--thinking about great men, great women, what they have done, what they would like to do, etc. They are watching the great ones, and wondering about them.

All of these things appear before the child's mind. They learn something about requirements after a thing has taken place. They learn how people use their lives. They think how Jesus did, how the Apostles did, how other great ones have done, and they become desirous of doing some great thing--be a great millionaire, or what not, or they would like to sacrifice their lives for some noble object, just as this young Jew did. All of us who have become leaders of the people--we not only have had these things come before our minds, but we have made them our object the same as did this young Jew. We have found the right thing--to sacrifice our lives for some noble object. All of us who have had this ideal, and made full consecration of ourselves to the Lord, should never forget this. Let us progress along this way of sacrificing our lives for the truth in following in the foot-steps of Jesus. As we progress, we will learn better what God wishes of us. We said we would give up all to the Lord. We did not know all that it meant when we gave our hearts to the Lord. Many things were hidden from the eyes of our understanding, but as we have gone on step by step, the Lord casts upon our pathway the information that we must suffer with Him. But even though we may have learned that it is our privilege to sacrifice our lives for Him, yet, the greatest thing to learn is what He will do for us. God is doing most of it, after all. We are not to do it all. God is the one who is doing the really great things.

Our hearts are stirred by His precious promises. We feed upon them and meditate upon them. We are enamored of the things that eyes have not seen nor ears heard. Thus we grow stronger, taller, and become heavier in weight as Christians, day by day and hour by hour. With our desire to grow ever increasing, we see the necessity for our meetings together, for our building each other up in the most holy faith. We see things more clearly. Other things pass away from our vision. We get better and clearer views of things as we continue to grow. And thus it is in regard to these great principles of love and justice and their bearing upon our lives in every respect. As we advance in knowledge, they become clearer and clearer to us.

This same principle will operate in the millennial age. The Lord Jesus will operate with these persons as they are. They will come forth as they are. Justice will not turn them over to Him perfect, but as they went down. The lower down they were, the more steps they will be required to take to climb up. All the assistance necessary to enable them to climb will be given them under Messiah's kingdom. Thus some will have more to overcome than others. Confucius, for instance, will come forth in the millennial kingdom, and will be a towering giant among the people in that day. The people will then see a heathen man who lived without our opportunities, who heard no church bells, attended no church, etc., and they will be surprised at what a strong character he will be.

They will say, as they behold him, if we had only availed ourselves of the privileges and opportunities we had beforehand, we might have had a place among the glorified in heaven, and yet when they consider themselves in the light of their past experiences, they will conclude they are in their right position, and stimulated by the example of Confucius, et al., and encouraged by the assistances of that time, will be encouraged to progress as fast as possible. Jesus said, it will be more tolerable for the people of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for the people of Bethsaida and Capernaum, because the former had had less opportunities than the latter. These latter ones will come forth more tainted in their minds, their characters weaker, and somewhat less inclined to hearken and obey, whereas with those who had not heard the message of God's love, it will be new to them and they will be all the more inclined to give heed. It will be more tolerable for them than for the others. It will be a tolerable time for all, but more so for those who have never heard and who have never known.

Coming down then, dear friends, and putting these into practice in our own lives, let me suggest that, from the time that we have made our consecration, and have learned that God justifies us freely from all sin through our Lord Jesus Christ, we note that there is a tendency among the Lord's people, some in one direction, and others in another, to violate, unintentionally, these fundamental principles of justice and love as existent in the divine character and manifested in His dealings with His people, and we do not wish while speaking to one class to have the other misapprehend what we say.

There are some, who, by the natural condition of the brain and organs of the brain, have little self-esteem, and so are easily discouraged, and consequently need encouragement. They find themselves imperfect, and whenever they would do good, evil is present with them. We cannot do the things that we would. Now, some of them have small self-esteem and are likely to become discouraged. When opportunities for service are offered, they are inclined to the thought others can, but I can't; I feel so weak and unworthy; I don't seem to be able to do anything right. These need to be encouraged and to be assured that God knows their endeavors in doing the best they know how, and He will not exact any more than they are able to do.

There are others who have plenty of self-esteem, and they are inclined to say Now God won't expect too much of me, He won't expect too much of me because of the conditions of myself from birth and those content themselves with doing less than their best. Christ died for their sins, they say, and God's grace is very wonderful, and I want to lead a good, pure life, and do what I can, but they do not live up to the highest standard.

Remember, the Lord is going to judge His people, and will do so according to what He knows about their ability. Mercy will be granted for every imperfection that is unintentional, but no mercy will be extended toward those things we could avoid. Whatever ability we possess, we are responsible for, and God is going to hold us responsible for not doing the best we could with what we have, so that there is some danger of not attaining to the best He has to give. Those who are living up to their opportunities and privileges should go on with courage, doing the best they can with what they have, exercising full faith, and having full confidence in the Lord, for He has promised a sufficiency of grace to cover every imperfection. We may thus receive a blessing. But there must be no excuse for anyone to be careless in living in neglect of his duties and responsibilities. God is not mocked.

He that doeth righteousness is righteous. Be not deceived. We are all imperfect in the flesh, but the New Creature is the one who will be held responsible for not doing his best. It is the new creature who is careless respecting his conduct, indifferent to the requirements of the golden rule, and the additional exercise of love it is he who will be held responsible and will not receive the "Well done; good and faithful servant," unless he should exercise greater care respecting these important matters. God will have none in that special class who will not measure up to the standard of their full requirement. If we are to be judges of the world, we must be in a condition to be just judges. Therefore, we must pass through this schooling. Do the best you are capable of, is what He expects of you and me nothing more, but THAT!

Let us rejoice in the wonderful provisions of divine grace, sufficient in supply for our every need, through Jesus Christ our Lord, and let us feed upon His promises, while we follow His providences, and DO OUR BEST. Let us rejoice and follow the Lord, and follow the Lamb.

FULLNESS OF GOD— HOW ATTAINED

He spoke from the text, “That ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height, and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God.” (Eph. 3:17-19) He said in part:

This is to me one of the most precious texts in the Bible. It gives us a breadth and depth of thought, a deep inhalation, as it were, of God’s greatness and love. The Apostle was writing to those who had been Christians for some time. The Church at Ephesus was a noble Church. St. Paul felt it worth while to pray for them that they might have this still larger appreciation of God.

The quality of Jehovah’s character that especially touches our hearts is His love. Doubtless we are particularly impressed along that line because of the misrepresentations that we received in earlier life. Children born of parents who have long enjoyed the knowledge of Present Truth, having never been taught the doctrine of eternal torment, etc., often take the Truth as a matter of course. They have never believed anything else than the Truth and it seems to them the natural and proper thing. So it would have been with all if we had not been perverted in mind through false teachings until it was difficult to believe in the love of God as presented in Scriptures. But having come out of darkness into God’s marvelous light, our appreciation of His love is the stronger by reason of the contrast with our former misconceptions.

I believe it will be so in the next Age, when mankind are delivered from their heathenish ideas not only the heathenish ideas of those without any knowledge of Christ, but the heathenish ideas taught them by woefully misguided Christians. When the world come back from the grave with all their false ideas in their minds, and find out about the real God and His gracious Plan, it will be such a revelation that they will be made the more appreciative because of the wrong thoughts they had before.

In Chapter 1 of this Epistle St. Paul prayed for the Ephesian Church that the eyes of their understanding might be lightened more and more. In time past we wondered whether the world could be fully responsible before God; whether they had heard enough of the Gospel to give the Heavenly Father reason for roasting them forever. Did they hear a church bell ring? Did they hear some one sing a hymn? Did they hear somebody read from the Bible? Yes. Very well; if they are not saints, they are bound for Hell, was the orthodox teaching. How absurd! Hearing with the outer ear is really the smallest part of real hearing, is it not? Jesus in His day spoke of some who had ears, but could not hear, who had eyes, but could not see. Then He said, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear." Those who followed the Lord Jesus something more than five hundred altogether were the only ones in the Jewish nation at that time who had ears to hear.

FEW HAVE REALLY HEARD THE GOSPEL

While many have heard the sound of a church bell, have heard sermons and hymns, a comparatively small number have really heard the Gospel. Notwithstanding the fact that men were born in sin and misshapen in iniquity, will God torture them through all eternity if they do not turn around and do contrary to their natural instincts? Have we not been wrong in our heads? Surely we must have had a screw loose somewhere or we would not have believed anything of that kind.

It takes a long time to get wholly free from what we have learned in childhood from the catechism, and from our hymn books, as well as from the twist given to many Scriptures. As an illustration, we have every reason to think that the men who translated the King James Version of the Bible were very conscientious, but they had their minds thoroughly poisoned. It is impossible for a person with his mind poisoned not to let the poison get into his pen, if he is writing. They seemed to feel that the Bible did not have enough Hell in it, and they wished to put in all they could.

One illustration of this is found in the 5th chapter of John, 29th verse. In verse 28, Jesus was saying, Marvel not at the things I have told you about My Kingdom; "The hour is coming in which all that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of God and come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life." I suppose the translators thought that the Lord was going to send everybody to everlasting torture, so in the next clause, "they that have done evil unto a resurrection of judgment," they gave the translation, "resurrection of damnation." They had to get the damnation in. They supposed, though it was not in the original, that this thought should be there, and that they, as translators, should put it into the English text. They did so. But there is no "damnation" in the Greek. The word is krisis judgment.

These translators had been taught that there is a place of torment; and here was a text that seemed to imply that everyone would have an opportunity of some kind that those in harmony with the Lord would have a life-resurrection, while the others would have an awakening to a process of judgment. They thought they must make it a hot time someway, so they put it "damnation," and scared the rest of us. What would a resurrection of damnation be? We were told that the people were in Hell as spirit beings; and that after they had been roasted for a long time as spirit beings, they would have a resurrection and get more substantial bodies, so that the flames could get a better hold on them. How ridiculous! How absurd! Whenever people ignore the Word of God they get into some absurdity.

Those translators were not stupid men. They were seventy of the most intelligent preachers, the most highly educated men of their day. They agreed to render the word krisis as “damnation,” although this same Greek work occurs four times more in the same chapter and they did not render it “damnation” in any of the other four instances.

But to give the proper translation in verse 29 would interfere with their eternal torment theory. The Revised Version, you will note, sets the matter straight. It renders the word as it should be—“judgment.”

What is the resurrection of judgment? It is the resurrection that comes to the world during the Day of a thousand years in which Christ is to reign. That whole period is the Day of Judgment, as St. Peter tells us. “God hath appointed a Day in which He will judge the world in righteousness by that Man whom He hath ordained” Christ Jesus, the Head of the Church, and the members of His Body. They are to be the judges in that thousand-year Day. All the world at large will have their opportunity in that Day of Judgement.

We, the Church, are now having our day of judgment, from the time we give our hearts to the Lord and make a covenant with Him until the close of life. It is a matter of life or death with us from the time we make this covenant. We shall have a chance for life in the next Age, if we have now covenanted to sacrifice our time, our talents, our influence, our riches, our all, in the Lord’s service.

GOD’S SPECIAL COVENANT WITH THE FEW

In exchange for our hopes of human Restitution, God has given us the first payment, a hand-payment, so to speak, of the reward of the Divine nature, in that we have received the begetting of the Holy Spirit. Now old things have passed away; old hopes have passed away. While Jesus is prepared to give Restitution to the world, you and I who are now God’s children cannot get Restitution. (John 15:19; 17:14) We have given up Restitution, that we may have the hope of being partakers of the Divine nature, which God has invited us to share with His Son.

All who have made that covenant with God must have had their eyes opened previously or he would not have made the covenant with them. He does not make a covenant with the heathen the unenlightened world but only with those who have an intelligent knowledge of His offer and the terms of its attainment. How was it with yourself and with myself? We had first to learn something of God. We had to learn that He is a Rewarder of them that diligently seek Him. We had to learn how to seek Him. We learned that there is a strait gate and a narrow way that “leads the life” the life offered during the Gospel Age only. We learned that Jesus is that “Door,” or “Gate”, and that we must come to that Door and present ourselves intelligently. The eyes of our understanding were opened, or we could not have done this.

But our discernment of these things was not complete at the time we saw enough to lead us to present our bodies as living sacrifices unto Him. It was not until we had been covered with the robe of Christ’s righteousness to make us acceptable to the Father, and begotten of the Holy Spirit as New Creatures, that the higher things opened before us. “The heavens were opened, and we began to understand the deep things of God.” (1 Cor. 2:10) This special blessing is restricted to those who have come into this special relationship to God and to Christ, through this Covenant of Sacrifice.

God spoke of this class and their covenant in times past, saying, “Gather my saints together unto Me, those that have made a covenant with Me by sacrifice.” It is not Catholicism, not Methodism, nor Lutheranism, nor Episcopalianism, nor Russellism, but, “Gather MY SAINTS together unto Me.” If we have not made this covenant, we are not of the saints referred to. These are the true Covenanters.

JESUS THE ONLY WAY OF SALVATION, NOW OR EVER

The whole world is still out of relationship with God. They lie in the Evil One. (1 John 5:19, Rev. Ver.) God is not giving them an opportunity now. He is giving the opportunity only to those who have come in the appointed way, by faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Others are aliens, strangers and foreigners, “without God and having no hope in the world.”

Do we see the difference? Without knowledge we could not come. In the future the whole world will be enlightened. Knowledge is to be given them. It will be true then as now that no man can come unto the Father, except by the Son; that without faith no man can be received by the Father; that all must receive the Lord Jesus Christ and believe in Him. “There is no other name given under Heaven or amongst men” whereby any can be saved. But all will have their eyes and ears opened in due time regarding that Name, so that all may be saved, if they will. (Isa. 35:5) Thank God for this!

What has stopped the ears now? What has blinded the eyes? What has hindered men from knowing of God and His salvation? The Apostle Paul says, “The god of this world.” This god is Satan. Jesus tells us that Satan is “the Prince of this world.” How does he blind men’s minds? By misrepresenting God’s glorious character, putting darkness instead of light, error instead of Truth. Through misleading and deceiving, this great Prince of Darkness has sought to keep the people away from God. Why has he done this? The Apostle says, “Lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, who is the Image of God, should shine unto them.” When the light of God’s goodness shines into a heart, it begins to scatter the darkness. If Satan can keep out the light of God’s goodness he will keep us away from God. But if this light gets into the heart, it will draw us nearer to God every day and hour.

POOR OF THIS WORLD CHIEFLY CALLED

It is a matter of great importance to have the eyes of our understanding opened, “that we may be able to comprehend with all saints,” as the Apostle says. The word “comprehend” means, to fully take in, to encompass. We cannot fully encompass. We cannot fully encompass God; He is too great. What can we comprehend, then, with all saints? On this subject of the goodness and love of God the saints are to have comprehension; other people will not get much on this subject. Are the saints brighter than other people? The Bible says they are not. “Not many mighty, not many wise, not many noble, not many rich, not many learned, but chiefly ”the poor of this world, rich in faith.” These are the ones who are to have the comprehension, which comes only to those who possess God’s Holy Spirit, received through His begetting. It is this that influences our minds.

We have the same brains that we had before; but when the Holy Spirit begins to set things in order in our minds, when it gives new principles to work on, it enables us to produce better thought from these brains than would have been possible before. Thus our minds become more and more sound, just as under the hand of a master musician even a defective musical instrument might be made to yield something acceptable, which an inferior player could not produce.

The Apostle tells us that God has chosen the mean things of this world. It is a pretty hard expression to human pride, but it helps to keep us humble. This is what we need. The heady and high minded are not so susceptible to the influence of the Truth as are the humble class. It is to the humble ones that the Lord’s Word appeals; and they are simple enough to take it. The wise of the world say, “God did not mean that; He must have meant something else in harmony with my wishes and desires.” The simple-minded take God's Word as it is, and consequently receive increasing light. "God is light; and in Him is no darkness at all." The Bible reflects His light. In proportion as we get this light from the Bible we can understand God's love and Plan.

THE HEAVENLY ILLUMINATION AND ITS EFFECT

There is a supernatural illumination which all receive who receive the begetting of God's Holy Spirit. The Apostle says in his letter to the Hebrews that the Church "endured a great fight of afflictions, after they were illuminated." When did the illumination begin? When they received the spirit begetting, which is granted during the Gospel Age, and only to those who surrender themselves entirely to God through Christ. This is the thought of the Apostle when he prays for the saints that the eyes of their understanding opening, opening, opening a gradual opening is the thought of the Greek they might be able to comprehend what are the lengths and breadths and depths and heights of God's love.

Our Lord Jesus made His covenant with the Father in line with the Scripture which says, "Gather My saints together unto Me, those who have made a covenant with Me by sacrifice." Here was the first saint of the Gospel Dispensation. He said, "I delight to do Thy will, O My God!" Thou hast invited Me and I have come, in harmony with Thine arrangement. Jesus was now thirty years of age, which was as early as He could present Himself to God sacrificially. Then He was buried in the water to symbolize that consecration. His human nature was there buried in symbol. His rising from the water represented symbolically His rising to newness of life as a spirit being. God then gave Jesus the begetting of His Holy Spirit. John, who baptized the Savior, testified that he saw the Spirit come down in bodily form like a dove and rest upon Jesus. He says that he was told by the Lord before he saw it that the one on whom the Holy Spirit would be seen to thus come would be the Messiah, the Anointed of God.

In connection with this we read that as Jesus came up out of the water, "the heavens were opened unto Him." What did that mean? Could Jesus see clear up into the sky? Not any farther than before, we presume. The word "heavens" means higher things. It does not refer to the vault of heaven, but to the things of God's Word. They opened to our Lord in the sense that He began to understand them as never before. During the thirty years before that time He had been one of the few who could read. Sabbath after Sabbath He had read the different lessons of the Law, and was familiar with the letter of the Scriptures.

Could Jesus understand the deep things of God? No; for He was then only a natural man. He had not been begotten of the Spirit. He was limited by the Law so that He could not present Himself at an earlier age than thirty. Immediately upon reaching this age He was about His Father's business, consecrating His all to God.

(Heb. 10:&) The Father there gave the Holy Spirit, which began at once to operate upon Him. This illumination of the higher things came to Him all those things contained in the Law and the Prophets bearing upon Him and His course as the Messiah.

Jesus had often wondered about these matters. Here He saw the description of the glory and grandeur of Messiah's Kingdom; and there were other statements, apparently about Himself being led as a lamb to the slaughter. He had read about Moses lifting up the serpent in the wilderness, of the killing of the sacrifice of the Day of Atonement the bullock and the Lord's goat and of the scapegoat. The question with Him was, Which types refer to Me? What am I to do? It was not for Him to know until He became thirty years of age, and made His consecration. Just as soon as He had done this He received the Heavenly illumination.

Jesus then went away into the wilderness where for forty days He thought on these things that He had considered so many times before but could not understand. Now He could see how He Himself was pictured by the serpent that Moses lifted up in the wilderness; how He corresponded to the Passover lamb, and to the bullock of the Atonement Day, how He was the one to have "His grave with the wicked and with the rich in His death." This illumination that came to Jesus comes also to His followers. We are to follow His steps.

HOW WE ARE TRAINED FOR KINGDOM SERVICE

There will be no unprepared persons in God's Kingdom. No one will be there who is not fit for the place. Although we are favored in that covering of our sins, the invitation to become associated with Christ, and the assistance which God renders in the way, are all of grace, nevertheless God expects us to cooperate with grace, and develop in our hearts and life those qualities which He points out as being His own. St. Paul mentions this fruitage of the Holy Spirit—" Meekness, gentleness, faith, patience, long-suffering, self-control, brotherly kindness, love." Love is the sum of them all. You say, "I have some of these, but not in perfection." None of us have. We cannot do perfectly so long as we have imperfect bodies; but we can show skill.

If a master musician sits down at a broken-down instrument we detect his skill, in spite of the defective medium through which he operates; and we say, "If he had a perfect instrument I am sure he would produce delightful music." So the Lord is not expecting us to produce perfect works with these defective bodies, but to do our best. If the Lord sees that our intentions are perfect, and that we are trying to put into practice the good principles we have learned, so far as our abilities will permit; if He can see that we are so handling the old instrument as to get out of it the best that we can produce, then He will say, "I am satisfied; I will soon give you a new body, and then you will do perfect works." Some of your neighbors may not understand, and it may be that your family will not; but if you have God's Spirit, He will know how to reckon with you.

God wishes us to be faithful to Him, to prove our loyalty, to learn more of His character, to understand more and more what is His will, that it may have its proper influence upon our hearts and lives. As the Apostle says, "The love of Christ constraineth us." As He manifests His love toward us He wishes us to reciprocate. This is implied in our text. Let me quote it again: "That you, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend what is the length and breadth and depth and height, and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God."

O this blessed fulness! Are you realizing it? If so, "the Spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you." Go on, dear fellow pilgrims in the narrow way! A little while, and we shall see His face. A little while, and all our trials will be ended. A little while, and all the things that now appear so grievous will seem but "light afflictions, which were but for a moment, ' and which worked out for us "a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory!"

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--Would you say the Gentiles were represented in the Jewish nation on trial under the Law Covenant, in the same way that Adam's posterity were represented in him during his trial? Rom. 3.

Answer--No! The Jews were "a peculiar people," separated by God from the rest of the world. The Gentiles were not represented in them, else they would have had the same opportunities, responsibilities, and chastisements. The Law Covenant is called "the middle wall of partition" between Jew and Gentile, and was not broken down until Calvary (Eph. 2:12-19). The Apostle Paul's argument in Romans, chapters 1 to 5, is that while all were originally condemned in Adam there still persisted in the hearts of men sufficient knowledge of God's original law, written in the heart of Adam, to condemn each individually. But the Jews, having the law of Moses, were under a double condemnation, and thus to the original death sentence was added one of stripes (Amos 3:2; Lev. 26). The Jews are suffering some of these stripes now, till the fullness of the Gentiles be come in (Rom. 11:25). All the faithful, however, both Jews and Gentiles, were represented in Abraham, before circumcision and the giving of the Law (Rom. 4).

Q.--Please explain Matt. 10:15:“Verily I say unto you, it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the Day of Judgment, than for that city.”

Answer--Comparing Scripture with Scripture we find about Sodom and Gomorrah: (a) Fire and brimstone destroyed all in one day (Luke 17:29); (b) they suffered the vengeance of eternal fire (Jude 7); (c) they are made an example to those that should thereafter live ungodly (2 Pet. 2:6); (d) they would have remained had they been given the same opportunity as Capernaum (Matt. 11:21-24); (e) they will have a more tolerable time in the day of judgment than Capernaum (Matt. 10:15); (f) they will return to their former estate (Ezek. 16:55). How blind the reasoning that takes Jude 7 to mean eternal torment! It is clear the punishment of the people of Sodom and Gomorrah was: (1) Not final. They will be resurrected and have their share in the benefit of Christ’s ransom work for all viz., an opportunity for life in the 1,000-year day of judgment when the full gospel light will flood the whole earth; (2) Typical of the second death a warning of that utter destruction (not preservation in fire) which will eventually overtake all who sin willfully against clear light and thus prove their unworthiness of life.

Q.--Why did the Master first eat the Passover with his disciples, and then introduce the new rite, with bread and wine? Luke 22:14-20.

Answer--This was the last occasion on which the Passover could be celebrated. At the first Passover Israel’s first-born were delivered from the angel of death, and on the following day the whole nation were set free from the Egyptian bondage. Jesus himself was shortly to take the place of the paschal lamb; his blood was to shield the Church of the first-born from death during the Gospel Age, and in the morning the opening of the new Age the whole world were to be liberated from the bondage of sin and Satan. Jesus put into the hands of his disciples symbols of his own body and blood and enjoined that instead of eating the typical Lamb, they were now to partake of the anti-typical, and to do this in remembrance of him. It is only “till he come” that this memorial is to be kept. When he has come, then the other part of the type will be fulfilled the world will be delivered and Satan and his agents (Pharaoh and his host) will be destroyed. It was therefore appropriate that Jesus should have such strong desire to eat this supper. The type had now ceased and the great anti-type was due to begin.

Q.--Our Lord’s words, “For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself,” seem to imply that the Son had immortal life while on earth! How then could he really die to redeem the race, as some claim he did?

Answer--In Scripture, events future or in process are often spoken of as already accomplished, because seen by the eye of faith from the Divine standpoint. Conf. Gen. 17:4 with 17:5, and Psa. 4:17; John 17:4 with 19:30. In Luke 2:11 Jesus is called a Savior, and the Anointed Lord, whereas he was not anointed until thirty years later, and could not actually save until, as the Lamb of God, he was slain and resurrected. So then, at this time, Christ was not immortal, but he had been begotten to that life by the Holy Spirit, and thus on Calvary "he poured out his soul unto death," in full assurance of a perfect resurrection or birth, on the third day. If already inherently immortal, he could not die, nor would he have required the mighty power of God to raise him up (1 Cor. 15; Eph. 1:19-22). So with the Christian; he is said to have everlasting life now (John 5:24; 6:47); and to be risen with Christ (Col. 3:1), yet he dies, and these things only become actual in the resurrection at the last day (John 5:29; 6:40; Tit. 1:1-2; Col. 3:4).

Q.--How many times did our Lord show himself in the same body as he had when he showed himself to Thomas in the upper room?

Answer--There is no reason to suppose that Jesus ever showed himself twice in the same body after his resurrection. He laid aside his old human body in death and as his human nature is the corresponding price for Adam's forfeited life and thus the ransom for the world, he will never take it back again. In order to convince his disciples that he who was dead was again alive, it was necessary for him to manifest himself to them by some means. This he did as the angels have done by using a human body for the few moments of his different talks with them. Lest they should get the impression that he was still a human being he used a different body each time, thus proving to them that none of the bodies they saw were really his. "Now the Lord is that spirit" (2 Cor. 3:17) but he assures us "a spirit hath not flesh and blood as ye see me have" (Luke 24:39). "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God" (1 Cor. 15:50); and it is therefore necessary that all who will share in the Divine nature must lay aside the human. We must not only suffer with him but we must also be dead with him if we would reign with him (2 Tim. 2:12).

Q.--Did Paul preach a full Gospel?

Answer--Some who have noticed that the Apostle Paul had nothing whatever to say about torments in reservation for the wicked after death have concluded that he did not preach a full Gospel. He certainly never preached what in recent years has been termed a Gospel sermon. Instead he preached a God of love the God of the Bible. He himself assures us that he did preach the entire Gospel saying, "I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God" (Acts 20:27). The Gospel that he preached was the same Gospel that God himself preached to Abraham saying, "In thee shall all nations be blessed" (Gal. 3:8). Gospel means good tidings. It is surely good tidings that a blessing for each member of the human race awaits the completion of the selection of Abraham's seed. The inspiring hope of God's Word is that "if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal.3:29). The seed is to be not only fleshly, as were Isaac and Jacob, but also spiritual, heavenly. "Thy seed shall be as the stars of heaven and as the sands of the sea shore" (Gen. 22:17), seems to be an allusion to the two seeds. By this division of the seed into two parts there will be not only the invisible and powerful spirit rulers but also earthly representatives and examples for the world. The Church will be invisible during the entire period of its regal power but those who obtained a good report through faith before the High Calling was opened up are to be "princes in all the earth," visible representatives of the perfection which shall be the reward of the obedient during the thousand year judgment day. One prophet describing his resurrection vigor said that his flesh would be "fresher than a child's" (Job 33:25).

Q.--Kindly give us your thought on Mark 10:1-12, especially the portion regarding husband and wife leaving relatives and cleaving to each other.

Answer--Our Lord was not here stating a new thing but merely repeating the instruction that had been given the human race when God placed our first parents in the Garden of Eden. Almost the same words were used in Gen. 2:24. Evidently the meaning is just what is stated in the words. We find that a still deeper meaning is intended, however, in addition to this primary application. The Apostle Paul explains that as the Church is espoused to Christ as a chaste virgin (2 Cor. 11:2), she must needs keep herself pure and unspotted from the world if her heavenly bridegroom will ever acknowledge and receive her. If she were to manifest love for the world and its institutions to such an extent that she would take them into her life, should enter into worldly alliances, accept anyone or any system as her lord and master, she would prove herself unfaithful to her heavenly bridegroom. When these faithful ones have made themselves ready, the marriage will take place (Rev. 19:7-9). The bride will be glorious in person, in adornment and in office (Psa. 45:13), and associated with her glorified Lord she will exercise queenly powers, inviting all the sin-cursed race to turn from their allegiance to the prince of this present world and accept the blessing of life provided by her bridegroom. Now the spirit of this world and its ruler are drawing men deeper and deeper into degradation, farther from the likeness of God; then "the spirit and the bride will say, come. And let him that heareth say, come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Rev. 22:17). Under the leadership of the heavenly hosts the World will progress up the "highway of holiness" and will find the way so plain that the weakest will easily walk therein (Isa. 35:8-10).

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--Can you help me to understand Luke 15:7: "Joy shall be in Heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons which need no repentance." Who are the "just persons"?

Answer--This text is from the parable spoken by our Lord concerning the good shepherd going after his strayed sheep (Luke 15:1-10). The ninety and nine represent the angels and other Heavenly beings who have always been in harmony with God, therefore "just persons who need no repentance." The lost sheep is Adam (and his children in him), who strayed from God and became a sinner, resulting in the entire human race becoming sinners, as stated in Isa. 53:6, "All we, like sheep, have gone astray," and Rom. 3:23, "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." The good shepherd, seeking his sheep, represents Jesus leaving his heavenly glory and coming to earth to redeem mankind. When this is finished and the race of Adam restored, the Scriptures show that there will then be great rejoicing in Heaven (Rev. 5:11-13).

Q.--Please harmonize the following Scriptures: John 6:44, "No man can come to me except the Father which hath sent me draw him," and John 16:6, "No man cometh unto the Father but by me."

Answer--There should be no difficulty in harmonizing these statements, because all the great work of human blessing was formulated in the mind of the great God of Heaven, and he makes it all possible by first drawing the suitable ones to Christ. The first influence of Divine favor is that drawing power which points the sinner to the Sin-bearer, the Lamb of God, for it is to be through him alone that any can come into relationship again with God, for all were estranged from him through the fall. So of those who come to Christ, the present Advocate and future Mediator, whoever desire may consecrate themselves and so be accepted in the Beloved, and eventually be brought back to sonship with God the Church as first-fruits, and then all others who so desire during the reign of blessing.

Q.--What is the meaning of Isa. 53:12 "Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death; and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors”?

Answer--This verse shows that because Jesus died as an offering for sin (John 2:2), therefore Jehovah, the Great “I AM,” would exalt him to a share with himself in the Divine nature, possessing inherent life (John 5:26; Phil. 2:9). Further, that Jesus would share the spoil of his great conquest with those who would be overcomers of the Gospel Age, his joint-heirs the strong (Rev. 3:21). He spoilt Principalities and Powers by his death and resurrection (Col. 2:15), and will eventually spoil Satan’s usurped dominion of the kingdoms of this world by binding him for a thousand years (Rev. 20:1, 2; Matt. 12:28, 29). Then the kingdoms of this world shall become his (Rev. 11:15), and the overcomers the strong will share in his reign of righteousness (2 Tim. 2:12).

Q.--Will you kindly explain Matt. 5:22 “But I say unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment; and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council; but whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of hell fire”?

Answer--To understand this verse, it is necessary to know something of Jewish regulations. “The Court of Judges” had power to judge certain cases of crime, only, and “The High Council,” or “Sanhedrim,” constituted the supreme court to deal with the gravest offences, with power to enforce the extreme penalty death. In some cases, the bodies of very obnoxious criminals were subjected to indignity after death, being denied a decent burial, and were cast with the city refuse into Gehenna (translated “hell fire”) to be consumed. The Lord was pointing out that their interpretation of the Law was far below the real import of it, as viewed by God, and as it shall be enforced under the real kingdom and judges, which theirs only typified. Thus, whoever is “angry” will be amenable to the judges, and whoever says “Raca” (villain) will commit a more serious offence, being dealt with by the High Council, and whoever continues in this sinful course will be in danger of Gehenna second death (hell fire) (Matt. 10:28). It would be hard to imagine a more fitting picture of the odium attaching to the final destruction of the willfully wicked than this Jewish custom of casting the bodies of criminals into the Valley of Hinnom (Gehenna) to be obliterated with the refuse of the city. Force is lent to the symbol when we remember that the Jews had not yet lost sight of the Scriptural hope that they would be restored to the earth in their resurrection and that they intended to thus indicate that they considered the criminal unworthy of a resurrection.

Q.--What is the meaning of the expression: “Upon this rock I will build my Church?” Matt. 16:18.

Answer--The Greek word for Peter is "Petros," and means a stone, and the original word for rock is "petra." The meaning of this passage, therefore, is "Thou art Petros, a stone, and on this petra, rock, I will build my Church." "Petros" is masculine, and petra is feminine. Jesus asked for a confession: Peter gave it in these words—" Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God." And this confession was the rock on which he declared that he would build his church, and against which the gates of hell (hades) should not prevail. The Apostle (1 Cor. 3:11) explains that Jesus Christ (and not Peter) is the only Foundation upon which the true Church or spiritual Temple is to be erected. St. Peter was merely one of the "living stones" (John 1:42; 1 Pet. 2:2-5) of that great Temple, the Church of Christ, which will be made up of many "stones," of which our Lord Jesus is the foundation Rock (1 Cor. 10:4). There is not the slightest reason to suppose that any one will be in this true Church unless he is built upon this foundation rock of faith in Christ as the son of the living God. The test is a severe one. Many think themselves Christians who do not even know what Christ's teachings are and therefore have not even a basis for faith. They do not even know what the foundation is and so surely could not build thereon. Others claim that Jesus is not the Son of God but that he and the Father are the same person. Still farther astray are those who consider the living God as a mere principle.

Q.--In Mark 1:15 we read, "The time is fulfilled, and the Kingdom of God is at hand," while in Matt. 6:10, Jesus taught us to pray for the Kingdom to come. Kindly explain:—(a) In what sense the Kingdom has already come, (b) In what respect it has not yet come, (c) What will be the character of the Kingdom?

Answer—(A) This can only be understood in the sense that those who now accept of Christ recognize his right to reign, and render to him voluntary obedience before he sets up his Kingdom, and consequent justification transfers our allegiance, and we reckon ourselves as subjects of the new king, and citizens of the New Jerusalem. We live by faith in the Kingdom, the world to come. (B) It has not yet come in power and glory. All during this Gospel age it has been in its preparatory stage, the kingdom in embryo. We therefore pray as the Lord taught, that God will establish his kingdom in the earth in power. The promises are that eventually Christ's kingdom shall be from sea to sea, from the river to the ends of the earth, and all nations shall serve and obey him. (C) The Kingdom will be autocratic, but established under strict laws of equity as the prophet Isaiah says, "Judgment will be laid to the line, and righteousness to the plummet." The kingdom shall be under the saints of the Most High. Absolute justice will be maintained, and according to a man's progress in righteousness shall he prosper in the kingdom.

It will not be confined to any one place, its power will be felt everywhere, just as Satan's kingdom at the present time is making its power felt, although not located in any particular spot on the earth.

Q.--Heb. 6:15, speaking of Abraham says, "After he had patiently endured, he obtained the promise." Does not this prove that Abraham received the promise made to him?

Answer--This expression "received the promise" may be used in two different ways. It may mean that a promise is given or that a promise is fulfilled. In this case the reference is evidently to the giving of the promise. It was after Abraham had endured the test of faith in the leaving of his home and journeying to the land the Lord had provided for him that he "received the promise" recorded in Gen. 12:1-3. There can be no doubt that he received this promise, as the statement of the Scripture is a plain one. But it is just as evident that he has never received the fulfillment of that promise, for the climax of its statement is that in him "all the families of the earth shall be blessed." Blind indeed would be the man that could suppose the families of the earth had ever yet been blessed in Abraham. Nor has he ever received the land promised him; it never became his full possession (Acts 7:5). The fulfillment of the promise in all its features awaits the resurrection. Abraham and his fleshly seed are to be brought from their graves and returned to the land of Palestine, as we read, "O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel" (Ezek. 37:12). Then will begin the fulfillment of the other portion of the promise. Gradually the blessings of restored life will spread until the farthest bounds of earth shall have been reached. An illustration of the two uses of this expression is found in Heb. 11, verses 17 and 39.

FIRST BATTLE OF ARMAGEDDON WHERE AND HOW IT WAS FOUGHT

We have heretofore pointed out that the great antitypical Battle of Armageddon will quickly follow the present world-war. Today's Study relates to the first of the great battles in the Valley of Megiddo, noted for its many slaughters, and therefore made the basis of Divine prediction respecting the "Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation," which will precede and prepare the way for Messiah's glorious Rule of a thousand years.

The Israelites, guilty of idolatry, had, according to God's Covenant with them, been chastened by the permitting of their enemies to vanquish them. General Sisera, of the Canaanites, having humbled the Israelites of North Palestine for years, started southward with a large army, intent upon victories. The strength of his army is shown in the statement that it contained nine hundred iron chariots.

When he had gotten as far southward as the Valley of Megiddo, messengers reached him, informing him that Barak, a leader amongst the Israelites, was coming southward with an army of ten thousand Israelites. Under Divine guidance Barak made Mt. Tabor his army base later known as the Mount of Transfiguration, where Messiah's coming Kingdom was represented in a vision. 2 Peter 1:16-21.

General Sisera advanced with his army on both sides of the River Kishon. Then the word of the Lord directed General Barak to advance against the Canaanites. Sisera's army was discomfited and scattered. A great cloud-burst swelled the river, making quagmires of the lower valleys, rendering useless Sisera's chariots. His soldiers, fleeing for their lives, were cut down by the Israelites, while other thousands were swept by the freshets down to the sea.

This interference of God on behalf of His people is figuratively styled the fighting of the stars of heaven against Sisera's army. Similarly, in the great Armageddon near at hand, it will not be human might that will prevail, but the hosts of humanity will effect the complete disruption of the Present Order of things; for every man's hand shall be against his brother and his neighbor. (Ezekiel 38:21; Zechariah 14:13.) It is the cloud-burst of Truth and the rising waters of knowledge which are bringing to pass this great human catastrophe which the Lord will overrule for the world's blessing.

THE POWER OF A FAITHFUL WOMEN

Although the Lord has usually been pleased to use men in connection with His work, not only as typical characters, but also as evangels of the Gospel, nevertheless, Scriptures picture noble women who, because of delinquency of men, have been almost forced into public service by God's providence. Notable amongst such is Mrs. Deborah. She perceived no neglect of the Divine Law had resulted in the captivity of her people, and that what was needed was a guide to point the people back to God.

The Canaanites, whom they had not conquered, had conquered Israel. This conquest, permitted of God, had its insidious start when the Israelites, neglecting the Divine direction to live separate from all other peoples, had begun to intermarry with the Canaanites. These had enticed their husbands and their children to worship the heathen gods. Apparently many Israelites who had not gone over to idolatry had nearly lost their knowledge and appreciation of the true God.

In the dark hour of Israel's oppression, the princes of the tribes seemed to lack patriotism, as well as faith in God. Each tribe was a separate state, and there was no cohesion between them the Divinely intended bond of union, the true religion, having relaxed. About this time the Lord, seeking a channel through which to be gracious to His people, found that channel in a woman Deborah. She realized the situation more keenly than others, probably because more deeply consecrated to God. She moved from her home in the northern part to a central place in the Highlands of Ephraim. From there she sent encouraging, stimulating messages to the chief men of the various tribes.

Deborah was respected, her counsel appreciated, and her advice sought. In this sense she judged admonished guided Israel. She is styled a prophetess. This might mean either a public teacher or one through whom the Lord send special messages. Some things connected with the story indicate the latter.

When Sisera's army had proceeded southward to Megiddo, Deborah sent word to Barak, a leader in her tribe Naphtali to march immediately to battle with ten thousand Israelites. Barak refused unless she would cooperate. She agreed to do so, forewarning him, however, that thus he would miss a part of his blessing by reason of his lack of courage. Thus it was that when the army moved to Mt. Tabor, it was under General Barak's command, but a woman was God's agent in directing the battle which brought such signal victory.

WAS THE WAR JUSTIFIED?--MRS. Jael

General Sisera's chariots stuck in the mire; his army defeated, he fled afoot with others, only to be overtaken by the victors. Entering a supposedly hospitable tent, he hid himself and fell asleep. His hostess improved the opportunity and drove a tent-pin through his temple. The act has been denounced as a breach of hospitality; but others have defended it on the ground that the custom still among the Arabs of Palestine is that any man intruding into a woman's tent is worthy of death. Let us remember that Jael was not a Christian woman, not begotten of the Holy Spirit, not taught in the School of Christ; and that whatever may be said of her would have no bearing in respect to Christians, who are under the new Law of the Spirit of Christ the Law of Love.

Incidentally, let us remember that no Jew stood in the same relationship to God and His purposes that the true Christians occupy. The Jews warfare typifies our warfare as New Creatures against the weaknesses and appetites of our flesh. Let us remember also that the death of Sisera and his army did not precipitate them into a hell of eternal torture, but merely was the way by which they were 'gathered to their fathers'—"slept with their fathers." They have known nothing since, and will know nothing until the time of their awakening, which God has so graciously timed that it will be after Messiah shall have taken possession of the world, and by the establishment of His Kingdom shall have overthrown the Kingdom of Satan and the reign of Sin and Death. Like the remainder of mankind, Sisera and his army will then come forth, as a result of the redemptive work of Jesus, finished at Calvary.

Only those who have heard Christ, have accepted Him and have been begotten of the Holy Spirit as New Creatures only these are on trial now. The trial of all the remainder of the world is future.

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--If the command of Christ was to "Believe and be baptised" what will be the position of those who believe and are not baptised?

Answer--The Gospel call is an invitation; neither our Lord nor the Apostles commanded men to "believe and be baptised." The Gospel is proclaimed in all the earth as a witness (Matt. 24:14) during the present age. Many are drawn to the Savior as a result but few go on to make a full consecration to the Lord as exhorted to do in Rom. 12:1, 2. Those who do thus respond are baptised into Jesus Christ's death and into the Holy Spirit with which he was anointed. Thus they suffer with him now, in order that they may reign with him in the next age when he returns to bless all the families of the earth the living and the dead the good and the bad, for he gave his life "a ransom for all." This baptism into death (Rom. 6:3, 4) is the real one, of which water baptism is merely the symbol. Only such as the Father calls may participate. They are to constitute the Bride of the Lamb. When this Bride class is completed this baptism into death will cease, and the earthly restitution blessings will begin (Acts 3:21).

Q.--Eccl. 12:7 reads, "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it." Will you please explain what the spirit is, as this passage is used to contradict Pastor Russell's view of death, which I know is right but cannot explain.

Answer--As far as we understand Pastor Russell's position, it seems to be quite in harmony with this text and the general teaching of the Scriptures on this subject. The wise man very plainly sets forth the same thought in Eccl. 3:19-21, but the force of his statement is lost through a mistranslation in the King James Version. The Revised Version has corrected the matter.

The 21st verse should read “who knoweth that the spirit of a man goeth upward and the spirit of the beast goeth downward.” Evidently even in the days of Solomon there were some who were becoming confused as to the nature of man and were making the false claim that man has some mystical portion which does not die and that when man seems to die he is really more alive than ever. All the evidence corroborates the wise man’s statement—“that which befalleth man befalleth beasts; yea they have all one spirit (mistranslated breath) so that (in the matter of death) man hath no preeminence above a beast.” Man’s preeminence consists not in his having a different kind of soul or spirit from the beast but in the fact that God has seen fit to provide for him a means of awakening from his death sleep. When one dies the spirit of life returns to God’s keeping in the sense that it remains under his power and awaits the announcement of his will to be restored to the dead one. The man dies and remains dead until his life is restored to him.

Q.--Will you kindly explain Eccl. 3:19-20? “For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them; as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no pre-eminence above a beast; for all is vanity. All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again.” Do men die like the beasts?

Answer--From this passage it would appear that in some things man is no different from beasts. This seems very humbling to all who are not prepared to accept the Scriptural statements as the only authority on eschatology. Solomon, the wise man, was certainly in advance of the wise men of the present day. Our theology of today teaches that man is different from the beast in that the beast dies and ceases to exist, but that man does not cease to exist at death. On the contrary, popular theology declares that man becomes more alive after than he was prior to his decease. Solomon asserts that this view is without foundation in the word of God. It is not consistent with facts, nor is it in harmony with common sense. In verse 21 of this chapter he challenges the teaching that the spirit of man goes upward and the spirit of the beast goes downward. Verse 20 positively states that all go to the same place. Now we cannot think for a moment that the beasts go to heaven or to a place of torment; but we do know that they go to the death condition; and this is the state to which man goes also. This is in harmony with Gen. 3:19, where the sentence upon Adam was “Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.” The one thing which befalls man and beast is death. All are dependent on the same air that we breathe and both are alike subject to death under similar conditions. Man, however, is superior to the beast in that he has been provided with a finer organism and in that he has thinking and reasoning powers which the beast does not possess. In addition to this, man has been guaranteed a resurrection from the dead, because of the fact that Jesus has tasted death for every man (Heb. 2:9). Not until the Church is all selected and prepared to rule over the world will the blessing of life be given man.

Q.--If God is omniscient, knowing the end from the beginning, how could he repent of his course in creating man?" See Gen. 6:6.

Answer--The word "repent" means "to change the mind, or course of conduct, on account of regret or dissatisfaction with what has occurred." The question then is, did God change his mind (plan), or was it his course of conduct? We claim that, knowing the end from the beginning, God's mind could not be changed; hence "repent" in this text must signify change of conduct. That is, God did change his course of dealing with man because of man's wickedness, which grieved him, but he did not change his mind or plans, because these plans had from the very first recognized the corrupting and degrading tendency of sin, and provided (in purpose of mind) the Lamb of God—" slain from the foundation of the world" as the redemption price (Rev. 13:8; 17:8).

Q.--Please explain Rom. 8:19-22.

Answer--Verse 20 shows that the whole human race was brought into a condition of depravity, condemnation, without being consulted, as expressed previously in Rom. 5:12. The reason God adopted this method was that he might have mercy upon all through the ransom sacrifice of Jesus (1 Tim. 2:6; Rom. 5:18). In view of this, God subjected the creation in Hope. Verse 21 shows that the creation is to be made free from this environment and heredity of decay which binds all, and given an opportunity of entering into that glorious freedom which the saints are experiencing by faith during this age. The human race is still groaning and travailing in pain (verse 22), and we understand that these conditions will remain until the selection of the Church is completed, and she is glorified and made like her Lord. In the meantime, as verse 19 declares, the creation is earnestly, though vaguely, expecting and waiting for the manifestation of these sons of God the Church or the seed of Abraham, who are to bless all the families of the earth. (See Gen. 28:14; Gal. 3:16, 29).

Q.--Would you kindly explain John 7:51:"Verily, verily I say unto you, if a man keep my saying he shall not see death."

Answer--The Scriptures speak of the complete and final end of all willful sinners those who sin against full light and knowledge as the second death. But the sorrowing and death conditions which the race experience now through Adam's sin are conditions which are to be graciously offset by the sacrifice of the great Redeemer "who gave himself a ransom for all." To all believers the "sayings" commands, and instructions of the Lord are of more import than daily food. Jesus said, "The words that I speak unto you they are spirit and they are life" (see Matt. 4:4). In God's reckoning, the consecrated believer passes from "death to life,” because of faith in the Ransom sacrifice, and, if obedient to the will of God in Christ, shall not see death, in the absolute sense. Such only fall asleep in Christ (1 Cor. 15:18), waiting to be awakened in the resurrection.

“The overcomers shall not be hurt in the second death.” Abraham gladly accepted the Divine promises, and by faith saw the day of Christ (the great millennial day) and was glad, because to him it was the hope of life.

Q.--Can you tell me what is the unpardonable sin referred to in the Bible?

Answer--The unpardonable sin is a sin which God declines to pardon or forgive a sin, therefore, which must be punished, must be expiated by the sinner. There may be said to be different degrees of unpardonable sin, however. An unpardonable sin is one that is committed against light and knowledge. All sins of weakness and ignorance are pardonable, because God has made provision for the forgiveness of these through the death of Christ. Since all of our weakness and ignorance came to us through the fault of our first parents, and since Jesus redeemed the world from the penalty of that transgression, therefore, every sin attributed to it alone is a pardonable sin. There are, however, what might be termed mixed sins, in which a measure of willfulness, knowledge, and intelligence combine with a certain measure of ignorance and weakness. For such sins there would be forgiveness to the extent of the weakness and ignorance, but punishment would be required to the extent of the knowledge and willfulness. A willful sin against clear light would bring the sinner under the sentence of that sin; namely the Second Death. Thus all sins traceable to the weaknesses inherited from Adam because of his fall are forgivable through the merit of Christ. This is effective now to those who believe on him, but in addition to this we have the assurance that he “gave himself a ransom for all to be testified in due time” (1 Tim. 2:5). Not so many have yet had an opportunity to exercise faith as we might suppose, for frequently the Jesus that has been preached has not been the Jesus of the Bible.

GIVING UP WHOLLY TO GOD’S WILL AND SERVICE

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 17 Pastor Russell preached here today at Macauley’s Theater twice to splendid audiences. We report one of his able discourses from the text, “Present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, and your reasonable service.” Rom. 12:1

Speaking with great earnestness, the Pastor declared that he repeatedly meets with people inquiring for the Bread of Life. These seem to know that there is something radically wrong with the preaching of the nominal churches. They tell that they are importuned for money; but that when they ask for soul-food they meet with evasion and subterfuge from many of the great and learned, who appear to have lost sight of the Bible and heart-conversion.

Or, on the other hand, they are met by the Salvation Army, with traditions as indigestible as a stone, to anybody of ordinary intelligence. They are told with all seriousness that God created our race, with knowledge and intention that nearly all of them would spend eternity in torture. They are told that to be saved from that awful fate they should become Salvationists, and storm the slums for Jesus. Their experiences remind one of Jesus' words respecting a father who, asked for bread, would give his son a stone; who, asked for fish, would give him a serpent.

The Pastor hoped that some of these hungry souls were present in his audience. He proposed to give them no human theories or speculations nor would he compromise the Truth nor dodge the question. He would endeavor to make the way to God so plain that a wayfaring man need not err therein; and he would do this by presenting God's arrangement and quoting God's own Word.

WHERE ETERNAL TORTURE ERROR LEADS

No doubt those who invented the theory of eternal torture thought that they were taking the proper steps to drive the whole human family to God. But, on the contrary, it seems to drive away from God and the Bible the most intelligent people of every land, who have naturally a more reasonable and just conception of the Creator than the one presented in the church creeds. Instinctively they are repelled with the thought that the Creator would pursue a course which would be beneath the most degraded.

Undoubtedly the Bible is true in declaring such fallacies "doctrines of demons." (1 Tim. 4:1) From this Bible viewpoint we can see that it was a master stroke on the part of Satan and his subordinates to misrepresent the teachings of the Bible, so as to repel those who might be "feeling after God" and desiring to draw near to Him. Acts 17:27

TRUTH-TELLING PROVOKES THE CLERGY

To tell the truth to the people, even on so simple a subject, means the angering of the clergy: Why, do you ask? Because it proves them to be in the wrong, and proves that they have not been feeding the people with the Bread of Heaven. Instead of building up the House of God, the Church, they have been building meeting-houses seeking for numbers and popularity rather than to instruct the people in God's Word. Remarkably few church members of any denomination know what they believe. They give evidence that, if Christians at all, they are the merest babes in Christ. None is able to judge another's heart, but all should be able to judge of each other's lives fruits. "By their fruits ye shall know them," said the Master. Matt. 7:20

If the majority of Christians have the fruits of the holy Spirit, they keep them hidden; and surely many of them manifest the fruits of the Evil Spirit—"anger, malice," etc. the Apostles style works of the flesh and of the Devil. Eph. 4:31; Gal. 5:19-21; 1 John 3:8

We would not be misunderstood; we are not complaining that there are not nice people connected with all the churches. On the contrary, we compliment them on their education, their refinement, their wealth, their influence. Moreover, we compliment them on their humanitarian sympathies, as represented in hospitals, asylums and other benevolences. But all these things are shared evenly by people who are not members of churches. A participation in good works is by no means a proof that one is a Christian. A Christian is a person who has come into a very special relationship to God through Christ; and this relationship exists not in respect to education, wealth, color or sex.

With the popularizing of Christianity came such a modification of teachings as invited all decent worldly people into the Church, and made them think that they were consecrated saints of God and heirs of the blessings promised in the Scriptures. By inference, rather than by direct statement, the theory has gone forth that the penalty for sin will be visited only upon those who neglect to say, "God forgive me," a few moments before they die. Notwithstanding the plain statements of the creeds, every funeral discourse lands the dead in Heaven, so far as the auditors can understand. A misinterpretation of the Savior's words to the dying thief is made the basis for this absurdity.

Let me say, then, with all kindness toward those who are deceiving themselves and others, that the vast majority of church members and of preachers are not Christians at all, according to the Bible standards. This does not mean that the Bible condemns them to eternal torment. Thank God, no! It does mean, however, that these self-deceived ones will have neither part nor lot in the wonderful blessing provided for God's elect Church. It means, further, that God's Church is separate from all human institutions; and that only saintly persons, regardless of denominational lines, are member of the true Church, "whose names are written in Heaven."

SURRENDER SELF-SACRIFICE TO GOD

According to the Bible, no human being is fit for Divine fellowship or eternal life. The reason is given that all are sinners. The explanation of the sin is that it was committed by Father Adam when he was perfect, in God's image; and that, cut off from God, the race deteriorated, passing imperfections of mind, morals and body from parent to child. (Psa. 51:5) Imperfect beings would be quite out of place amongst the perfect; and so long as imperfection continues, sin will continue, and with it, necessarily, sorrow, pain and death, sin's consequences.

God declares His sympathy for the sinner, and that He has made provision for man's recovery from his present deplorable state. Not only so, but a time has been set for the recovery; and the Bible tells us how it will be accomplished by Messiah and His Millennial Kingdom. We pray, "Thy Kingdom come," not with the thought that God will neglect His promise to establish that Kingdom, but by way of giving acknowledgment to the fact that that Kingdom is the hope of the world and of the Church.

The Church's hope in the Kingdom is that of becoming sharers with Christ in the glory, honor and work of that Kingdom for the blessing and uplifting of humanity out of sin and death. There is no attempt being made at the present time on God's part to convert the world. Few now hear the Gospel Message, and still fewer believe it. They are deluded by the Adversary into thinking that God has been trying to convert the world for six thousand years and has been making a miserable failure of it all along; and that wherever is done, we must do for ourselves. Thus has unbelief been cultivated, and trust in God and in the teachings of the Bible thrust aside.

Nevertheless, the Lord declares, "My Word that has gone forth out of My mouth shall not return unto Me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." (Isa. 55:11) God's Word was sent forth to invite a very special class of humanity a class loving righteousness and hating iniquity, weary and heavy-laden with sin, ignorance and superstition, and desirous of coming back into harmony with God and being blessed of Him.

For nearly nineteen centuries the Message has been going hither and thither, quietly, unostentatiously. The world and the nominal churches would say that it had accomplished nothing that everything great had been accomplished by them. But we prefer to stand by the Bible and to recognize that God's consecrated ones have indeed lifted up a light which the world has hated a light on account of which they have frequently been put to death, or have had "their names cast out as evil,; or have been boycotted, socially or otherwise.

If their hopes were merely in the present life, these would be making a miserable failure of their opportunities. But not so; they are waiting for their reward in the future at the Second Coming of Jesus by a share in the First Resurrection. And even now their joy, peace and fellowship with God more than offset all their trials, difficulties and ostracism. Besides, "To them it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of God," which to all others are parables and dark sayings, hard to be understood.

SHEPHERD'S VOICE, "COME UNTO ME"

The trials and difficulties of life pressing many today are giving them a hearing ear for the Great Shepherd's words, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest." He does not say, "Go to the Luthern Church; go to the Presbyterian Church; go to the Methodist Church; go to the Roman Catholic Church;" He says, "Come unto Me."

It is the privilege of whoever hears this Message to go immediately to the Lord direct. True, he cannot go to the Heavenly Father direct; for as we read, "God heareth not sinners." But he can go to Jesus, because Him hath God set forth to be our Savior, our Redeemer. Thus Jesus said, "No man cometh untho the Father but by Me." (John 14:6) He did not say, "No man can come unto Me except through a preacher, or a priest, or a bishop, or a pope" He made the way simple for whosoever desires to come.

But when we desire to come to the Father, and learn that we must come through Jesus, what shall we say to Him? We have only one alternative; namely, to ask Him upon what terms He will introduce us to the Heavenly Father, and thus bring us back from the condition of condemnation into the family of God. When we suggest that Jesus would raise conditions, the proposition seems astounding to some. They have somehow gotten the impression that the Heavenly Father and Jesus are in great distress because so few people desire to become members of the Church; and that they would be ready to receive anything and anybody on any terms, simply to have another name added. How absurd this is, when we come to think of it.

We call to mind the teaching of the Master. He did not say, "So many of you as wish to hit the sawdust trail can go to Heaven!" He did not say, "Seek to excite the people and get them to do something that they would not afterward fully understand and appreciate." He did the reverse; He said, "sit down first and count the cost," before complying with the terms of discipleship. And so He still says to all who come to Him, "Sit down and count the cost." Do nothing rashly.

Some of us can count more rapidly than others. Many of the poor ones who are weary and heavy-laden through sin are ready to say, "I know the cost of sin in my personal experiences. The cost of being disciples of Jesus cannot be greater than the cost of being rebels against the Divine Law.” Such are frequently ready to decide quickly and take their stand firmly on the Lord’s side. Others are like the rich young man who came to Jesus, saying, “What good thing can I do that I may inherit eternal life? I have kept the Law from my youth up. What lack I yet?” Matt. 19:16-20

There are few today like that young man, of whom we read, “Jesus, beholding him, loved him.” And we may be sure that Jesus still loves those who are striving hard to live right, righteous lives. But this class has the harder struggle. They think they have done everything that they ought to do, or at least everything that the Lord would have them do. But Jesus says, No. To that young man He said, “Go sell what you have, and give to the poor; and come, take up your cross and follow Me.” Again He said, “If any man will be My disciple, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me, and where I am, there shall My disciple be.”

To be a disciple of Christ is to be a follower, a pupil one who walks as He walked. The proposition is self-denial, self-effacement. It means giving one’s self wholly to God, as in our text, “Present your bodies a living sacrifice, wholly, acceptable to God, your reasonable service.” No one need go far to make this consecration. Each, at his own bedside, can give his little all to God, through Christ.

HOW TO BECOME A CHRISTIAN

It should not require long to count how much more we shall receive than we give. We give a condemned and dying existence; we give mental, moral and physical imperfections we have no more except as our Savior, by imputing His merit, makes our sacrifice of value in God’s sight. But in exchange we receive riches of grace in the present life peace, joy, blessing of heart, which the world can neither give nor take away and in the life to come, “glory, honor, and immortality,” joint-heirship with our Savior in the Heavenly Kingdom which shall dominate the world for the thousand years, for its blessing and uplift.

Really, after counting the cost, there is a danger that we would feel so ashamed of the littleness of our offering that we would fear to come to the Lord with it. We gain courage to present our bodies only by a knowledge of the Lord’s Word, and a realization of the mercy and favor which has prompted His kind invitation for an exchange of something of little value for great things of inestimable value. But unless we take this very step and definitely and positively enter into a contract with the Lord, we have neither part nor lot with Him. We are still of the world, however much we may try to pattern our lives after decent models and to avoid the grouser and the finer sins. The covenant with the Lord is the beginning, and to each covenanter comes “grace to help in every time of need;” as Jesus said, “Without Me ye can do nothing.”

But, says one, Surely this is not the only way of coming into God’s family! Yea, we answer, it is the only way. “There is none other Name given under Heaven or amongst men whereby we must be saved” from our condition of condemnation, and be brought back into the family of God. Jesus Himself makes the distinctive terms that we must become His full disciples in order to have this blessed privilege of discipleship.

Have you ever heard the limitations and obligations of the Christian so Scripturally defined before? Have not the facts been hidden from you by the clergy? Have they not rather sought to set aside the words of Jesus because they conflict with their theories? Is not this really why so many have been unable to find the satisfying “meat in due season” in the nominal churches? We believe it is; and we urge all ministers, everybody to return to the Bible simplicity of a fully consecrated Church of Christ. His elect Bride class, and then a restitutionary blessing for mankind through Christ’s Millennial Kingdom.

The blessing upon the world will be earthly restitution to human nature, instead of a change to the Divine nature, as promised to the Church. All who refuse both the Call of the present time and the opportunity of the future Restitution will die the Second Death, which St. Peter describes as like that of the natural brute beast. Acts 3:19, 23; 2 Pet. 2:12

HELL AND BACK IN THE BIBLE WAY

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 24 Pastor Russell preached here today at the Academy of Music. His topic was seemingly a sensational one; but before he concluded the audience agreed that he was strictly unsensational. His Text was, “Thou wilt not leave My soul in Hell.” Psa. 16:10; Acts 2:27

The Pastor declared that the Bible Hell is a very reasonable one, but that the theological Hell is most unreasonable, as all must agree. The theological Hell is a red-hot furnace, manned with fireproof devils, and containing practically all of the human family who ever lived, except the comparatively few saints. This Hell is the common property of Catholics and Protestants, but the speaker wants none of it. He pronounced it an absurdity, wholly contradictory to the Bible; and he seemed to prove his points well in the estimation of nearly all his audience.

He remarked that it seemed that each preacher felt he had a right to make a Hell for non-church members according to his own conception. None seemed to think it necessary to go to the Bible. He declared that fire is used in the New Testament as a symbol of destruction, an illustration of how all the willfully wicked God will destroy eventually. People know something about fiery trials and about heaping coals of fire upon the heads of their enemies figuratively. But whenever the word fire occurs in any connection where it can be twisted into signifying eternal torment, those who love that kind of punishment for their enemies are swift to take advantage of it. Eternal torment is the just, the loving thing to give to all the heathen who never heard of Christ, to all the poor, ignorant and degraded who, born in sin, in weakness, find themselves discouraged and overwhelmed by the Adversary to all but church members. 2 Cor. 4:4

This kind of thing has gone on so long that everybody gradually came to believe it, and remarkably few have inquired as to its scripturalness. Many sensible people hold aloof from religion entirely, unwilling to confess themselves believer of such a doctrine or worshippers of such a God.

HELLS GALORE MODERN THEOLOGY

But now we have variations to suit our more refined feelings. Ministers, without denying their authority tell various tales about Hell. Some have it with a slower fire, not so red-hot; others have it merely a place of mental remorse. They do not call the place Purgatory, or admit that there will ever be any release from it. They say that there is nothing in the Bible about Purgatory, and forget that there is nothing in the Bible about their kind of Hell.

According to the Catholic doctrine, all Catholics go to Purgatory, to be purified and fitted for Heaven; and they rejoice in that this torture is less than eternal torture reserved for others. From their viewpoint, happy is the man, the woman, the child, that through baptism, holy water, holy candles, the mass, and Extreme Unction, gets into Purgatory, for he may be helped out of it by further masses, etc.

We think this far better than the Protestant theory, but we leave it, said the Pastor, for those who like it. We notice, however, that very few seem to like it for themselves, nearly all prefer these tortures for their opponents. If any one is happy in these beliefs the Pastor does not wish to disturb his serenity. He was merely addressing the growing multitude who are looking for a better God and a better future than is held out by any of the creeds of the Dark Ages. Others should not read his sermons, he said, or come to hear him.

When once the human mind has become settled upon certain convictions, no matter how foolish, it seems able to find support for its delusions, continued the speaker. Thus one of our Lord's parables has been seized upon to prove that Hell is a place of torture, parched tongues, etc. We cannot here discuss this parable; we must confine ourselves to our subject. But we offer free of charge a booklet which we have written with a view to making these figurative statements clear. Whoever will address me Pastor Russell, Brooklyn, N. Y. requesting a copy of a pamphlet about Hell will be promptly served. That pamphlet will settle all your questions on this subject. I take pleasure in giving it away free, because I know the joy, the blessing, the relief to many honest, earnest hearts. I know that many after reading are enabled to love worship and serve the great God of Love heartily, intelligently, as never before.

WHERE IS HELL--WHO ARE THERE

Our English word Hell comes to us from the German language hochle, signifying a hole. It is, therefore, a very good translation for the Hebrew word Sheol, which signifies a pit, a hole, a grave. The New Testament Greek gives us Hades as the exact equivalent of Sheol. Whenever Sheol is translated into the New Testament Greek, the word used is Hades. The Psalmist wrote, "Thou wilt not leave My soul in sheol (hell the grave), and St. Peter translates it, "Thou wilt not leave my soul in Hades" hell the grave.

St. Peter tells us that these words were not true respecting the Prophet David, who used them, that he is still in Hell, Sheol, Hades. The Prophet David had not yet been resurrected out of the grave condition. St. Peter explains that the words were a prophecy relating to Christ's resurrection that God raised Jesus from the dead on the third day. There is not a shred of authority anywhere for the absurd statement sometimes made by cornered clergymen, that "Paradise is on one side of the creek, and Hades on the other." The Bible tells of a Paradise, but it is future. It tells of Hades, the state of the dead, but it is present, and is to be destroyed in the future. The destruction of Sheol, Hades, the grave; by resurrection, will progress during the thousand years of Christ's reign.

GOOD, BAD, RICH, POOR, IN HELL

At a time when the Bible was not in the hands of the people, and not considered necessary, because they had the creeds, various errors spread. Both Catholics and Protestants helped to spread them, and no doubt many were deceived into believing all that they said. We are not charging them all with hypocrisy, but with error. The Bible does not tell about any going to Heaven at death, but it does tell that all, good and bad, go to Hell at death; that King David went to Hell, and is still there. Note the Apostle Peter's words, "David is not ascended into the Heaven." (Acts 2:29, 34) David was not one of the elect Church. He was never called to the Heavenly Calling. He was not a follower of Christ, for he lived centuries before. His resurrection will be to human, earthly nature; and his reward will be to share in that restored Paradise, which will eventually be world-wide.

We remind our hearers that the Bible history of four thousand years and more, has no reference to any other Hell than Sheol. We remind you that although our Bible was translated by people who believed in a fiery Hell, they were unable to translate quite half of the occurrences of the word Sheol by our English word hell. They were obliged to translate the majority as grave or pit. They should have made no exception; in every case the word should have been rendered grave, or pit, that is its meaning.

Jesus was raised up out of Sheol, Hades, the tomb. And there was another person brought back, Jonah, who the Lord declared was typical of Himself. Jonah's three days in the belly of the fish, corresponding to our Lord's three days in Hell, Hades, the grave. The resurrection of Jesus was represented also in Jonah's experiences; for on the third day the great fish vomited him forth on dry land. Jonah, describing his experiences, said "Out of the belly of Hell cried I and Thou hearest my voice." He was rescued from the belly of the fish, which was his Hell or grave.

The Bible is very explicit in declaring that all really die, not merely seem to die, and that there would be no future life whatever for mankind without a resurrection. God has provided for a resurrection in Christ, who died for our sins. St. Paul declares, if there be not a resurrection of the dead, all of our Christian faith and hope are perished; we have nothing to live for. But he assures us that Christ has died and risen. Therefore, ultimately, all will be delivered from the power of Sheol, Hades, the grave. Isa. 26:19; Hos. 13:14; Rev. 20:14

A few were awakened in olden times merely to relapse into death again. It was not possible that any could be fully recovered until Christ first had provided the Redemption-price for man. God tells us that in His Purpose He had provide Jesus as "the Lamb of God" before the foundation of the world.

GATHERED TO THEIR FATHERS ASLEEP

Of both the good and the bad we read that they were gathered to their fathers. Their fathers were not in Heaven, for that is not a sleeping place. They were not in the fiery Hell of orthodoxy, and the creeds of the Dark Ages; for they were not imagined. They did not sleep in a Catholic Purgatory for the same reason. But they slept, and are sleeping still, and will continue to sleep until they are awakened.

This thought is given in the New Testament as well as the Old. Jesus said that Lazarus slept, and He awakened the daughter of Jairus from the sleep. St. Paul declared that all the Church would sleep, except those who would be alive at the time of Christ's Second Coming. It is from this viewpoint that the great work of Christ and His Millennial Kingdom is described specifically an awakening of the sleeping dead. 1 Cor. 15:20-23

In the Old Testament, Sheol is described as a great prison house into which the people have gone and out of which none could make his way to liberty from death. Our Lord also told that He will unlock Hades, Sheol, the tomb, and deliver the prisoners, He tells us that He "has the Keys of Death and of Hades." He got the Key, or authority, or power to open the grave, to give a resurrection to the whole world at the cost of His life, which He freely sacrificed, dying "the Just for the unjust," "tasting death for every man."

COMING BACK FROM SHEOL, FROM HADES, FROM HELL

The Scriptures declare of the Church of Christ, "The gates of Hell shall not prevail against thee." Christ is stronger than the power of death and He has met the death penalty that was against us. He has redeemed His Church. He will deliver us early in the Morning of the New Dispensation.

And that is only part of the wonderful story. The Apostle declares that THE Christ will be the Firstfruits, Jesus the Head, and the Church His Body. Afterward will be those who become Christ's during His Presence. His Presence will last for the thousand years; as King over all the earth, and as the Priest to bless. He will be a Priest upon His Throne, to deliver from the power of sin and death, all who wish to return to harmony with God. Hallelujah! What a Savior!

The result of these Thousand years will be not merely for the awakening of the sleepers, but subsequently their raising up mentally, morally, physically, to full perfection of human nature, from which they fell in Father Adam's disobedience. When all the willfully wicked shall have been destroyed in the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery, no resurrection. Then shall it be brought to pass saying, "It is written, "Death is swallowed up in victory. O, Death, where is thy sting? O, Hades (grave), where is thy victory?"

The grave indeed has a victory now over all mankind; but ultimately the Redeemer will have the victory, during the thousand years of His Reign. He will deliver all from the power of the present death, and only the willfully wicked shall die the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery.

It fills our hearts with joy to think of the poor world's return from the prison-house of death and from their weaknesses and imperfections. With the eye of faith, looking through the telescope of God's Word, we see in the near future, thank God!

the binding of Satan, the awakening of the sleepers, the blessing of the whole world, the uplifting of all the willing and obedient. We see them coming back to full physical power, to full mental vigor, to full moral tone the image and likeness of God, lost in Eden, redeemed for all at Calvary.

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--How can we reconcile with the love and justice of God the selection of only the consecrated believers of the Gospel age to be the bride of Christ, and not the overcomers of all ages?

Answer--To those who for many years have been under the impression that all the human family will be saved to the same plane, it is natural that the "diversity" (see Eph. 3:10, 11 Diaglott) of God's creation should be difficult to receive. But this does not alter God's plan. The attitude of our hearts should be that of hearty acquiescence in what we see to be taught in God's Word; and we must ever remember the Apostle's words, "Who are thou that repliest against God?" "Hath not the potter power over the clay to make one vessel unto honor and another vessel unto less honor?"

What if the fish should say that it is unjust for them to be confined to the waters? What if the birds should object to their environment and wish to be as the fleet-footed hare or the graceful deer? What if the king of the forest should insist that it is unjust that he was not made man? What confusion there would be in creation! Is it more consistent for men to wish to be angels, when God never intended them to be such? Then why, since God has invited only a special few to be heirs of the Kingdom, should it be taken as a slight to others of mankind not to be invited? God has not arranged to injure any of his creatures. He has blessings in store for them all, but he reserves the right to bestow upon each one such a blessing as his wisdom dictates. All that we have is of grace. We have merited nothing of ourselves.

Q.--Has the Devil a personal bodily presence aside from the power and influence which he exerts? And has he a central seat of government where he resides? If so, where is the account in the Scriptures?

Answer--There can be no personality without a body. "There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body" (1 Cor. 15:44). All of God's angels have bodies. Satan was originally one of these angels until he was cast down from his angelic position (Isa. 14:12, 18) because of his original lie through which he became the murderer of our race (John 8:44). He is now the prince or ruler of this world, proven worthy of eternal destruction (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14) which will overtake him at the close of Christ's mediatorial reign (Rev. 20:9, 10). During that thousand years Satan is to be bound, and will be loosed at the end of it, not for the purpose of discovering whether he is reformed but to test the human race which by that time will have attained perfection of human organism and be fully able to withstand Satan's wiles. Many have supposed that Satan's seat of government is an undiscovered "hell." This is an error for Isaiah (14:15) plainly states that his ultimate end will be in hell. He has never been there yet. Jesus is the one who went to hell (Acts 2:27, 31). To be brought down to hell means to go into death. Satan with the rest of the angels has been confined within earth's atmosphere since his deflection, and here has been his seat of government. A mistranslation in 2 Pet. 2:4 has caused much misunderstanding on this subject.

Q.—“And I will pray the Father and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever” (St. John 14:16). What was the Comforter before “another comforter” came?

Answer--The promise which you quote is one of the very precious ones of holy writ. For three and one half years Jesus had been the helper, the comforter of his disciples. During most of that time they had been daily with him and had realized the wonderful blessings of his protecting care and the comfort of his instruction in the Word of truth. It was with consternation that they received from his lips the intimations that he would leave them soon. They felt that they would be without a comforter. He said, “Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God (who though invisible has always been a sufficient protector to the Jewish Nation in all its vicissitudes) believe also in me (although I also become invisible; I still will be your powerful and loving friend).” He then intimated that he would leave them that he might do a great work on their behalf; he would prepare them a heavenly home and when that work was finished, return again to receive them unto himself (John 14:1-3). The comforting spirit of holiness has sustained the Church during the period of Jesus' absence. A great blessing has it been, but still greater blessings were assured to those who would be found faithful in the time of our Lord's return. They were to lift up their heads and rejoice when they saw the evidences of his early return, knowing that it meant their deliverance from the flesh and its bondage by the birth to the spirit plane which would give them spirit bodies suited to their spiritual minds, and would introduce for them an eternity of joy and blessing. Many fail to receive the blessing of the holy Spirit because they never learn what the holy Spirit is.

Q.--Will the Saints in resurrection have human bodies in heaven?

Answer--A human being has a human nature and an animal body. Those who will compose “the Church” or “Overcomers” will have the Divine nature and bodies to suit. Concerning these the Bible says, "God hath given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these we might be partakers of the Divine nature" (2 Pet. 1:4). They will be spirit beings like unto our Lord Jesus after he was raised from the dead (1 Pet. 3:18; 1 John 3:2). The human body is composed of flesh and blood and bones. The Apostle says, "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God" (1 Cor. 15:50). Some have unwittingly said the new resurrection body will be of flesh and bones, and therefore, can inherit the Kingdom. But Jesus, in disproof of this, said, "A spirit hath not flesh and bones" (Luke 25:38). The Apostle points out (see 1 Cor. 15:35-54) that the "saints," in the resurrection, will have glorious spirit bodies.

Q.--When did Jesus bring life and immortality to light; and what is meant by light? Would 2 Tim. 1:10 especially refer to the time of Jesus' anointing or the anointing of the Church?

Answer--The way to life and immortality was opened up, or brought to light, at the time of Jesus' anointing. This was his consecration to sacrifice. By the completion of that sacrifice not only was the way fully opened for the members of his body to obtain immortality through a faithful laying down of their lives with him during this Gospel Age but also a preparation was made for the providing of a way by which the world of mankind may attain life. They will never be offered immortality for that is a special prize for sacrificers, and the world is not invited to sacrifice. The length of the period in which the work of perfecting the church has been progressing has led many to forget the promises regarding the coming blessing of the world. The church is selected for the very purpose of being the ones through whom life will be given to the world of mankind. The ones who will have this great privilege must be partakers of the divine nature (2 Pet. 1:4) and in order to attain that great prize they must prove themselves worthy through obedience even unto death.

Q.--The Scriptures say all sins shall be forgiven except the sin against the Holy Spirit (Matt. 12:31). Could Judas go into second death when the Holy Spirit had not yet been given?

Answer--It is quite evident from our Master's statement in Matt. 26:24 that Judas must have gone into the second death. Our Lord states that it would have been better for him if he had never been born. If he were one of the little flock, his blessings would be beyond comprehension. If he were to be one of the Great Company Class, made like unto the angels in their resurrection, he would still have blessings well worth the effort of a lifetime to secure. Were a resurrection to earthly life his lot, blessings would be his greater than most people imagine will be secured by those who attain heaven. Therefore, it is evident he must have gone into the second death. While it is true that the Holy Spirit had not been given for the begetting of a new creation (John 7:9), that Holy Spirit had been in a measure in the hearts of many for centuries past. All the good that is in man is that much of the spirit of holiness. Evidently those who sat daily under the ministrations of Jesus saw sufficient of the Holy Spirit manifested in him to be able to sin against it.

Q.--In what sense are we to understand John 12:32:“And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me”? Although Jesus was raised on the cross, he does not draw everyone to him.

Answer--We understand the “drawing” to be future. The “lifting up” of our Lord was two-fold; first, upon the cross in shame and suffering (Gal. 3:13), but in his resurrection he was lifted up in glory and honor from the earth the human plane to the highest spirit nature. “He became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross, wherefore God hath highly exalted him and given him a name which is above every name” (Phil. 2:8-11). Referring to the present gospel dispensation, Jesus said, “No man can come unto me, except the Father which hath sent me, draw him,” but in “due time” (1 Tim. 2:6), when those whom the Father draws are united with him in glory, the Spirit and the Bride will give out the invitation to whosoever will. That will be the time of restitution of all things (Acts 3:20, 21). Our Lord speaks of himself as the antitype of the serpent that Moses lifted up in the wilderness (Matt. 3:14), which, when the people looked upon, they were healed of the sickness caused by the bite of the fiery serpents. So in the thousand-year’s reign of the Lord the people shall look to him and be healed of their sin-sickness, the result of the deception of the serpent Satan, which brought sin and death into the world.

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q. - In what sense has God been hiding his power, as expressed in Hab. 3:4?

Answer-God is opposed to sin in every form, and should he exercise his power, instead of hiding it, then every sin would meet with its penalty in this life. Instead, God is permitting some so disposed to reproach and evilly treat those who are disposed for righteousness, and thus the hearts of men are made manifest. The Psalmist (Psa. 74) asks how long this condition will continue, and why God does not pluck out his hand (power) from his bosom (hidden condition). When God's power is manifested, during the reign of Christ, then the people must be obedient, but with some this will be feigned (Psa. 66:3, margin); hence at the end of the thousand years Satan will be loosed again, to demonstrate who are at heart loyal to the Lord (see also Psa. 110: 3).

Q.-Please explain Luke 16:9: "And I say unto you, make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations."

Answer-This is part of our Lord's application of the parable of the unjust steward. Having heard that his stewardship was to be taken from him, he used the opportunity which he still had to secure for himself the friendship of his master's debtors. The mammon of unrighteousness is any wealth or valuable possession the follower of Jesus may have. These he can either use to his advantage or his disadvantage. By disposing of them unwisely they may easily be a hindrance, whereas by using them wisely they may help to secure his everlasting welfare. We are not to make the mammon our friend; we are to make it a means of gaining friends-"make to yourselves friends with the mammon. " Our Lord exhorts us to use it so as to gain the friendship of our heavenly Father and our Lord Jesus Christ (see Luke 11:41 and 12:33). The Vatican MS. has "when it fails," meaning, when these early possessions are taken from us. Then we will be called upon to give an account of our stewardship, and God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, whom we have made our friends, will give us an abundant entrance into the everlasting habitation.

Q.-When was the prophecy in Genesis 15:13-16 fulfilled? And is the rendering of Exodus 12:40, as given by the R.V., "Leeser" and "Young" correct?

Answer-The periods of 400 and 430 years have given rise to a great deal of controversy, and yet when viewed from the Bible standpoint they are both correct and harmonious. The Bible shows a period of 215 years between the Abrahamic covenant and Jacob's entrance into Egypt. It is evident, therefore, that Israel's actual residence in Egypt was 215 years (215 + 215) - 430. The revisers have purposely rendered Ex. 12:40 to describe Israel as being in Egypt 430 years, and by so doing they have fallen into two astonishing errors, viz., if Israel were in Egypt 430 years, then (1) Moses must have been born when his mother was 253 years old; and (2) his birth must have taken place eighty years after his father's death! The affliction of the wed 400 years is another matter, and like the sojourning did not all take place in Egypt. The Apostle Paul points out that this affliction began when Israel "mocked" or ill treated Isaac, at the time of the feast, when Isaac was weaned (Gal. 4:28-30; Gen. 21:8-12). This topic should be of great interest to every Scripture student, and a careful research will without doubt make the matter clear.

Q.-Please explain I Tim. 2:14 as to why the woman was the greater transgressor, she being deceived and Adam eating knowing the penalty."

Answer-Evidently you have mis-read the Apostle's statement. He merely says that Eve was in the transgression with Adam who was not deceived, hence he must have transgressed with a fuller realization of the sin, and with the penalty in view, knowing certainly that he must die. We can readily see what was the temptation which impelled him thus recklessly to incur the pronounced penalty. Bearing in mind that they were perfect beings, in the mental and moral likeness of their Maker, the god-like element of love was displayed with marked prominence by the perfect man toward his beloved companion, the perfect woman. Realizing the sin and fearing Eve's death, and thus his loss (and that without hope of recovery, for no such hope had been given), Adam, in despair, recklessly concluded not to live without her. Deeming his own life unhappy and worthless without her companionship, he willfully shared her act of disobedience in order to share the death-penalty which he probably supposed rested on her. Both were "in the transgression," as the Apostle shows (Rom. 5:14; 1 Tim. 2:14). But Adam and Eve were one and not "twain;" hence Eve shared the sentence which her conduct helped to bring upon Adam (Rom. 5:12, 17-19).

Q.-Please explain what is meant by the statement that job was perfect and upright (job 1: 1). It is generally understood that the Lord Jesus Christ was the only perfect man.

Answer-We should not understand this passage to convey the thought that job's perfection was absolute. "There is none righteous, no not one." Rotherham's translation gives "blameless" instead of "perfect," and this appears to describe correctly job's character. His imperfections were not serious in their nature but rather involuntary, and due to inherited weakness as a member of the fallen race. His heart was perfect towards God, as was abundantly proved by his patience, and entire conduct under the most severe trials a man could be subjected to. Our Lord's perfection, on the other hand, was absolute. He was holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners, not being a member of the fallen human race. With the Christian nothing short of perfection of heart will be satisfactory, hence our Lord's exhortation, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." Perfection of flesh is not the goal for which we strive, but a spirit perfection, "as he is perfect."

Q.-Please explain as thoroughly as your space will permit Isa. 4:1 "In that day seven women shall take hold of one man, saying, We will cat our own bread, and wear our own apparel; only let us be called by thy name to take away our reproach."

Answer Throughout the Scriptures a woman is a symbol of the church—a corrupt woman of a false church. Thus our Lord represented the condition of the Church at the time of his second coming, by two classes of virgins—wise and foolish. The number seven is well recognized as being throughout the Scriptures a symbol of completeness. We assume that it here signifies all of the Churches who have proved disloyal to the Lord. Many believe that we have now come to the time when the seven women, feeling the reproach of their illegal union with the world, are, with one heart and voice, calling out to the man, representing our Lord, the heavenly bridegroom, desirous of having their reproach taken from them by the receiving of his name. They desire to be called Christians, caring nothing for the doctrines of Christ nor having any faith in the redemption through his blood. They trust rather in their own righteousness which the Revelator declares is as filthy rags, and eat the food of their own preparation instead of accepting with gratitude the nourishment furnished at his table. They say, "We will eat our own bread and wear our own apparel, only let us be called by thy name" (Rev. 22:11; Isa. 28:8; Luke 12:37).

Q.—What is the holy Sabbath day, mentioned (Ex. 20: 10) as coming on Saturday, the 7th day? Who changed the Sabbath and by what right? Christ kept the Sabbath day and his disciples, did they not? Are the Jews the only class of people who keep the holy Sabbath of God? If not, mention a class. Is not Sunday a man made Sabbath?

Answer—The law of the Sabbath as given to the Jews instructed the observance of the seventh day, the seventh month and the seventh year. There were also additional Sabbaths which came on different days of the week and years other than the seventh, for instance, Pentecost and the Jubilees. The Sabbath of Ex. 20: 10 is the seventh day. God has never changed his law regarding the Sabbath nor given it to anybody except the Jews. Christ and his disciples were Jews and therefore kept the Sabbath. We would have to become judges of men's hearts if we were to decide who are keeping the Sabbath today, for the Sabbath of this dispensation is not one of outward observance, but a peace, a rest of heart which extends throughout the Christian's life time (Heb. 4:3. Read Heb. 4: 1 -11). The Apostle Paul indicates that it is a very dangerous position to be observing days (Gal. 4: 10). He feared lest he had bestowed his labor in vain on the Galatian friends who had returned to the observing of Sabbaths. Of course the Apostle would not object to holiness on any day, but he would remind the Galatians of the freedom wherewith they had been made free from the bondage of the Law (Gal. 5: 1) and encouraged them to stand fast in this liberty, trusting not in their own righteousness which they might obtain through the keeping of the Law, but in the righteousness of Christ. This they could only obtain through the keeping of his commandment, and his commandment was "Love one another as I have loved you" (John 13:34; Eph. 5:2). There has been considerable speculation as to who established the observance of the first day of the week. While it is true that in Emperor Constantine's time the observance of Sunday was established by law, it is also true that the day was observed very early in the Churches' history. It was on the first day of the week that our Lord arose from the dead (Mark 16:2), and several of his appearances were on this day (Luke 24:22; John 20:19). It was probably for this reason that the disciples later met on that day for the breaking of bread (note Acts 20:8 and I Cor. 16:2).

PRECIOUS JEWELS SOUGHT BY A KING

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 31, 1915 Pastor Russell is here today. We report his discourse on the text, "They shall be Mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that Day when I make up My jewels." (Mal. 3:17.) He said in part:

Our text points to the close of the Gospel Age, and not only tells us that the Lord will not gather His jewels sooner, but also implies that the only class to be gathered at that time will be the jewel class He comes to make up His jewels. We have here a contradiction of the ordinary thoughts on this subject that He has been gathering His jewels all along for the past six thousand years, evidently an erroneous thought, since He has appointed a Day, in the end of the Age, in which He will gather, or make up, His jewels; and that everybody who is respectable, half-way decent, is to be gathered to the Lord and share in His Kingdom. Our text distinctly points out that only a very exceptional class will be sought for and gathered.

The class here described as jewels is contrasted in the context with other classes—"the proud," who have much of the success of the present time; and "the workers of wickedness," who tempt God and are not careful to please and serve Him. Such evidently are the majority of mankind. The jewel class is described as "they that feared Jehovah" that revered Him—and that thought upon His Word."

"WE ARE HIS WORKMANSHIP"

But, we inquire, where are jewels usually found? The Answer--is that they may be found in very unexpected places. For Instance, the diamonds of South Africa are sometimes mingled with the ordinary gravel, and sometimes imbedded in bluish-black clay. They all require to be searched after, and to be washed from the mire, before being prepared to refract the light. So some of these jewels that the Lord is now seeking out from the world are found in the ordinary walks of life, and some came from deep down in the mire of sin. In the world of mankind the Lord does not expect to find the jewels in perfect order shaped, cut, polished and ready for the setting in glory. On the contrary, by one class of His servants He lifts them out of the mire of sin and the horrible pit, cleanses them through the merit of His own precious blood and through His Word: and then through other servants and providences He polishes them with Divine skill, that they may reflect and refract the light of the glory of God the Divine character Justice, Wisdom, Love.

As the diamond in its rough state, uncut, unpolished, would have no more value than a common stone for ordinary purposes, so those whom the Lord is selecting and preparing as His jewels are to derive their ultimate value from the cutting, shaping, polishing, of their characters under Divine providence. As it is written, "We are His workmanship." We cannot suppose the illustration to be perfect in every particular; yet we may readily see that while Divine Grace is to be credited with the entire outcome the beauty of the finished jewel nevertheless Divine Grace operates according to principles and conditions, under Divine Law. As the experienced diamond miners reject the soft clay and various of the hard stones, in seeking for those of the desirable kind, so the great Jewel-Gatherer operates according to a principle in seeking for His jewels.

"AS MANY AS THE LORD SHALL CALL"

The hardness of the diamond may be used to represent character, and we are to remember that character belongs to the individual. Each must have his own character, and only in proportion as each has it can he hope to be accepted as a jewel; for those without it will not endure the tests.

As the diamond-seeker lays hold upon everything in his path that gives evidence of having the diamond quality, so Divine Grace, operating in the diamond field of the world Christendom lays hold upon all who have anything resembling character. The soft, the pliable, the uncrystallized, are not being sought now, and coming in contact with Divine Grace are passed by. Only such as give evidence of character are thought worthy of even washing and testing. Eph. 5:26.

The Hard crystallization of the diamond corresponds to willingness toward righteousness in the individual; and unless there be such willingness toward God and righteousness there is none of the jewel quality which the Lord is now seeking. Those whose wills are formed, crystallized, set, determined for righteousness, are those whom the Lord seeks. But the great Jewel Seeker accepts some in whom the crystallizing process is incomplete, and helps their infirmities, developing in them by His providences the quality of firmness for righteousness, at the same time polishing them.

But even when the rough diamond has been found, it would be of no value except as it could be cut; indeed, it would be of less value than other stones for many purposes. So it is with those whom Divine Grace finds in the mire of sin, having nevertheless will or character desiring righteousness, truth, goodness, justice the great Lapidarist must really give them all their value by His skill in shaping, cutting and polishing them. Yet, on the other hand, He could not cut, shape or polish that which had not the essential quality, or character, or will for righteousness.

Those who are in the hands of the great Lapidarist and undergoing His polishing process, must first have passed through the previous experience of having been found of the Lord Jesus, must have been washed, and must have been accepted as having wills desirous of harmony with the Divine mind. Therefore they may take pleasure in all the trying experiences and difficulties through which our Lord Jesus causes them to pass as various parts of the process necessary to their completion as Jehovah's jewels, to be made up by the close of the Gospel Age and to be set in the gold of the Divine nature, to reflect the beauties of the Divine character.

It is in harmony with this thought that the Apostle encourages us to rejoice in tribulation, knowing that it is working out for us patience, experience, hope, brotherly kindness and love the facets essential to the jewel in the eyes of Him who is shortly to gather His jewels. The Apostle again speaks of even the most trying experiences of the Christian life as "light afflictions," and of the present life as but "a moment," saying, "Our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

THE WHEEL OF DISCIPLINE

The earthly lapidarist takes firm hold upon the jewel which he has already tested and proved to have the requisite jewel quality; and, encasing it in a suitable instrument, he presses it against a lap-wheel, with just the required amount of pressure to effect the necessary shaping and polishing. The process requires great skill; hence only skilled workmen are employed in this department.

So with the Lord's jewels, their value depends much on proper cutting; and this is entrusted only to the skilled hands of our Lord Jesus, of whom we are assured that He Himself passed through similar experiences of testings at the Father's hands. He knows just what we need to perfect us, that we shall be pleasing and acceptable to the Father, to reflect and refract the light of His glory when it shall fall upon us in our finished state.

A part of our lesson is to have faith in this great Master-Workman, whom the Father has appointed to shape and polish us. We may require much more trimming on some sides of our character than on others; and often the disposition is to draw back, to be not fully submissive, to fear that the Lord has abandoned us to trial. But Infinite Wisdom assures us that this is not so, and that to draw back would leave us “unfit for the Kingdom.”

The world has seen the wheel of discipline which has been cutting the Lord’s jewels for centuries, but it has not understood the necessity and the value of the process. It may have even caught an occasional glimpse of the jewels, but not to any advantage not so as to be able to know the real merit of their characters or the value of the cutting and polishing; for even the already finished facets are smeared with the cement and slime from the grind-wheel. But the great, loving Lapidarist knows and has explained it all to the jewels; and they know in part now, and by faith are trusting all the remainder.

The Lord knows just how much pressure to apply just how much friction is necessary and will not cause tribulation which He cannot and will not overrule for our good. Being thus assured that all things are working together for good to them that love God. His living jewels can rejoice in tribulation, knowing that it is working out in them “the peaceable fruits of righteousness” meekness, patience, gentleness, brotherly kindness and love; that such experiences are essential and that without these they could never be amongst the gathered jewels.

“THE TIME IS AT HAND”

We are not to suppose that those who are now pressed against the wheel of tribulation are thereby made miserable. On the contrary, they realize a joy and peace which the world can neither give nor take away. And when we remember that their severe experiences and polishings are “but for a moment,” as compared with the longer discipline of those who will be dealt with during the Millennium; and that in proportion to their trials they are granted more grace and will receive a reward exceedingly abundant, more than they could ask or think then we can see that these jewels now being prepared by the Lord are highly favored above all men.

The process of seeking and polishing the jewels has already been in progress for more than eighteen centuries; and the Scriptures indicate that now the end of the Age is upon us the time for gathering these jewels and setting them in the glory of the Divine nature. The signs of the times clearly indicate that the great Time of Trouble with which the Gospel Age is to end is even at the door, to prepare the world for the coming blessings of Messiah’s Kingdom. Hence if we are to be amongst the acceptable jewels we have need to give diligence and to co-operate with the great Master-Workman, that the shaping and polishing of our hearts, our wills, may be perfected quickly, and that we may be ready to share a glorious part when He comes to make up His jewels.

Through the Prophet the Lord indicates that as soon as His jewels shall have been gathered, there will be a general change in His dealings with the world. Our context shows how it is at the present time, while the polishing of the jewels progresses. Frequently the unfaithful and the worldly seem to have the advantage; but after this polishing of the jewels is completed, and they have been set in the crown of rejoicing at the end of this Age, “then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not.”

Now, while evil predominates, while the Prince of this world reigns, and while “they that tempt God are even delivered,” it would be difficult by outward evidences to judge who are the Lord’s favored ones. Indeed, his living jewels seem to be less favored and to have more afflictions, trials, persecutions and difficulties than others. Consequently amongst them are not found many great or rich or wise, but chiefly “the poor of this world, rich in faith.” But when these shall be glorified with their Lord in the Kingdom, then there will be a general change. No longer will the wicked and those who tempt God be found in power, influence and prosperity, and the meek, the godly suffer persecution and tribulation. On the contrary, of the time when Christ’s Millennial Kingdom shall be inaugurated it is declared prophetically, “In His Day the righteous shall flourish,” “evildoers shall be cut of,” and Satan shall be bound. Psa. 72:7-9; 37:9.

FELLOWSHIP OF THE BRETHREN

Our context gives another suggestion respecting the disposition of this jewel class during the time of their polishing. We read, “They that feared (reverenced) the Lord spake often one to another; and the Lord hearkened and heard.” What could be more natural than a desire for communion with all who are of “like precious faith,” all who are similarly undergoing polishing at the hands of the great Lapidarist, all who are of the same disposition as respects God and righteousness? Our Lord points out that love of the brethren will be a marked quality in all the jewel class; and the tendency of the “brethren” is to meet frequently, either in person or through the printed page, and to speak to each other. Mal. 3:16.

The Apostle Paul distinctly calls to our attention the necessity for this class to meet together. He exhorts, “Forget not the assembling of yourselves together,... and so much the more as ye see the Day drawing nigh” the Day of gathering of the jewels. It is to this same end that our Lord has made some of His promises to His people collectively, saying, “Where two or three of you are met in My name, there am I in the midst.”

When we read that these faithful ones “spake together,” we naturally inquire respecting the subject upon which they communicate. It is not stated here, but is clearly pointed out elsewhere in the Word of God. The Apostle calls attention to the fact that such “mind Heavenly things,” and contrasts them with those who, “mind earthly things.” Their conversation, therefore, will not be respecting earthly pleasures, food and raiment, the ambitions of the natural mind, the pride of life, etc., but will be respecting the things which are uppermost in their hearts; they are seeking “first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness,” and in earthly matters are “content with such things as they have.”

“THE LORD HEARKENED AND HEARD”

Another thought in this connection, which we should not overlook, is that brought to our attention in the words, “And the Lord hearkened and heard.” As the sons of God meet to talk over the Divine Plan, the Divine Wisdom, Justice and Love, to help one another and to encourage one another with psalms, hymns, spiritual songs and the exceeding great and precious promises, how much they would be blessed if only they could always have in memory this statement! Whenever the people of God are speaking together, He listens to their conversation, to note who speak forth those words that are loving, gentle, pure, true, as distinguished from those who are careless of the truth, or whose words are vain or frivolous, or worse than this, slanderous, enmitous and selfish.

Let all the sons of God remember the importance of honesty, “truth in the inward parts,” when they come together to study the Divine Word and to help one another, “let nothing be done through strife and vain glory”; but let each esteem the other greater than himself in saintliness seeking to see in each other, as far as possible, the good, the noble, the true, and to watch his own heart and to know of his own blemishes. Thus let personal humility and love of the brethren keep pace with our growth in knowledge of Divine things; other wise let us be assured that we are in the sifting and separating time; and that all who have not this spirit of humility, patience, gentleness, brotherly kindness, love will surely be separated.

Such will not be amongst those gathered as jewels; for those whom the Lord will gather will be pure, stainless. They are to be faultless in love before the Father; and perfect love casts out not only fear, but also selfishness, animosity, evil surmises and evil speaking, self-love and pride. Beautiful indeed will be the Lord's Jewels, polished after the likeness of the great Jewel our Lord Jesus Christ.

BILLY SUNDAY UNIQUE, HIS VIRTUES AND FAULTS

Duluth, Minn., February 21, 1915 Pastor Russell spoke today from the text, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ." (Rom. 1:16) Prior to his sermon he made some kindly but pungent remarks on "Billy" Sunday, "the most noted preacher of our day." The Pastor would not depart from his custom and the Bible rule, "Speak evil of no man." His remarks merely appertained to "Billy's" preaching of the Gospel.

"Billy" Sunday catches the public eye and ear by the novelty of his methods. Some go to hear him lambaste the preachers on the platform behind him, and to watch their faces and see them smile as though it were a good joke when he tells them that their preaching has made the churches cold storage places with little storage, or when he likens them to the Scribes, Pharisees, hypocrites, of old, or when he tells them that they are leading their congregations straight down to Hell. These things told in the newspapers seem so astounding that people must see and hear for themselves.

BILLY'S CHAIR-SMASHING PROCLIVITIES

Others go to hear "Billy" because it is the "fad." Business men and electric and steam railway managers realize that thousands will come to town as they would to a circus. They bring pressure to bear upon the poor preachers; for "Billy" wisely insists that he will not come and save the citizens from Hell if there is any competition in the business insists that all the churches close down. Under the pressure the preachers cannot help themselves and try to make the best of it, hoping that people will not take "Billy" seriously as respects their hypocrisy, etc., and assured that he will divide the spoils evenly amongst all the churches not the financial spoils, but the souls for "cold storage" or to be let down to Hell.

Others attend to see "Billy's" acrobatic feats, jumping onto a table or smashing a chair; others because they have been invited to be of the large choir; others to say that they have heard "Billy" Sunday. The worldly adage is, "Nothing succeeds like success;" and every time "Billy" succeeds he has more success.

Amongst Billy's virtues we should not forget they fearless way in which he attacks the social customs and sins which assail the family and the community, the fearless way in which he tells the preachers what he really thinks of them and what the masses of the public think of them, and the above-board manner in which he bargains the result of his efforts for cold cash the meeting of the expenses and the giving to himself of certain collections for himself and his troupe. If the Gospel must be sold, it is better to have it done in the open rather than in the name of the heathen, the collectors getting the most.

To the extent that "Billy" Sunday seeks to defend the Bible against the Higher Critics, to the extent that he really shows up the coldness, formalism, hypocrisy, of the Church of Laodicea (Revelation 3:14-17), to the extent that he encourages righteousness of life and discourages drunkenness and lewdness, we can surely wish him Godspeed, and trust that some good is accomplished by him, in awakening the people to do some thinking for themselves along religious lines.

SOME OF "BILLY" SUNDAY'S FAULTS

The Pastor said that if the reports that "Billy" prayed to God most irreverently, and addressed the Redeemer as "Old Pal," were true, then "Billy's" influences on the public would lead on in the direction in which the world is now rapidly moving anyway toward irreverence. He hoped that "Billy" would become more reverent, and believes that this result would follow a better knowledge of God. He could scarcely reconcile with honesty Billy's attempt to tie up all the souls he saved, in the churches which he declared were cold storage plants leading down to Hell. He wished that "Billy" would reconcile these opposites.

He was pleased to note that "Billy" Sunday's last sermon in each place was usually on the Second Coming of Christ; and that "Billy" apparently recognizes the present and last stage of the Church, typified in Laodicea. This caused him all the more to wonder why "Billy" would help people into the Laodicean Church, which the Bible styles Babylon, and declares that God spues out of His mouth. (Rev. 3:16) Next Sunday the Pastor will discuss the Second Coming of Christ, viewing that great event and Messiah's Kingdom from a somewhat different angle from Billy's.

The Pastor declared that it makes his blood boil with righteous indignation to find Billy's preaching a practical endorsement of the God-dishonoring theory that the great mass of humanity are to suffer eternal torment because they were born in sin, misshapen in iniquity (Psa. 51:5), and then failed to live saintly lives. True, “Billy” does not explain Hell. Like most preachers he probably hides his true thought on this subject, while allowing the common people to think that he believes in a Hell of eternal tortures. The Pastor could not believe that Mr. Sunday or any other intelligent man of our day really believes this invention of the Dark Ages, which antagonizes the Bible as well as common sense.

Mr. Sunday and all other preachers who realize the fallacy of this great “doctrine of devils” (1 Tim. 4:1) owe it to the people who trust them and who make up their collections, to tell them the truth. More than this, they owe it to God that this foul stain upon the Divine character be denounced. They owe it to themselves as men to stand for and speak out the truth and to assist in opening the eyes of the poor, deluded world.

The Pastor hopes that Mr. Sunday will yet realize that no one can long maintain a moral standard higher than that which he attributes to his God. The injustice and persecution of centuries is largely attributable to the false doctrines which represent the Creator as a demon who unjustly and unlovingly created our race with the knowledge and intention that nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand would endure an eternity of torture. Of this as a Gospel the Pastor has been ashamed for forty-four years. A better understanding of the Bible has led him since to preach

THE NOT ASHAMED GOSPEL OF CHRIST

Beginning his discourse the Pastor said, Everybody knows that the word Gospel signifies Good Tidings, as in the angel’s Message at the birth of Jesus—”Behold, I bring you Good Tidings of great Joy, which shall be unto all people!” Who is responsible for the fact that this Message of Joy to all people has been turned completely around to mean bad tidings of great misery to all people except to an elect handful? The fact is that no person deliberately plotted this turning of God’s Word upside down. It is the work of the Devil, who gradually foisted it upon the Church as well as upon the heathen world, with the view to turning people away from God and the Bible.

St. Peter and St. Paul both predicted the falling away of the Church and the success of the doctrines of demons. “The god of this world [Satan] hath blinded the minds” of all unbelievers. If it were not for these delusions of Satan, the whole world might speedily be brought to know, to admire, to love, the true God. The Apostle continues, telling us why Satan blinds men—”lest the light of the knowledge of the glory of God... should shine into their hearts.” Wherever the true knowledge of God shines into the human heart, it presents the Almighty in such glorious character as to demand the reverence of His creatures. Hence Satan’s endeavor to blind men’s minds through false doctrines which misrepresent the Almighty’s character and Plan.

But while we Scripturally hold that Satan had chief responsibility in the matter, it is not for us to say that the clerics of the Dark Ages did not more or less connive at the error, trusting that it would make the people subservient to the clergy, through whom they might hope to escape future tortures. But leaving the past and its responsibilities, we may surely say that great and grave responsibility rests upon the preachers of today for their perpetuation of this great deception this fraud upon the people, slander upon the Almighty and opposition to the Truth. Of the degree of this wickedness only God is capable of judging correctly; but it is wicked to keep the people in darkness on the subject, and it is slanderous blasphemy against the Divine character.

There is no question that nearly all ministers privately confess that they do not believe these slanders, while publicly they continue to speak words which give the opposite thought. The time when such horrible assassination of the Divine reputation can prosper is surely short. Messiah's glorious Reign will make an end of all such lies; as it is written, "I will lay justice to the line, and righteousness to the plummet; and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies." Isa. 28:17

GOD'S POWER TO EVERY ONE BELIEVING

If belief in the real Gospel is the Divine power which works in the believer, it follows that whoever has not the Gospel has not this Divine power; and that in proportion as the Gospel is perverted its power is lost. So we see today millions of people professing to believe the Gospel, yet acting like devils under delusions from the Dark Ages which have been fostered by the preachers of Christendom. If they knew the real Gospel, they would act differently and not dishonor Christ by claiming to be His followers.

The Gospel Message is double. It has one portion of promise of blessing for the Church and another for the world. For the Church, who renounce earthly hopes and ambitions and cultivate the Heavenly, it promises the high reward of glory, honor and immortality with Christ in His Millennial Kingdom, to be entered into by the power of the First Resurrection. The Gospel Message tells the Church of God's gracious purposes for the world that through Christ's Kingdom the blessing of Restitution (Acts 3:21), everlasting life as perfect human beings in a world-wide Paradise, has been made possible for all mankind through the Redeemer's sacrifice, and that as soon as the Church shall have been glorified, the blessing of the world will begin to be accomplished fully during Messiah's Reign of Righteousness. We leave for next Sunday the discussion of the beautiful teachings of the Bible vs. the teachings of Mr. Sunday, the Adventists and the creeds on this subject.

ONLY TO EVERY ONE THAT BELIEVETH

Only a comparatively small number of humanity have opportunity of believing during this Age. Messiah's Kingdom will give the whole world an opportunity of believing in Christ not merely those living when Messiah's Kingdom will be set up, but, as the Bible says, "All that are in their graves shall hear the Voice of the Son of God and shall come forth" from the grave not from Heaven, not from Purgatory, not from our Protestant Hell of eternal torture, but from the grave.

The Church will constitute the First Resurrection class; and having passed their trial successfully, they will have the reward of life everlasting on the Heavenly plane. The world to be awakened at that time will include the heathen, and all the millions of Christendom who have never know what real Christianity is. They will all be brought to a knowledge of the Truth, that they may be tested, or judged, thereby and prove themselves either worthy or unworthy of everlasting life as human beings, in that world-wide Paradise.

So Jesus declares of them, "They that have done evil" that have not been approved of God—"shall come forth unto a Resurrection of Judgment" trial, testing with a view to seeing how they will respond to those judgments, enlightenments, etc., that the willing and obedient at the close of Christ's Reign may be received into all the liberties properly appertaining to God's children. (Rom. 8:21) The wrong thought in the mind of the translators of our Common Version Bible has misled them occasionally into giving poor translations. See John 5:29, Revised Version

THE NOT-ASHAMED GOSPEL BRIEFLY STATED

All God's work is perfect. (Deu. 32:4) Man originally was perfect, in the Creator's likeness. Disobedience brought upon man not a penalty of eternal torment, but a death penalty—"Dying, thou shalt die." "The wages of sin is death." For six thousand years the World has been undergoing this sentence. Cut off by sin from fellowship with God, man has degraded himself. Satan has contributed to this reign of Sin and Death by deceiving mankind fostering errors, misrepresenting God, etc.

God has the situation fully in hand. He purposed to permit both angels and men to see one great illustration of the effect of sin, leading on to disease and death, mental, moral and physical. Meantime the Creator has gracious purposes for man. Their experiences with sin and death will not be fruitless. They will have opportunity of learning valuable lessons, profitable for eternity. The first trial as to their worthiness of eternal life or of everlasting death was through one man; and his disobedience settled the matter for the race the death sentence was the penalty.

As a basis for man's recovery, the Son of God died for man's sin not to get mankind out of eternal torment nor to keep them from going to eternal torment or to Purgatory, but to save them from extinction, “that whosoever believeth on Him might not perish.” (John 3:16) Their recovery from sin and death is Scripturally styled the resurrection of the dead. Thus the Church of true believers are represented as “risen with Christ” to “walk in newness of life,” and are promised an actual resurrection the First, the Chief Resurrection.

Next comes the world’s resurrection. The Truth will be made known to them. Instead of being confused and hampered with superstition, lies, doctrines of devils, the true light of the knowledge of the glory of God will shine upon them. Gradually the willing and obedient of the world will rise mentally, morally, and physically to perfection; whereas the Church, which is to get a new nature, spirit nature, will be perfected by an instantaneous resurrection.

This is the Gospel which St. Paul preached that the dead sleep in Hades, Sheol, the Bible Hell, the tomb, awaiting the establishment of Messiah’s Kingdom which will bring glorious blessings. St. Paul declared that if there be no resurrection of the dead, all faith is vain, all preaching is vain, all hope of forgiveness of sins is vain. We might as well eat and drink and consider that when we die we perish. But, he declares, there is to be such a resurrection; and the fact that Jesus died and rose again is God’s guarantee to all believers that all who sleep in Jesus shall be brought from the dead by and through Him and His power.

Like the wideness of the sea.”*

Of this Gospel I am not ashamed. Of every other gospel that I have ever heard I would be ashamed if I had been its inventor, ashamed to endorse it, ashamed of the God who would have such a gospel. But the true Gospel, shining out of the Bible and enlightening men’s hearts all over the world, is a Message of Grace, Justice, Wisdom and Love. Let us lay hold upon it. Let us love and serve it and the only living and true God, the God of the Bible, not the God of the creeds; and let us show forth the praises of Him who has called us out of darkness into His marvelous light.

WHY, WHEN, AND HOW CHRIST'S SECOND ADVENT

Norfolk, Va., February 28, Pastor Russell (who will speak at the New York City Temple next Sunday evening), addressing a large audience here today, discussed Christ's Second Advent, from the text, "If I go away, I will come again and receive you." (John 14:3) He complimented "Billy" Sunday by saying that although "Billy" Sunday by saying that although "Billy's" teachings do not come up to the Bible, nevertheless he is far ahead of so-called "Orthodoxy" on this theme.

Mr. Sunday preaches considerably as I do on this subject, said the Pastor, yet still comes far short of my conception of the Bible teaching. Mr. Sunday's presentation recognizes that the Lord Jesus at His Second Coming will establish a world-wide Empire which will bless the entire world with fullest opportunity to walk in the ways of righteousness. To this we agree.

But we disagree with Mr. Sunday's theory that the thousands of millions who died during the past six thousand years in ignorance of Christ are to suffer tortures to all eternity because of the ignorance. Amongst these billions he includes all who have never heard of Jesus' name in the true sense in heathen lands, and at home where, he explains to us, some were led straight down to Hell by the churches. These billions, according to Mr. Sunday, were very unfairly treated were very unlucky.

We disagree with this and present the Bible thought, that the dead are in neither a fiery Purgatory nor a fiery Hell, but in the Bible Hell the tomb. We insist that the Bible teaches that "all that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of God and come forth." The saintly will come forth to glory with Christ in His Kingdom. Others will come forth to a resurrection a raising up out of sin and death by judgment. See Revised Version. John 5:28, 29

These billions who have not intelligently heard of Jesus and His salvation are not on trial now. Their death is the penalty of Adam's sin and not of their personal rejection of Jesus, whom they never knew. It is to give these the opportunity of a judgment, or trial, during the thousand years of Christ's Reign, that they will be called forth from the tomb. As all died through one man's disobedience, all are to be awakened and brought forth to an opportunity of everlasting life through the obedience of the other man Christ. The resurrection of the dead, both just and unjust, is their hope. (Acts 24:15) Aside from a resurrection, there is no hope. Hence, the whole world, good and bad, are said to “sleep with their fathers.”

ORTHODOX VIEW IS STILL WORSE

Those who style themselves “Orthodox” are still further astray from the Bible than is Mr. Sunday. While the latter proposes Millennial blessings for the fortunates living at the Second Advent, “Orthodoxy” declares that there will be no Millennium that there will be no hope for anybody except the Elect few; that instead of establishing His Kingdom at His Second Advent, Jesus will destroy the earth and its inhabitants with fire. They overlook the teachings of the Lord’s Prayer that His people should pray, “Thy Kingdom come,” and expect it; and that they should believe that ultimately God’s will shall be done on earth as fully as it is now done in Heaven. They neglect the Scriptures which tell that Paradise is to be restored world-wide that “the earth is God’s footstool,” and that “He will make the place of His feet glorious.” Isa. 66:1; 60:13

They neglect the Bible declaration that “the earth abideth for ever,” and that God “created it not in vain, but formed it to be inhabited.” (Ecc. 1:4; Isa. 45:18) They neglect St. Peter’s declaration that the Restitution Times mentioned by all the holy Prophets are to be realized at the Second Coming of Jesus. (Acts 3:19-21) Instead, they hold, and express it in all their creeds Catholics and Protestant that at Christ’s Second Coming the earth and its inhabitants are to be consumed with literal fire. They are led thus to give a literal interpretation to St. Peter’s symbolic statements portraying the fire of anarchy which will destroy present institutions and make way for the New Heavens and the New Earth of Messiah’s Kingdom.

They fall into this error because of another formed during the Dark Ages; namely, that the only kingdom of God that this world will ever see will be such an one as it is now enjoying, while the various so-called kingdoms of God are butchering each other. Each is trying to justify its own selfish course, and all unite in saying that the civilized nations of today are Christendom Christ’s Kingdom.

This theory began in the year 800, with Pope Leo III, since which time Catholics claim that the Church is glorified, reigning with Christ, and the Pope serving as the world’s king vicegerent, or instead of Messiah. English, German and other reformers coming out of Catholicism brought with them the same theory, which has been falsely added to the Lord’s Prayer in the words, “Thine is the Kingdom and the power and the glory forever,” which words are not found in the oldest Greek manuscripts and are properly omitted in the Revised Version.

Protestants generally, refusing the Pope as the vicegerant of Christ, are much confused when they attempt to explain the Kingdom for which they pray, “Thy Kingdom come,” and the reference in Revelation to its lasting a thousand years. Protestant preachers are becoming Higher Critics, Evolutionists, etc., and take little account of the Bible testimony. What a pity that such do not resign their pulpits and enter business life, where higher standards of honesty prevail!

WHAT TROUBLES HONEST PREACHERS

There are honest preachers who believe the Bible, yet are skeptical respecting Messiah’s Kingdom. Properly enough, these argue that if Jesus had been glorified for eighteen centuries as a Spirit Being, at the Father’s right hand, and has been preparing the Church for the Heavenly Courts, it would be a retrogression for Him to return to earth and establish an earthly kingdom with soldiers, servants, courtiers, etc. Properly they reason that for the Lord Jesus to leave the Throne of Heavenly Glory, and return to sit upon a throne of gold and ivory, would seemingly be taking a backward step.

The difficulty is that these ministers have slipped a few cogs in the great Divine Plan of the Ages. What they need yet to note in the Bible is that Christ and His Church, His Bride class, the Royal Priesthood, are the only ones of the human family promised a share in the Heavenly rewards and blessings that the Divine arrangement for the remainder of mankind is an earthly Paradise and human perfection in the Divine likeness. They fail to see that the saintly Church, gathered from the world for eighteen centuries, will compose a Spiritual Kingdom which, backed by Infinite Wisdom and Power, will better serve the world’s interests than could any earthly kingdom; and that, furthermore, the Divine Plan proves that the Ancient Worthies, from Abel down to John the Baptist, are to be resurrected perfect human beings, and made “princes in all the earth” representatives, agents, of the invisible Spiritual Kingdom then in control.

Our minds have been so long blinded by false theories, and the Bible has received so little intelligent study without sectarian glasses, that it is not surprising that we have all so seriously erred in so important a matter.

THE KINGDOM NOW IN EMBRYO

Our Lord’s many parables refer to His Church as a Kingdom class, a Royal Priesthood. This does not signify that He intended them to occupy places of honor and distinction now. The Master Himself was neither a King nor a Priest on earth. His is the Melchizedek Priesthood of the Messianic Age. Then He will also be the great King over all the earth. Well did He declare to Pilate, "My Kingdom is not of this Age" (John 18:36). As His saintly followers are to share in His Kingdom, they also must wait for its establishment. While waiting they pray, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in Heaven."

Of this Royal Priesthood the Apostle John declares, "The world knoweth us not." We are kings and priests only from the Divine standpoint, which none are able to recognize except "the brethren." Only in embryo are God's saints spoken of as the Kingdom class. They are now on probation. Jesus says that the overcomers will be granted to sit with Him in His Throne, as actual members of the Royal Priesthood, to reign with Him a thousand years. Rev. 3:21; 20:6

HE MUST REIGN UNTIL—

After telling about the resurrection of the dead, St. Paul explains that the resurrection of the Church to glory, honor and immortality will be first in the program. Subsequently all will come forth, "every man in his own order," and Christ shall reign until He shall have put down all insubordination. Other Scriptures clearly inform us that the length of His Reign will be a thousand years.

From the Bible viewpoint the Thousand-year Day of Christ is ample for the great work to which it has been consecrated by the all-wise Creator from before the foundation of the earth. Nor should we forget that all power in Heaven and earth is vested in the One who then will take the Throne. Neither should we forget that for eighteen centuries the Church has been under special preparation and instruction in the School of Christ, training for their work as a Royal Priesthood. They will be able to sympathize with the groaning creation and to be merciful, even in the administration of stripes necessary to many for their assistance along the Highway of Holiness, then opened up.

MESSIAH'S KINGDOM INVISIBLE

Some of the noblest minds have been repelled from faith in the Second Advent by the thought of an earthly Kingdom with Christ and the saints in regal state. They are quite right in thinking that earthly royalty would be beneath the dignity of Messiah and His Bride. The Scriptures declare that Jesus left His glory, humbled Himself to become a man, in order to be the great Sin-Offering for our race. But the Redeemer prayed to be glorified with the glory which He had with the Father before the world was; and He promised His Church a share in His Heavenly glory. Did He lead us to expect a Heavenly glory, Heavenly inheritance, and glorious change to Heavenly conditions, and will He give us, instead, earthly glory and merely perfection in the flesh?

How slow we have been to see that God never purposed that either Jesus or His faithful Elect should remain in the flesh. We misunderstood a few Bible statements. We read, “Every eye shall see Him,” and forget that there are eyes of understanding as well as natural eyes. We forget that Jesus declares that very few now see or hear only the saintly, whose eyes of understanding have been opened by the anointing of the holy Spirit. We forget that Jesus said, “A little while and the world seeth Me no more.” When once we discern that He has been given a spirit nature again, that He no longer has the human nature which He surrendered as a Sin-Sacrifice, then we see why the world will see Him no more, and why the Church must be changed by resurrection power before she can see Him.

I WILL COME AGAIN

Jesus left the world, not so much in the sense of going so far away that He could not see His disciples and communicate with them, but neither in the sense that He would not do so. He would compel them to “walk by faith and not by sight,” to “search the Scriptures,” and to receive the spiritual blessings through the fellowship of the Truth. By His holy Spirit, He would be with them, and not by further manifestations.

His Second Coming would be at the end of the Ages, to awaken His sleeping saints and change them to the Heavenly state. Thus He would come again and receive His Church unto Himself that the sleeping ones and subsequently those alive and remaining, who would experience their resurrection change in the moment of death. Additionally, in the Harvest with which this Age ends, He promised to take official supervision of the gathering of His Elect.

This stage of His Coming is called, in the Greek, His Parousia--His presence. The world is not to know of His Parousia. On the contrary, it is described, a secret—”as a thief in the night.” Jesus said that at His Parousia the world would be eating, drinking, planting, building, and know not of His Coming in the Harvest of the Age, even as the world in the days of Noah knew not. The intimation is, however, that some of God’s people would be aware of His Parousia; while others, the Foolish Virgins, would be overcharged with cares of this life, and know not.

If Jesus really meant it when He said, “A little while and the world seeth Me no more,” how can humanity know about the new, invisible Kingdom? The Bible answers most distinctly. It talks of the shining forth, the Epiphania, of the Messianic Kingdom. It tells of His Apokalupsis, or revelation—”He shall be revealed in flaming fire.” This flaming fire signifies severe judgments, as elsewhere. They are to be so severe that the elements of society will melt with the fervency of the heat of a terrible Time of Trouble. Additionally, “the heavens,” the ecclesiastical systems, will be involved, and will pass away with a great commotion. It is from this revealing in flaming fire, Divine censure upon the world, that the great, the high, the mighty, the poor, all, shall seek to “hide themselves in the dens and caves of the earth” in the social orders and in affiliations with strong governments, etc.

Gradually mankind will see that it is “the wrath of the Lamb” that causes the “Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation.” The plowshare of Trouble will go so deep that the world will effectively learn the lesson. As their eyes of understanding open still more widely, they will discern the beauties and blessings of the Messianic Kingdom—“the desire of all nations.”

But first The Christ, Jesus the Head and the Church the Body, Bridegroom and Bride, must enter into the glory of the Kingdom. Then will be established the earthly phase of the Kingdom under the Ancient Worthies. The world will “see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the Prophets,” but, will not see the King, nor the Bride, nor “the virgins, her companions” on the spirit plane. These will be as invisible to humanity as are Satan and his demon host at the present time.

One of our great obstacles in the past has been the failure to discern that God has been presenting two distinct salvations that of the Church to the spiritual, Heavenly, Divine nature; and that of the non-elect, through the elect Church. To them will come the opportunity of earthly Restitution to human perfection, in the image and likeness of God, as was Adam in a world-wide Paradise. Our Savior’s First Advent was necessary for the redemption of mankind. His Second Advent is for the overthrow of Satan and for the release of sinners.

FASTINGS AND FEASTINGS PROPER AND IMPROPER

Nashville, Tenn., March 14 Pastor Russell gave two addresses here today. We report the one on Matt. 6:16, “When ye fast, be not of a sad countenance.” He said in part:

The Lenten season the forty days’ fast preceding the anniversary of Jesus’ death has long been a fixed rule with some Christian people. Although not of Divine command and at most, therefore, a recommendation, the custom appeals to many. Like every other good thing, it is misunderstood and perverted by the majority, because they are not spiritually minded. To many of these it is a command, the neglect of which would bring upon them the disapprobation of friends, and the observance of which would bring them some favor from God or some relaxation from proper punishment for their sins they know not exactly what, but hope that it will mean ultimate gain somehow.

Of such perfunctory fasting, displeasing to God and valueless to the individual hypocritical fasting we give an illustration. An acquaintance who professed to observe Lent was instructed that he should drink but one cup of coffee during the Fast. He made some kind of compromise with his conscience by which he got his coffee in a bowl. He got the same amount of coffee as when he took two cups, but thought the Lord would not notice the cheat, and would reward him for such hypocritical fasting.

Nothing is more contemptible in the Lord's sight than a hypocrite. Honesty is the one quality which all who would be pleasing to God must possess, no matter how weak or fallen they may be by heredity. In His preaching Jesus condemned hypocrisy more than any other sin on the calendar perhaps as much as all other sins together. The first lesson with Christians, with everybody, should be honesty not only in monetary affairs, but in everything, including words and thoughts.

Although nothing in the Bible suggests a Lenten season, the Apostles commend fasting. St. Paul wrote, "Approving ourselves in fasting," and again, "in fastings often." (2 Cor. 6:4, 5; 11:27) Evidently fasting is in the nature of self-sacrifice not a thing commanded, but a voluntary offering of the soul to God, with a view to greater efficiency in God's service or to greater control over our imperfect mortal bodies in the interests of our spiritual new nature.

APPROPRIATE LENTEN THOUGHTS

Indeed, much may be said in favor of fasting during the Lenten season. On hygienic grounds alone it would be of advantage, particularly to all well-to-do and well-fed, if during the spring-time they would fast, or restrain themselves from eating as liberally of meats, sweets, pastry, etc., as they were inclined to eat during the colder weather eating less than their appetites crave. Boils, pimples, liver derangements, fevers and doctor bills would be greatly lessened if this course were pursued. This is the practical side of the question, which may have had to do with the original institution of the Lenten custom.

The Christian, however, may advantageously take a much deeper, spiritual meaning out of Lent. He may remember the savior's experiences for the forty days preceding His crucifixion. He may remember that it was just before His crucifixion that Jesus instituted the Lord's Supper, and indicated that date as being the proper one for its annual commemoration amongst His followers, as was the custom in the early Church. He may remember sympathetically the Redeemer's trials at this season of the year, and also remember that all the followers of Jesus covenant, agree, to share His Cup of suffering, of ignominy, of misunderstanding, of misrepresentation, of slander, of abuse, of death. He may remember that, as this was the special time of trial for Jesus, so it seems also to have been from the very first a time of special test, testing, sifting, amongst His followers.

All these various considerations might well move the true people of God to the observance of a fast during a period preceding the anniversary of their Redeemer's death. In observance such a fast such a restraint of appetite from a desire to draw especially near to God, they would certainly be contributing a share toward that end, in harmony with the Scriptural declaration, "Draw nigh unto Me, and I will draw nigh unto you."

A MODEL FAST

We have no suggestions to offer respecting the kind of food or the quantity that should be eaten. We believe that there are people in such a physically weak condition that it would be absolutely wrong for them to abstain from such nourishments as they may be able to assimilate. Heart and head should combine in determining this matter of fasting.

Daniel the Prophet gives us a hint when he tells us that for three whole weeks he ate no pleasant bread, while he especially sought the Lord in prayer respecting matters which perplexed him. In his official position he was surrounded with the best the kingdom provided. But he confined himself strictly to the things which his system absolutely needed for the maintenance of mental and physical strength; he ate nothing super-abundantly, to clog his system, to make him sluggish in mind and body, and to incapacitate him from his routine work and, additionally, for his special prayers for wisdom. We can all take a good lesson from this Scriptural example.

Jesus did not teach His disciples to follow the custom of fasting. The matter was remarked, some saying, "John the Baptist and his disciples fast," and the Pharisees, etc., fast, "but Jesus' disciples fast not." In Answer--to the question, Why not? Jesus replied that it was not the appropriate time. Instead of a fast, they were having a feast. The Bridegroom was with them. They knew no sorrow, no care. All their wants were provided for; they were drinking at the Fountain of Divine Truth and grace; they were eating freely of the wonderful words of eternal life, and accordingly they did not fast, as others.

This does not mean, however, that they lived sumptuously; for we remember that on two occasion, after Jesus had fed a multitude on plain bread and fish, miraculously increased, He directed His disciples to gather up the fragments; and these they carried with them as their own food supply for many days. This was a practical fasting, though not an outward one. Jesus declared that the days would come when the Bridegroom would be gone; and He said, "In those days they shall fast." (Matt. 9:15) Their days of fasting and prayer began as soon as the Lord was crucified, and have continued ever since, whether outwardly observed in a lenten fashion, or whether known only to themselves in their own hearts. All the followers of Jesus have practiced fasting, self-denial; else surely they would not have prospered in spirituality.

THE CHRISTIAN'S PERPETUAL FEAST

It is a mistake to suppose that fasting applies merely to food; it really applies to everything. In its broadest sense, it signifies self-denial denial of the desires of the flesh, to the intent that the spiritual nature may be the more thoroughly strengthened. The Apostle clearly shows this in his suggestion that husbands and wives occasionally live apart, that they may give themselves the more thoroughly to prayer and consideration of spiritual things. (1 Cor. 7:5) The true Christian will really live a life of self-denial every day. He will remember the Apostle's words, "If ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the desires of the flesh ye shall live." Such mortification of the flesh, such self-denials of the various appetites or inclinations of the flesh in the interest of the new nature, are all fastings.

The ideal condition for Christians, of course, would be to maintain a perpetual fast to live always in so abstemious a manner as would keep them spiritually in the best condition and make them the most efficient in the Lord's service. Where this highest ideal seems impossible or unattainable, then the next thing in order would be as close an approach to this as seems possible not of Divine command, for there is none, but of his own free will sacrificing himself, his fleshly appetites and propensities, in the interest of his own spiritual development and that of his service of the Lord.

"Appear not unto men to fast." Our Lord's instructions were that His followers should not make a sham of their fasting should not boast of their self-sacrifice and self-denials. Those matters should be between God and themselves. Instead of making their countenances sad-looking and appearing to men to crave sympathy, they should contrariwise take special care that none might notice outwardly washing their faces, anointing their heads and generally looking cheerful, happy. Indeed, the true Christian, who fasts in the proper manner and with the proper sentiment, will not need to feign happiness; for his portion will be the joy of the Lord, and "the peace of God, which passeth all understand, will rule in his heart."

The Scriptural proposition seems to be that the Lord's people will fast, or practice self-restraint, along the lines of physical conditions, food, etc., in order that they may feast along the lines of spiritual conditions and refreshments. The whole tenor of Scripture is to the effect that the followers of Christ are spiritually advantaged by allowing the mind of the Spirit, the holy mind, the holy Spirit of God, to rule in their mortal bodies to the restraining of their natural inclinations, tastes, preferences, appetites, which the Scriptures declare are all vitiated more or less by heredity by our sense of the alienation from God and the curse in which we share naturally.

St. Paul voices this sentiment in the words, "The flesh desires against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other, so that ye cannot do the things that ye would." Thus, as the Bible tells us, the Christian is continually at warfare, not with carnal weapons, and not with his neighbors or family, but with himself his new nature warring a good warfare against his old nature. In this conflict he is to come off an overcomer: and his victory will not be complete until he is actually dead according to the flesh, until, as a New Creature, he shall have experienced the blessings of the resurrection to the perfection of the spiritual nature.

FEASTING WHILE FASTING

The unregenerate might not unreasonably gain the impression that if this presentation be true, a Christian's life would be a very unhappy one continually battling with himself, continually watching, practicing self-denial and striving against the natural tendencies of sin. But such a conclusion would be very erroneous; for really the Christian alone has the true secret of a happy life. Even the worldly recognize the fact that they need to practice self-restraint, and that whosoever would sow to the flesh and live after the desires of his fallen nature would be sure to go from bad to worse, and end his career ignobly.

Hence we find noble women amongst the unregenerate, not begotten again of the holy Spirit, but nevertheless manifesting strong characters and great moderation in the affairs of life. They practice such self-restraints, not toward God, but for self-interest, learning by experience and observation the necessity for this if life would be made a blessing to themselves and to others. Such characters should be, and are, highly respected, honorable. But the unfavorably born, unfavorable environed are not so likely to reach noble standards as are the better-born, better-environed.

Hence those who become Christians of the true type have an advantage every way over others. They do all as unto the Lord. Although they also perceive the advantages coming to themselves along natural lines through self-restraints, they see and appreciate still more the life everlasting beyond and the Divine favor leading thereto. This Message, coming to all who have ears to hear it through the Bible, has a power and gives encouragement to the weak as well as to the strong, to the naturally mean as well as to the nobler. It assures them of Divine mercy and interest in their welfare that God's love has provided a satisfaction for His justice on behalf of all, so that the merit of Christ, imputed to each according to need, makes it possible to respond to the Gospel Call onward and upward as New Creatures.

So great is the joy, the peace, the happiness, which comes with the realization that we have been accepted into God's family and are joint-heirs with His Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, that nothing else can compare with it. No wonder St. Paul describes such, saying that to them "old things have passed away, and all things have become new!" (2 Cor. 5:17) Instead of earthly hopes for earthly wealth, name and fame, they have Heavenly hopes for Heavenly riches, glory and honor. Instead of aspirations of but a temporary kind for political preferment and honor of men, these have before their minds God's promises exceeding great and precious. These assure them that faithfulness in present trials and difficulties, and the proving of their loyalty to God and the principles of His righteousness, will through Christ bring them eventually to glory, honor and immortality to participation with Jesus in His Millennial Kingdom.

With such hopes, such prospects, such promises, life is worth living; all things are indeed new. Those attaining this vantage-ground can, with the Apostle, count all earthly things comparatively valueless. To these, fastings, self-denials, self-restraints, even privations and persecutions, have no terror. They rejoice in these, assured by the Bible that they are signs of their relationship to God, and that He is dealing with them as with sons whom He is educating, fitting, polishing and testing, preparatory to receiving them to the Heavenly glory.

This class have a charmed life, regardless of what the world may think. Theirs is the peace of God which passeth all understanding; for they have the Divine assurance that since they have come into God's family through the appointed Door-way, the Lord Jesus Christ, "All things are theirs, richly to enjoy;" and again that "all things shall work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to His Purpose." These realize that God, having begun a good work in them, is both able and willing to perfect it until the Day of Christ. (Phil. 1:6) These are seeking to make their calling and election sure; and so great is their appreciation and their increasing knowledge that the trials and difficulties by the way the fastings, self-denials and oppositions of the Adversary are but light afflictions, not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in them.

Even the prayers of this class gradually change. No longer do they think of praying merely for food, raiment and earthly things. Rather, they accept whatever may be God's providence for them with thanksgiving. Their prayers are mostly offerings of praise, mentions of Divine mercies already received, expressions of confidence in God, and requests for more of His Spirit, whatever this may mean in the way of greater trials or difficulties or persecutions; for they desire that the will of God may be completed in them.

In conclusion, we recommend true fasting, true disciplining, true coercion of the will of the flesh, on the part of all men, as necessary for their mental, moral and intellectual maintenance and development. And especially do we commend abstinences, self-denials, restraints, to those who have consecrated their lives to God, to walk in the footsteps of Jesus. But we reprehend all hypocrisy and sham, whether associated with Lent or fasting or any other matter, as being an abomination in the sight of God and discreditable to noble men and women, and particularly inappropriate to those who would follow the Lamb of God the Savior.

HAIL HIM! HAIL HIM! HAIL HIM! EARTHS, NEW SOVEREIGN

New York City, March 28 Pastor Russell spoke today at New York City Temple, W. 63rd Street, near Broadway. We report his address from the text, "Hosanna! Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord." (Mark 11:9) The Pastor spoke in part as follows:

Little did the Jews understand the vast importance to them of the event which Christians commemorate on Palm Sunday. It will be remembered that this event occurred at the close of our Lord's earthly ministry three and one-half years after His baptism at Jordan and five days before His crucifixion. The Sabbath had been spent in rest at Bethany. Lazarus, whom Jesus had awakened from the sleep of death, had, with his sisters Martha and Mary, prepared a banquet for Jesus; and when the Sabbath closed, the supper was eaten.

It was at that time that Mary brought forth the box of valuable perfume, and therewith anointed our Lord's head and feet. It was the same occasion on which Judas had murmured against this expression of her loving devotion, declaring that it was wasteful, that the money should have been given to the poor. It was then that the Master had defended Mary and announced that the anointing was for His burial, which occurred later in the same week. It was then that He suggested to the disciples, “The poor ye have always with you; and whensoever ye will may do them good. But Me ye have not always.”

The next morning, the first day of the week, corresponding to our Sunday, Jesus made ready for His triumphal entry into the city of Jerusalem as the King of Israel, according to the custom of their kings riding upon an ass and acclaimed by the populace. The incident had been foretold by the Prophet in detail, saying, “Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Shout, O daughter of Jerusalem! Behold thy King cometh unto thee; He is just, and having salvation; lowly and riding upon an ass.” Zec. 9:9

PROPHECY MUST BE FULFILLED

When the Apostles had brought the ass and when Jesus sat thereon, the large concourse of people that had come from Jerusalem to see Jesus because of His awakening Lazarus, shouted aloud. They were filled with enthusiasm; and, after the manner of the time, some broke off palm branches and others laid their garments in the way, thus forming a carpet, as it were, in the road leading to Jerusalem. The shout of the people was just as the Prophet had declared. They hailed Jesus as the promised Son of David, the Messiah long waited for.

On previous occasions, when the people had sought to make Jesus a king, and after witnessing His marvelous works, He withdrew Himself from them until their ardor should cool; for He knew that the Father’s due time had not yet come. But now He knew that His hour was come; and therefore He helped on with the enthusiasm by sending for the ass, etc.

Prominent sectarian Jews who were present, although unable to account for the miracle of the awakening of Lazarus from the dead, were unprepared to think of Jesus as the true Messiah or anything short of an impostor in that role. When these heard the multitude shouting and addressing Jesus, as the Messiah, they were offended, and sent word to Jesus that He should restrain the ignorant people who were thus acclaiming him. But instead of forbidding the ovation, Jesus intimated that it was the proper thing; that because the Prophet Zechariah had said, “Shout, O daughter of Jerusalem!” therefore there must be a shout; and that if the people had not shouted, the very stones would have cried out rather than that the prophecy should go unfulfilled.

En route to Jerusalem, Jesus halted the ass and the procession at the top of the Mount of Olives; overlooking the Holy City. He wept while He pronounced His sentence upon it Unworthy! Unappreciative! As Jesus declared, “Israel knew not the time of their visitation.” The time had come for Israel to receive the King; and not only were they ignorant of the matter collectively, but they were not in the heart condition to understand or appreciate. There Jesus cried, "O Jerusalem, that killest the Prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee! How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings; and ye would not!" (Matt. 23:37) For three and one-half years He and His faithful Apostles had been declaring that the Kingdom of God was at hand, that the people should repent and believe the Good Tidings; and even six months in advance of their preaching, John the Baptist and his disciples had declared the same message.

After those four years of faithful preaching throughout the length and the breadth of Palestine, the nation was apparently as unprepared for Jesus as at the first. Hence our Lord's words, "Therefore I say unto you, Your House is left unto you desolate! Ye shall see Me no more until that day when ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord!" That day is almost here! But the Jewish nation was there cast off from fellowship with God; as the Lord declared, "They knew not the time of their visitation." Luke 19:44

For more than eighteen centuries Israel has been outcast from national favor. Thank God the day is at hand when, at the Second Coming of Messiah, His Kingdom shall be turned over to them! Then, as He declares, they will be glad to say, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord!" The long centuries of persecution and separation from Divine favor will have brought that people to a humbler condition of heart, where they will be glad to receive of Divine grace upon Divine terms. To this great event St. Paul refers us in Rom. 11:27:34

Although God foreknew all that had happened, the offer of the Kingdom to Israel was just as bona-fide, just as genuine, as though He had not known. God always does His part. Whatever failure there is in any matter of contract belongs to humanity.

If thus we have before our minds the origin of Palm Sunday and what it signified as the climax of the test of Natural Israel in respect to Messiah, we are prepared to go further and to note that in God's providence there is a similar test for us Christians.

ENEMIES FOR YOUR SAKES

St. John emphasized particularly the fact that the rejection of Messiah did not apply to all the individuals of that nation. As the Prophet had foretold (Rom. 11:27-33), there was a small, faithful section, or "remnant." This remnant accepted Christ and were accepted by Him. On the day of Pentecost this class became the nucleus or foundation of Spiritual Israel. Thus we read, "He came unto His own (nation), and His own received Him not [as a nation]; but to as many as received Him, to them gave He liberty [privilege] to become sons of God, even to them that believed on His name; which were begotten not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God” at Pente cost. John 1:11-13

Thus, so far as the spiritual part of God’s great Promise to Abraham is concerned, it has passed from the Jewish nation; but there still remains for them a glorious earthly portion, to which they will be introduced at our Lord’s Second Coming. Then their sins will be cancelled; and as a people the Hebrews will return to Divine favor and will inherit the earthly features of the Promise made to their fathers. Then through them God’s blessing will be extended to all nations and peoples under Israel’s New Covenant (Jer. 31:31-34), which will become operative at the hands of their great Mediator The Christ, the Messiah in glory. But by that time the election of the saints of this Gospel Age will be complete; and The Messiah in glory will include Jesus the Head and the Church His Body joint-heirs with Him in the spiritual features of the Abrahamic Promise. Gal. 3:8, 16, 29

All this is clearly stated by the Apostle in Rom. 11:25-32. But somehow our eyes of understanding as Christians have been holden so that until of late, we have not seen these lengths and breadths, these heights and depths, of Divine Love and Wisdom. The fact that now we see these things is a corroborative evidence that they are nigh at hand. Just so it was at our Lord’s First Advent. Many things pertaining to that day were completely hidden until the time of their fulfillment came; and then only the “Wise Virgins” were so blessed, so assisted, that they trimmed their Lamps (Psa. 119:105), and were effectively enabled to see these beauties in the Divine Plan of the Ages.

THE TIME OF OUR VISITATION

Apparently very few of the people of God have, until recently, noted the fact that Spiritual Israel has had a history parallel to that of Natural Israel. Few have seen that throughout the Scriptures these are dealt with as type and antitype. Few have noticed that from the death of Jacob to the death of Jesus finds it exact parallel of 1,845 1/4 years between the death of Jesus and our day. Few have noticed that in both cases there have been a nominal and a real Israel. The nominal Jewish system was tried, and all but the “Israelites indeed” failed. Likewise will be the experience of Spiritual Israel.

The nominal Christian system will be tried, and all will fail except the spirit-begotten and faithful. As at the First Advent only a remnant, a small number, were found in the proper condition, so, the Scriptures clearly intimate, at the end of the Gospel Age only a small number will be found sufficiently saintly, zealous and loyal to God and the principles of His Truth to be graduated with first honors.

As at the close of the Jewish Age there was a special period of testing and trying, lasting forty years, so there is a special sifting and testing due to come to Christendom during the closing forty years of this Gospel Age, before the inauguration of the glorious Millennial blessings. As the trials and tests came upon the Jews in a subtle manner, to test their faith and obedience, so even more subtle will be the trials and testings connected with the Harvest of the Gospel Age. Of this time the Lord through the Prophet said, "Who may abide the Day of His presence, and who shall stand when He appeareth? for He is like a refiner's fire and like fullers' soap; and He shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and He shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord acceptable sacrifices." Mal. 3:2, 3

BOTH THE HOUSES OF ISRAEL

Natural and Spiritual Israel are contrasted. Through the Prophet the Lord foretold that Messiah would be "for a Stone of Stumbling and for a Rock of Offense to both the Houses of Israel" to Natural Israel and to Spiritual Israel.(Isa. 8:14) We have seen how the first House stumbled on that Palm Sunday commemorated today. They stumbled "because they knew not the day of their visitation." They did not know that the time had come for the election of the Kingdom class, hence they were not alert to their privileges, and failed to be in the proper condition of heart to receive the blessings. Or we might state the matter reversely and say that those who did not recognize and accept Messiah were those whose hearts were not in the right condition; else they would not have been left in darkness. 1 Thess. 5:4

Many things indicate to us that we are now living in a time corresponding to that Palm Sunday! Many things imply that Christendom is now undergoing its great test, and that only the fully consecrated of heart and life will be accepted of the Lord as His Jewels (Mal. 3:17), and be granted a share with Christ in His Millennial Kingdom. Many things imply that we are now in the time when the true people of God are being divided into two classes, as pictured for us by our Lord in the parable of the Wise and the Foolish Virgins. As only the Wise Virgins were prepared to enter into the marriage, so only the consecrated ones will be accepted as fit for the Kingdom and granted a share in the glorious resurrection change which will precede the culmination of the Time of Trouble, in which the Foolish Virgin class, although not of the world, will participate with the world.

True, that great Time of Trouble will usher in the glorious Millennial Dispensation, in which the Church in glory with the great Redeemer will pour out upon all mankind the wonderful restitution blessings promised by the mouth of all the holy Prophets.(Acts 3:19-21) True, the Foolish Virgins may subsequently get the oil, and subsequently may have a glorious future; but they will lose the choice place of Divine favor and blessing. They cannot be of the Bride class, but will receive their blessings under the figure of “the virgins her companions that follow her.” Psa. 45:14

It is in order for all of God’s people who now get awake from the slumber of worldliness which has long stupefied them, to join hearts and voices in a great shout the shout that the Kingdom is at hand!

SEE THAT YE REFUSE NOT HIM

As the Jewish nation was not ready to receive Jesus as their King, on that first Palm Sunday, neither is Christendom now ready to receive Him at His Second Advent. As then, only the “Israelites indeed,” in whom there was no guile, knew the voice of the Shepherd, so will it be here an individual matter. The Laodicean period of the Church’s history is upon us. (Rev. 3:17) The nominalism of our day is fully portrayed in our Lord’s words to the Messenger of the Church at Laodicea. Christendom boasts that she is rich and increased in goods, and has need of nothing; she knows not that she is poor, miserable, blind and naked.

The Lord now stands at the door and knocks. He reveals Himself to the “Israelites indeed.” Ours is a Palm Sunday in the highest possible sense. How are we receiving the great blessings which betoken the Parousia of the Master? Do we hear His knock? Are we searching His Word, listening for His voice and seeking to know His will in all things, that we may do it? To all such will come very shortly we believe, the greater and fuller Pentecostal blessing the resurrection change from the glory of character merely to the glory of persons as well when we shall see our Redeemer as He is and shall share His glory. 1 John 3:1, 2

As St. Paul says, “See that ye reject not Him that speaketh from Heaven!” Greater light, greater privilege, greater blessing every where, are ours than were those enjoyed by the Jews at our Lord’s First Advent. These privileges and blessings are our tests. Let us be faithful. Let us present our bodies a living sacrifice, and with renewed zeal seek to glorify our Lord in our bodies and our spirits, which are His, 1 Cor. 6:20

Those who have eyes to see and ears to appreciate the Voice now speaking from Heaven should be alert to hail Him Lord of all to accept Him as their Redeemer and King and to present themselves voluntarily to Him and His service not waiting for the time when He shall reveal Himself in power and great glory to the world in general. The Lord is now looking for saints, for overcomers, valiant, faithful, persevering, thoroughly devoted to Him and His Cause of Righteousness, thoroughly opposed to sin, and especially active in overcoming its domination in their own hearts, in their own minds, in their own bodies. Such the Master pictures as His joint-heirs, priestly kings, sitting with Himself in His Throne of glory and world-wide dominion.

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--What should we understand by the following: "The wages of sin is death, the gift of God is eternal life?" If sin, merits death, should not righteousness merit life? I notice it says life is a gift, not merited.

Answer--There are none of the human race who of themselves merit eternal life because all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. All are partakers in the results of the fall, and consequently are on that account out of relationship with God. Only Jesus the harmless one undefiled and separate from sinners possessed life because he was, indeed, righteous. If then anyone else gains life it must be by some other means than personal merit. And this is so, for faith in Jesus is the God-provided way for all who will pass from death to life. Thus we see the Scriptures truly say, "The gift (free gift) of God is eternal life."

Q.--Please explain Heb. 11:40: "God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect."

Answer--The Apostle in this chapter is recording the names of some of those who lived in the previous ages, and had demonstrated their faith in God under adverse conditions. As a reward for their obedience they were promised a better resurrection (verse 35), and although they received a good report through their faith they have not as yet received what was promised (verse 39), because God will first perfect the Church of this age in the first and best resurrection Christ's Resurrection to share with him the Divine nature (2 Pet. 1:4). Then through the Church the Ancient Worthies will be brought forth from the dead, by an instantaneous resurrection to human perfection a better resurrection than that of the world, who will be gradually raised to human perfection if obedient during the Millennium (Acts 3:21, Ezek. 33:15,16).

Q.--What is a New Creature in the sense the Bible uses the term?

Answer--A New Creature, from the spiritual standpoint, is one to whom old things both good and bad have passed away, and all things have become new. Such a one may have been a noble, natural man, or a less noble, or a most degraded natural man. The change may take place regardless of the moral station of the individual. Reasonings and philosophies may and do affect the natural man, sometimes favorably and sometimes unfavorably, but these do not produce the change from natural to spiritual, from earthly to heavenly, nature. This change comes from only one source, and only to persons in one condition of mind, or heart. It comes from on high. It is superhuman and in its effect it is revolutionary. It comes to those who, because of natural humility of mind, realize themselves to be sinners, and with natural conscientiousness and veneration, desire to approach their Creator and to obtain his favor and forgiveness of sins, and who thus are led to accept Christ as their personal Savior and Deliverer from sin. Or it may come to others naturally less tender of heart, through sorrows and sufferings and heart-breaking experiences, leading them to look for the Friend above all others and to accept his proffered forgiveness and guidance. These experiences, accompanied by a turning from sin, with a desire to live soberly and righteously, bring such characters to the place which the Scriptures designate justification by faith. Still, however, they are not New Creatures. The word justification implies making right and does not imply making over, or a change of nature. It is the human nature that is justified or reckoned right in God's sight, because of faith in the precious blood of Jesus the Redeemer. Another step must be taken before the change of nature can take place the step of consecration, of devoting life, time, aims, ambitions, all, to the Lord and to His service. It is to such only that the blessing of the Holy Spirit from above is granted. Its effect is the opening of the eyes of their understanding to new hopes and prospects and interests not earthly, but heavenly.

EVOLUTION OF SEX IN THE MILLENNIUM

Quotation From Tabernacle Shadows Gives View That The Sexes Will Merge

A week ago the question was raised in the Twin City Ecclesia after Sunday afternoon meeting as to whether the subject of a blending of the sexes in the Millennium was believable, and an interesting discussion ensued. On the following Sunday the following editorial appeared in the St. Paul "Pioneer Press." The last lines of its third paragraph being especially significant. We note in full: It is a fascinating picture which Arnold Bennet paints of the lot of European women after the war is over; not alluring because it means hardship and privation, not pathetic because it means a new inspiration; a new effort a new strength.

A Shortage of some millions of young men when the conflict ceases is reducible, of course, to a shortage of practically as many husbands. The industrial effect will appear in a forward surge of women in the occupations formerly monopolized by the other sex. The sociological effect will be the elimination of the weaker and less attractive of womankind from the business of procreation. Politically “the struggle between men and women will be concluded in favor of women.”

Before the break of the war, Europe had been the breeding place of all those advanced ideas concerning woman’s social status which were grouped under the head of feminism. America has thought of suffrage as an unnatural dragging of tender womanhood into the rude stench of politics. Europe has thought of it as an entering wedge to a social revolution involving not only a political but an economic and even a biological change in the status of woman.

No historical cataclysm within the purview of man’s imagination could be better designed to furnish the soil for the sprouting seed of feministic revolution than the present war. It has crushed the male. It has opened the gate of opportunity to the female. It has soothed away the bitterness of both. Feminism is either about to realize its aspirations or to be drawn under the current of masculine domination forever.

There seems to be a number of friends who are not aware that this thought of the blending of the sexes in the millennium is definitely presented by Pastor Russell. It is to be found at the end of Chapter 6 of Tabernacle Shadows, beginning page 100.

Q.--Harmonize Luke 16:9 with James 4:4.

Answer--The first of these references is from the parable of the unjust steward, and is in no way in conflict with St. James’ exhortation to the disciples to “love not the world.” While the parable was addressed to the disciples, it is apparent from the following verses that its lesson was especially intended for the Pharisees. They were the interpreters of the Mosaic Law and held responsible positions in the nation both on this account and because of their wealth. The suggestion of this text to them would be that they make light the burdens of the people that when the Jewish Law dispensation would shortly come to an end and all the Jewish polity be wiped out in the time of trouble, they might find themselves still provided for through the kindness of the friends thus made. The same principle was applied by the disciples when they, instead of loving the things of this world and desiring them for themselves, followed in the Master’s footsteps of sacrifice, giving up all earthly hopes and prospects for the privileges of the eternal, heavenly habitations. There are no other terms of discipleship except those stated by our Master: "And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple. So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple" (Luke 14:27, 33). Only by forgetting those things which are behind and pressing toward the things which are before can we have God's friendship.

Q.--What became of Adam when he died did he go to heaven or hell?

Answer--We may be sure Adam did not go to heaven at death, because 3,000 years later Jesus said, "No man hath ascended up to heaven" (John 3:13). The judgment, or sentence of death was passed upon Adam by the Lord, who said, "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:19). This judgment of death was gradually enforced during a period of 930 years by access being denied to the life giving food in Eden (see Gen. 3:23,24), at the end of which time Adam was completely dead. He therefore went into the death condition. He went to Hell not the hell of the Dark Ages, which has been represented as a lake of fire and brimstone but to the hell of the Bible, which word is translated from the Hebrew word sheol and the Greek word hades, and properly translated into the English word grave, tomb, or state of death. Likewise all of Adam's children, inheriting this death sentence, have followed him, at death, to the tomb. The entire race would have been exterminated had it not been that God provided for the redemption and resurrection of the race through Christ Jesus, who gave his life that we might have life.

Q.--Is there some feature of the Atonement yet to be accomplished seeing Christ gave himself a ransom for all to be testified in due time?

Answer--Not until all the works of the devil have been destroyed will every feature of the atonement have been accomplished, and then all the inhabitants of the earth will be in harmony with God. Jesus Christ has given himself a ransom for all. "He is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world" (1 John 2:2). Apparently as yet the ransom has only been applied on behalf of the Church class, because only those have received a blessing. The feature of the atonement now in operation is "taking out of the Gentiles a people for his name," who are to be joint-heirs with our Lord to sit with him in his throne of judgment and take part in his future work of blessing all the families of the earth. After the people for his name are taken out he is to return and "build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down... that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord who doeth all these things” (Acts 15:14-17). At present the great majority are unable to exercise faith in God because of the clashing creeds, and Satan blinding the minds of them that believe not; but when the kingdom is established the Lord will “destroy the covering cast over all the people and the veil that is spread over all nations.... It shall be said in that day, ”Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us... we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation” (Isa. 25:6-9). That will be the due time for the testimony to the mass of mankind, “When the spirit and the Bride shall say come, and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely.” (Rev. 22:17).

Q.--What do you think would be the cause of Mary Magdalene’s failure to recognize the Lord after his resurrection? John 20:15.

Answer--Christ was put to death in flesh, but quickened (made alive) in spirit (1 Pet. 3:18). He gave his flesh for the life of the world, so could not take back his human body and give the world the benefit as well. When our Lord rose from the dead, he was no longer the man Christ Jesus. Since then he is Lord of the dead and the living. Each time he manifested himself to his disciples, he materialized, appearing instantaneously in their midst. When he appeared to Mary in the garden she mistook him for the gardener, and it was only when he mentioned her name, that she realized who he was recognizing his voice and address rather than his outward appearance. It was just as easy for Jesus to appear as a gardener, or as a stranger on the way to Emmaus, as it was for him to appear like the Jesus they had known in the flesh. No doubt these different manifestations were given the disciples for the very purpose of protecting them from the mistaken thought that he still had with him the flesh which would have made impossible his entrance into the heavenly kingdom (1 Cor. 15:50).

Q.--Is the world growing worse? If not what does the Apostle Paul mean by the words, “Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived?” 2 Tim. 3:13.

Answer--In some respects the world was never better than it is to-day. We know of no time in history when the public press so fearlessly and boldly exposed wrong-doing as now. Education has helped to bring about a better moral condition. Of course a great deal of this morality is on the surface, as it was in the closing days of the Jewish Age, when Jesus told the chief religionists that they were whited walls, outwardly beautiful, but inwardly corrupt. The Apostle, in the Scripture to which you refer, evidently had in mind the deceivers and leaders astray in the Church. These, in the end of the Age, will become more bold; as foretold, their deceptions will become strong delusions, following which many will believe a lie (2 Thess. 2:2). “They shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils” (1 Tim. 4:1). Many theological teachers today are denying the Bible and advancing strong arguments in favor of Higher Criticism, Evolution, etc., thus growing worse and worse in repudiating the “faith once delivered to the saints” (Jude 3,4), “deceiving and being themselves deceived.”

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--Can you harmonize 1 Cor. 1:26-29, which states that not many are called, with Rev. 22:17, which says that whosoever will may come?

Answer--The former refers to the Gospel Age, when God is visiting the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name a Bride for the Lamb (Acts 15:14). This is a “high calling” (Phil 3:14), by a narrow way which only few find (Matt. 7:14). The latter text will not be applicable until the next age. When the Bride Class is complete the Messianic reign will begin in order to give “the residue of men” (Acts 15:17), Adam and all his descendants, an opportunity to drink of the water of life; this opportunity being purchased for all when Jesus gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time when those who sleep in death are awakened by his power. The calling involves so much that few are ready to accept the invitation. It is a calling to joint-heirship with Jesus, but to share his glory each of the called ones must walk in the same narrow way of sacrifice that he trod, each must lay aside his own pleasure and seek to please the Father only.

Q.--Since the entire human race originated from Adam, how can we account for the different colors? When Columbus discovered America, he found it inhabited with Indians. Can you give some light as to when and how they came?

Answer--There are two reasons for not answering your questions; you have not given your name and address, and the questions are not strictly Scriptural. However, many people seem to think these difficulties sufficient grounds for disbelief in the Bible. We trust our reply may be of assistance if you are one of these. Climate, food and environment have much to do with personal appearance. In a number of instances, persons who have resided for a time in foreign lands, mingling with the people and eating their foods, have returned later to their native land looking like the races with which they have associated. If so much is accomplished in a few years, there can be little doubt as to the results of such isolation as the races experienced up until the invention of the present modes of travel. Some have guessed as to the ancestry of the American Indians, but we do not know of any good that has been accomplished by their guesses.

Q.—(a) Did Jesus have more power as a perfect man than Adam would have had, had he not sinned? (b) Did Jesus possess more power after his consecration? (c) Were all the miracles which our Lord performed, AFTER his consecration?

Answer—(a) It appears that Jesus did have more power than any perfect man would have, for he states “the works that I do I do not of myself but the Father that dwelleth in me, he does the works” (John 14:10). Special powers were needed and given to him of God that he might accomplish the work given him to do as man’s Redeemer. He had as his purpose in the First Advent not only the giving of his life for the life of the world, but also the witnessing which would begin the drawing out from among mankind a special class to be associated with him when the work of raising up the world would commence. By exercising miraculous powers he awakened the faith of those who were called of the Father to joint-heirship with him. (b) All these added powers came after Jesus’ consecration. (c) There is extant a book which purports to be an account of Jesus’ life and miracles before his consecration. It does not give any evidence of being authentic. We do not think any miracles were performed by Jesus before his consecration.

Q.—“For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost; and these three are one” (1 John 5:7). Please explain the Holy Ghost and how they are one.

Answer--This, the only text in the Bible which states that the Father, Son and Holy Ghost are one, is now known to be spurious. For this reason it is omitted from modern translations. When the King James translation was made only a few manuscripts of the Bible were available. Since that time several hundred have been discovered and some of these are quite ancient ones. The passage which you quote is lacking in all of the older manuscripts. In fact none earlier than the fifth century contains it, nor is it referred to by any theological writers before that time even when they were discussing the subject of the Trinity. As there is no other verse in the Bible to support the Trinitarian doctrine, it is quite evident that they would not have failed to use this verse had it been in the Bible at that time. As it would be unrighteous for us to add to the Word of God, it is our evident duty to refuse to make use of passages which others have added, no difference how long ago they were added or how generally they are accepted. It would seem very incongruous to think that it was necessary for anybody to bear a witness in heaven, for surely the angels of heaven, none of them need to be witnessed to regarding the heavenly Father whom they have known from the day of their creation.

Q.--What would be your thought regarding the four winds being let loose (Rev. 7:1)? How would it affect the Lord's truly consecrated people? Will they be loosed before the Church passes beyond the veil?

Answer--This text seems to be an allusion to God's purpose that the revolution and anarchy to come at the close of the present Age should be held back until the full number predestinated to make up the Bride of Christ shall have been selected. Apparently there will be some who might have been of this elect class, but who fail of attaining their positions because they wait until the breaking of this trouble before turning from worldly alliances to full loyalty to God (Matt. 24:20,21). Whether the faithful sacrificers will be here or not during that period of anarchy is of little consequence to them for they have the definite assurance that no harm can come nigh their dwelling place. They need not fear "for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday" (Psa. 91:6). We do not know of any Scripture that could be taken as a positive indication that the Church will or will not be in the flesh during a portion of this time of revolution. The troubles experienced by the Church will be for their benefit, for "through much tribulation shall ye enter into the Kingdom of God."

Q.--Is it not true that a Christian should expect business prosperity as a result of his high Christian standards?

Answer--Our Lord did say, "Seek ye first (as of primary importance) the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things (food, raiment, etc.,) shall be added unto you;" but note that the Lord does not say his followers shall have as much or more of these temporal things than others. He declared at another time, "Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of." The implication is that to those who have put their matters entirely in the Lord's hands by a full consecration of all they possess, their every talent, their every opportunity, and who are thus seeking to please God and obtain the kingdom inheritance which he has promised to those he will give earthly good things according to his wisdom, those things which would bring the disciples the highest measure of blessing as new creatures; those that would prepare them and assist them best to attain a share in the kingdom. Whatever of earthly good things would be a hindrance to their chief aim and desire in life this class would not intentionally choose. Hence it is for them to be glad the matter is entirely out of their hands and entirely in the Lord's hands. This class may even rejoice in tribulation, knowing that tribulation worketh experience, patience, hope, and will ultimately make them not ashamed, because it will be God's method of chastening and polishing them for a share in the Kingdom.

Q.--The command was given Moses that the Amalekites were to be destroyed. Why were they permitted to live almost 400 years (Ex. 17:14; 1 Sam. 15:3)?

Answer--As to why so long a delay, we may merely conjecture, basing our surmises upon the Lord's dealings with nations. For instance, when the Lord told Abraham that his posterity would come ultimately into the land of Canaan and receive it as their possession from the Lord, the declaration is made, "In the fourth generation they shall come hither again; for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet full" (Gen. 15:16.) The intimation is that, although the Lord foreknew when and how the iniquity of the Amorites would increase, he allowed them to have the full benefit of time to demonstrate actually the downwardness of their course. This same thought is set before us by the Apostle in his opening chapters of the Epistle to the Romans, in which he specifically declares that the degradation of the world is due neither to the direct acts of the Almighty nor to his failure to safeguard his creatures. Adam, the only one of our race directly created, was perfect, upright, the image of his Creator, and his sin was a willful one; for the Apostle says, "Adam was not deceived" (1 Tim. 2:14.) Likewise the Lord has not inflicted punishment upon our race for their degeneration; but as the Apostle explained, "When they knew God they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their reasoning and their foolish hearts were darkened. Even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not fitting" (Rom. 1:21-28). This seems to be the course which the Lord has pursued with the entire human family except the one nation of Israel, with which he undertook to deal specially under the Law Covenant, to use them as a typical people, to prepare them for Messiah's coming, when they would furnish the nucleus of the Restitution Class. Certain great catastrophes of the past are explained to us in the Scriptures along these lines inflicted with a view to preventing the race from going into further degradation on the principle enunciated, "Thus far shalt thou go but no further."

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--If death is the gateway from earth to heaven why does the Apostle Paul speak of it as an enemy in 1 Cor. 15:26?

Answer--Death is not the gateway to heaven, but the gateway to the tomb, and a state of unconsciousness (Psa. 6:5; 115:17; Eccl. 9:5). The gateway to heaven is through the "Resurrection," and the Apostle is showing that if there is to be no resurrection, there will be no hereafter (1 Cor. 15:18). But the resurrection of the dead is made possible through the death and resurrection of Christ. We get our reward at the resurrection (Luke 14:14). Death is an enemy, and will hold its victims until such time as our Lord returns, when he must reign to put all enemies under his feet, and death is one of those enemies.

Q.--If the eternal torment theory be not correct, where are the dead who die out of the Lord?

Answer--The Scriptures most positively state that the dead are DEAD! All who have died are fallen asleep, i. e., they are in the death state or condition, waiting for the Lord at his second advent to call them forth from their graves by his resurrection power (John 5:28,29). That the dead in Christ even are unconscious until the resurrection is taught in 1 Cor. 15:16-18. The thought in this last cited passage is that the dead remain in their present condition until they are raised from the dead. If there were to be no resurrection, they would, of course, remain in the "perished" state. Since Christ Jesus has been raised, death is now termed a sleep, because an awakening in the resurrection is promised. Those who died outside of Christ are in the same condition. The only hope of future life is in resurrection. This has been secured for all; and so there shall be a resurrection. (See 1 Pet. 2:9, Rom. 6:23, Psa. 37:20, Psa. 145:20, Eccl. 9:5-10). "Perished" cannot possibly be made to mean "preserved throughout eternity." The whole question is a matter of life and death; life to the obedient, no life to the disobedient; and the decision in both cases is eternal.

Q.--Does the Psalmist refer to himself as being "born in sin," or does he apply this to all children?

Answer--The Psalmist is here recording the common lot, "for all have sinned" and therefore "death reigns" Rom. 5:12, 17-19). Death is the inevitable result of sin, hence the fact that all die is proof that all are "born in sin." This is sometimes called "original sin," for it originated with the first man, Adam, who deliberately sinned by disobedience in the Garden of Eden, as the Apostle declares: "By one man sin entered into the world and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men" (Rom. 5:12). There the matter would have rested, and not one of the race could ever have escaped from the prison-house of death, but for the Heavenly Father. His love and wisdom had foreseen the end from the beginning and had provided a Redeemer, Jesus Christ, who laid down his life as a ransom for the original sinner, and all in him. "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Cor. 15:22). When the final triumph of Christ's kingdom over sin and death is complete (1 Cor. 15:25), then will be seen by all the redeemed, the ineffable love of God the Designer of the plan of redemption and of Jesus Christ the willing agent in its execution. "Blessing and honor and glory and power be unto Him... and unto the Lamb" (Rev. 5:13).

Q.--Kindly explain John 6:53:“Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you.”

Answer--All the human race, through Adam’s transgression in Eden, lost life (Rom. 5:12). From God’s standpoint they are legally dead as the following texts show: Matt. 8:22; 2 Cor. 1:9, 5:14. It was a perfect human being who sinned and as a result brought death into the world. Consequently, if man were to be released from this condition, a perfect human being must be found willing to die on behalf of the race (John 3:16), for nothing less could be accepted to take away sin (Heb. 10:4). Our Savior fulfilled this requirement by becoming a man (John 1:4) and offering his flesh as a ransom a corresponding price for all, the testimony to be given to all in due time (John 6:51; 1 Tim. 2:5,6). All who would have life must accept it at Christ’s hands, for he is the one who sought and found that which was lost, and he will give it to all who shall obey him. Therefore, to our understanding, John 6:53 means that only those who appropriate to themselves the benefit of the sacrifice of Jesus will have eternal life; the remainder will be destroyed, as this gift of life will not be forced upon any (Rom. 6:23; Acts 3:22,23).

Q.--If there are only two salvations, the Little Flock and those restored by the end of the 1000 year reign of the Christ, on what plane is the Great Company, spoken of in Rev. 7:14. As they are on a lower plane than the Little Flock would not that make three salvations? Are both the Little Flock and the Great Company one?

Answer--It is not proper to think of salvations to a certain plane. In distinguishing between different salvations, the point to be considered is the process. In describing the world’s salvation by restitution processes our Lord speaks of it as a resurrection by judgments (John 5:29). The Little Flock alone is referred to in Rev. 20:6 as having part in the chief resurrection. The life resurrection of John 5:29 includes all who will come forth to immediate perfection of life. The Great Company is included in this. They have their testings and developments in this life and will each perfection of character, although through unfaithfulness they fail to carry out their covenant of sacrifice. Their life will be forced from them in the time of great tribulation (Rev. 7:14) because they fail to give it up in sacrifice. The world will not thus come forth to perfect life but must be raised up by processes of judgment. The judgments of the Lord will teach them righteousness when the Royal Judges wield their sway throughout the earth (1 Cor. 6:2; Isa. 26:9). The Great Company will be different from the Little Flock in that they will have the spirit nature. Apparently they will share the angels’ nature and work.

Q.--I wish you would explain for me the meaning of 1 Tim. 2:5,6, "Christ Jesus gave his life a ransom for all, to be testified in due time;" especially the RANSOM FOR ALL.

Answer--The word "ransom" here signifies an exact corresponding price, and pertains to the entire human family. Adam, the father of all the race, was created a perfect man with the right to eternal life, subject to his rendering obedience to God. He disobeyed God, and the judgment of death was passed upon him, and as a result death passed upon all of Adam's descendants (Rom. 5:12). The only way man could be redeemed was by the death of another perfect man as Adam's substitute. Jesus became a man perfect, holy, harmless, and without sin for the very purpose of redeeming or ransoming man, and to this end he "tasted death for every man" (Heb. 2:9). Our Lord, as a man, was the exact equal of Adam before he sinned, hence he was qualified to ransom or redeem the human race. As a perfect man he met the requirements of Justice. The man, Adam, sinned and forfeited life. The man, Jesus, exactly corresponding to the perfect Adam, voluntarily gave up his life as a ransom for Adam and all of his descendants. Since Jesus died for all, in God's "due time" all men must be given a knowledge of the truth concerning this ransom work of Jesus, and an opportunity to accept Jesus Christ as their Savior, and those who do accept and obey shall be restored to what Adam lost. "Times of Refreshing shall come from the Lord, and he shall send Jesus Christ, whom the heavens must retain until the Times of Restitution. For Moses said unto the fathers, "A Prophet shall God raise up unto you from amongst your brethren, Him shall ye hear in all things; and it shall come to pass that the soul that will not obey that Prophet shall be destroyed from among the people" (Acts 3:19-23).

DRIVING THE PEOPLE FROM GOD AND BIBLE

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 9 Pastor Russell gave two addresses here today. We report the one from 1 Tim. 4:1, 2. It is a severe arraignment of education, and especially of ministers, notwithstanding its moderate language. The Pastor said:

We are gradually awakening to the fact that the world does not love God, but merely fears Him; and that few of the churches recognize Him as the gracious Heavenly Father. Although the Bible has told us repeatedly that God is Love, that His mercy endureth to the limit, and that from Him comes every good and perfect gift, nevertheless the doctrines of demons instilled into our minds from childhood have hindered us from appreciating these statements.

Back in the Second Century, when Bibles were printed by pen and very expensive, and when few had the education to read them, Satan laid the foundation for gross errors. The clergy began to claim Apostolic Succession for the bishops, who assumed the title of Apostolic Bishops. This meant that they were successors to the Apostles, and consequently that their teachings were of equal authority. Gradually the deception fastened itself; nobody was allowed to preach except those authorized, or ordained, by those claiming to be inspired successors of the Apostles. The result was the separation of the Church as the clergy the public being called the Children of the Church, or sometimes referred to as the laity.

A little later the Apostolic Bishops, with Emperor Constantine, started creed-making. Thereafter creeds took the place of the Bible study; for the Emperor decided that the Nicene Creed would be the standard of Orthodoxy, and that any one differing from its teachings would be a heretic and subject to persecution. Any Bible study thenceforth meant liability to be counted a heretic and suffer accordingly. Thus Bible study was crowded out, and any reference to the Bible was considered a slight to these Bishops and the creeds which they had made.

How long did this last, you ask? We answer, twelve hundred years; then the authority of the Bishops as Apostles began to be questioned. The Bible began to be sought and studied, but all who did this were esteemed heretics, or in danger of becoming such by getting out of touch with the creeds. How much error could be brought into the Church in twelve hundred years! Is it any wonder that now we find that our creeds are more than half error, and that the doctrines of devils which were worked into them as leaven have corrupted them entirely and made them injurious to spiritual health?

I remind you that this was the very prophecy which Jesus made that leaven, corruption, would be hidden in the family portion. (Matt. 16:6, 11, 12; Luke 13:21) Again, Jesus pictures the matter in Rev. 17:4, 2 where a woman is shown, having in her hand a Golden Cup filled with her own false doctrines, with which she makes drunk all the inhabitants of the earth. The whole world has been stupidly drunk for centuries and now is awakening some dazed, some angry, some hysterical, etc. But, thank God! we are getting awake; and that with our waking we perceive that the glorious Morning of the Millennium is near at hand. There, as promised, Messiah will assume His great power and begin His Reign, and will roll away the ignorance and superstition from the world and let in the true light of the knowledge of God's glory. Isa. 60:2, 3; Hab. 2:14

ORGANIZED OPPOSITION TO THE BIBLE

I am not blaming our forefathers Catholics or Protestants. Doubtless, there were bad men amongst them, but I believe there were also good men and sincere. I am blaming the great Adversary, Satan, and his demons, the fallen angels, as the Apostle does. We have been debauched by these “doctrines of demons,” as the Apostle in our text declares prophetically.

It was about the year 1500 A. D. that the people began to desire the New Testament and to doubt the inspiration of the Apostolic Bishops. About that time Prof. Tyndale translated the New Testament into the English language, but could not get it printed in Great Britain, because of the power of the Bishops Protestant Bishops, mark you, afraid that the Word of God in the hands of the people would discount their authority. Tyndale persevered, had his New Testament printed in Germany, and then imported it to London. Although few of the people could read, they began to buy the books eagerly, that the few learned ones might read to them. The Apostolic Bishops feared that this would mean the loss of their prestige; for the people would think for themselves. The Bishops bought up the entire edition and burned the books publicly in front of St. Paul’s Cathedral, London.

Surely, Jesus forewarned us of these would-be Apostles! (Rev. 2:2) He appointed only twelve, and recognized St. Paul as the successor to Judas. These Twelve were to be His special mouthpieces and were the crown of twelve stars of the Church and its twelve foundation stones. (Rev. 12:1; 21:14) Referring to the illegal Apostolic Bishops, Jesus said, “Thou hast tried them which say they are Apostles and are not, and hast found them liars.” Rev. 2:2; 2 Cor. 11:13

Burning the New Testament made the matter worse. The people wanted to know why they should not be permitted to read the words of Jesus and the original Twelve. The pseudo-apostles got busy and produced what they styled the Bishops’ Bible, and gave it to the people. But with the Bible they gave threats that if the people in any way, through reading that Bible, would get out of harmony with the creeds, they would go to eternal torture. Poor people, browbeaten and hindered by the very ones who professed to be their leaders by Divine appointment! Poor bishops, deceived by the “doctrines of demons” into taking this terrible position!

Roman Catholics also saw the opportunity for giving the Bible to the people and thus affecting, as the Protestants did, to be progressive friends of the Bible. They got out the Douay edition. Each party warned the people that the other’s translation was especially wrong, although, as a matter of fact, there is little difference; and the attempt was to hinder the people from studying the Bible.

The same spirit is manifested everywhere yet. Whoever will agree with the creeds, Catholic and Protestant, is tolerated by his own class. Whoever presents the Bible without sectarian bias, and shows its simplicity and purity, its Divine Message of love and mercy, that person is branded a heretic and dangerous; and any vilification heaped upon him is reckoned as service to God, however false. It is not surprising that we have been centuries in getting out of the darkness of the past; but it is surprising to what extent we have been hoodwinked by the Adversary, and have failed to notice that our difficulty arose from the “doctrines of demons.”

WHAT ARE DOCTRINES OF DEMONS?

From first to last, the “doctrines of demons” are various falsehoods designed to misrepresent God’s character and dealings, and thus to hinder the light of God’s Message from taking effect in human hearts. But, you say, could not God have hindered Satan from thus practicing deceptions and slandering His character? Surely He could, as He declares He will soon do. But repeatedly the Lord indicates that it has been His purpose not to use force in the gathering of the Church.

As St. Peter declares, “God hath given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these we might become partakers of the Divine nature. (2 Pet. 1:4) We are God’s workmanship; but He is working merely through His promises and seeking a class who will respond to His Message and promises. By and by, through Messiah’s Kingdom, force will be used for the instruction of others; but those now being selected from the world are to be taken out without hands without human power, without any power except that of the Truth. ”Sanctify them through Thy Truth, Thy Word is Truth.” (John 17:17) To whatever extent God’s Word is received into a good and honest heart, it does a work of transformation—” transformed by the renewing of your mind,” through the holy Spirit. Rom. 12:2

Satan, personally and through his demon hosts of fallen angels, seeks to misrepresent God’s Message, God’s character. St. Paul tells us this, saying, “The god of this world hath blinded the minds of those who believe not, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, who is the Image of God, should shine unto them.” (2 Cor. 4:4) If the light of God’s goodness shine into any heart, it will be by the Truth shining in, which will have the effect of scattering the error and sin and of drawing that person nearer to God. So I am hoping today that more light of Divine Truth will shine into all our hearts, that we may be drawn nearer to our God and separated more and more from sin and everything opposed to God.

What is to crush this slander against the Almighty, which Satan has manufactured? He got us to believe that before God created Man He made a great place called Hell, Sheol, Hades, supplied it with fire-proof devils and with fuel to last for all eternity, and then made man, knowing that nearly everybody would go to that awful place, only one in ten thousand being saintly enough to escape it. Additionally, we were taught that we would be rendered indestructible, in order that our torments might last eternally. I refuse to believe that any human mind could ever make up such doctrines. I think too highly of my fellow creatures. I accredit those doctrines, as the Apostle does in our text, to demons; and as he explains, their object was to separate us from God and from the Bible, God's Word.

WHEN SATAN'S WORK BEGAN

Satan has been working his plan of opposition to God for more than six thousand years. He began by telling Mother Eve that her sin would not bring the punishment of death, as God had said; and he has kept up that statement until today. He has now convinced the whole world that when they die they are really more alive than when they were alive.

This is the fundamental doctrine of the demons. Think how many false doctrines that have troubled us are based upon the thought that the dead are alive! And remember what the Bible says; namely, "The dead know not anything" (Ecc. 9:5); "The wages of sin is death" not eternal torment anywhere (Rom. 6:23); and, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." (Eze. 18:4, 20) If we had believed the Bible, we would have been spared the nonsense, the fear, the torture, the delusions, which have troubled us. But we neglected God's Word and took the word of Satan, the Serpent.

These doctrines of demons include Purgatory and masses to get out of Purgatory. They include the work of spirit mediums; for as bishops and priests are deceived, so are mediums. They verily think that they are communicating with dead humans; whereas the Bible makes clear that they are being deceived by the fallen angels, the demons, who know all about our dead friends, and through these mediums try to impress upon us that our friends are alive, thus giving the only confirmation there is to Satan's lie that the dead are alive. Poor creatures who come under the influence of evil spirits tell us distinctly that the spirits who once claimed to be their dead friends declare plainly, after getting control of these unfortunates, that they are demons, and then proceed to terrify their victims by telling that they will soon have them in eternal torture.

WHY WOULD DEMONS SO TEACH?

At first thought it would appear as though Satan would not favor anything telling about future trouble; and thus many are deceived into thinking that whatever tells of the goodness and love of God must be a deception of the Devil. Let us notice carefully the line of the Adversary's attack. He skillfully uses preachers, evangelists and the profane all to tell about Hell and devils, and the creeds to tell that all that is God's Plan. Thus effectually he puts a barrier between God and the people, and drives them from God and from the Bible.

Have not these "doctrines of devils" led thinking people away from God and religion into social flurries and nonsense? Have not some men been led to plunge into business, others into novel reading, theater-going, drinking, carousing, gaming anything to keep their minds off the most important things, the things of God, the things which the Bible teaches? Surely it is so! And yet there are thousands of ministers who are teaching Hell-fire torment, but we do not believe a word of what they say, and who think they are doing it to keep people from going into sin. Do they think that they are wiser than God? Do they expect to hear the Master's "Well done, good and faithful servant," for having slandered God's name, His character and Message, for having deceived the people, when He plainly told them that the Truth alone will sanctify?

I sympathize with the preachers; they are in a terrible place, as the Apostle describes in our text, "Speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron." Only a badly seared conscience could approve of the slandering of Almighty God and the representing of Him as being worse than the worst of devils we could possibly imagine. It would be a hard matter for these gentlemen, so long looked up to as standard-bearers for God and the Truth, to come humbly down from their pedestals and tell the people plainly. "We have been deceiving you all, or at least have been keeping you in ignorance of the Truth, for the sake of the salaries we received." A few, we may surely expect, will do this. They are coming nearer to the point every minute. But the majority will brazen the matter out, adding falsehood to hypocrisy; and every day that they delay to step out on the side of Truth will make their case the worse. The people are becoming enlightened, and are ahead of the preachers in the knowledge of God and in honesty of thought and word.

Quite recently I heard from a young man who went to his pastor, saying, "Do you really believe in Hell fire as the punishment for sin?" The Answer--was, "Yes, certainly, of course we all do." Then the young man told what he had been thinking; and as he was leaving the minister's study, the latter put his hand on the young man's shoulder, saying, "George, I do not believe in eternal torment; but you know we must preach it. Otherwise, we would be out with our denominations and creeds, and out with everything; and perhaps the people would be the worse off."

What a shameful position! God has given preachers much advantage over the common people in education and time for study; and surely He will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain that slanders Him, that misrepresents Him, and that does so in the Name of God, religion and the Bible. I am speaking plainly, but not unkindly. My heart grieves for the ministers; for the judgments of the Lord surely will come upon them for their course. Our forefathers had the excuse of ignorance, misunderstanding, poor translations, and severe bondages of superstition. But no excuse can be offered now for misrepresenting God, for deceiving the people of God and the world, and for joining with Satan in attempting to thwart the Divine Purpose of selecting the Household of Faith.

Again I offer free on post-card request my pamphlet on Hell. It discusses every text containing the word Hell, and certain misunderstood parables. Address me at Brooklyn, N. Y.

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--Will you kindly explain Matt. 24:37: "But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be"?

Answer--The Lord is referring to his second coming, and states that only his Father knew at that time the day and hour of his arrival. Then he pointed out that when he did come again, a similar condition would obtain as in Noah's day just previous to the flood. The word "coming" in this verse is translated from the Greek "parousia," which means arrival or presence, not the thought of starting on the journey. We understand, therefore, that our Lord would be present the second time, and yet unseen by human eyes (John 14:19), some time before this age or order of things would come to an end (Dan. 2:44), and that the majority of the people would not discern the changing of the dispensation. Thus the day of his second presence would be as a thief in the night to some, while to others it would not be as a thief, as they would discern the signs of his presence by noting the evidences in the earth (see 1 Thess. 5:1-4; Matt. 24:31-33).

Q.--Will you explain Galatians 3:24, "The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ?" Answer--The word translated "schoolmaster" really means a confidential slave, i. e., a servant. The law served to lead Israel to Christ in that it set up a standard whereby life might be obtained, and at the same time proved to them their inability to gain life by their own effort. Moses had written that "the man that doeth the righteousness which is of the law shall live thereby" (Rom. 10:5 R. V.). Jesus, as a perfect man and a Jew, kept the law and earned its prize everlasting life; which he afterwards laid down sacrificially. When God raised him from the dead he had the prize remaining, as it were, to his credit, and at his disposal. He will dispense life to the human race from Adam downwards, as they come into harmony with the law of the New Covenant during the Millennial reign and become "Israelites indeed." Meanwhile, those Jews who appreciated Jesus' sacrifice were freed from the law by accepting Christ, and the Gentiles, who were not under the law, have also been called to share the baptism into Christ. These all constitute the Bride of Christ, sharing his Divine nature (2 Pet. 1:4) and reigning with him for 1,000 years.

Q.--Who is the bride referred to in Rev. 19:7, "His wife hath made herself ready?"

Answer--This is a company designated by different names, each representing various features of their relationship to the Lord and his work. They are called the living stones of the temple of God, because God has proposed for the future a great blessing through them for the world. These blessings will be communicated through the antitypical temple glorified. They are called his "little flock," because they follow him as their Shepherd, and he leads them as his sheep. They are called "soldiers," because in the development and demonstration of character they must "fight a good fight" against sin and selfishness in themselves, and against the adversary. In all of this they are following the example of the Redeemer, who is their Leader and Captain. They are called the Bride, because this beautiful symbol so well illustrates the closeness of their relationship to the Redeemer, not only now prospectively, but by and by actually, his joint-heirs in his kingdom. Life would be forever lost to the world were it not that the great Life-giver, joined with his Bride, will have as his children the entire race of Adam, so many as will accept him.

Q.--Is it not a generally accepted truth that those who do the best they know how will be saved even if they never become Christians?

Answer--It is true that the majority of Christians of all denominations assent to this view (notwithstanding the creeds of some to the contrary), from a feeling that any other view would be irreconcilable with justice on God's part. But the question we should ask in all such matters is, "Do the Scriptures support this view? Do they teach that ignorance is a ground of salvation?" We will have to answer, "No!" the only ground of salvation mentioned in the Scriptures is faith in Christ as our Redeemer and Lord, "By grace are ye saved, through faith" (Eph. 2:8). Justification by faith is the underlying principle of the whole system of Christianity. When asked, "What must I do to be saved?" the apostles answered, "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ." "There is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12); and "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Rom. 10:13). St. Paul reasons that a man must hear the gospel before he can believe, saying, "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard" (Rom. 10:14)? We mistakenly supposed that all who did not get to heaven would be tormented eternally, so we tried to make the terms for getting to heaven just as easy as possible.

Q.--We see how Jesus at the age of thirty could satisfy justice (life for life) for Adam's sin, which forfeited perfect life for himself, his wife and children, but what did he give for the enjoyment, which Eve forfeited for herself, Adam and children?

Answer--The condemnation of Adam fell not on himself alone but included Mother Eve and all their descendants. If it had not been so, a separate redeemer would have been necessary for each individual not so included. For this reason it is possible for the one man to give himself "a ransom for all" (1 Tim. 2:6). His children were yet unborn and therefore logically included in the curse. He and Eve were one, and the curse which fell on him therefore included her. We read that Jesus "came to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10). While life was the principal thing lost, we should, in thinking of this redemptive work, always include everything that went with that life the Edenic home and all its joys and possibilities. The accomplishing of this purposed redemptive work will mean the "restitution of all things" (Acts 3:19,23) lost by Adam and Eve.

Q.--If this "bride" is the church of the present time, why did God choose this class from among men when he could have found a bride for his Son from among the angels?

Answer--When we learn that Jehovah purposes the selection of a bride for his well beloved Son, our minds naturally go out toward the holy angels. Cherubim and seraphim, glorious beings, perfect and sinless, holy and pure of these surely this selection will be made! But, no, a heavenly calling goes forth to the degraded members of Adam's family, announcing to them the opportunity of their justification from sin and adoption to the family of Jehovah God, and that a selection would be made from such for a change of nature like that experienced by the Bridegroom, from human to Divine; and that they may become the Bride, the Lamb's wife, his joint-heir in the kingdom glory, "heirs of God and joint-heirs of Jesus Christ, if so be that we suffer with him" (Rom. 8:17). Among them are "not many great, not many wise, not many learned, not many rich, not many noble." How strange, how different from what we would have expected! "God has chosen the mean things of this world (the ignoble things), to bring to naught the things that are" (1 Cor. 1:28).

Q.--It does not seem to me it makes much difference how much I know about the Bible. It is what I DO that counts. Your answers are interesting, but do you think they are of much value to the Christian?

Answer--An illustration of the value of knowledge is set forth in the Scripture in the words: "By his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many when he shall bear their iniquities" (Isa. 53:11). And this surely illustrates well the principle applied in the Scriptures to all the members of the Church, the body of Christ, who are required to be copies of God's dear Son. Note the following reference to the value of knowledge to the Church, the elect of this present age. The apostle speaks of some who "have a zeal for God, but not according to knowledge," and distinctly intimates their disadvantages in the race on this account (Rom. 10:2). The apostle commends those who are "full of goodness, and filled with all knowledge, and able also to admonish one another" (Rom. 15:14). And again he speaks of the advantage secured to those "enriched in Christ with all knowledge" (1 Cor. 1:5). And again he speaks of knowledge coming through the Holy Spirit (1 Cor. 12:8), and reproves some who "have not the knowledge of God" (1 Cor. 15:34). Again he points out that God's grace has shined into our hearts to give the "light of the knowledge of the glory of God" (2 Cor. 4:6). He exhorts to faithfulness "by pureness, by knowledge, by long-suffering" (2 Cor. 6:6); and again in faith and utterance and knowledge; and again he refers to the necessity of casting down all imaginings that would tend to exalt themselves against the knowledge of God (2 Cor. 10:5). In his epistle to the Ephesians he speaks of his own favor from God in respect to the knowledge of Christ, the knowledge of the mystery and of the love of Christ which passeth human knowledge. (Eph. 1:17; 3:4-19). To the Philippians he writes (Phil. 1:9) and urges that they abound more and more in knowledge and speaks of the excellency of the knowledge of Jesus (Phil. 3:8). To the Colo-sians he writes urging that they be filled with the knowledge of God's will and make increase in the knowledge of God (Col. 1:9-10). He refers to the treasures of divine wisdom and knowledge which are hidden in Christ and intended for those who come unto the Father through him. The Apostle Peter also teaches that the Lord's grace comes unto us through the knowledge of God, who hath called us, and he exhorts that we add to our virtue and knowledge that we may not be barren in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ (2 Pet. 1:2-8).

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

Q.--Hab. 2:14 tells us that the earth will be covered with the knowledge of the Lord, and yet 2 Tim. 3:1-5 states that in the last days perilous times shall come, and men shall be lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God! Please reconcile.

Answer--These two passages cannot be reconciled by viewing them as operative at one and the same time. It is very apparent that men would not be lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God if the earth were covered with the knowledge of the Lord. Of course, men always have been lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. This passage does not apply to the world generally, but specially to those who have professed a knowledge of God and to be Christians (2 Tim. 3:1-5). As evidence that we are now in "the last days," we find the Church today is bent on pleasure, imbibing the spirit of the world instead of being separate from the worldly spirit. Hab. 2:14 does not apply to the present dispensation, but to the next age. Unless we can see that the object of the Gospel message between the first and second advents of the Lord is for the selection of the Church, to be used as the channel of God to bless the whole world in the next age with the knowledge of the Lord, we cannot hope to get the right harmony of God's Word on passages like those now under consideration. The selection of the Church will be completed in the "perilous times" at the end of the age. Then the blessing of the Lord will begin to go to the world and their instruction will continue until they "all know the Lord."

Q.--What signs and portents may we expect previous to the setting up of Christ's Kingdom upon the earth?

Answer--The disciples presented a similar question to our Lord in Matt. 24:3—"What shall be the sign of thy coming and of the end of the age?" The Kingdom could not be set up unless the king had returned. The Answer--will be easier understood if we remember that Jesus speaks here in symbolic language, and also that the word "coming" in verses 3,27,37, and 39 should be translated presence. The disciples did not ask what would be the sign by which they would know the exact moment of their Lord's arrival, but what signs would indicate his presence. Verses 37-39 indicate that he would be present doing a preparatory work unknown to the world. At first only the faithful waiting watchers will be aware of the dawning of the day of the Lord. Many signs are now evident of the very near approach of this time. It is a common expression, "Things are getting hotter and hotter,” meaning that the friction between the contending forces is increasing. In all Europe the people are taxed to the limit of endurance for the support of armaments, the wealth of the nations is rapidly being wasted, and evidently the demand has not ceased. The discontent among the vast populations of Asia is causing much anxiety. In the ecclesiastical world there is chaos, and ministers confess they have no message to meet the present extremities. The strife in the world of labor is unceasing. All these point to the near approach of the dissolution of the present order, upon the ruins of which the glorious kingdom of God will be set up.

Q.--Please explain 1 Cor. 14:34,35. (a) Let your women keep silence in the church; for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience as also saith the law. (b) And if they will learn anything let them ask their husbands at home; for it is a shame for women to speak in the Church."

Answer—(a) Any interpretation of the Apostle’s word which would ignore all opportunity for the sisters to “labor in the Lord” would manifestly be erroneous. It is in the gatherings of the Church (whether two or three or more) for worship and praise and mutual edification that the sisters are to take a subordinate place and not attempt to be the leaders and teachers; thus to do would be usurping authority over the man, upon whom, both by nature and by precept, the Lord has placed the responsibility of the leading ministries undoubtedly for wise reasons, whether we could agree respecting them or not. The Apostle’s restrictions evidently related to meetings such as he describes in 1 Cor. 14. These meetings included the sisters, who certainly shared all of its blessings joining in the songs and hymns and spiritual songs and in the prayers, by whomsoever offered. (b) Women were not to speak at all in such meetings, although outside the meetings or at home they might “ask their own husbands,” or, more properly, their own men, they could suggest their views or make queries through those brethren (men) with whom they were most intimately acquainted their husbands, if possible, or brethren with whom they talked on their way homeward from meetings, etc. The word home in this text has the significance of family or acquaintanceship. The thought then is, Let them ask their questions of or through the males of their acquaintance. The Apostle proceeds to say, “It is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the Law” 1 Cor. 14:34-36.

Q.—(a) When Christ was with God as the Word, was he on the same plane with God? (b) Was he of a higher nature than the angels?

Answer--While there is no definite and direct statement of the Scriptures to the effect that Christ’s nature was higher than the angelic, yet that seems to be a proper inference. We read “For verily he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham” (Heb. 2:16). He was higher than the angelic nature and passed by it to take the human nature that he might be man’s Redeemer. Above the angelic hosts there are Principalities and Powers, Cherubim and Seraphim. As to what these are, or as to the respects in which they differ from the angelic nature, we have no knowledge. Some have supposed that Jesus, in his pre-human existence, was on the same plane with Jehovah because he is spoken of as “God.” This is because of a misunderstanding of the meaning of this word. It merely means “a mighty one.” Thus a very literal rendering of John 1:1 gives us a correct idea of the relationship of the Father and his son. “In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with the God, and the Word was a God” (Diaglott. John 1:1).

Q.--Matt. 16:24. Please explain this verse, more particularly how a man can deny himself, and what the Cross means.

Answer--Jesus was a perfect man; yet he denied himself the legitimate exercise of his pure, fleshly ambitions because he had, at Jordan when thirty years of age, presented himself as Adam’s substitute a ransom for all, all condemned in Adam. On this account he was begotten of the Holy Spirit with a view to his being brought forth from the dead, after Calvary, a spirit being who would be highly exalted to God’s right hand of power, and should become, in due time, the King of Kings and ruler of the human race. God graciously purposed to call out a people during the Gospel age who should follow in his steps suffering with him now, in order that they should, if faithful, be his joint-heirs in his kingdom (Rom. 8:17). What a prospect for the consecrated followers of Jesus! Surely we would gladly deny our fleshly ambitions their legitimate indulgence and count all things loss and dross if we might be found in him!

*“If the crown we would wear,
Then the Cross we must bear.”*

Q.--Please explain 2 Cor. 12:4.

Answer--In the context the Apostle told of having been caught up to the third heaven which he here describes as paradise. In recent years Bible Students have learned to examine the Bible dispensationally. These dispensations are called ages, or worlds. According to the Apostle Peter (2 Pet. 3:6,7,13), we are now living in the second of these worlds or ages. Each dispensation had its two features earthly organization and spiritual rulership. The spiritual ruler of the present time is Satan, the Prince of this world (John 14:30). Our Lord comes with ten thousands of his saints to rule the new dispensation (Jude 14). The purpose of his reign will be the re-establishing of the perfect condition originally provided by God for man in the Garden of Eden. The end of his reign will see paradise restored. The Apostle is telling us of how he, in vision, saw this restored paradise. Since he was not permitted to tell the things he saw, we cannot know what he beheld of the beauties and grandeur of the earth restored and peopled by men in the image and likeness of God. However, we doubt not it will be so different from present conditions that we could not comprehend the description if one were able to give it. The restored race will be one loving family without an evil thought, without suffering or sorrow, a never dying race, unblemished by sin.

Q.--May I ask, now that so many nations are engaged in such bloody warfare, yet desiring peace, "When will the desire of all nations come according to Haggai 2:7? Also, when will the prayers of all who have long prayed "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in Heaven," be answered, or have they already been answered?

Answer--The prophets declare that because of the increase of knowledge a still more general and wide-spread dissatisfaction will finally express itself in a world-wide revolution, in the overthrow of all law and order; that anarchy and distress upon all classes will be the result; but that in the midst of this confusion the God of Heaven will set up his Kingdom, which will satisfy the desires of all nations. Wearied and disheartened with their own failures, and finding their last and greatest efforts resulting in anarchy, men will gladly welcome and bow before the Heavenly authority, and recognize its strong and just government. Thus man's extremity will become God's opportunity, and "the desire of all nations shall come" the Kingdom of God, in power and great glory, bringing to all the peace they have desired but have been so far from attaining. True, men have hardly known what they want, but, when the Kingdom comes, they will find it their desire.

TWO PENTECOSTS TWO SALVATIONS

San Antonio, Texas, May 23 Pastor Russell spoke here today on the text, "And it shall come to pass afterward that I will pour out My Spirit upon all flesh." (Joel 2:28) He said in part:

The Prophet Joel mentions two distinct outpourings of the holy Spirit. One of these, upon the servants and the handmaidens, found its fulfillment at Pentecost; and during the more than eighteen centuries since then, God's spiritual blessing has been with all the footstep followers of Jesus all of God's servants and handmaidens. If we see this feature of the prophecy fulfilled, it becomes a guarantee to believers that the remainder of the same prophecy will have fulfillment in God's due time. The remainder of the prophecy declares that afterward after those days during which the holy Spirit has been outpoured upon the Church, upon the "servants and handmaidens" will come God's time for pouring out His Spirit upon all the world of mankind.

AFTER THESE DAYS MESSIAH'S KINGDOM

St. Peter's explanation of the Pentecostal blessing, "This is that which was spoken by the Prophet Joel," should not be taken to mean that what was witnessed in the upper room on the Day of Pentecost, nearly nineteen centuries ago, completely fulfilled the Prophet Joel's predictions. (Acts 2:14-40) No Bible student would dispute that the fulfillment of the prophecy began at Pentecost, with the early Church, and has been in process of fulfillment during all the centuries since. It is as true today as it was then, that the blessing of the holy Spirit is granted to all of God's servants and handmaidens; and the remainder of the prophecy will be fulfilled with equal accuracy in due time.

After these days of the Gospel Age after these days of the outpouring of the Spirit upon God's servants and handmaidens will come the glorious epoch of Messiah's Kingdom, in and through which God will pour out upon the world of mankind a great blessing of enlightenment and uplift from the sin and death conditions which now prevail. It will be to the accomplishment of this end that Satan shall be bound for a thousand years; and the darkness which now covers the earth, and the gross darkness which now blinds the heathen, will be chased away by the glorious "Sun of Righteousness with healing in His Beams." Mal. 4:2

Thus will be inaugurated the glorious Day of Messiah, a thousand years long. Thus the knowledge of the glory of the Lord will fill the whole earth. Thus every tongue shall be brought to confess and every knee to bow to Messiah as the great Representative of Jehovah and His righteousness. Isa. 11:9; Phil. 2:9-11

ABRAHAM'S SPIRITUAL SEED FIRST

Abraham of old typified Jehovah and Isaac typified Messiah, born not after the flesh, but after the Spirit by a special Divine interposition according to the promise of God. Of this anti-typical Isaac class Jesus is the Head, the Forerunner of the Church, as well as the world's Redeemer. The Body of Messiah is composed of a saintly few, according to the Scriptures, gathered primarily from the Jews, but being completed by additions from every people, nation, kindred and tongue. These all, St. Paul tells us, will be character-copies of God's dear Son, our Redeemer and Head. This the Apostle declares is Divine predestination.

Rom. 8:29, 30; 4:28; 3:8, 16, 29

This Church class, or Messiah class, is variously referred to in the prophecies, as well as in the New Testament, as the brethren of Jesus and as sons of God. Of them the Prophet David writes, "I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you are children of the Most High; but ye shall all die like men, and fall like One of the princes." (Psa. 82:6, 7) These all die like men in the estimation of the world; for, as St. John declares, the world knoweth them not, even as it knew not their Master. (1 John 3:1) As the world did not recognize that the life of Jesus was laid down sacrificially, neither is it aware that the followers of Jesus, a little handful, down through the Gospel Age, have likewise through His merit presented their bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God. Rom. 12:1

ABRAHAM'S NATURAL SEED NEXT

This Spiritual Seed of Abraham, all saintly, will constitute the Church of the First-borns, the antitype of the Priests and the Levites of the Jewish Dispensation. With the completion of this Church, gathered out of all nations, sects and denominations, Divine favor will again return to the natural seed of Abraham. As the Jew was granted the first opportunity or privilege of becoming the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, he will likewise have the first opportunity to participate in the blessing which will then come to the whole world of mankind. "To the Jew first" is the Divine order in respect to both of these blessings.

To this agree the words of the Apostle Paul. After telling of the Divine election of the Church, the saintly few of both Jews and Gentiles, the Apostle adds, "I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant concerning this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceits, that blindness in part (only, not perpetual) is happened to Israel, until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in." When the full, elect Spiritual Seed shall have been gathered, shall have been completed from amongst the Gentiles, then all Natural Israel shall be saved from their blindness and their outcast condition. Rom. 11:25-29

St. Paul points out that as Israel's stumbling was directly foretold through the Prophet (Psa. 69:22), so also through the Prophets God has foretold their blessing later on that they shall be the first to be blessed under the glorious Spiritual Messiah of many members. Thus it is written, "There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob." Here Zion is pictured as a mother whose offspring is The Messiah. Looking again at the type, we see that Abraham represented Jehovah, and that his wife Sarah represented the great Covenant through which Messiah was to be developed. "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed;" "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the Promise." Rom. 11:9-11; Gen. 22:17, 18; Gal. 3:8, 16, 29

It has required more than eighteen centuries to give birth to this great Deliverer. Jesus was the Head; and the Church, developed during this Gospel Age, will be the Body. Jesus was “the First-born from the dead;” and the Church, His members, will be His brethren, sharers in His rule on the Heavenly plane; for is He not declared to be “the First-born among many brethren?” (Rom. 8:29) The First or Chief Resurrection will bring all these sons of God to the plane of glory, honor and immortality born from the dead. Then the great Deliverer will be fully born, and ready to begin His great work of blessing all the nations Israel being the first of these.

MY SPIRIT UPON ALL FLESH

St. Peter declares that it was the glorified Jesus who received the holy Spirit of the Father and poured it out upon the Church at Pentecost. (Acts 2:33) That blessing came to the Church because of their coming into harmony with the Father’s arrangement through the Son. The receiving of the Spirit there marked the recipients as sons of God.

The later Pentecostal blessing upon the world will have points of similarity as well as points of difference. The blessing will come through the great Messiah as a result of the satisfaction which He will make for the sins of the whole world by applying to the race the merits of His sacrifice. Thus He will seal the New Law Covenant with Israel, and then with the world through Israel. (Jer. 31:31-34) The great Messiah of glory will be the Mediator of the New Covenant; and the foundation of that New Covenant will be the “better sacrifices” offered by this Mediator, as the antitypical High Priest. Heb. 9:19-23

The Pentecostal blessing then to come upon the world will not be upon the terms of their sacrificing their earthly rights to attain Heavenly blessing and spiritual sonship. On the contrary, its requirements will be a consecration to obedience of the Divine Law; and its reward will be earthly Restitution to the perfection of human nature and to the enjoyment of all the blessings originally given to Adam, but forfeited by his disobedience. “They shall build houses and inhabit them. They shall plant vineyards and eat the fruit thereof,” and “long enjoy the work of their hands.” (Isa. 65:21, 22) This is the Divine promise, applicable to mankind, but not to the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, the Church, the Kingdom class, who must all be changed; for “flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God.” 1 Cor. 15:50

As Jacob was a son of Abraham, not directly, but through Isaac, so also those blessed under Messiah’s Reign will be children of God, not directly, but through Messiah. Thus it is written of Messiah, “He shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty One, the Prince of Peace, the Everlasting Father” the Father, or Life-giver, to the restored world of mankind. (Isa. 9:6, 7) The life which He laid down in sacrifice the earthly life is that which He will give to all the willing and obedient of Adam's race during His Messianic Kingdom to be theirs forever. It is in this sense that He will be the Everlasting Father the Father who gives everlasting life, which Adam failed to give. Messiah Himself will have no need for the earthly life which He laid down; for as a reward for His obedience the Heavenly Father has given Him the higher life the Divine nature.

THE FATHERS TO BE PRINCES

From of old Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, etc., were called the fathers, not only because of their relationship to the Jewish nation, but particularly because Messiah was to come as their offspring—"the Seed of Abraham," "of the stem of Jesse," "the Offspring of David;" and so Jesus was born of this very lineage. But His exaltation by the Father to the spirit plane, and the fact that His earthly rights laid down in sacrifice are to go to Adam and all of his race who will accept the same on the Divine terms, puts Jesus in the position of Father, Life-giver, to the world, including Abraham, David, etc. They must all obtain everlasting life through Him, and hence will be His children.

Thus the Prophet David wrote of the future, "Instead of Thy fathers shall be Thy children, whom Thou mayest make princes in all the earth." (Psa. 45:16) Those fathers who are to be princes are already declared to have been pleasing to God. They attested their loyalty by a faith which worked in harmony with His will through the limitations of a fallen nature.

THE FATHERS' "BETTER RESURRECTION"

On account of this the fathers are already declared to be worthy of a "better resurrection" than the remainder of mankind but not so glorious a resurrection as will be granted to the Church. Their resurrection will be to the perfection of human nature mental, moral and physical. Thus they will stand before mankind as samples of human perfection, to which standard, all the race may attain by obedience, if they will, during the thousand years of Messiah's Reign.

Those Ancient Worthies (Heb. 11) will not only be illustrations of human perfection, but princes, or rulers, in all the earth. They will be the outward and visible representatives of the invisible Messiah the agents through whom the Word of the Lord will go forth. As it is written, "Out of Zion (the Spiritual Kingdom) shall go forth the Law, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem" the earthly manifestations of the Kingdom amongst men. Isa. 2:3

As a result of the second outpouring of the holy Spirit, the Prophet Joel declares, according to our Common Version, "Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions." A preferred translation of this heretofore obscure passage reads, "Your young men (in that New Dispensation) will see with clear vision what your Ancients dreamed of and related in parables." This vision of glory will be the Reign of Righteousness and the Pentecostal blessing accompanying it, upon the willing and obedient, every one of whom shall be brought to clear knowledge and full opportunity for salvation.

ORDER OF THE BLESSING

The order of the blessing is stated. It will come upon all flesh after those days, but upon the servants and the handmaidens in those days. The days mentioned evidently refer to this Gospel Age from Pentecost to the Second Coming of Christ. During this period, now nearly nineteen centuries, God's holy Spirit has been granted to His faithful ones, and to these alone. Only the fully consecrated have been accepted of the Lord as living sacrifices; and only such have been begotten of the holy Spirit, that they may be New Creatures in Christ. (2 Cor. 5:17) During all this time the world has been unrecognized, so far as the holy Spirit is concerned.

Indeed, after Pentecost the Apostle John went still further and declared, "The whole world lieth in the Wicked One." The only action of the holy Spirit has been, as in the case of Felix, to "reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." (John 16:7-11; Acts 24:25) Our text declares, however, that the time is coming when the world will receive a share of the great Divine blessing which was fully accomplished by the death of Christ. But the world's favor will be after those days. After the Gospel Age shall have come to an end; after the New Dispensation shall have begun.

"TO THE JEW FIRST"

Only Jews received the first Pentecostal blessing. For three and one-half years thereafter the Gentiles were excluded, in harmony with a Divine promise made to the Jewish nation. Then came the time for a similar privilege to be extended to the Gentiles.

I rejoice with you today, fellow-students of the Word of God, that this great gift of God is still obtainable, that the time has not yet fully come when the door of opportunity to this High Calling must close. Close it will, so soon as the full number of the Elect shall have been completed. Thank God that another door will then open! the door of Restitution to human perfection and earthly life, grand beyond the power of description.

Then God's holy Spirit holy power will through Christ be outpoured upon all flesh upon all mankind. Messiah will inaugurate the New Dispensation by sealing with Israel the New Covenant in His blood; as through the Apostle Paul the Lord declares, "This is My Covenant with them when I shall take away their sins. As concerning the Gospel, they are enemies for your sakes; but as touching the Election, they are beloved for the fathers, sake." Rom. 11:27, 28

This outpouring of the holy Spirit is not merely for Israel, nor is God's blessing merely upon Abraham's natural seed outside of the Church class. It will include all of every nation desirous of coming into accord with God, after they shall have come to a clear knowledge of the Truth. all nations shall be privileged to enter into and enjoy Israel's great Covenant, by becoming children of Abraham through faith. After all rejectors of God's grace shall have been destroyed in the Second Death, the world of mankind will constitute the promised "seed of Abraham" whose number shall be as the sands of the seashore, even as the spirit-begotten ones of this Gospel Age are likened to the stars of heaven. Thenceforth every creature in Heaven and on earth will acclaim honor to Him that sitteth upon the Throne and unto the Lamb forever.

PASTOR RUSSELL DEFENDS HIMSELF

Editor St. Paul Enterprise:

I perceive that I have hurt the feelings of a Christian Scientist named Smith. I regret this and am sorry that Mr. Smith did not mention which statements of mine seemed to him "harsh epithets." I would have expected him rather to say: "All is truth; there is no error. All is love; there is no harshness." I assure all your readers that I know of no untruth and no harshness in my argument, and I invite proofs to the contrary. I did not deal in references and suggestions of evil intentions, as does Mr. Smith. I believe the Christian Scientists are honest and, of all people, ought to be honest.

Mr. Smith asked, "In what manner, then, did Mrs. Eddy deal with the mystery of evil?" I Answer--that she ignored it and said: "There is no evil." Denying that there is evil, she could not deal with it at all.

I note Mr. Smith's proof texts, which, he assures, teach that God is everywhere and in everything. But these texts do not so read. They do declare that God's Wisdom extends throughout the Universe; that His eye or discernment grasps everything throughout the world; and that His mighty Hand or Power can everywhere be exercised. Thus although we properly address Him as "Our Father, which art in Heaven," we realize as Solomon did, that the heaven of heavens does not contain Him in the sense of limiting His knowledge and power, which extend beyond the heavens to the remotest parts of the Universe. My claim is that the Bible teaches such a personal God. It is not necessary to think of God as having a shape like a man, nor even necessary for us to know what is His shape. The Bible declares Him to be a soul, a personality. It explains that there is a natural body and there is a spiritual body, and that the glory of a natural, earthly body, is one thing, but that the glory of the heavenly or spiritual body is different. It tells us that the overcoming Church will be spirit beings and will be like Jesus in His glorified condition; and that Jesus is the "express image of the Father's person." The Apostle says, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." God has not revealed, explained, the difference between a human and a spirit body. But unless we realize that God is a person, possessed of intelligence and power, we cannot worship Him, as the Bible directs.

Friend Smith passes by the meaning of the word person, declaring that it has too many definitions. We refer him to the Standard Dictionary and give him a very simple and truthful definition of person, thus: "Any being having life, intelligence, will, and separate, individual existence." A principle is not a person, but a power which acts uniformly, as "the regulative principle in nature;" "a vital principle;" "that which is inherent in anything;" "a general truth or proposition;" "a settled law or rule of action." The personal God of the Bible has a place of residence—"Our Father, which art in heaven." He has fixed principles of character revealed to us through the Bible Justice, Love, etc. I hold that a serious mistake is made in the doctrine of the omnipresence of God, that He is everywhere present in all parts of the earth at the same instant, and in all parts of the Universe at the same instant, in everything at the same instant. This unscriptural view has worked great injury to Christians of all denominations, to whatever extent they have held it. They all profess to hold it, but only the Christian Scientists and a few others appear really to believe it.

I am glad to note that Mr. Smith's view of Christian Science holds on to the personality of God. We commend this. We believe that many Christian Scientists are in a similar position. My wish is to call their attention to the fact that they contradict themselves when they say, as Mr. Smith says, "God is personal in the highest and truest sense of that term. He is the deific, infinite, omnipresent person." The God of the Bible is infinite. That is to say, He is not finite not limited in power or influence or knowledge or wisdom or otherwise. We object to the word deific because giving an uncertain meaning; for instance, deific energy might be understood to mean a supreme power without signifying a personal God using or directing that energy or power. We object entirely to the expression, omnipresent person, because the thought of personality is in direct conflict with the thought contained in the word omnipresent. We have already given the standard definition for person—" Any being having life, intelligence, will, and separate, individual existence." Separate existence means, apart from other things not in everything and everywhere. The more Mr. Smith and other Christian Scientists think on this, the more, I am sure, they will agree with me that they must choose either the one or the other proposition and either believe that God is a person, "Our Father in Heaven," or else believe that God is not a person but a principle, omnipresent, operating mechanically and not intelligently, according to the meaning of the word principle.

I was much interested in knowing that Christian Scientists have been sending literature to the warring armies. But I wonder why. If there is no evil, war is not an evil. If there is no pain and no death, the soldiers at the front are merely amusing themselves and doing no harm.

This is not unkind. I would merely incite the many noble people who are Christian Scientists to think and talk more logically and thus to come nearer to the Truth nearer to what I am presenting as the Bible Truth. There should be no war. There should be no pain. There should be no dying. (Rev. 21:4) In due time all these things are to be done away. But so surely as they are to be done away by Messiah's Kingdom in the near future, then surely are these things with us now pain, sorrow, death, sin.

Respectfully, C. T. Russell

THE NEW CREATURE'S RESURRECTION BEGUN

Seattle, Wash., June 13 Pastor Russell is here today, homeward bound from the I. B. S. A. Convention at Oakland, Cal. We report his address from the text, "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things that are above." (Col. 3:1) The Pastor spoke in part as follows:

The resurrection to which the Apostle here refers is not that great change from human to spiritual conditions of which he speaks elsewhere, but a resurrection already begun in the hearts and the minds of the New Creatures in Christ. We must not lose sight of the fact, however, that this is part and parcel of the same resurrection. It begins here; it ends there. Whoever does not begin that resurrection here will not end it there; whoever begins it here and fails to go on will not get it there. Only begetting a comprehensive view of the matter can we perceive the full import of the Bible teaching on the subject.

There is something very definite in the Bible. Perhaps in times past we failed to get its real import because we supposed that it was a Book of such deep mysteries that it could be understood only by the clergy. Consequently if a sane thought respecting the Bible came into our minds, we put it away as untrue because so reasonable. But we are beginning to see that God's Book is the most reasonable and logical ever written. And the fact that, although written by many different writers at various times in the world's history, it is the most reasonable of books and contains the most wonderful story, brings conviction that it is indeed the Word of God.

Yet much of this Word has been hidden because of the error and misunderstanding which the Adversary foisted upon us during the Dark Ages. As we get the eyes of our understanding open, we see that the Bible teaches what to most of us is a certainty that everywhere are death, sickness, sorrow, weakness, mental, moral and physical. "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world, and death as a result of sin; and so death passed upon all men; for all have sinned," says the Apostle. (Rom. 5:12) But this thought that death is the penalty of sin is everywhere rejected; and we are told that eternal torment is the penalty for sin. Both common sense and the Bible are thus discredited. The facts are that death is the great enemy of the human race; that death is here because of sin; and that unless God helps us there would be no future life. Plain, simple, reasonable, is the Bible proposition: Death is upon all mankind; and God's provision is that all shall be recovered from the death sentence. Death came through one man's disobedience and is to be set aside through another man's obedience. The Lord Jesus came into the world and gave Himself a Ransom-price for all a Price that corresponds with the first man who sinned. 1 Cor. 15:21, 22

But, as the Apostle points out, it was necessary not only that Christ should die for mankind, but that He should rise from the dead for our justification. (Rom. 4:24, 25) For Christ merely to die on our behalf and then to make no application of His merit for us would leave us in as terrible a condition as before. Therefore God has provided not only that our Lord should die, but that He should also be raised from the dead. The time set apart for the world's recovery is the period of Messiah's glorious Reign, when He will deliver mankind from the bondage of corruption which came through one man's disobedience.

THE CHURCH RISEN WITH CHRIST

Our text speaks of the Church as though separate from the world. Elsewhere the Bible declares that the whole world lies in the Wicked One. The world are still under condemnation. But the Apostle explains that the Church has escaped the condemnation that is upon the world. We have not gotten free from the weaknesses of the flesh and the death condition, but we have escaped the condemnation the legal phase of the subject. God is taking this Church class out of the world, to be made partakers of the very highest rank of spirit nature the Divine. (2 Pet. 1:4) This is the promise made to God's people, the Church of the Firstborns, whose names are written in Heaven.

“If ye be risen with Christ.” The Apostle does not intimate that this is a thing future. All who belong to the true Church of Christ should know that they have this resurrection. But in order to be risen with Christ we must be dead with Him. (2 Tim. 2:11) Whoever shares His death will also share His resurrection. We must walk in His steps. (1 Pet. 2:21) Our Lord declared that He came not to do His own will, but the will of the Father, who sent Him. (John 6:38) So we must do whatever the Father desires us to do; we must not desire our own way. We should seek to know God's will respecting our body what we shall eat, what we shall wear, what we shall say, what we shall do. To do so will give us what the Apostle calls “the spirit of a sound mind.”

Before we became the Lord's children we did not think properly along these lines. Like the Gentiles we were thinking of what would satisfy our appetites. Now we think of what would enable us best to serve the Lord and what is best for our welfare. Since we have come into God's family, all our talents are His; the more we realize how few are our talents and our opportunities, and how little we are worth to the Lord and everybody else, the more anxious we shall be to make the most out of everything we have mental, moral, physical.

DEAD TO SELF AND SELF-WILL

We are to have in mind also that we are to be dead to self-will. Our will is that which we wish, and our wishes represent our personality. If we yield our own wishes to another, we give up our will to that extent. If we give up our will to some church denomination, then it becomes our head, our ruler. If we give up our talents, etc., to some society or order, it takes supervision of our affairs and our time. God is purposing to have and Order the Order of the Royal Priesthood.

Some of us wear what is known as a Cross and Crown Pin. The cross represents our faith in the death of Christ and our desire to walk in His steps; the crown represents the reward of glory, honor and immortality; and the wreath around the cross and crown represents the Restitution blessings coming to the world of mankind. A brother who had on one of these pins was asked what degree he had. “The degree of the Royal Priesthood,” he replied. All of God's people are Odd Fellows in the sense that they are different from the world. They are Masons in that they are of the Temple class, whose Chief Corner-Stone is the Lord Jesus Christ. This Royal Temple is built on the foundation of the Twelve Apostles; and we, as living stones, are being built into that Temple, which by and by will be glorious. 1 Pet. 2:4-10

Invariably God's things have the primary thought. The world has more or less copied after these things, but they do not see the beauty as we do. We have no quarrel with anybody. We are simply on God's side, the true side; and so far as others have the Truth, they are with us. Otherwise they are against us. Just as it was respecting our Lord, so it has been with all the Body of Christ, the Church there has been a division of the people, some seeing more, some less. John 9:16

But God's work goes on steadily, grandly. He is finding these precious members of The Christ. In one picture they are represented as jewels, in another as living stones, in a third as a Royal Priesthood. "The Lord knoweth them that are His." We do not know who they are. All that we can do is to assist and leave the rest to the Lord. He makes no mistake.

THE POWER OF CHRIST'S RESURRECTION

In order to share in the First Resurrection with Christ, we must share in His death. I remind you of what St. Paul said. He had been discussing the glorious things of the Kingdom, and expressing his opinion that all things in the world were not worthy of consideration in comparison with it. He declared, "I count all things but loss, ... that I may win Christ and be found in Him." (Phil. 3:8, 9) He desired membership in the Body of Christ.

The word Christ means anointed; Jesus is the Head of The Christ, and the Church are the members. God is raising up a great Anointed One. He raised up Jesus first, and gave Him to be the Head over the Church which is His Body. Throughout the Gospel Age God has been raising up the members of The Anointed; and through the Apostle He has said that all things are to be counted as loss and dross in comparison to that wonderful privilege of being members of The Christ; for to Christ God promised the Kingdom and glory, honor, immortality.

Jesus has already entered into His glory and sat down with the Father. This does not signify that literally He has sat down in Heaven, but that He has entered into that glorious rest of which the Apostle speaks. (Heb. 4:9) He is at the Father's right hand the place of chief favor with God. Next to the Father Himself is our Lord Jesus Christ. The Master has promised that His faithful followers shall sit at His right Hand, and share in His glory as joint-heirs in His inheritance. 1 Pet. 1:4-5

After mentioning these matters and declaring that he counted all earthly things as loss and dross, the Apostle explains that he was looking forward to a resurrection with Christ, that he might share in Christ's glory. (Phil. 3:10) What deprivation will not men endure in order to attain earthly honors political, financial and social! They do not concern themselves particularly about the amount of labor and money expended if only they can get the honor. The Apostle, taking the viewpoint of God, says, How small all these things look when I compare them with the privilege of becoming a joint-heir with Jesus Christ!

Then St. Paul declares that he does all this that he may win Christ, and be found in Him a member of the Body of Christ, the Church. Just as we speak of a board of directors or of the body of Congress, so the Church is such an organized body. The Apostle was anxious to be a member of that Body of Christ. He saw that Jesus had fulfilled the Father's will in all His experiences; and knowing thus what the Father is pleased with and seeing that the Father had exalted our Lord, the Apostle desired to follow the Master. So he says, "That I may know Him and the power of His resurrection" experience that grand resurrection, be "changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye." Since flesh and blood cannot inherit the Heavenly Kingdom, therefore all the Body of Christ must undergo the wonderful transforming power of the First Resurrection. 1 Cor. 15:49-55

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRIST'S SUFFERINGS

St. Paul knew that he could not enter into Christ's resurrection unless he entered into Christ's death. Only those who would suffer with Christ could reign with Him. This knowledge was what made St. Paul so different from others of his day. We look back and see what a wonderful man he was how Christ's character shone in his words and deeds, how much he was filled with the Master's words and disposition.

The same admonition is given us, that we should "follow His steps." In proportion as we become dead to the world, dead with Christ, in that proportion we become risen with Him. But there is a difference between our case and that of Jesus. He was especially born, as the Bible emphasizes; and He could not have been our Savior if He had not been. To deny this fact would be to deny the Ransom. Whoever denies that Jesus came into the world a perfect human being is denying the whole Plan of Salvation. His life did not come from Father Adam, but was transferred from a higher plane. He left the glory which He had with the Heavenly Father, and humbled Himself to become a man. He was able to do the Father's will. No sin debarred Him from Divine favor. But all of us were born in sin; God had declared Adam and his posterity unfit for everlasting life and Divine fellowship.

At the age of thirty years our Lord presented Himself to the Father in consecration. The Father accepted the sacrifice, and manifested His acceptance in the impartation of the holy Spirit. Then, having received the begetting of the new nature, our Lord was counted a New Creature. There, at Jordan, He died, in the sense of giving up His life as a human being; and there He began the new life. From the time He made His Covenant of Sacrifice He was a New Creature.

During the three and one-half years of His ministry, which culminated at Calvary, Jesus was not living according to the world. He was living a higher life. During that time His sacrifice was satisfactory to the Father; and because of this, the incense of His offering entered into the antitypical Most Holy and covered the Mercy-Seat. Therefore, when He died at Calvary, there was laid up for Him the blessing which He received on the third day thereafter. Because He had proved faithful during the three and one-half years of His anointing of the holy Spirit, the Father raised Him from the dead, and exalted Him far above angels.

The experiences of the Church are somewhat similar. From the time that we surrender our wills and begin the sacrificial life, we are dead with Him. Then it is for us to live the new life dead according to the flesh and alive toward God, dying daily and living daily. Our resurrection is going on moment by moment, year by year, until our trial is finished. Then we shall be rewarded according to our faithfulness from the time we came into God's family from the time we received the begetting of the holy Spirit and were recognized as sons of God, risen with Christ, to walk in newness of life.

Before we came into the family of God we were merely outcasts. But when we heard that God had provided for the redemption of our race through the death of His Son and was willing to receive us, it was Good Tidings to us. God has arranged that when we make a full consecration of our hearts to Christ He accepts us, imputes to us His merit and advocates for us. This will continue until the full number of the Elect shall have been found; for as there is a definite number of bones in the human body not one more or one less if the body is perfect so there is a positive number of members in the Body of Christ. The Bible tells us that all His members were written in the Book the Book of God's Wisdom, when He planned the matter in the beginning. As we are accepted of Him, our names are written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

God has a wonderful Plan, and we fall in love with it as we come to understand it; for it is the lovable Plan of a lovable God. How much the Message of the Bible has changed since we have come to know of the things beyond the Veil and have received the understanding which God has given! Surely we can truly love Him, and give Him our whole lives, and show our loyalty to Him by doing His will to the best of our ability. In comparison to the glory, honor and immortality which is offered to us, the things of the present time are not worthy of note. But this high reward we shall receive only on the terms laid down. The resurrection process goes on until we shall have finished our course in death.

“All things are yours!” What a grand thought! things present, things to come; earthly things, Heavenly things. What a beautiful arrangement God has made! “As it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him.” (1 Cor. 2:9)

St. Paul Enterprise, June 25, 1915

ASHAMED OF CHRIST AND HIS BRETHREN

Denver, Colo., June 20 Pastor Russell is here today. We report his discourse from the text, “He that despiseth you despiseth Me;” and he that despiseth Me despiseth Him that sent Me.” (Luke 10:16) He said in part:

By nature we are all children of wrath, sinners under sentence of death. God indeed tells us that He purposes to bless the world by and by, through the great Mediatorial Kingdom that will rule the world for a thousand years to help mankind up out of degradation, sin and death to full perfection of human nature; and that He has appointed Jesus Christ to be the Mediator between Himself and the world during those thousand years. Meantime, He has also purposed to take out of the world some who will have the same mind as was in Christ Jesus, and to associate this class with our Lord in the work of blessing the world. Jesus Himself will be the Head over this company, and they will be the Body of Christ. Whoever desires to become a member of this Body which God is selecting must comply with the required conditions.

Evidently the one quality for which God is looking is honesty, sincerity; He desires really true and really loyal hearts. One might be very careful to a penny in respect to money obligations, and yet not be strictly and thoroughly honest. He might overestimate himself and underestimate others. Some people are born with an honest disposition. All whom God is now receiving are of this honest-hearted kind. If He has thus favored us with the Truth, it is for us to maintain this honesty; for unless honesty enters into all the affairs of life, it will be impossible to maintain our relationship with the Lord.

We cannot be too careful with our conscience; we cannot be too honest. We cannot think of the Lord Jesus as being dishonest or of the Apostles as giving misinformation. Therefore it is evident that they did not believe in Hell fire and eternal torment; for we cannot think that they would have omitted preaching about eternal torment if they had believed it. We love to think of the Apostles as being honest men, in favor with God.

There is a tendency on the part of all mankind to say, "I am right." But everybody who is not an idiot knows differently. "There is none righteous, no, not one. All have sinned and come short of the glory of God" short of that glorious condition which God approved when He created our first parents. We all come short of that perfection of human nature. But if we confess our sins, we demonstrate our honesty; and He who arranged for the forgiveness of those sins is faithful to forgive us. If we assert that we are not sinners, we make God a liar; and the truth is not in us we would be dishonest. We should be honest enough to tell God that we desire to be right. (1 John 1:9, 10)

THE TERMS OF DISCIPLESHIP

Whoever would become a member of the Body of Christ must first turn away from sin and turn toward God. To those who have taken that step and are desirous of progressing, the Lord Jesus says, "Sit down and count the cost." The Bible never urges anybody along this line. (Luke 14:27, 28) People who do not understand the Bible work upon one's emotions in urging others to give themselves to God. They do not understand that God's way is to think everything out carefully; that God's Plan is very cool and calculating, and that everything concerning it is to be determined intellectually.

There is only one way of becoming a Christian, and that is by entering into a covenant with the Lord. This covenant is a positive agreement, in which we give ourselves in sacrifice to renounce everything of an earthly nature. This is the kind of covenant which our Lord Jesus made; it is the only kind to be made now. (Psa. 50:5) Jesus made His Covenant of Sacrifice at the beginning of His ministry, as it is written: "Lo, I come (in the volume of the Book it is written of Me) to do Thy will, O God." (Hebrews 10:7) Whoever would be a follower of the Lord must make this same covenant.

It did not take our Lord long to count the cost; for He had such a high appreciation of the privilege that He delighted to give Himself to God. He manifested loyalty to that consecration throughout His life-time, even unto the death of the Cross. "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him and given Him a name which is above every name; that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow,... and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." Phil. 2:9, 10

GIVING UP ONE'S WILL

The Church are to be joint-heirs with Christ. "If we suffer with Him, we shall reign with Him. If we be dead with Him, we shall live with Him." (2 Tim. 2:11, 12) It is no wonder that there are terms attached to so high a calling! These terms we have in Jesus' own words: "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." Matt. 16:24

The first step is to will to be Christ's disciple. The next step is to deny himself to give up his own will and to take the Lord's will instead of his own. The will represents the man. If we deny ourselves, if we give up our own wills, it carries everything absolutely that we possess. But do not give up your will to anybody except the Lord. This does not mean that we shall not be considerate of others and not try to yield to others. The people of God should be ready to favor others. We should be willing to give up our preferences in matters of no importance. But it is another thing to give over what we shall think and what we shall do. Whoever does so would not thereafter have control of his body.

This is exactly what the evil spirits endeavor to have us do. They desire to get control of the human will, and thus to have control over the human body. When a person becomes thus possessed, the evil spirits get control of his mind and he cannot think for himself, because his will is gone. This is also true of a person who has come under the power of hypnotism. But it is an altogether different matter to yield the will to our Lord Jesus Christ. God has tried and tested our Lord Jesus, and has set Him to be the Head over the Church, which is His Body; and all the members of that Body must give up their wills to their Head. The Spirit of the Head, the mind of Christ, must operate in every member.

A TRANSFORMATION WORK GOING ON

From the time one becomes a member of the family of God a great work of transformation is in progress. As members of the Adamic race all are imperfect mentally, morally and physically. But this class who feel their condition and are honest about the matter come meekly to the Lord and accept the riches of His grace in Christ Jesus. When they receive their change in the glorious First Resurrection there will be nothing ignoble about them, as there is now. Just as surely as they are seeking to know and to do the will of the Lord, in that same proportion will they come into harmony with that will, and thus be blessed in their minds and their bodies. The peace of God, that passes all human understanding, will rule in their hearts and in their lives.

Fear and worry constitute a great part of the trouble that is upon the world, bringing all kinds of disease to mind and body. But when we cast all our care upon Him who cares for us, the load of care rolls away from us. Although the Lord has not promised His Church earthly blessings of any sort neither earthly riches nor health nor any of these things nevertheless in His providence He has granted to us many physical blessings. Whoever is with the Lord and His Word and in the company of His children is sure to be benefited; for He shows us the way we should take. As whoever associates with cultured people is sure to absorb their ways, no matter how humble the condition in which he has been brought up, so whoever is associated with the Lord Jesus Christ is sure to be blessed.

DESPISING THE BRETHREN

The point we desire to make is that whoever is in company with God must be right in heart. No matter how imperfect that person may be by nature, there is something right about him; else God would never have recognized him as being of His people. Therefore “whosoever receiveth you receiveth Me, and whosoever despiseth you despiseth Me; and whosoever despiseth Me, despiseth Him that sent Me.”

Our Lord is still present in the flesh the flesh of His consecrated members; and the world still despises Him as at first and as He foretold, saying, “If the world hate you, ye know that it hated Me before it hated you. If ye were of the world, the world would love its own.” (John 15:18,19) The world is still ashamed of Christ. Nominal Christians, nominal Spiritual Israelites, are as much ashamed of Him today as were the Natural Israelites eighteen centuries ago.

When we consider that our Lord is represented in the flesh by the members of His Body in the flesh, we see that love for the brethren means love for the Lord. Hence the Apostle declares that love of the brethren is one of the great tests of our relationship to our Lord and to the Father. “He who loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God, whom he hath not seen?” (1 John 4:20) “Love one another as I have loved you,” is, therefore, the recognized test of discipleship; and whoever is ashamed of the brethren is ashamed of the Elder Brother, who counts all the younger brethren as Himself.

It may be a new thought to some that in despising the brethren they are despising the Lord; that in being ashamed of the brethren they are being ashamed of the Lord, and that thus they are demonstrating that they are not fit for the Kingdom, that they have not reached the mark of perfect love, that they have not only not learned to love their enemies, but not learned to love those who are striving to walk in the footsteps of Christ. How our Lord’s words sift and test our very innermost thoughts!

FOLLOWING THE MASTER’S STEPS

On the other hand, we are not so much astonished that we should be despised. By nature we were children of wrath, even as others of Adam’s family, and we had no pre-eminence above any others of humanity. But it surely does surprise us to learn that our Lord Jesus should be despised! We remember the record that He was perfect perfect to that extent that He could say, "He that hath seem Me hath seen the Father." No human being can see a spirit being. But since Adam, who was created perfect, was in the image and likeness of God, whoever would see a perfect human being would see the earthly representative of the Heavenly Father.

Since our Lord Jesus was a perfect man while on earth, in full harmony with the Father, whoever saw Him saw the Father in the only way in which it was possible for humanity ever to see God. As the Apostle says, "No man hath seen God at any time; the Only Begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He hath revealed Him" our Lord has made the Father known to us. Hence the Church, in seeing Jesus, were becoming acquainted with the Father. We can very well perceive, then, the purport of our Lord's words that whoever despised Him would be despising the Father who had sent Him.

To us it seems a very different matter when He said, "He that despiseth you despiseth Me." How poorly we represent our Lord! How imperfect our representation of Him! It is very wonderful that our Lord should consider us as His members in any such way as this. It implies that He confers upon us a great honor, especially when we consider how imperfect we are. "There is none righteous, no, not one;" hence for our Lord to say that whoever receives one of His little ones is receiving Him, and that whoever despises one of His little ones is despising Him, seems very wonderful. Herein is an important lesson for us.

As we realize, then, that we are down near to the close of the Gospel Age and that the time is at hand for the rendering of our accounts, let us be faithful in confessing the Lord, His Truth and the brethren. Then when we shall have finished our course with joy, we shall hear His "Well done, good and faithful servant! Thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord!"

LOVE FOR THE BRETHREN

The Lord's will concerning all His followers is that they should love one another as He loved them. St. John amplified the statement, saying that as Jesus loved the Church and laid down His life for the Church, so also His followers should lay down their lives for the brethren. (1 John 3:16) If this is the standard which our Lord has set for His people, how sorely disappointed will some be who have ignored this requirement! If, instead of loving the brethren and laying down their lives for them, some have said all manner of evil against them, what then? Then those who do those things are surely false brethren!

It is well that Christians note carefully the insidious canker which gnaws at the root of brotherly love, which tends to poison the disposition and to bring forth the evil fruitage of anger, malice, hatred, envy and strife. The wrong spirit is a growth, a development. Apparently, in some cases, the spirit of pride, the spirit of sectarianism, the spirit of ambition, are the leading incentives to the wrong course, which, if permitted to affect the heart, will develop a bad fruitage which will produce false brethren, persecuting brethren, heady, high-minded, blind to the real spirit of the Master.

Whoever would be found worthy to be forever with the Lord to share His glory and be associated with Him in His future work must be transformed in character, must be renewed in heart, must become not only pure in heart intention, but so far as possible pure in word and deed.

Oh, how much the true followers of Jesus should seek to impress upon themselves the great lesson that love does no ill to his neighbor, that love is sympathetic, suffereth long and is kind, is not puffed up, vaunteth not itself, seeketh not its own interest and welfare merely, but the interest and welfare of others!

The supreme test of our loyalty to God is our love for Him; and this love is manifested by our desire to do those things acceptable to Him. (1 John 2:3) There is little that we can do for the Almighty. He is so great and we are so small! But if we have His Spirit of love, then we shall love all those who love Him, and our conduct toward them will demonstrate the real sentiments of our hearts. Thus seen, we are daily making our record in the Lord's sight, daily showing Him to what degree we are worthy or unworthy of His great reward, which will go only to those in whom love abounds in whom the Spirit of Christ abounds.

Let us then be more and more on guard against the encroachments of the Adversary upon us as New Creatures! Let us more and more show forth the praises of Him who has called us out of darkness into His marvelous light! And in no way can we better show forth these praises than by exemplifying in our daily conduct the lessons which we have learned of Him. "Let us not be weary in well-doing; for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." According to the riches of His grace He will "do exceedingly abundantly above all that we can ask or think."

DIVINE LOVE FOR THE NEW CREATION

Toronto, Ont., July 18 Pastor Russell spoke here today on the text, "The Father Himself loveth you." (John 16:27) Among other things he said:

This is one of the most wonderful texts in the Bible. When we think how great God is and how little man is, when we consider that sin has blotted out in very large measure whatever there was of God's image in humanity, we are constrained to wonder what this text can mean. We are not surprised that the Father loves the angels, who are perfect, without blemish in any sense of the word. But how could He love mankind? We read, "God so loved the world that He gave His Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3:16) This text tells of some kind of great love that God had for the whole world of mankind.

GOD'S LOVE FOR THE WORLD

God had a sympathetic love for humanity, not an affectionate love; for there was nothing in fallen man worthy of Divine love. He felt just as we would feel for some poor injured dog or cat we would bind up its paw and give it something to eat. So God's sympathy for the world takes notice of the fact that mankind have gotten into a great deal of trouble through the curse which came upon Father Adam through disobedience to his Creator's command. Divine mercy and sympathy have gone out toward our race to such an extent that God has provided a great Plan of Salvation for mankind. He has provided the death of our Lord Jesus Christ to be our Redemption-price not to recover us from eternal torture, but from death. Unless we were rescued from that perishing condition of death, we would have no future life whatever.

His first great step on behalf of mankind turned our dying condition into a sleeping condition. Instead of perishing as do the brute beasts, men merely fall asleep, to wait for the morning of the New Dispensation, when our Lord will call forth those sleepers from the tomb. (John 5:28, 29) They will be called forth to an opportunity for restitution to human perfection in a world-wide Paradise a restitution for which God has made provision based upon the death of our Lord Jesus Christ a restitution lifting mankind out of sin, misery and death back to all that was lost in Eden. St. Peter tells us that this Restitution is mentioned by all the Holy Prophets. (Acts 3:19-21) In their writings are repeated references to the time when all the willing and obedient shall be brought back into fellowship with God, and all the wicked shall be destroyed in the Second Death.

GOD'S LOVE FOR THE CHURCH

Over and above Divine love for mankind in general comes the love mentioned in our text. God so loved the world that He provided for their redemption from sin and death. But to the Church our Lord Jesus says, "The Father Himself loveth you." No one belongs to this class except the saints those in covenant relationship with Him through Christ. (Psa. 50:5) It does not include those who merely have turned from sin to say, "I will not lead a wicked life any longer." To these the Father is paying no attention. They are still of the world, still condemned, still children of wrath, even as others; for they have not taken the only step which will transfer them from being children of wrath to being children of God.

We are not to think of the Heavenly Father as exercising no discretion in bestowing His love. If He loves any one, He loves that person for some reason. So in the character of those to whom our Lord Jesus referred there must have been something which constituted them worthy of the Father's love. The commendable thing in their character was that they had given themselves to God to do His will. they had come back into God's family as sons. John 1:12, 13

ADAM FORFEITED GOD'S LOVE

Adam had been a son of God; but he sinned and forfeited the Father's love. When he came under the sentence of death, "Dying, thou shalt die," he was cut off from fellowship with God. He and all his posterity became sinners under the death sentence, unworthy of Divine notice or care. While God has permitted certain blessings to come to mankind the sunshine, the rain and other material favors yet He has kept Himself aloof from our race, and has treated mankind as aliens and strangers. Their claim upon Him was forfeited when disobedience came in.

Since all mankind were born in that condition which would not be pleasing to God, and since the Church are still in very much the same condition, why does the Father love those who have given themselves to Him in consecration? It is because from the Bible viewpoint a very great change took place when they came into the family of God. There is only one way back into harmony and fellowship with the Father. Jesus is the way; for, as the Bible points out, in harmony with the Father's Plan our Lord gave Himself sacrificially, with all the rights which He had as a man; and in due time the merit of His sacrifice is to be applicable to Adam and all his race. Christ's death is the satisfaction-price for the sin of the whole world. And although it has not yet been appropriated for the whole world, God is inviting a certain class to come out of the world in advance of the remainder of our race.

Of these our Lord said, "They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." John 17:16

JUSTIFICATION THE FIRST STEP

Those disciples whom Jesus was addressing had come out of the world. They had left everything that they might be His pupils and do just the right thing in the right way. Thus to be children of God was their chief aim and ambition. The first step in this direction is justification--the being made right, just. Justification and righteousness mean the same thing; they are different ways of expressing the same thought. We must be made right with God before He will deal with us at all.

God has permitted six great Thousand-Year Days for the world to have experience with sin and death. During all this time He has let mankind see what they could do to help themselves out of sin and death conditions. We have made a sorry failure of it. The wisest people in the world have been unable to deliver themselves from the bondage of sin and death that is upon the whole world. God's time for delivering mankind is the great Sabbath of the Lord our God, when Jesus and His Church will be associated in the blessing of all the families of the earth.

During man's Work Week the race has had a severe lesson of what sin is and what it will do. As we look over into Europe, we see what evil passions can accomplish. Yet the savagery there is only beginning; it will be far worse. With all our preaching and teaching, with all our surgery and medicine, we have not bettered our race very much. When we perceive that sin has accomplished this evil work, we dread sin; we realize that it is the most terrible thing that can befall any one. When the whole world come to realize the true situation, men will know that the entrance of sin is the worst thing that can happen.

THE BEGINNING OF THE NEW CREATION

According to the Divine Program for human salvation, the Lord Jesus Christ was to do a sacrificial work for the race; next the Church was to be gathered out from amongst mankind, and then the Millennial Age was to begin. When our Lord Jesus gave His life freely and unreservedly to the Father in consecration at Jordan, God started a New Creation, by begetting the Son with the holy Spirit to the Divine nature. As he was coming up out of the water, the holy Spirit came upon Him, anointing Him to all the glorious work which He is to accomplish as the great King and the great Priest for the world of mankind.

When the Father planned this New Creation in connection with human salvation, He arranged that the New Creatures should be those who would give up all their own rights as men, laying everything at His feet, and desiring to know and to do the Divine will. As our Lord was the beginning of the creation of God (Rev. 3:14), the Father wished Him to have the highest place in this New Creation. The angels never had such a test of loyalty as came to Jesus; they never laid down life on one plane and passed to a lower plane, as He did. Although they have been loyal in everything which God has asked of them, He did not put this test upon them.

When at the beginning of His ministry our Lord, then thirty years of age, gave Himself unreservedly to the Father, saying, "Lo, I come (in the volume of the Book it is written of Me), to do Thy will, O God," the Father manifested His special love for the Son by anointing Him with the holy Spirit, making Him a member of the Divine family on the highest plane of being. Then for three and a half years the Father tested Him, proved Him and found Him worthy to receive the honor, the glory, the power, the might. (Rev. 5:12) How we rejoice in our Savior's victory! How we love and admire Him, for the same reason that the Father does! There is something of character there.

THE BODY OF THE ANOINTED

The Apostle tells us that there was one feature of God's Plan for human salvation which was not made known in the past; that is, the fact that there was to be a Body of Christ not merely one individual, but a company. This figure of speech we use when we speak of the body of Congress, of which the chairman is the head. So we speak of the Body of Christ, of which Christ Jesus is the Head. God gave Him to be Head over the Church, which is His Body. (Eph. 1:19-23) Nobody knew beforehand that The Messiah is to be composed of many members, and that the members were to be selected from amongst mankind. The Jews simply expected Messiah to come. They read of the glory, and thought only of the glory and of one person, not realizing that they themselves would have an opportunity to be of this Messiah class just what the Jews are still expecting.

Through St. Paul the Lord tells us that in this Body of Christ there would be both Jews and Gentiles; and that the twain were to become one New Man, one complete Christ Jesus the Head, and the Church the Body. (Eph. 2:11-16; 4:11-16) The first members of this Body came from the Jews, to whom the call was first to be made, because they were the natural seed of Abraham. God had told Abraham that He would give the first chance to the Jews. It is wonderful to contemplate how many were ready for this call. Probably twenty-five thousand Jews responded quickly to the Gospel Message, thus showing a wonderful condition of consecration to God and His ways.

Then the door was thrown open to the Gentiles. There were not many of these ready for the call; and so it has taken eighteen hundred years to gather from amongst the Gentiles enough to complete the exact predestined number. If the Gentiles had been as thoroughly consecrated as were the Jews, the required number might have been found during the first century. But the Gentiles had not had the previous instructions of the Law to assist them, and therefore it has taken a much longer time to take out the proportionate number. Thus we were called out of the world to be followers of Jesus invited to make the same kind of consecration to God which He made, and to receive and to manifest the same holy Spirit the Spirit of anointing.

MERIT IMPUTED TO THE CHURCH

During this Gospel Age the Father is calling only those who have the spirit of His Son, whose disposition was one of faith and obedience. These cannot have the same degree of obedience because their flesh is imperfect; but they can have the same degree as far as the mind, the will, is concerned. We can will to be whatever we like; and God is looking at the will. He knows far better than we do that we cannot do the things that we would. The Apostle said, "Yea I judge not mine own self... He that judgeth me is the Lord." (1 Cor. 4:3, 4) St. Paul did not know how much allowance to make for even himself; and we do not know how much allowance to make for ourselves, our neighbors, our friends, our brothers. Therefore the Lord instructs us not to judge one another; for whatever kind of judgment we mete to others will be the standard of our own judgment.

The ability to criticize others manifests knowledge of just what constitutes the wrong act or word, and renders the one aspiring to be judge the more responsible. We are to render all the help we can to others, and leave the matter of disciplining to the Lord. He alone knows what experiences His people should have. Therefore His people should avoid all judging, condemning and fault-finding. Let God do the judging and any punishing which He may see necessary.

In the Millennial Age mankind will simply put away sin and try to live as nearly right as possible. Then God will bring them up to perfection. But now it is different. To those who come trusting that Jesus has made satisfaction for their sins, a certain measure of His merit is imputed as soon as their consecration has been accepted by the Lord. To illustrate: Suppose the one who offers himself to God in full consecration represents twenty percent of a perfect human being. Since he is willing to give his little all to God, our Lord Jesus imputes to him eighty percent. Thus the person has the one hundred percent representing the perfection of human nature—"complete in Him." Then our Lord, the great High Priest, takes His own eighty percent and the person's twenty percent and presents it all to the Father. Just when we take the same step that Jesus took, then the Father begins to love us with a special love.

KEEP YOURSELVES IN THE LOVE OF GOD

The Father's love, which began when He begat us with His holy Spirit, continues with us as long as we are loyal to Him and in proportion to the degree of our loyalty. Should we at any time prove disloyal, like Judas Iscariot, the holy Spirit would be taken from us. There is forgiveness for errors made through weakness of the flesh; but disloyalty to the Lord will not be forgiven. A sin against the holy Spirit will never have forgiveness.

We should all be very careful not to have the Judas spirit not to barter off the Lord or the Truth or the brethren for thirty pieces of silver of any kind. Some betray the Lord by saying, "For business reasons I must do thus and so." Others betray the Lord by declaring, "I know that I am not preaching just as I should that I am slandering God's character and His Word, as well as misrepresenting myself; but I must make a living." Why should such persons be acknowledged before the Father and the holy angels? But only the Lord could determine whether such were worthy of the Second Death. They could not be of the Body of Christ, however.

What a wonderful honor is this to which God has called us! Those who have been begotten again by His holy Spirit have been anointed from the day of their begetting to be kings and priests unto God and to reign with Christ a thousand years. There are tribulations identified with all their experiences; nevertheless, while they have tribulations, they also have the peace of God, which passes human understanding. As the Bible declares, all things are theirs; for they are Christ's, and Christ is God's. He has promised grace sufficient for every trial; and even the adversities of life shall work together for good to them, because they love God and are the called according to His purpose.

"Love Divine, all Love excelling, Joy of Heaven to Earth come down."

EVIDENCES OF A TRUE HOLINESS

Hamilton, Ont., July 25 Pastor Russell is here today. We report his discourse based upon the text, "God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." (2 Tim. 1:7) The Pastor spoke as follows:

Bible students have learned not to think of the different spirits mentioned in our text as different persons. When, for instance, an evil spirit or disposition is mentioned, we do not think of it as a person; and when a holy Spirit or disposition is mentioned, we do not think of it as a person. A holy person has a holy Spirit or disposition. The holy Spirit proceeds from God. It is His spirit. It comes to us through the Truth; it is not another person, another

God (1 Cor. 8:5, 6) Likewise the spirit of fear is not a devil, a spirit being; and the spirit of a sound mind is not a God, nor an angel. Gradually we are getting the right focus on these matters, to see that God is a Spirit; and that as a Spirit He has an influence just as a human being has an influence. That influence is according to the character, according to the strength, according to the power to exert one's self.

Some have a power of evil-doing by which they could vanquish a hundred or a thousand; in one sense of the word they have a strong spirit. Others have a spirit of bitterness, and can stir up evil in others. Still others have a spirit of kindness, gentleness and love. But by nature we are all members of a fallen race; for we have many of the qualities that belong to the wrong spirit.

When the disciples came to Jesus after the Samaritans had refused to sell them food, they said, "Lord, wilt Thou that we call down fire from heaven to destroy them and their city?" Jesus replied, "Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of." You should not have such a disposition. The fact that they have ignored Me is an insignificant matter. If you desire to have My spirit, you must get rid of that disposition to render evil for evil, to do harm to others.

Our Lord was not talking about the holy Spirit as a person, but as an influence. The Bible shows us that God, who is a Spirit Being, is not vindictive, but merciful, loving and just. Therefore He is a good Spirit, a holy Spirit. God's disposition is a holy disposition; He is not disposed to do anything wrong or unjust or unkind. All who receive His holy Spirit receive the spirit of a sound mind, of justice, of gentleness. And so the Apostle, in speaking about this matter, says that the holy Spirit is manifest can be seen in those who possess it.

SPIRIT OF THE FATHER AND OF THE SON

St. Paul does not mean that we shall see another being get into a man, as once we believed, that the holy Spirit, as a God, divided Himself up and entered into millions of people. Those who have the idea that God can be divided amongst millions of people are very much confused in their minds. Whoever receives the mind of Christ, the spirit of Christ, receives the spirit of holiness. Our Lord Jesus gave up His own will to do the Father's will. Just in proportion as we give up our own fallen disposition and take instead God's way of thinking, God's way of viewing matters, God's Spirit of Love, to that same extent ours is a holy Spirit, to that extent we have received the holy Spirit.

All the human family are fallen; and when God received us into His family through Christ it was with a view to begetting us of the holy Spirit to a newness of nature. This start of the new nature leads us to view every subject from God's standpoint, to say to ourselves, “Is this the mind of God on this subject? I will study the Scriptures and do what God has said on this matter. When I came into the family of God I agreed to give up my own will altogether, just as the Master did.”

No matter how good our Lord’s will was, He gave it up in order to do the Father’s will. “Not My will, but Thine, be done.” “Lo, I come (in the volume of the Book it is written of Me) to do Thy will, O God.” (Hebrews 10:7) The Father had a certain Plan marked out. The Son, as an intelligent being, would have thoughts of His own; but He surrendered all His own plans and thoughts in order that He might do the Father’s will. The Father was pleased with this course; and as result when our Lord Jesus gave up His own will He came right into line with God’s providences. He was successful in His work because He was obedient to the Father. Phil. 2:8, 9

THE CHURCH ACCEPTED IN THE BELOVED

The invitation of the Gospel Age is an invitation to do the same thing that Jesus did. The Master said, “If any man will come after Me be My disciple, My follower, let him deny himself, take up his cross, and follow Me.” (Matt. 16:24) To deny himself is to give up his own will. Whoever has given up his will has given his all to the Lord. As the Apostle says, we present our bodies a living sacrifice. (Rom. 12:1) We give up our wills entirely; our Lord Jesus accepts us and presents us to the Father. But before He can do this, He must impute to us of His righteousness; for by nature we are imperfect through the fall, and the Father will accept nothing that is imperfect. As our Lord said, “No man cometh unto the Father but by Me.” Again He said, “Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out.” John 14:6; 6:37

After we have given ourselves through the Lord Jesus Christ, He imputes the merit of His sacrifice to us in such form that the Father can receive us as His children, and start in us the beginning of a new nature a new creation. When we get a proper view of this transaction, we shall not think that we must repeatedly give ourselves to God. We shall be concerned about living up to the contract which we have made, and which God has accepted and sealed with His holy Spirit. This seal is the earnest of our inheritance; it binds the contract which we made when we gave ourselves to God in consecration. (2 Cor. 1:21, 22) We have signed a contract giving our all to Him; we have received the earnest, the hand payment; and through the coming days we are to keep giving ourselves without cessation in harmony with the Lord’s will.

INCREASE IN GRACE AND KNOWLEDGE

Daily we should search the Word of God that we may understand the Divine Message and get the Spirit of the Truth. We must see what is the real meaning of the Bible, so that God may be greatly pleased with us, as He sees how earnestly we are trying to do His will in everything. Thus His Spirit will grow in us. More and more we may be filled with the holy Spirit. It is a Spirit of meekness, gentleness, long-suffering, patient endurance, and love; it is the holy Spirit of God; and the more we have of its fruits, the more we shall have of the Spirit itself. But we cannot have these fruits developed from the teachings of God's Word, unless we have the holy Spirit, the Spirit of God, the Spirit of Christ, influencing all our acts, words and thoughts. (Gal. 5:22, 23)

When first we entered the School of Christ, we were babes and acted like babes. But the Apostle says that we are not to remain babes. We are to put away childish things, to be no longer children tossed about by every wind of doctrine. As babes we were fed upon "the sincere milk of the Word," that we might grow thereby. (1 Pet. 2:2) But as grown men we no longer desire milk as a steady diet, although we enjoy a glass of milk occasionally. (Heb. 5:12, 14) We prefer to come to our Father's table, the table of the Lord, and receive the Truth the strong meat that belongs to such as are of full age, the meat that will make us strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.

The holy Spirit is not a spirit of excitement. We have known people to be filled with the spirit of excitement who did not seem to have the holy Spirit at all. If we have the holy Spirit, it will manifest itself in meekness, gentleness, patience, brotherly kindness, love.

What God has been doing for His people during the past forty years is wonderful. To every one of them the Bible has become a new Book. More and more the old things are passing away. It was not sufficient that we should have the Savior and should believe in Him. That knowledge was only the beginning of our blessings. We still rejoice greatly to know that our sins have been forgiven. We still have the milk of the Word, assuring us of the merit of our dear Redeemer's sacrifice. But we are not living on a milk diet now. We need something stronger than the knowledge that our sins are forgiven. This is far from the end of the knowledge bestowed upon the people of God.

Growing in grace and in knowledge, we are learning more and more to see what the Divine will is and what the holy Spirit is. Things which once we thought very consistent and reasonable are now very inconsistent to us. As we receive more of the spirit of a sound mind, we see how foolish were many of the things which once we believed. There is new light coming into our minds appreciation of the lengths, breadths, heights and depths of the Love of God, which passes all understanding.

THE SUM OF ALL THE GRACES

Whoever comes into relationship with God receives a begetting of love; for God is Love. Love worketh no injury to his neighbor. Therefore the Apostle says, "Love is the fulfilling of the Law." God's Law is a Law of Justice; and, as the Scriptures set forth, whoever receives the Spirit of the Lord, the Spirit of Love, will at least render justice to others. No law requires more than justice. Whatever we do more than justice is that much of sacrifice on our part. But we cannot do all that we would like to do; for in our flesh dwells no perfection. Nor can we live up to the full Law of God. But we can see to it that our will is to do nothing less than justice; and that if in anything we come short of justice, if in anything we have infringed the Golden Rule, it has been contrary to our minds. Then we shall not rest until we have made right the wrong act, word or look whatever was an infraction of the rights of others.

Should some one say, "This is a hard rule," we reply, "You will never be ready for the Kingdom unless you have the right spirit, my dear brother." This principle of justice, which is the foundation of God's Throne, is the foundation of His character. To do to others what we would have them do to us is the right thing to do justice. If we cannot do justice in every act, we can at least do it in our minds. "With my mind I serve the Law of God," said the Apostle, even if he could not on every occasion do it in every act and word.

Whenever we find that we have violated justice, repentance is the proper step; and every true repentance means an acknowledgment of the wrong to the one who has been wronged. To be sure this course is very humiliating. But such experiences are the best things that we can possible have; for by these we develop humility, which in turn will help us to meekness and gentleness. Thus in the Divine arrangement the people of God are learning helpful lessons, that give them more and more of the spirit of a sound mind. They can think better than formerly they did; they are able to build themselves up. As they find that this or that quality of character is weak and imperfect in their natural disposition, they learn to level up their whole disposition in harmony with the spirit of justice. This work going on in their hearts is making them fit for the Kingdom. 2 Pet. 1:5-11

THE GREAT TEST UPON THE CHURCH

God is calling a very special class for joint-heirship with our Lord Jesus Christ. These must be very loyal to the Lord, very just in their appreciation of the rights of others, in order to be accounted worthy. The Father sees that our bodies are very imperfect; but He promises that if He finds our heads and our hearts right, He will give us in the resurrection a right body, a glorious body. Then, with right heads, fully committed to those principles of righteousness which represent the Divine character, the holy Spirit of God, we shall be in the condition in which He will be able to use us.

The new body will not make the character, but will be merely the agency through which the character will demonstrate itself. If we do not develop the character now, the moral character of our Lord Jesus Christ, we shall not receive a place in the Messianic Kingdom. All that are there will be fit for their position. God has taken long enough to find this class. He will not make any mistake. Every one who has developed Love Divine has had just such experiences as you and I have had experiences along the line of justice and righteousness. The two are similar; for righteousness is justice, and justice is righteousness.

But it is not the Divine will that we should have justice merely; to be like God we must also have sympathy, have a kind feeling toward others. God has that kindly feeling for His creatures. Away back in the beginning, knowing about His Plan for the creation of Father Adam, and knowing about our sins as they would come upon us because of Adam's disobedience, He made provision for our redemption, for the restitution of the world, and for the call of the Church. All this is beyond the requirements of justice. God could not do less than justice to every member of the human family. Just as surely as He calls upon you and me to deal according to the Golden Rule, so He does all things according to the principles of justice.

Justice is the foundation of God's Throne. The whole superstructure of His Kingdom is built upon justice. He will not do less than justice, and this is what He requires of every creature. Nothing less than absolute justice will be permitted. But the great test now upon the Church is more than this that we should have the love which will lay down life itself for the brethren. While God demands nothing more than justice, yet if we do not render more than justice, we cannot reign in the Kingdom. The Father is seeking those who have the spirit of love those who are kind, loving, forgiving, helpful. He desires them to have His Spirit.

The Christian knows that all things work together for good to them that love God. This knowledge is to him a spirit of power, of strength. Circumstances and conditions which would overwhelm others would be what he would expect to have. But the child of God is courageous, knowing that his Heavenly Father will not permit anything to come to him that will not be for his good. In proportion as he receives the spirit of a sound mind, the Spirit of the Lord, and in proportion as the holy Spirit works in him, he will become more and more like our Lord; and this spirit will enable him to have more and more compassion on those who are out of the way. It will give him broader views of life, and more general views of mankind; and as God sent His Son, and as the Son came and did things for the good of man at

His own expense, so all who have His spirit will strive to bless mankind.

The spirit of a sound mind broadens and deepens the character along all its good lines. It helps its possessor not only to take more correct views of his own disposition, but to be more sympathetic toward others. As he realizes more and more the impairment of his own mind and body and his own need of mercy and helpful correction, he recognizes the similar derangement of the whole world of mankind and the general need of sympathy and assistance. As he learns to rectify the deficiencies and inequalities of his own mind, he sympathizes more and more with those who are without this regulating principle this spirit of power, of love and of a sound mind. Thus he gradually becomes more patient, more sympathetic, more generous, more loving more like the Redeemer, who is Godlike.

“OVERCOMING”

1915 Convention Report Supplement -- Pastor Russell delivered a very interesting address. He spoke as follows:

My text is found in Rev. 2:26, 27: “He that overcometh, and keepeth My works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers, even as I received of My Father.”

The Bible tells us that our Heavenly Father purposed in Himself, from before the foundation of the world, all of the great Plan of Salvation which He has since been carrying out. He will make no changes in His Plan; He knew the end from the beginning. (Isa. 46:9, 10; 55:8-11.) Such a wise, gracious, Almighty God is ours. Although He had this purpose before the world was, the Scriptures show that he did not make it known, except very vaguely, until the time of Abraham. This, you remember, St. Paul points out to us, saying that God first made declaration of His Purpose to Abraham, He first preached the Gospel to him (Gal. 3:8), because he had proven faithful, loyal, obedient, trustful. He said, “Abraham, in thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed.” It is My purpose to bless the whole world of mankind, and all of that great blessing shall come through your posterity. Then God seemed to ignore His own promise, and century after century passed without anything apparently being done. In the meantime, the natural seed of Abraham through Isaac had gone into bondage in Egypt. Four hundred years after the Covenant with Abraham his seed were still in bondage, with that Covenant yet standing. Then God sent a message through Moses to this effect: You are the natural seed of Abraham. Are you ready now to have fulfilled to you the promise which I made to your great-great-grandfather, Abraham? You can readily imagine how this people felt. "Are we ready?" Does God think we are not? Have we not been waiting all this time, and thinking He was not ready?" They indicated that they were ready. God purposed that Moses should be their leader to bring them out of the land of Egypt, across the Red Sea, and onward into the land of Canaan, where they supposed they would accomplish great things, and become so great and mighty a people as to conquer the whole world and rule in righteousness to bless and uplift mankind in general.

NATURAL ISRAEL'S FAILURE TO INHERIT PROMISE

When God had brought Israel to Mt. Sinai, He indicated to them that before they could as the seed of Abraham bless the world, they must demonstrate their faithfulness, their fitness. He would give them His Law in a great Covenant, and if they would keep that Law Covenant, then they would have the right and should receive the opportunity to become the blessers of the rest of the world. You remember that God gave them the Ten Commandments through Moses at Mt. Sinai. Then there was Mt. Gerazim and Mt. Ebal, with a valley between; and you remember that the blessings were read from Mt. Gerazim and the cursings from Mt. Ebal. The people were promised that if they were faithful to God all these blessings should be theirs instead. If they would keep the Law and remain loyal to the Lord He would make them a great power in the world to bless other nations. More than that, they should have everlasting life. "He that doeth these things shall live by them."

We remember that Israel said, "All these things will we do." We are ready, we appreciate the offer, and wish to be the blessers of mankind. Oh, the honor we shall have! I can imagine that they increased in stature as they thought about it, that they inflated their lungs as they dwelt upon the thought of how great they would be. It must necessarily be a great people who could conquer the whole world and bless it. They could see no other way to bless the world than to conquer it first. They were only a little nation among others older and stronger surrounding them. But they could not keep the Law of God, because the Law is the measure of a perfect man's ability. No fallen man could keep that law, which included so much; as the Savior said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind and heart and soul and strength, and thy neighbor as thyself." None but a perfect man could do all this. They did not realize how imperfect they were. But as the days and months and years went by, they learned that they were not able to bless the world.

You remember that God gave them an annual Atonement day. He said, so to speak, on this day, "I will wipe off the slate again, and you may try on a clean slate for the coming year.” They tried year after year in this way. These yearly typical sacrifices were arranged for them which could never take away sin, but which in a typical way represented them as brought back into harmony with God for another opportunity for life through keeping the Law. Finally they became very much discouraged. They saw that they were not accomplishing anything along this line. They did not have ever lasting life any more than other people, or than they had before they entered into the Covenant. They were in no condition to bless the world. Their nation was not prospering very well, though they had struggled along century after century.

GOD’S PROMISE OF A NEW COVENANT

Then God sent Israel word through His prophets, saying, “The day is coming when I will make a New Covenant with the House of Israel and the House of Judah.” Under that New Covenant, “I will remember your sins and your iniquities no more. I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and give you a heart of flesh.” Oh, yet; will it ever be fulfilled? Yes, and soon. We see, in the light of St. Paul’s testimony, that God has had an arrangement to get ready an antitypical Moses, an arrangement for the making of “better sacrifices” than those of bulls and goats, by reason of which He will effectually and finally take away sin.

God is getting ready to do this not only for fleshly Israel, but for all the families of the earth. He will not only remove the embargo of original sin which has stood against the race, but He will take away sin perpetually, under the New Covenant, during the thousand-year period at the beginning of which the New Covenant will be inaugurated. The Jews are still waiting for the New Covenant. “It shall come to pass after those days that I will make a New Covenant with the House of Israel and the House of Judah, not according to the Covenant that I made with their fathers when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt,” but, “I will make a New Covenant” with a better Mediator than Moses, and “better sacrifices” to cancel sin and bring the sinners back to the place where I can make satisfactory arrangements with them. The point we have in mind is not the difference between the Law Covenant and the New Covenant, between the Covenant made with the Jews in the past and the Covenant to be made with them and the world of mankind in the future, but the fact that God had made certain promises to that nation, and that they had hoped to have the promises fulfilled in them, but failed to get what they had hoped for. What were those things? They hoped to be a nation of overcomers, a victorious nation, and that God would bless them and exalt them very highly, so that they might subdue the world and bring all in subjection to Jehovah; that they might impress the Law given at Mt. Sinai upon all nations, and be judges, rulers, to do the work God purposed for the world. This is what they failed to do.

GOD'S PURPOSE TO BE OUTWORKED IN CHRIST

What did God do about the matter? Did He say, "Israel has failed, and no other nation will do better, and I may as well give the whole matter up?" No, He said nothing of the kind. We have not that kind of a God. We have a God who knows what He is about. He had His plan completely arranged from the beginning, and it has met with no reverses at any time. When there was any failure it was what God foreknew, and had foretold prophetically. It was no surprise to God that Israel failed. What did God do then? In due time, He sent His own Son into the world.

Was that a new thought? No; this was already purposed by the Father from before the foundation of the world that His Son should come to earth, become a man, and die as a Ransom for the sins of the whole world. In His case, the Law manifested the One, and the only One, who could and did keep the Law. Jesus was approved by the Law. He came as the natural seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Judah, born under the Law and obliged to keep all the terms of that Law. Unless He could keep the Law, He could never be the promised Seed of Abraham; He could never bless the world. But there was no fault found with Him, thank God! He was wholly obedient to the Law of God and fulfilled the requirements of the Law Covenant to the uttermost.

Did Jesus bless the world as the natural seed of Abraham? No. Why not? It was not the natural seed of Abraham, in the special sense, that was to bless the world. Suppose this perfect man, Christ Jesus, in whom was no sin, had attempted to bless mankind as a man. What kind of a blessing could He have given them without first redeeming them? You see, He could not have given men the blessing which God designed them to have. He might, indeed, have set up a kingdom, established upon wise principles. He might have been recognized as a great teacher and reformer. The world might have bowed down to Him, acknowledging their willingness to serve Him as their King. Still, they would have been under the death sentence.

Jesus as a man could not have set them free from that sentence, "Dying, thou shalt die." Millions had already gone down into the tomb. Although Jesus kept the Law perfectly, He could never have blessed all the families of earth as a man in any permanent way. He might have told them how to eat better, how to clothe themselves better, how to speak and act better, and how to do everything more wisely, but still that would not have brought the blessing of everlasting life which God designed man to attain. Jesus would have had everlasting life Himself by keeping the Law, but He could not have given everlasting life to a single individual. He might have awakened some of the sleeping ones out of death by the use of His power, but he could not have kept them awake, because He had not this right, since the sentence against Adam and his posterity was, "Dying, thou shalt die." Hence it was necessary that Jesus first attain relationship to God as the spiritual Seed of Abraham before He could be the one to save and bless the world.

What did He do? Ah, He gave His life as the Ransom price for the sins of the whole world, a Ransom-price for the sins of the whole world, a Ransom for Father Adam, in whom all the world were condemned. Inasmuch as all men died in Adam, the sacrifice of the one perfect man, Christ Jesus, was sufficient to accomplish the redemption of the whole human race, which was in Adam's loins when he sinned. What beautiful harmony we find in God's arrangements! As Bible students, we know that the word, "ransom," was used in the Bible, when speaking of our Lord's sacrificial death for man, signifies a corresponding price. It was the perfect Adam who sinned, and it was the perfect man Jesus who gave His life as Adam's Redemption-price.

It was not enough, however, that Jesus laid down His human life. There must be something more. Jesus must receive a spirit life. But why not receive back again the earthly life? Because, if He took back the earthly life which He had laid down, He would need it for Himself, and He would have no life to appropriate for Adam and his race. He would merely have died and been resurrected to human life again. His death would have been of no avail. But we see the beauty in God's plan. God arranged that in permitting Jesus' earthly life to be unjustly taken away, He would give Him a new life, on a new plane of being, as a New Creature. Then, as a New Creature, having received life as a divine being as a reward for His faithfulness, He would still have to His credit the earthly nature, the human life, which He had not forfeited by sin. Thus He had a right to two lives. He needed the one for Himself and the other to give for Adam and his race. He needed the two; nothing less would do, you see.

GOD'S WONDERFUL NEW NAT10N

The Plan of God having carried out thus far, the next thing in order was that Jesus should start a new nation. A new nation? Yes. When God spoke to Abraham about his seed, He intimated that it would be a nation, and not merely an individual. The natural seed of Abraham as a nation were hoping for much, because a nation was mentioned. When the suggestion was made to them that they might not be fit to be God's special people, they said that that could not be. They supposed that they had the inside track; that since God's Word could not be broken, and they were the natural seed of Abraham, He would have to take them. But He would not have them if they were not in the right condition of heart. They were probably quite surprised when Jesus declared that God could raise up children from the stones rather than take the unworthy. God would fulfil His promise, but not through them as a nation.

We might not have understood the matter had it not been that God's providence revealed it through the apostles. The Apostle Peter states, writing to the Church of Christ, "Ye are a Royal Priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people [a people for a purpose], that ye should show forth the praises of Him who hath called you out of darkness into His marvelous light." This is God's arrangement, then. Where is He getting this nation? He is selecting its members individually, not taking a whole nation, as He did with the Jews. He said to them, Stand aside now; I will show you that I purpose to make a new nation. This is what God has been doing for 1900 years. It is to be a new creation as well as a new nation—a new creation "created in Christ Jesus unto good works." That is why God gives us some good works to do. He is making us co-workers with Himself. "Ye are God's husbandry"; "Ye are God's workmanship," according to the teaching of Christ.

CALL OF GENTILES TO SHARE ISRAELITISH PROMISE

My hearers know what I mean by the teaching of Christ. I do not mean the teaching of any sectarian system. All who come into harmony with the Lord according to the terms of the Covenant made with Him come under Christ Jesus as their Head. His teachings are found in God's Word, the Bible. It is this one Church of Christ that is the New Creation. We do not know who the members are, but the apostle says, "The Lord knoweth them that are His." I will do my best to recognize the Lord's children wherever I find them, whether white or black, male or female, rich or poor, ignorant or learned. I will do my best to appreciate them. I might make mistakes, and you might make mistakes, but the Lord will not make a mistake. He knows all who are His. "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

It was this class that God referred to way back in Abraham's day, when He declared that the Seed of Abraham should bless all the families of the earth. And you and I are of that Seed, if we are in Christ. How beautiful and wonderful it is that God is thus founding the new nation. But, you may say, we are not Israelites, and the promise was to them. Yes, we are Israelites, if we are in Christ. According to the Law, the Jews could claim nothing, because they could not keep the Law. We as Gentiles could claim nothing because we could not keep the Law. But God did not place us under the terms of the law Covenant.

How, then, do we come in? The apostle explains that the Jews died to their hopes concerning their Covenant; all hope of accomplishing the desired end through that Covenant must be abandoned. God gave the Jews an opportunity to try for many centuries, and they failed. So there would be no use trying to bless the world under that Covenant. One who did keep that Covenant, and who therefore has all the rights coming from the keeping of it, is choosing us to be His Bride. It is God's proposition. No matter how poor a maiden may be, or how rich a king, if he accepts her as his wife she is his joint-heir in all his possessions. The honors that are his are shared by her as his queen. That is exactly the picture God gives us of Jesus and His Bride.

Those Jews who could get nothing through the Law, because they could not keep it, and who were living in Jesus' day, could become united to Him as members of The Christ-heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ Jesus. We who were Gentiles, and had no rights at all as Jews, have been invited by this great King to become fellow-heirs with the faithful of the Jews, to share with them all that they will receive through Christ. Good. Thank God for the door opened to the Gentiles also! So Jesus, for 1900 years, has been selecting this Bride class to inherit with Himself the Promise made to Abraham.

CHURCH OF CHRIST ARE UNDER GOD'S LAW

But has God given over all of the conditions made with Natural Israel and said, Never mind; I do not care for My Law any more? No, not at all. Are we, then, obligated to keep the law? Yes, we are thus obligated. We Gentiles, who were never under the Law? Yes. How? This way: God is still of the same mind as in the beginning. No one will be fit to bless others unless he himself is in harmony with God through His Law. But we are not under the Law Covenant. According to the flesh we could not keep God's Law, but we can keep it according to the spirit. Covered with the merit of Christ, "the righteousness of the Law-its just requirements-are fulfilled in us." Who? Those who "walk not after the flesh but after the Spirit."

God in His arrangement tells us that He has reckoned us dead to ourselves, to our fallen nature. He knows our blemished bodies could never keep that perfect law. He knows that you and I as human beings could not keep it. But if we are willing to give ourselves over entirely to Him, to use all our strength in seeking to live according to His will, we may be accepted through Christ as members of that wonderful new nation, which when developed in the School of Christ will be fully qualified and equipped for bringing in the grand blessings long ago promised to all the kindreds of earth, both the living and the dead.

We lay ourselves at His feet and say that we will be glad to do anything in our power. Then what does God say? "Come, and I will accept you though Jesus Christ. His merit will cover your imperfections. I will beget you with My Spirit and you shall be New Creatures in Christ, to whom "old things have passed away and all things have become new." We rejoice to have such a precious relationship. The God of Heaven has received us into His family. He has raised over us the banner of love. Instead of being sinners, we are now justified freely by His grace from all things from which the Law could not justify us. There is naught against us on God's Record.

What else have we? As New Creatures we have entered into a Covenant that we will keep the Law of God. Is that true? Yes, my dear brother. What about our imperfect flesh? God says that He will judge us according to the spirit, the intention. If our hearts are loyal, if our endeavors are the best we can put forward, He will cover our defects with Christ's sacrificial merit. The blemishes are not ours willingly. If we do all in our power to overcome, these imperfections will not be counted against us.

God keeps us clean by continually applying the virtue of Jesus' blood as we ask for it. He recognizes us as His children, who have come into the schooling condition under our Elder Brother, the Lord Jesus Christ. Here we receive the necessary lessons, experiences and assistances, to the end that we may be prepared to be the teachers and rulers of the world by and by. It is an individual work. It will be a collective nation when completed and we are changed in the First Resurrection, brought to perfection as New Creatures. It is to be a royal nation, a royal family on the spiritual plane then.

THE GREAT WORK GRANTED THE OVERCOMERS

We have been aspiring to the same great work that Israel aspired to. They aspired to be God's people to break in pieces the Gentiles. The Lord declares in the 2nd Psalm that the heathen (the peoples) shall be broken with a rod of iron; that they shall be "dashed in pieces as a potter's vessel. " God will overthrow present governments, institutions and arrangements and establish a New Order of things. He says, "To him that overcometh will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron," etc. The appeal to God's people to be "overcomers" is an individual one. We cannot get into the Kingdom by classes or nationalities, or by churches or sects, or by any other way than individually. That is the way the Lord puts it in our text, "To him that overcometh."

What have we to overcome? You have not to overcome your will, because you did that before you came into God's family at all. God would not accept you until your win, according to the flesh, was dead. So the Bible puts it. After giving up your will, He begat you by His Spirit to be a New Creature. This new mind, this new will, this new disposition, this new spirit, is the one that is now animating you. What have we to overcome, then? Many things. There is the spirit of the world about us, which is altogether different from the Lord's spirit. It is the spirit of selfishness, a spirit sometimes more noble and sometimes less noble, but always a selfish spirit. It is an ambitious spirit, ambitious in wanting to get pleasure and the good things of life, the world's approval, and everything of a worldly kind.

DECEPTIONS OF THE FLESH

You find that spirit all around you, in the office, the factory, the stores, in the newspapers, and everywhere. The suggestion of selfishness comes from every side, "Serve the present system and the interests of the present life; live for present things." Then your own flesh has certain suggestions for you. It suggests, "You have a natural appetite in this direction, and in that; gratify it. God would not have given you the desire if it were not right.' These tendencies have come down to us through 6000 years of sin and selfishness, and these things we are to overcome.

These tendencies toward pride, show, vanity, to vie with other people to see whether we can get as much money as they have, or more, or as good an automobile as theirs, or better, are of the spirit of the world. They are the motions of sin in the flesh, as the Apostle Paul expresses it. You have these in your flesh. You do not have them as New Creatures. The New Creature must operate through the flesh, but the flesh is not you. You must make a distinction between you and your flesh. The flesh suggests to you that these would be the things desirable, the things pleasurable. "Come now, don't be an extremist," it urges. It is in making such propositions as this, bringing such pressure to bear upon us, that the flesh tries to turn us away from the narrow way.

It says, "That way is too difficult; do not make such sacrifices; God does not expect it of you." Oh, the flesh knows a lot about what God doesn't expect of you. It is always telling you that God does not expect this or that, and that He wants you to enjoy this or that advantage. But never mind what your flesh says. What does God say? The flesh will try to deceive you, to get you to see things its way. The flesh is an enemy that you will have a great battle with. But this is not all. You have the Devil also. There are many evil impulses which the Devil has nothing to do with except indirectly from the fall, and the general evil influences which he has set in motion. They may come from our own minds, and from the world, with which we must also wage a warfare. But there are plenty of contrivances of the Devil. Many of these have come through the theological teachings of the various religious systems. They are some of the Devil's traps by which he seeks to ensnare us and keep us from walking in the narrow way, to keep us from becoming the Seed of Abraham.

ARE WE CONQUERORS-OVERCOMERS?

Abraham's Seed are to be conquerors. We are to love God with all our hearts, to the best of our ability. Are you doing it? Are you trying with heart and soul to attain to what God wills for you, to use your best powers in doing that which would be pleasing to God? Or are you giving your best to something else, and giving God the fag ends, just at about the close of your life? Are you giving Him just a minute or two of prayer, after spending the whole day seeking the things of this world and in making provision for the flesh? What kind of a way would that be to serve God, my dear brother? The Lord is expecting you and me to be overcomers. He says, "To him that overcometh win I grant to sit with Me in My Throne. "

The Seed of Abraham is to uplift mankind from degradation and sin and bring them back to God. The necessary preparation is this work in ourselves. We are not expected to perfect the flesh, but we are to so bring our minds into subjection to the will of God that we can truly say, "This is the best I can do." God will be very pleased with that, I think. When you have done the best you can as a New Creature, be sure that God will ask no more. You are to "overcome," to be "more than conqueror," if you would be a winner of the great "prize" of the High Calling.

We have many and varied besetments from the world, the flesh and the Adversary. The very first thing in seeking to do the will of God is that we be just. That is the basis of character. We not only want to love God with all our heart, but we also wish to love our neighbor as ourselves, to do unto others as we would have them do unto us. That is the Golden Rule, and Jesus sets it forth as a standard that God requires us to observe. God is looking to see to what extent you will observe the Golden Rule, to what extent it enters into your life. You owe every man justice. That comes in before love. Then, after you have rendered justice, have kept the Golden Rule, pile on love. But you must not give anything less than justice.

I would like you to notice that all these things begin at home. I have known people who would be just to a penny with the butcher and the baker, who would feel that they might take advantage of the members of their own family. You ask, "How could that be?" You must find the explanation. But it is surely a fact. Many husbands are less just to their wives than they are to others. Many wives are less just to their husbands than they are to other people. Many parents are less just toward their children than they would be in dealing with the children of others. Many children are less just to their brothers and sisters and parents than they would be other people. All this is wrong, and the sooner we see wherein it is wrong and correct ourselves the better. You say, Circumstances are different in different cases. My husband would take advantage of me if I treated him justly; or, my wife would take advantage of me if I treated her justly.

That is the way with the great nations. They do not trust each other. The British said, "The Germans are getting ready to swallow us up." The Germans said, "The English are jealous of our prosperity; they would like to grab more territory and make a greater British Empire." But you and I are responsible to God. Never mind about the other person. Leave others to Him. If you have acted in harmony with God's Law, and it has caused you great disadvantage, the apostle declares that "the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you," and you will have the victory in your heart. Let us keep this in mind.

The nation God is electing must have hearts that are just and reverential and loving, desirous of doing His will. I think all the overcomers will have the characteristic of justice. God says that justice is the foundation of His Throne. Do you think He would permit Messiah's Throne to have any other foundation? Do you think that you and I will be permitted to sit in the Lord's Throne if we do not have justice deeply imbedded in our whole being?

CHRISTIANS MUST GO BEYOND GOLDEN RULE

Is that the end, the keeping of the Golden Rule? No, dear brother, that is the beginning. You are to go on and have as much love as possible, a sacrificing love. Be sure that the Law of Justice is reigning in your heart, that you are doing according to the Golden Rule, then pile on love. The Spirit of the Lord is manifest in all who possess it. You can see it. How can we see the Spirit of God? We can see it in the life. God's Spirit is the spirit of meekness, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, brotherly-kindness, love. Ah, that is the spirit we are of. That is the overcoming spirit. It is to attain to this, dear brother, that the Lord has invited you; and to that end He is encouraging you.

Remember, the Lord knows your imperfections. If you are coming along slowly, He knows if there have been impediments in the way. He knows all about your affairs. He wishes you to be a conqueror, that you may be granted to sit with Him in His Throne and rule the nations. Are you a conqueror, my dear brother? To what extent are you conquering? This represents an inward fight against the perversity of the natural mind. These selfish tendencies manifest themselves in the home and family relationships and more or less percolate into the Church of God. In these various experiences and testings we are to see that we manifest the spirit of love, in our words, our thoughts and our doings, that, as the apostle says, we may be copies of God's dear Son.

BIBLE PREDESTINATION

You remember the Apostle says that God has predestinated us. What a strong word! Yes, that is what he says. We did not know its meaning at one time, because we did not then search the Scriptures. We thought that certain individuals would surely get to glory, according to God's predestination. But the Bible says that all who will be of the predestinated class must become copies of His Son. That IS important for us to remember. We hope to be of that class, do we not? Ah, yes! If we have been following the Lord's way, if we have tasted His mercy in the forgiveness of our sins, if He has led us beside the still waters of His grace and truth and in the green pastures of His favor, if we have the Lord Jesus as our great Shepherd, shall we now make shipwreck, when we are so near the Kingdom? No, no' We will not think of turning back. We will go on, cultivating more and more of the Spirit of the Lord. If we make mistakes we will strive to correct them, and make apologies, always making sure that we are serving the Law of God in our hearts. We will see that in heart we daily cultivate the fruits of the Holy Spirit.

So shall we be God's dearly loved children. So shall our Father's blessing be with us. So shall He give us an abundant entrance into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. So shall we have that great resurrection "change" that will make us like our dear Savior. So shall we attain to the condition of glory, honor and immortality. And so shall we attain the character and power that will enable us to rule the nations with kindness and love. Oh, it is a wonderful Kingdom that God is preparing. 'Me members of that Kingdom class will have God's Law of Love deeply engraved in their hearts. Thank God for it. You and I will be there, I hope. A little while, and we shall see His face!

RE THE CHANGE OF THE CHURCH

Some request of me, "Brother Russell, please tell us How long will it be before we shall see the Lord?" I cannot tell you, dear brethren. If God were pleased to tell us, we would be glad to know. We have gone, I understand, the full limit of time-so far as He has revealed. If He wishes to tell us further we will be glad to receive the further knowledge as soon as He gives it. In the meantime, we are not having anxious thoughts; we are not at all worried. We are restful, peaceful. We are calmly sinking more and more into His will. And I think I see this disposition manifested more and more also in all parts of the great Harvest field.

Let us look at the type. We have pointed out in Volume 2 of SCRIPTURE STUDIES that Elijah was a picture of the True Church. At the close of Elijah's experience, when God would take him away, He said first, "Elijah, go here; then Go yonder; then, Go thither." Thus He sent him here and there, and Elijah went. He went from Gilgal to Bethel, and nothing occurred. Then he went to Jericho; then to Jordan. Still, nothing occurred. The two prophets, Elijah and Elisha, continued on. Where were they going now? There was no place designated for Elijah to go. They were simply walking on and talking. That is what we are doing now. We have passed the four points 1874, 1878, 1881, and 1914. We have come to the place where we are simply walking on.

What would you take to turn back? No one could induce you to go back. You would not take the whole world for what you have gained. You have the best thing there is. I think we are like the disciples of old, when they said to Jesus, "To whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." That is it. There is no chance of eternal life anywhere else. "Hold fast that thou hast, that no man take thy crown."

Jesus pointed out that one of the features of overcoming that every child of God must contend with is a tendency to lose faith in Him. "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even your faith." It is not credulity, believing something that God has not said. It is faith in something He has said. He has told us about the Plan of salvation. He has told us about the Seed of Abraham, and the work this Seed has to do. Hold fast to your faith; walk humbly with God, and you shall gain the "prize."

Elijah and Elisha went on, and, behold, a fiery chariot approached, and parted them asunder. Elijah was taken up quickly into the heavens. What does this mean? We will know better by and by. I think, however, that it means something that we can approximate now. Fire nearly always indicates tribulation or trying experiences. St. Peter speaks of the fiery trial that is to try us. The fire there, to my understanding, means that the Elijah class shall yet pass through fiery experiences. Will it hurt them? You cannot hurt those whose minds are stayed on God, and who are just waiting to pass beyond the veil. They are so anxious to go to the Lord that if they know that He has sent the chariot, they will not mind what kind of a chariot it is.

We do not read of Elijah's crying and wishing to get out of the chariot. The Elijah class will be glad to be in that chariot. It is the chariot of deliverance. I think it will be a severe trouble for the church. I am not trying to alarm you. God's saints are safe in His care, come what may. I do not know whether it will be this year or next year or just when it will be, but I think it is not far off. Elijah's going up into the heavens in a whirlwind also symbolizes trouble. First, the fire of separation; then the whirlwind and chariot experience. Ah, when it comes, His grace will be sufficient, if we are being filled more and more with love, if our faith and obedience are daily increasing. According to our faith will it be unto us, by the Lord's grace

JUSTICE THE BASIS OF TRUE CHARACTER

Springfield, Mass., August 1, Pastor Russell is here in attendance upon the I. B. S. A. Convention assembled in our city. Today he delivered a strong discourse on the Golden Rule—"Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." (Matt. 7:12) He said:

No part of God's instructions to His Church is more important than this exhortation to justice. Everything that God does is based upon absolute justice, and He invites His people to be like Him to cultivate and develop in our characters the great qualities which He possesses, and which He has magnified and illustrated to us. Many have thought that justice is a very ordinary matter, which practically everybody recognizes and follows. But such is not the case. Many would say, "Do you not know that we are Christians, and that to practise justice would naturally be the duty of all Christians? Why do you not rather exhort us to cultivate love?" We reply, Justice should always take precedence; we have no right to do less than justice to any member of the human family or, for that matter, even to an animal.

The trouble with the whole world is the failure to recognize this very principle. Justice is the foundation of God's Throne. It is the basic principle upon which He would have us build character, and upon which He deals with all His creatures. It is because this principle of justice is not being recognized that the world is in trouble, and that the great tribulation is coming upon our race, the Scriptures assure us. While in mankind in general there is very little to love, yet every human being should receive justice. As followers of Christ, we are to be the foremost in exercising justice toward all.

What a grand world this would be if every human being would resolve to carry out the instructions of this text! There would be no "doing" of a neighbor before he could "do" you; but there would be a sparing of the neighbor, a taking into account his weaknesses and his interests. Whoever would take advantage of another would do something contrary to the welfare of the other. As ye would, as Jesus said, that others should do to you, do ye even so to them.

JUSTICE THE BASIS OF THE LAW

Thirty-five hundred years ago God called the Israelites out of Egypt. In substance He said to them, "Four hundred years ago I made a Covenant with Abraham that his Seed should bless the world. Are you ready to have that promise fulfilled to you?" They declared that they were ready. So He brought them to Mount Sinai, where they entered into a Covenant with Him to do whatever He directed. He gave them the Ten Commandments and said to them, "If you wish to be the Seed of Abraham that is to bless mankind, keep these commandments."

That Law Covenant was based upon justice alone; it did not ask them to love their enemies. According to whether or not they would render justice would be the Divine decision as to their worthiness of being considered Abraham's Seed that would bless the world. But they were not able to render justice, to do to their neighbor as they would that he should do to them. This failure was due to their fallen condition, because sin had become ingrained in human nature. (Rom. 3:20) The grasping disposition which has ever since manifested itself amongst that people began to appear; and so, although God bore with the nation for more than sixteen hundred years, not one of them obtained the reward of everlasting life which was offered to those who would keep the Law. Lev. 18:5; Rom. 10:5

It is not an easy matter to keep that Law Covenant of Justice. We see that the Jews failed to do so. We know that the Apostle declared that by the deeds of the Law no imperfect flesh shall be saved. Nevertheless God says, "Unless you keep the Law, you shall not be the Seed of Abraham that will bless all the families of the earth."

THE CHURCH AND THE LAW

The Scriptures point out that the Church of Christ is the Spiritual Seed of Abraham. (Gal. 3:8, 16, 29) Therefore they are obligated to keep the Law. To enable them to do what no fallen flesh can do, God has made a special arrangement for the Church, though not for the Jewish nation, the typical people. Knowing that mankind were so fallen that none could keep perfectly His Law, He sent His Son into the world to help our race. Our Lord, being perfect, uncontaminated with the fallen race of Adam, "Holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners," was able to keep the Divine Law and did so. Then, in obedience to the Divine will, He offered up Himself in a sacrificial sense. The merit of the life which He sacrificed constitutes a credit which, according to the Father's Plan, our Lord will give for Adam and his race, as their Ransom-price, at the end of the Gospel Age.

As soon as our Lord shall have offered that Merit to the Father, the whole world will be turned over to Him; and immediately He will begin His great work of ruling and blessing all the families of the earth. The long delay has been because of another part of the Plan. It was the Divine will that He should select a Church from the world, to share with Him the great future work of blessing humanity. Therefore He will not begin His Reign until the predestinated number of the Church class shall have been selected, tested, and changed by the power of the First Resurrection. Then the Spiritual Seed of Abraham will be complete.

It is well to note that the Spiritual Seed of Abraham is not the natural kind. Even Jesus as a man could never have blessed the world. He could have set up a good human government, but could have no right to give life to the dead. Therefore He could never have rolled away the curse of death, with all its concomitants. So it was for Him to do something more than keep the Divine Law something that Justice never required, something of self-sacrifice. Keeping the Law merely authorized Jesus to live forever; and if He had set up His Kingdom without giving His life as a Ransom, He could not have blessed mankind; for all are sinners under condemnation to death.

Besides keeping the Law, Jesus presented His body a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, and His reasonable service of sacrifice prompted by love. It is our first duty also to keep the Law, to live up to its standard as nearly as possible. But having enlisted under the banner of Christ, it is additionally our duty to present our bodies a living sacrifice, as those who walk in His steps, faithful unto death. Thus we Christians are obligated beyond all other people. All are obligated to the Golden Rule of Justice, but we by love something much more than justice.

If we could, we would be absolutely just in thought, word and deed. But this we cannot do; for none of Adam's race can keep the Divine Law. Selfishness is deeply ingrained in our natural body; and by reason of this fact we fail to reach full perfection. But when we fail, we are not condemned; for with us the conditions are not the same as with the Jews. (Rom. 8:1) The blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all imperfection; the mercy of Christ covers all that we cannot do.

This does not excuse us, however, from doing our very best. If with our hearts we recognize the Golden Rule, we shall seek to conform even our thoughts to it. We shall think and speak as generously of our neighbor as we would wish him to think and speak of us. We shall act as generously toward him as we would wish him to act toward us. This principle would be exercised daily toward all. No matter how imperfect we are to begin with, the work of God's grace should more and more transform us, that we may be more and more like our Lord Jesus.

HOW LOVE FULFILLS THE LAW

As far as our hearts are concerned, we must become exact copies of God's dear Son, though not reaching His glorious standard. To that we may not attain while in the flesh. Daily we may need to ask Divine forgiveness for our shortcomings. But He who knoweth the heart is pleased to see us doing the best we can do, seeking to grow in grace, in knowledge and in all the requirements of the Divine standards. This was the disposition of our Lord Jesus; and the Father loves all who manifest the same spirit. It is not enough that we recognize the downward tendencies of sin, and start out to walk in God's ways of righteousness. If we have His Spirit we shall meditate on His character and copy His attributes. Whoever seeks to do good to all will never wish to do less than justice. He would rather do more. Therefore the Apostle says, "Love is the fulfilling of the Law."

When our Lord gave His Church a new commandment (John 13:34), it included everything that pertained to the Law. Whoever has this love will appreciate that it was love, not justice that led our Lord to leave the Heavenly glory and sacrifice His life on behalf of humanity. The Father did not command the Son to make this sacrifice. God does not command any one to sacrifice his personal interests on behalf of others. He had a Program to be carried out. If the Son desired to carry it out, He would receive the reward promised.

So our Lord was quite willing to endure death itself, even death on the Cross, from love for the Father. Having the Father's disposition, He sympathized with fallen humanity. God had purposed to redeem mankind and to bring all the willing and obedient back to Divine favor and blessing. Our Lord Jesus longed to do this work. This was more than justice. If we have enlisted under His banner, to share with Him in the sufferings of this present life and in the future glory, honor and immortality, then we covenant to follow the Law of Love." Love worketh no ill to his neighbor." "Love would do more than keep the Mosaic Law. Love includes everything along the line of justice; it would lead one to sacrifice for his neighbor, for his friends and for his family. This is more than justice.

OUR OBLIGATIONS TO OTHERS

Many of God's people seem not to realize that justice takes precedence of love. God requires justice; and if we have agreed to give Him more than justice, we are not thereby excused from rendering justice. Everywhere around us we find injustice. There are parents who do not deal justly with their children, who take advantage of their children in various ways. A parent owes it to his children not merely to bring them into the world and to get them to work for the family interests, but to provide them with a reasonable education and a religious home training. Each should know what are his own rights in the home and should observe the rights of others.

A good man's son might run away from home, but very seldom will a rightly trained child do so. In many homes the children are not treated according to the principles of justice. Often parents fail to realize the rights of grown sons and daughters, but continue to treat them as children. Parents should cultivate that broad sympathy which would enable them to help their children to decide all their affairs. As a child matures, there should be an independence of thought. Suddenly it breaks over the boundary; and if the child has been properly trained while the body has been growing, the youth is bound to think and act for himself, but will always seek the guidance of the parents.

There are employers who have failed to give their employees all their reasonable rights. Of course, one cannot give everybody all that each might ask; for some people would demand everything and then not be satisfied. But with the right kind of employer the employee does not find it necessary to ask for his rights. The employer will insist that he shall have them.

Then there are people intent upon managing their friends. They are always telling others what to do and how to do it. We should be modest and respect the rights of others, but should not attempt to force our opinions upon them. When others ask us what to do and how to do it, then it is time to tell them, should we consider it proper to do so. If people come to me for advice I say to them, "If I were in your place, I think that I would do thus and so; but the matter is for you to decide." By speaking in this way, we put the responsibility upon the proper individual.

LOOKING FROM THE OPPOSITE SIDE

We have spoken about the obligations of parents. Let us consider the obligations of children. The Golden Rule would say, As you would that your children should do to you when you become advanced in years, do even so to your parents. Children should get this viewpoint. If every child were taught along this line, when it reached maturity the parent would have no need to worry about the child's manifesting gratitude for the parental love and care which it has received. The parent would say, "My children have had the principles of justice so deeply ingrained from childhood that they would be entirely dissatisfied with anything wrong." We have spoken of employer; let us now look at the employee. Imagine their positions reversed. What would each think it right to do for his employees or toward his employer? What would be the right kind of terms, the right kind of feeling? This course would bring about a great change between employers and employees.

So as we consider what would be the right thing to do and are willing to do what is right, we become more just in our dealings with all, including our business associates. Whether we buy or sell, there is a fair, reasonable way of dealing. It is wrong to buy so as to cause those who sell to lose money. We should be satisfied that the man who sells goods to us should make a reasonably fair profit. If we were selling, we should expect to make a reasonably fair profit, not an unjust one. The Golden Rule would regulate the matter.

JUSTICE IN THE CHURCH

While the whole Church is built upon the principle that the Gospel Church are to lay down their lives for the brethren, nevertheless some of God's dear children fail to recognize the principles of justice in their dealings with each other. Whenever a difficulty arises, we need especially to examine our own hearts and conduct to see whether the fault be ours. These difficulties nearly always result from a violation of the principle of justice.

The foundation of God's Throne is Justice. The Church that is build according to His arrangement is based upon this same principle. Each member may yield his own rights, but he must not transgress those of others. We should be very glad to see others act justly toward us; but we should not necessarily stand on our rights anywhere. Love ignores many of its own rights. Our Lord's life on earth was one of sacrifice. In the Church or in the family or in business we should use good judgment in the doing of God's will rather than in taking advantage of others.

As we do this, we are cultivating the spirit of justice. Do we not see how this applies in every direction? For instance, God's Law was originally given to Adam; God's Justice inflicted the death penalty for the breaking of that Law. He would not set aside His Law, His Justice, but He would bring in a blessing through the Lord Jesus Christ. Love gains this victory over Justice, not by violating Justice, but by sacrificing self. So it is for us to sacrifice ourselves in the interest of the Lord, the Truth and the brethren; and by thus doing, we are really conserving our own best interests and are growing in grace, in knowledge and in character-likeness to our God.

OBEDIENCE TO GOD THE BEST EDUCATION

"The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God."-- 1 Cor. 3:19

Syracuse, N. Y., August 8 Pastor Russell preached here today on the text, "Sanctify them through Thy Truth; Thy Word is Truth." (John 17:17) He spoke as follows:

Today we find that the great majority of people think very little about the Word of God, so that as a matter of fact our great colleges teach nothing pertaining to the Bible. Years ago it was quite customary that the Bible should have a prominent place in the schools, and the pupils were all under religious influences; for nearly every college was under the control of some denomination. This gave them a sectarian bias, however; and to whatever extent they were sectarian they were not free to study Truth.

But the world in its wisdom has been leaving everything pertaining to the Bible. Today our college-bred men are the greatest opponents of the Word of God. The great majority of those graduated from our colleges within the past thirty years are total unbelievers in the Bible as God's Inspired Word. Many of them are ministers, who select their texts from the Bible and who retain a certain respect for it. Their parents venerated it, and so the sons still cherish it as they would an old friend. They regard it as they would a pair of old shoes that their great-grandfather had used not that the shoes would have any intrinsic value, but they were great-grandfather's shoes. Then the Bible is a convenient place from which to get texts. They know, too, that a great many people are not college-bred and still reverence the Old Book. They like to condescend to the extent of showing that they do not altogether ignore the sentiments of the common people.

If cross-examined carefully, probable ninety-five hundred of these would say, "I do not believe the Bible is the Word of God." Although many ministers do not so express themselves in the pulpit, they do so in private. As an instance of clerical unbelief in the teachings of Scripture, take the case of Rev. Dr. Aked. This well-known clergyman moved some years ago to the Pacific Coast, and became president of the Church Federation in San Francisco. Both orally and in print this gentleman expressed his utter unbelief in the pre-human existence of our Lord Jesus his belief being that our Lord was merely an ordinary man, a fine man. This view was published broadcast.

The next day somebody came out in the San Francisco papers and said that with such sentiments Dr. Aked should resign his position as president of the Church Federation, that certainly nobody would be desirable in that position who did not believe that Jesus had more than human nature who thus discarded the Bible. The day following, Dr. Aked resigned, saying that he did not wish to offend anybody, etc. The Church Federation of ministers met, and re-elected him on the basis of his profession that he did not believe that Jesus Christ had either a pre-human existence or a superior birth! As far as I know, Dr. Aked is still president of the Church Federation; and those ministers that re-elected him, seventy-eight out of a hundred, were willing to come out in public and say so.

WHY TRUE RELIGION IS DISCOUNTED

The point to which I am calling attention is this: The colleges and the ministers have abandoned the Word of God. The preachers like to select a text from it, just as they might on other occasions quote from Shakespeare. So far as we may judge, this is the general sentiment amongst them. Are they then sanctified by the Truth, the Word of God? If they declare that God has given a message to the world or to the Church, where do they find it, if not in the Bible?

The majority of the preachers do not believe in personal inspiration, except in the sense in which some people may be said to have a sort of intuition for music, etc., and so might be called inspired that artist was inspired when painting that picture or composing that tune. But as for any belief in such inspiration as the Bible teaches that "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the holy Spirit," not knowing what they were saying I doubt that five percent of the ministers thus believe the Bible to be the Word of God. (2 Pet. 1:21; 1 Pet. 1:10-12) With the religious teachers and preachers in this condition of unbelief, is it any wonder that true religion is at a discount with the people? It would be strange if matters were different. Jesus said, "When the Son of Man cometh, shall He find faith upon the earth?" You are witnesses with me that He has come and has found very little faith. 2 Pet. 3:3-9

THE WISE SHALL UNDERSTAND

Away back in the time of the Prophet Daniel, God declared that in the Time of the End He would grant a special blessing upon Bible students. (Dan. 12:1-10) And here we are, down in the Time of the End! Many are running to and fro in automobiles, electric trams, steam railroads, etc. Knowledge is increasing everywhere. But the worldly-wise do not understand; for these things of God's Word are hidden from the wise and prudent, and revealed unto babes those not too wise in matters pertaining to this world. (Matt. 11:25) These accept the Word of God and are guided by it. To these, therefore, has come a great blessing.

Our Lord also spoke about the end of the Gospel Age. His parable of The Ten Virgins refers not to the world, but to the Church the wise and the foolish in the Church of Christ. (Matt. 25:1-13) In the end of the Age all the virgins, all justified believers, were ready to meet Him. But the Bridegroom tarried, and for a while all the virgins slumbered and slept. Then came the Message, "Behold the Bridegroom" He is here! All the virgins awakened. The wise virgins had oil in their vessels. They trimmed their lamps (Psa. 119:105); they saw the Truth, and were prepared to follow the Bridegroom in to the Marriage of the Lamb.

But the foolish virgins did not have the light. When they asked the wise virgins for oil, the wise virgins declared that they could not spare it. The oil represents the holy Spirit and the enlightenment which it brings. The foolish virgins go to buy when they give time for study and investigation time taken from business, pleasure and worldly affairs, that they may obtain the oil which God is pleased that His people should have. Those who do not find time for investigation do not wish to have the oil, the light. Although they are true Christians, yet they are not willing to pay the price and get the oil. Whoever is now rejoicing in the light of Present Truth will testify that it cost him something something of worldly influence, time, attention, thought to have the oil and the light, to make ready to go into the Marriage.

How well the Master understood the present situation! God wished the light to cost something. To some of olden time our Lord said, "Sit down and count the cost" how much the light will cost you what discipleship will cost. After having put your hand to the plow, do not look longingly back to the things of the world. God is not pleased with such service. Whoever prefers the world, the flesh and the Devil may stay with them. During the Millennial Age the Lord will deal with that class, and will give them mercy, blessings. But now He is calling for a special class that delight to do the Father's will, and do not need to be urged, pushed and whipped. They must have the spirit of the Master, of whom it is written: "I delight to do Thy will, O My God. Thy Law is written in My heart."

THE CHURCH CALLED, NOT COMPELLED

Should any of this class come under a measure of difficulty, and temporarily become weak in the doing of the Lord's will, He will give them the necessary experiences, if their hearts are right. He will awaken them from their lethargy, just as in the parable all the foolish virgins were awakened.

God is not seeking to deceive people or to force them into the Kingdom. During this Gospel Age He has merely sent forth His Message to gather out those who wished to respond. God has been taking out a people for His name using no force, no compulsion, merely His Word. We heard the call speaking peace through Jesus Christ. Our hearts responded, and we came back into harmony with God. The Word informed us that through the death of His Son God had made all arrangements for covering our sins; and that He was willing to receive us just as if we had not been sinners willing to take us into His family and make us His heirs, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ our Lord.

But all this was merely the voice, the promise of God. There was nothing to insist upon our becoming children of God; and if we were received into His family it was because we willingly, intentionally, gave ourselves to Him. All through the Gospel Age the Word of God has gone forth. If He had sent force, He could quickly have gathered all that He desired. After a few miracles people would have waked up and said, "What will happen to us if we do not get right with God?" That class will be dealt with by and by. Messiah's Kingdom will manifest the Power and the Wisdom of God.

THE TRUTH A SATISFYING PORTION

Coming back to our text, we see that the Lord sent forth His Word, to accomplish a certain mission. His Word is Truth not truth on every subject, but on the most important ones. Of these important subjects the principal one is that which God purposes to teach all His intelligent creatures obedience to Himself. All other education will prove to be valueless, perhaps injurious, unless associated with obedience to God.

The world is becoming very much discontented. People are unhappy; they crave more money and less work. Nobody is satisfied except true Christians. The majority of professed Christians are under the delusions of the present time. But the true Christian has that which is satisfactory. Having given his all to the Lord, he has received the blessed assurance that all things shall work together for good to them that love God, to the called according to His purposes. Therefore he is content to let the Heavenly Father shape his affairs. Should he get out of work, God knows how to provide employment. He could feed Elijah by the brook, the ravens bringing the Prophet the necessary food. 1 Kings 17:5, 6

One cannot fellowship with the world, and at the same time be great in the Lord. We prefer to be amongst those to whom the Master will say, "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." The knowledge that God is for us and loves us is a satisfying portion to heart and mind. Having left the world to follow Jesus and daily seeking to walk in His steps, the Church class are loved of the Father. They are the ones whom He has called.

THE HIDDEN MYSTERY

In the beginning God created the Lord Jesus, the Logos. (Col. 1:15; Rev. 3:14) Then the Logos, as His active Agent, made the different orders of spirit beings, and finally man. (John 1:1-3) After man had fallen into sin, God said, "We will let him have his experience with death and its concomitants. In due time I will send a great Redeemer, to ransom Adam and all his posterity. During the Seventh Thousand-Year Day of man's existence this Redeemer will take charge of humanity. Meantime I will have nothing to do with them until they are restored to perfection."

But while God was thus resting from His earthly creation, He considered it a good time to bring in a New Creation. The first of this New Creation was the One who redeemed mankind. He passed through His experiences and testings eighteen hundred and more years ago. But this was not all of the Divine Plan. As the Apostle says, there was a secret which God had kept hidden from before the foundation of the world His Purpose to have not merely a great Redeemer for mankind, but a people taken out from amongst humanity to be the Church of the First-borns. These were to constitute the New Creation, of which the Redeemer would become the Head.

This work of gathering the Church class has been progressing for nearly nineteen centuries. All who have been begotten of the holy Spirit are members of the New Creation, to whom old things have passed away, and all things have become new. (2 Cor. 5:17) From the very moment of their spirit-begetting, the light of the Truth begins to enlighten the minds of these New Creatures. They begin to see something of the lengths and breadths, the heights and depths, of God's character. It is a revelation. The Word of God is illuminating; the holy Spirit has great illuminating power, and gradually fills more and more with the light of the knowledge of the glory of God.

SANCTIFIED BY THE TRUTH

Of this class God says, "Gather My saints together unto Me, those who have made a Covenant with Me by sacrifice." (Psa. 50:5) He does not say, Those who have made a covenant to enter some church system, although some may have made a covenant with God and ignorantly with some church system also. Many people like to count themselves in amongst God's people, yet they have never entered into a covenant with Him. Apparently they think that they will receive the same reward as will those who have entered into such a covenant; but they are mistaken. No one will receive the Prize of the High Calling except those who have entered the race in the proper way and have run according to the prescribed rules.

Whoever makes this Covenant of Sacrifice is walking in the Master's footsteps. Our Lord made it at the age of thirty years. At Jordan He gave Himself, a perfect man, His time, His will everything to do the Father's will, whatever that might be. The Father indicated His acceptance by begetting our Lord with the holy Spirit and by giving Him the enlightenment that goes with it. Whoever would be His footstep follower must also covenant to give his time, his influence, his money everything to the Lord. Then the Lord says, "I will place in your care those things which you have given Me. If you demonstrate your faithfulness as a steward of these little things, I will know that you can be trusted with the greater things of the Kingdom. If you try to withhold what you have consecrated, you have not the spirit for which I am looking, I am seeking those who love Me and desire to serve Me.”

From first to last the Bible is in harmony with itself. This is God’s Message. This is His way of reaching His Elect, whom He desires to take out of the world. For nineteen centuries the Church has been engaged in calling man apart from the world that they might gain Divine favor and joint-heirship with Jesus in His Kingdom.

“Sanctify them through Thy Truth; Thy Word is Truth.” The world does not have this Message; therefore its truth cannot sanctify. Mankind are seeking otherwise, and are getting more or less confused and further away from God through their studies. It is a remarkable fact that we seldom find any one well versed in the sciences who has any faith in God or in the Bible. Men have only the truth that the Prophet Moses discounted. (Heb. 11:26) This is the world’s portion today. But the Science which will sanctify toward God, the Science in which we are in harmony with God, in which we are now happy and will be during the Time of Trouble, is ours. Faithful is He who has called us, who will also sanctify us, according to the riches of His grace in Christ Jesus our Lord. 1 Thess. 5:23, 24

DIVINE JUDGEMENT, THEN DIVINE MERCY

Portland, Me., Aug. 15 Pastor Russell delivered a very interesting discourse here today on the text; “Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?” (1 Cor. 6:2) He spoke as follows:

Much confusion prevails through failure to understand the Divine application of justice in the world’s affairs. Hitherto we have not studied our Bibles with sufficient care, but have jumped at conclusions and endeavored to make the Bible fit them. In every man there is some appreciation of justice, some realization that punishment ought to be inflicted for wrong-doing. Even those who practise wrong recognize this principle, and are ready to condemn others and to assist in punishing them, even though hoping to escape the fruit of their own sin.

The Bible clearly teaches that to some extent national judgments and punishments have been in progress for centuries, but that individual reckonings with Divine Justice are for the future except as violations of Nature’s laws continually bring retribution. It is in view of this fact that the Lord’s judgment is future that Christians are exhorted, “Judge nothing before the time.” Our incomplete knowledge renders even the most saintly liable to error in judgment. Christians have the promise that before their work as judges begins they will be qualified for it by a glorious change from earthly imperfection to Heavenly completeness in glory, honor and immortality.

The Scriptures discriminate sharply between the judgment of the church and the judgment of the world; and to read our Bible intelligently we must thus discriminate. God has not ignored sin during the past six thousand years. He is punishing the whole world every day. The penalty specified in the Bible is death; and our race is dying at the rate of one hundred thousand daily exclusively of the great mortality occasioned by the European war. This death penalty has concomitants of trouble leading up to it sickness, sorrow, pain all of which are really parts of the dying process, and therefore parts of the penalty.

This penalty is not graded according to moral differences among men. Divine Justice merely decided that Father Adam as a rebel against the Divine Law had forfeited life, and that none of the children could be born under conditions that would be perfect and satisfactory to God. Therefore Adam’s death sentence passed by heredity upon all of his children, irrespective of their degrees of sinfulness. None of them being perfect, none of them therefore being worthy of everlasting life, all of them must die, whether with much or little pain, whether by famine or pestilence or war or accident. Justice took no note of the method of dying, but merely of the fact that they must die. Similarly, human laws provide certain penalties for crimes, irrespective of the different conditions of the culprits.

THE PURPOSE OF JESUS’ DEATH

God might have allowed the race to perish under the death sentence, or “curse.” If so the accounts of justice would have been squared, and every man at death would have gotten his share of the penalty. Then there would have been neither future life nor future judgment for him; for a death penalty is the extreme penalty of Divine Law, as well as of human law.

But God purposed something better than annihilation for His human creatures. He purposed an exhibition of His mercy in combination with justice the redemption of Adam and all of his family from the death sentence. The first step in this redemptive work was the death of Jesus as a corresponding price for the first man, who personally sinned and who was personally condemned. The redemption of the original sinner, through whom the whole difficulty came, would constitute a satisfaction to justice on his account and that of all his family, who participated in his penalty.

Jesus' redemptive work was not with a view to getting people out of a fiery Hell of eternal torture, for there is no such place, according to the Bible. His death was to get mankind out of the Bible Hell the tomb the death state Sheol in the Hebrew, Hades in the Greek. To bring Adam and his race back from the tomb signifies their resurrection. This is the promise of God's Word that because Christ died for man's sin therefore in due time "there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and of the unjust." Acts 24:15

The theory that nobody is dead that those who die merely change their form and live more fully is in direct conflict with our observation as well as contradictory to the Bible, which declares that "the wages of sin is death," that "the soul that sinneth shall die," and that Christ died for man's sin in order to recover him out of this penalty of death and to make possible his re-living, his resurrection from the dead. Rom. 6:23; Ezek. 18:4; 1 Cor. 15:21-23

ANOTHER DAY OF JUDGMENT

Having seen that God's judgment, or sentence against sin, went into effect six thousand years ago and is still in effect that the whole world is dying we ask properly, when will the new Judgment Day begin the opportunity for Adam and his race to have another trial through the death of Jesus?

St. Paul answers our query, saying, "God hath appointed a Day, in which He will judge the world in righteousness, by that Man whom He hath ordained, whereof He hath given assurance unto all men, in that He hath raised Him from the dead." (Acts 17:31) St. Paul does not say that this Judgment Day had begun in his time, but that it was future, according to God's appointment, and as a result of Christ's death. He clearly intimates also that Jesus is to be the great Judge.

In this view of matters, the appointed Judgment Day is not to be a time of punishment for Adam's sin; for mankind already has been punished in the dying process of the race for six thousand years. Nor is the coming Judgment to punish Adam's race because of their inherited weaknesses; for all those weaknesses were included in the redemptive work which the Savior accomplished when "He by the grace of God tasted death for every man."

The coming Judgment Day simply signifies a fresh trial for Adam and his race. In the first trial in Eden, Father Adam failed; and he and his race all lost the perfect life with which he had been originally endowed as a son of God. The new Judgment Day is designed by the Creator for the benefit of Adam and his race. In other words, it will be a second great trial of the race, the difference being that the trial will be individual, and the rewards or punishments individual, not racial.

During the four thousand years from the time of Adam's sin and his coming under the death sentence down to the time of Christ, God merely left the world under its penalty and without any suggestion that well-doing or ill-doing would have any bearing upon their future destiny. The only exception to this rule was the little nation of Israel, Abraham's family. To Abraham, a man of faith and loyalty to God, came the first declaration of God's purpose to bless the world. (Gal. 3:8, 16, 29) Neither Abraham nor his children were delivered from the curse. He was merely informed that God had purposed another Judgment Day, in which all the families of the earth would be blessed and in which Abraham's offspring would be the great Judge, through whom all the willing and obedient might be brought back to everlasting life and perfection.

God might have continued to deal with humanity exactly as He had done during the first two thousand years might have left them in ignorance of His purpose to roll away the curse and to roll on a blessing. But another feature of the Divine Plan made it expedient to reveal certain features of the Divine purpose. He desired to select two classes from amongst man kind before He would begin the general work of giving a fresh judgment, or trial, for everlasting life to Adam and his race. In harmony with His Plan God revealed certain things to Abraham and his natural posterity, the Jews up to the time of Christ. In His dealings with them He tested them and found certain noble, loyal, faithful characters suitable to His future purposes. They are sometimes styled the Ancient Worthies, and are referred to by St. Paul in Hebrews 11.

In the closing verse of that chapter, however, the Apostle refers to the Church of the Gospel Age as constituting a different class of God's servants, as designed to receive at His hands still higher honors than the others. Note the Apostle's words of contrast. After speaking very highly of the faith of the Ancient Worthies, St. Paul explains that they died without having received the fulfillment of the promises made to them, all of which were earthly, and that they could not receive the fulfillment of their earthly promises until after the Church would have received and entered into her spiritual promises by the First Resurrection. Heb. 11:39, 40

SELECTING JUDGES FOR THE WORLD

The Church, according to the Bible, is distinctly different from the world, and is to have a different kind of salvation from that provided for mankind in general. God's provision for humanity from the beginning was a perfect earth, suitable for perfect mankind, and all this was represented on a small scale by our first parents in Eden. God's plan has not changed. The recovery of man from the death sentence will bring him to perfection and a world-wide earthly Eden, if he is obedient to the Divine arrangements. Otherwise he shall be destroyed utterly in the Second Death, as the Scriptures repeatedly declare. Acts 3:23

As God prepared a worthy class during the Jewish Age to be His earthly representatives amongst mankind and samples of human perfection during the time of the world's judgment, or trial, similarly He has during this Gospel Age been selecting another class, spirit-begotten ones, who are to be perfected on the Heavenly or Spirit Plane, made like their Lord and Redeemer. (2 Pet. 1:4; 1 John 3:2) To Christ and His glorified Church God proposes to turn over the whole world of mankind, including those who have gone into the tomb.

This Messiah will be backed by all the Divine Power in His work of rescuing mankind from the fallen condition. Satan will be bound, all evil influences will thus be restrained. The darkness of ignorance and superstition will be scattered before the rising Sun of Righteousness. All mankind will be blessed the living first, and afterwards the sleeping ones, "every man in his own order" or company not all at once. For a thousand years a great work of judging will progress.

This judging will not be punishments on account of Adam's sin or of inherited imperfections and faults, results of that sin. So far as the wrong doings of the present life are traceable to inherited blemishes, they will be covered by the merit of the Great Redeemer's sacrifice. The only accounts remaining unsettled will be for those misdeeds and pernicious words of the life done or uttered contrary to knowledge. The degree of knowledge will determine the degree of sin.

Each individual then on judgment, on trial, will have in himself the record of his own violations of conscience. That is to say, the unforgivable sins, which must be punished, are those against the holy Spirit, the Spirit of Righteousness, the Spirit of Truth done intelligently against it. Thus the civilized could sear their consciences in a manner that the uncivilized could not, and those having a knowledge of God and appreciation of the principles of His righteousness could injure themselves for the future in a manner that more ignorant people could not.

Jesus declared that in the day of Judgment those who did evil without knowledge will be punished with fewer stripes than will those who did evil with more light. He gives us as illustrations the Sodomites of old, who were accounted most wicked, and the people amongst whom He was preaching, who counted themselves holiness people Scribes and Pharisees. (Matt. 10:15; 11:22) It will be tolerable for all, but less tolerable for those who have had more knowledge, more light, in the present life, and who have failed to live accordingly.

THE JUDGMENT OF THE CHURCH

The period since Jesus' day, beginning at Pentecost, has been the Church's Judgment Day her trial time. Only those coming into the true Church on the Lord's terms are privileged to have this special trial, and, if victorious its special reward of glory, honor, immortality in the Kingdom. The entrance into the Church is through the begetting of the holy Spirit; and this begetting to the new nature is granted only to those who turn from sin, accept the Redeemer as their Advocate with the Father, and make consecration to God's will.

As New Creatures, these have much advantage in that God guarantees that "all things shall work together for good to them" as spirit beings. This means, however, that they will be subjected to trials, difficulties, testings, much more severe than come to mankind in general, for they are being chiseled, polished, qualified, for the glories of the Heavenly Kingdom. They must walk by faith, not by sight. They must make a noble fight, in their hearts at least, against sin and its allurements. They must prove themselves loyal to God, to His Truth and to His service, at the cost of even life itself.

The whole question we are discussing is summed up by the Lord in His Message through the Prophet Malachi (3:15-18). The Prophet declares that now we do not see evil-doers punished even though they injure God's true people and blaspheme His name. But after God has made ready all the jewels of the Elect class and has set them in the gold of the divine nature, there will be a change in prevailing conditions amongst men. Evil doers will be chastised, with a view to their reformation. This failing, they "will be destroyed from amongst the people." Describing these Restitution conditions, the Prophet declares, "Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked."

DIVINE JUDGMENTS DESIRED

What God purposes for the world through Messiah's Kingdom will be the grandest thing imaginable. Through this Kingdom, Divine judgments justice will be enforced everywhere yet sympathetically. Each will be required to live up to the perfect standard of the Golden Rule, to the extent of ability; and the Royal Priesthood will be fully commissioned to remit penalties for unintentional transgressions resulting from inherited weaknesses. The reward to well-doers will be gradual growth in knowledge, in grace, in mental, moral and physical strength.

Many find it difficult to understand how God's judgments could bring great blessings to the world. Hence we offer some suggestions: Suppose that the Kingdom were established, with Christ and the glorified Church in control, invisible to men, but all powerful and all-wise. Suppose myriads of agents and agencies for the carrying out of the Divine will through this Royal Priesthood operating like the sound waves of the wire less telegraph. Suppose a contrite sinner earnest in his full surrender to the Lord, and imagine his acceptance to Divine favor indicated by a miraculous healing of some infirmity or by an enlightenment of mind permitting him to appreciate the Divine will. On the other hand, suppose a lover of sin attempting to commit wrong and receiving instant punishment--his hand paralyzed in the act of forging a signature or of taking the property of another his tongue paralyzed in the act of uttering slander, profanity or untruth.

How quickly the world would learn righteousness under such conditions. These very conditions we would now be naturally inclined to expect, but do not see; for God's great Plan has not yet reached completion.

TO KNOW THE TRUE GOD IS TO LOVE HIM

Columbus, O., August 22 Pastor Russell is in our city today. We report his discourse on the text, "The glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together." (Isa. 40:5) He spoke as follows:

This text implies that a time is coming when everybody will know about God's glory all flesh. This will include not only all who will then be living, but all who have ever lived. We rejoice that God has so grand a Program. We are given an intimation of this as we look into the past and observe that the glory of the Lord has not yet been revealed to the world. God gave some little intimations of His glory, His character, His design, to Abraham, telling him that by and by He purposed to bless the world through Abraham's Seed. But this was only a promise, not a revelation of God's glory; for only Abraham believed. Nevertheless he got a glimpse of that glory as he believed God's promises; so also did Isaac and Jacob. They saw faintly a great purpose of good on God's part, and a time coming when the curse of sin would somehow be rolled away and the true knowledge of God would reach all the human family. But still the glory of the Lord was not revealed.

This hope, though vague, continued with the Israelites, descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. After their deliverance from Egyptian bondage, at Mount Sinai God made a covenant with them that, if they would keep His Law, they might demonstrate their qualification to be the Seed of Abraham to bless the world. But they were unable to keep the Law. None of the fallen race of Adam are able. (Rom. 3:20) The hope of becoming the Spiritual Seed of Abraham faded from the minds of the Israelites. But to strengthen them the Lord promised He will make a still greater covenant than the Law Covenant. Jer. 31:31-34

Israel could not keep God's perfect Law. They failed because they were sinners, members of Adam's race, born in sin, misshapen in iniquity, in sin did their mothers conceive them, as the Bible explains. Finally God sent His Son, "born under the Law," put under the Law for the very purpose of demonstrating that what other Israelites could not do He could do. He kept the Law, thus manifesting that "He was holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners." Sinners were unable to keep God's Law, but Jesus kept it, and to Him was given the great privilege of being the promised Seed of Abraham.

QUALIFIED TO BE BLESSER OF THE WORLD

His keeping the law, however, did not make our Lord Jesus Abraham's Seed spiritual, but merely demonstrated His qualifications. Even though He was perfect, as a man He could not have done the work which God had purposed; for He could not have given life to the race under sentence of death. In order to give life to the dying world He must first lay down His own life as an equivalent price for the life of Adam, in whom the whole race fell; and He must also be a perfect Jew, to redeem those who were under the Law. He must take the step of sacrificing His human life-rights, that He might do the Father's will. This He did.

But even then Jesus was not the Seed of Abraham that should bless the world, except as we might regard Him, properly, as having been begotten to be this Seed. At the time of His baptism, He was begotten of the holy Spirit to a New Nature. It was here that He consecrated His human life-rights unto death. During the three and one-half years of His ministry He carried out His Covenant of Sacrifice. This work was not fully accomplished until at Calvary, when He cried, "It is finished!" and died. When on the third day God raised him from the dead, He was fully qualified to be the Blessor of the world as Abraham's Spiritual Seed no longer a man, but a spirit Being, privileged, with the price at His command, the value of His own human life-rights, to make application of it, in the Father's due time, as a Redemption-price for Adam and his race.

Since His resurrection, our Lord Jesus is the Spiritual Seed of Abraham. Speaking of Jesus' death and resurrection, the Apostle Paul says, "Wherefore (because He was obedient unto death) God hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name which is above every name." (Phil. 2:8-11) This name is Christ, the anointed of God. Christ Jesus is anointed to be Head over the Church which is His Body, anointed to be the great High Priest after the Order of Melchisedec, anointed to be King of kings and Lord of lords when He shall come into His Kingdom.

TO THE JEW FIRST

The Bible tells us that God, who made this glorious arrangement for our Lord Jesus, provided also that a certain class should be gathered out of the world to be members of His Body, otherwise called “the Royal Priesthood,” “the Bride, the Lamb’s Wife,” and His Joint-heir. The work of calling out this class has been going on for nearly nineteen hundred years. It was necessary that our Lord should begin this work of selecting the Church with the Jews. Acts 3:25, 26; 13:46; Rom. 1:16; Il: 7-21

In a very few years the Lord apparently found 25,000 Jews who were thoroughly consecrated to Him—”Israelites indeed, in whom was no guile.” These were ready to receive Him. To such He said, “Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of God; but to them that are without, all these things are spoken in parables and dark sayings.” As it was in the Master’s day, that none of the unprepared ones, either Jews or Gentiles, could walk in Jesus’ footsteps, and as the things revealed to the worthy ones were revealed to their eyes of understanding, so to us today the Master’s words equally apply. The Lord’s consecrated ones shall see, shall understand. It is not God’s will that others shall know now. Their time to know will be that mentioned in our text. By and by the Message shall go forth to all.

We recall the various steps in the selection of the Church. First God selected the worthy ones from the Jews in Palestine, then from those scattered abroad. The Apostle says that everywhere the Jews were sought first, and only after they had had their opportunity was the Gospel Call sent to the Gentiles. God wished a very cosmopolitan class to reign with Christ for the blessing of all mankind. Jesus is the Head of all these. All must be true-hearted, all must come through the same low gate of Consecration, all must walk the same Narrow Way walk in the footsteps of their Forerunner. Whether Jews or Gentiles at the start, all are now New Creatures in Christ. Old hopes, aims and desires have passed away, and all things have become new. 2 Cor. 5:17

TRUTHS REVEALED IN DUE SEASON

We have briefly traced the history of the world. During all this time the glory of the Lord had not been revealed. It is true that our Lord Jesus knew about the glory of the Father. The Apostles also saw the glory of the Lord clearly before their minds. Not many, even in the early Church, could see it clearly. (Eph. 1:18-23) The Apostles, though fully in God’s favor, were not privileged, however, to know certain things that we may now know. Certain truths are dispensational and cannot be understood until the due time has arrived. To illustrate: The Prophet Daniel sought to understand certain things that had been declared to him. But the angel replies, "Go thy way, Daniel; for the words are sealed till the Time of the End." Dan. 12:8-10

The Scriptures indicate that we entered the period of the Time of the End in the year 1799. Since then, the knowledge of the times and seasons has been forthcoming. The times and seasons have gradually been becoming better understood as the due time came for the wise in Heavenly things to understand. To this class it will be given to know everything that the Very Elect are to know, until the time when Christ shall receive the last of these unto Himself. We should rest ourselves in the Divine arrangement of things, and not seek to ferret out in advance that which the Lord has not yet made clear.

God is able to make clear in due time whatever He has decreed shall come to pass. If we are in the right attitude of heart, we shall have enough to keep the eyes of our understanding open so that we can appreciate the things which are freely given us of God. His true children are witnesses to the fact that He has been opening the eyes of our understanding more and more during these last days. Certain great blessings have come to God's people, particularly during the past forty years riches of grace and knowledge.

SATAN A LIAR AND MURDERER

The world in general has been laboring under a gross misconception of God, which had its start six thousand years ago in Eden. God had said to our first parents respecting the fruit of the forbidden tree, "In the day that thou eatest thereof, dying thou shalt die." But Satan, through the serpent, said, "This is not true. Ye shall not surely die." Thus he made God a liar, while he himself became a murderer; for he slew our race. (John 8:44) But God remained quiet. He did not smite Satan down, although He sentenced Adam and Eve to death and drove them out of Eden.

Practically the whole world has believed Satan's lie. Mankind believe that when they appear to die they really become more alive that what is called death is really a good thing for them. Practically everybody believes that God spoke falsely when He said, "Dying, thou shalt die." This has greatly dishonored the Heavenly Father. Throughout the entire six thousand years He has been misrepresented. Satan's lie became the foundation for other falsehoods and misrepresentations. It has continued and multiplied; and upon it have been built all sorts of wrong suggestions regarding God and His character.

This lie is today at the bottom of nearly all wrong doctrine. God has been misrepresented to be the One who originally planned all the terrible tortures which we are told are being inflicted in places called Hell and purgatory. That God had to put men somewhere is the theory. A dead person could remain in the tomb, unconscious; but if the supposedly dead person is alive, he must be put somewhere. "Only a handful fear God, and therefore the great mass,” they say, “must have gone to a place of torture; being alive and unfit for Heaven, they must be in Hell or Purgatory.”

Many say, “God would be glad to destroy man if He could, but He made man too well; and although He said that man would die, He cannot Kill the soul, which is immortal.” Nearly everybody believes this nonsense about our Heavenly Father. They slander Him, making Him out to be the worst being that ever lived. One cannot picture any more wicked being than we have been told that our Heavenly Father is. We are given all sorts of descriptions, according to the measure of ignorance or willfulness of the one describing God the God of all grace and mercy. Why has He not smitten those who have thus blasphemed His Holy Name? But He has not. He has even allowed some of His children to do this in ignorance and blindness.

To some in his day the Apostle Paul expressed the fear that Satan would beguile many of the Church just as he had beguiled Mother Eve by false doctrine, misrepresenting the Almighty. (2 Cor. 11:3) It is very difficult for us to realize that we ever came into such a condition that we believed such lies; yet we must have done so. It is difficult for us to sympathize with others who are in that condition; but we were once just as blind ourselves. Ignorance is the great tool which the Adversary has used to blind the whole world. (Acts 3:17; 1 Cor. 2:8; 2 Cor. 4:4)

Satan is a rebel against Jehovah. He wishes that the glory of God should not shine into the hearts of mankind; for it has a sanctifying influence, causes us to will and to do God’s good pleasure. Satan would hinder us, would keep us in the dark respecting God’s real character.

GOD’S PURPOSES WILL BE ACCOMPLISHED

The idea of some evangelists that God is weeping and gnashing His teeth over the condition of our race is because they do not know that there is a God of all Wisdom and power, who has full control of the situation. He has a broad, deep Plan that will all work out properly. He is not giving it any anxious concern whatever; for He has laid the responsibility upon His Son Jesus, as the Bible sets forth.

In this great work of human uplift the Church will be associated with her Lord. For a thousand years it will progress. As the Bible declares, Messiah will bless all of Adam’s race, restoring to them all that was redeemed for them at Calvary. It was a man that was lost. It was an earthly home in Eden that was lost. It was an earthly likeness of God that was lost. Jesus came to seek and to recover that which was lost; and by the end of the Millennial Age the world will have been restored and will be ready to be received of the Father. 1 Cor. 15:24-28

Then, the Bible tells us, God will have another work for Christ to do. It will be for Him, as Jehovah's Agent, to test all mankind in their rich perfection at the end of the Millennial Age; and whoever is not in full heart sympathy with righteousness, whoever does not hate iniquity, will be destroyed from amongst the people. Everything unfavorable to mankind will be rooted out. He will destroy all who love unrighteousness and sin, both root and branch. (Mal. 4:1) St. Peter, speaking on this subject, says, "These, like natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, shall utterly perish." (2 Pet. 2:12) From this Second Death they will have no resurrection. "They shall be as though they had not been." Obad. 16

GOD'S GLORY SOON TO BE REVEALED

But the point which I especially wish to make is this: During all these six thousand years past, the glory of the Lord has not been revealed. All flesh have not seen His glory. The only ones who have seen it are God's spirit-begotten children. (Rom. 8:9) All that these have seen of His glory has been since they became God's children. Then the eyes of their understanding began to open; and if they have been faithful, their eyes are opening more and more to behold the glory of God the grandeur of His character, His loving kindness and His tender mercies. All the good qualities that Satan says our Father does not possess, He does possess; all the evil qualities that Satan says He has, He does not have.

During the Millennial Age, all flesh shall have opportunity to see God's glory. They will all come to see, to understand. "All the blind eyes shall be opened, and all the deaf ears unstopped." God's keeping quiet for so long, not defending Himself against His traducers, will ultimately redound to His greater honor. (Psa. 50:21) When the world really come to know that God is Love, they will have such a revulsion of feeling from all the wrong thoughts they have had in the past that it will cause them all the more to appreciate the riches of God's glorious character. As a dark background often sets forth more perfectly the harmonies of a beautiful picture, so the darkness and misrepresentation concerning Jehovah will ultimately redound to His praise. The world will all the more love and honor Him. This will be only the beginning of their adoration, which will increase as His glory and His goodness continue to unfold before their astonished eyes. To know our God is to love Him

A GREAT PRIESTHOOD DIVINELY APPOINTED

Albany, N. Y., August 29 Pastor Russell delivered a masterful address here today, from the text, "No man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron. (Heb. 5:4) He said:

The Apostle's statement forming our text is made in connection with his discussion of the Mosaic arrangement and the Aaronic Order of priesthood. Christ, while on earth, could not be a priest, because there was already a priesthood ordained of God the family of Aaron. No Israelite could take part in this priesthood except he were of Aaron's lineage. To presume to take part in it without God's invitation would be a sin. To this day the Jews respect the Aaronic priesthood, and no one could serve as a priest unless he could show his genealogy back to Aaron. The Jews now do not know who belongs to the priestly family. Therefore they have no priest and no such service as a priest would render.

In his Epistle to the Hebrews St. Paul calls attention to another priest hood. He declares that Jesus, who was not of the tribe of Levi, has become a Priest of a still higher Order than the Aaronic; moreover, that God had foretold our Lord's Priesthood long before. (Psa. 110:4) His was a Divine appointment to this Priesthood. The call to be the Messiah and the highest of all priests was from the Father.

Here we have another proof that our Lord Jesus was not the Father. He could have only such honors as the Father would give Him. God glorified Him in giving Him this great Priesthood. The Apostle quoted from the Prophet David respecting Jesus, "Thou art a Priest forever after the Order of Melchisedec." Melchisedec was a great personage who lived in Abraham's day. So great was he that, after Abraham had won a great victory and wished to show his appreciation of God's goodness, the patriarch came to Melchisedec, "king of Salem and priest of the Most High God," and offered tithes of all he had captured. (Gen. 14:18-20) Since the inferior offers gifts to the superior, Melchisedec must have been greater than Abraham, who in turn must have been greater than Aaron, his descendant. How much higher than Aaron, then, must he have been who was a type of Christ and of Christ's Priesthood!

We see that our Heavenly Father has conferred a very great honor upon our Lord Jesus Christ, in appointing Him to be the world's great Redeemer, High Priest and King. He is the One through whom will come all the blessings upon the world that God has designed. But before God could recognize Him in that position, He must prove our Lord, as the Bible declares.

“WORTHY TO LOOSE THE SEALS”

Elsewhere St. Paul points out that our Lord Jesus left the glory which He had with the Father before the world was and took upon Him the form of a servant; and being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself still further all that He might do the Father’s will. His obedience to the Father finally led to the Cross. “Wherefore God hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name that is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow.” (Phil. 2:5-11) In that exalted position He is the Antitype of Melchisedec.

This is corroborated by our Lord’s own statement in the Fifth Chapter of the Revelation. There is pictured the Father, seated upon the Throne of Glory and holding in His right hand a Scroll, written within and without and sealed with seven seals. This Scroll represented the Divine Plan that God had purposed in Himself before the foundation of the world. What was in that Scroll nobody knew but Himself. The entire Plan was in God’s own power; and, as the Apostle declares, before the foundation of the world the Father foreknew that our Lord would be the One worthy to open the Scroll.

Throughout Heaven and earth the proclamation was made, “Who is worthy to loose the seals and to look therein?” Nobody came forward. Then St. John began to weep. After he had wept much, an angel touched him and said, “Weep not. The Lion of the tribe of Judah hath prevailed.” The Lion of Judah was the Strong One of Judah, of which tribe God had prophetically declared that Messiah should come of David’s lineage. Here was the Strong One, competent to do the work absolutely perfect.

The difficulty with every other person in the world was that all were imperfect. But Jesus was sent into the world with all the qualities of perfection in the image of God. When He became the Man Christ Jesus, He was qualified to fulfil the Divine Purpose. But He must be tested. No one heretofore had proven worthy, because the conditions that God had attached to the honor were very stringent. God was looking for One competent to be entrusted with the charge of affairs a Prime Minister, as it were. One who would fully represent Him in the Kingdom work and be associated with Him forever. For so high a position God had purposed that this One should be made partaker of the Divine nature.

“IMMORTALITY--LIFE IN HIMSELF”

The Scriptures tell us that God has immortality; i. e., He is not liable to death. All the angels are mortal; not that they are dying, but that they could die. A mortal is not a dying person, but one liable to death. God has supplies to continue existence to those who will be obedient and loyal to Him. To all such He is pleased to grant everlasting life. But He is immortal, not susceptible to death in any sense. He is not dependent upon food, water, air, rest or anything else. Jesus says, “As the Father hath life in Himself, so hath He given to the Son to have life in Him self.” (John 5:26) This is so high as to be beyond human comprehension.

God purposed that this One whom He would so highly exalt should also have this quality of immortality life in Himself. But first He must demonstrate His loyalty to the fullest degree. Jehovah determined that the first opportunity to prove worthiness of this position should be given to the Logos, “The Word,” the One first created by the Father. (Rev. 3:14; Col. 1:15; John 1:1-3) Those who believe in the doctrine of the Trinity hold many very unreasonable views. They say that Jesus did not become a man, that He merely hid Himself in a human form for a time. Not so says the Bible. Our Trinitarian friends are driven to some such ridiculous position by claiming that Jesus was co-equal with the Father, a very unscriptural claim.

The Son of God left the glory which He had with the Father, was made flesh and dwelt amongst us. He was no ordinary man, no sinful man. We beheld in Him a glory that no other man had a glory of perfection. (John 1:14; Heb. 7:26) He became a man for the very purpose of carrying out the Father’s Plan, which He could not then fully know. He knew that the first step of preparation was to be made a man. The next step was to present Himself for sacrifice. From those who interpreted the Law, He knew that there was nothing that He could do in His priestly office until He was thirty years old. When His thirtieth anniversary came, He presented Him self to the Father in consecration and was baptized by John.

“THE HEAVENS WERE OPENED TO HIM”

There, at Jordan, the Father granted the Son the opening of His eyes of understanding. There He became the slain Lamb. At the very moment He made His consecration at Jordan He died, so far as His covenant with God was concerned. And so it is with His followers. The very moment we make our covenant with God, we are dead indeed to sin and to all earthly interests. Our death dates, not from the time we actually die, but from the time we give up our will. So God there counted Jesus dead. He was the sacrificial Lamb. To Him was given the right to open the Scroll.

So we read that at His baptism, when the holy Spirit descended upon our Lord, “the Heavens [the higher things] were opened unto Him.” (Matt. 3:16) The deeper things of God’s Plan became open to His mind. Never before had He seen the meaning of these things. They were hidden from Him, as from any natural man. The natural man whether perfect or imperfect, “receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.” (1 Cor. 2:14) Jesus became a perfect natural man, and as such He gave all that He had in consecration. Then God begat Him of the holy Spirit to the new nature. From the moment of spirit-begetting, old things passed away and all things became new.

After Jesus had received the holy Spirit, He went immediately into the wilderness for forty days. During that time He was a Bible Student, thinking over the Scriptures, which from boyhood He had heard read in the synagogue. Having now received the illumination of the holy Spirit, He could understand what was meant by the manna in the wilderness, by the serpent erected upon the pole, by the bullock of the Atonement Day sacrifices and by the Passover Lamb. The whole Plan of God for human salvation was opened to Him. He had “loosed the seven seals.” By that time He fully understood all that He was to suffer. He saw that He was to give up His life sacrificially, that He was to be crucified.

Then, after all the stress of Bible study for forty days without food, the Devil came and tempted Him. This was the opportunity, in His weakened physical condition, for the Adversary to present a temptation. But our Lord withstood all of Satan’s suggestions, and finally the Devil left Him. We have no record that Satan ever again tried to tempt our Lord.

God thoroughly proved the One who was to be the great Antitype of Melchisedec, the Priest upon His Throne, partaker of the Divine nature. And Jesus demonstrated His worthiness, not only during those forty days in the wilderness, but during the following three and a half years, clear down to Calvary even to the death of the Cross. Now He is the highly exalted One, far above angels, principalities, powers and every name that is named. He is at the Father’s right hand the chief place of favor. Our Lord Jesus is God’s great Prime Minister next to the Father Himself.

“FURTHER CONTENTS OF THE SCROLL”

But the Scroll in God’s hand contained more than this. It showed that the Father, who had called the Lord Jesus, had called Him to be the Head over a Church, which is His Body. Nineteen hundred years before the Messianic Kingdom was due to be set up, God sent Jesus into the world that He might open up the way and that Jews and Gentiles might come in and participate with Jesus, first in the tests and afterwards in the honor. In the Book it is written that not only a bullock, but also a Lord’s goat must be offered in sacrifice on the Atonement Day. Thus the Church are to be sharers in the sufferings of Christ and in the glory to follow. Heb. 13:11-13

So all the work of this Gospel Age has been with a view to perfecting this company. First the call went to such Jews as were ready, that these might be brought into the Church, to be of the Spiritual Seed of Abraham. But there were not enough of them; and so the door was thrown open to the Gentiles, that as many of them as desired might come in and be fellow-heirs with the Jews. All these are to be members of the Body of the great antitypical Priest and King, "after the order of Melchisedec."

God is now calling merely the class that is anxious to come to Him. The Apostle speaks of some who were feeling after God, if haply they might find Him. (Acts 17:27) Now there is only one way to come to Him, and that way is by membership in the Body of Christ. Those who will walk in this narrow way shall become joint-heirs with Christ. Some say, "I think that I will wait a little while." They are not altogether ready to sacrifice--to give up all to the Lord. To such the Lord says, "Very well." Jesus said to some in His day, "Sit down and count the cost." It is better that one should not put his hand to the plow than that he should do so, and then look back and wish that he was not there.

"If any man will come after Me [be My disciple], let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." So then, dear friends, we see the conditions. And whatever the Father's providence may be for us, we wish to have. Jesus did not specify what was to come to Him. The Father had specified our Lord's experiences before the foundation of the world. As for you and for me, our part is to do the Father's will to drink whatever cup the Father shall pour for us. He does not give us the honor of drinking so great a cup as our Savior drank, however.

"GATHER TOGETHER MY SAINTS UNTO ME"

For each consecrated child of God the great question is, "Am I walking in the steps of Jesus?" Have we entered into a Covenant with God, as our Lord did? Faithful is He who has called us. If we fail to get the great prize of our High Calling, the fault will be ours alone. God is ready to do for us as He was ready to do for Jesus.

Now to come back to the statement, "No man taketh this honor unto him self, but he that is called of God." Did we call ourselves? No indeed! How did we come to a knowledge of the Truth? Thank God, we have had the ears to hear His Message! Thank God that this privilege came to us that we were called of God! To what were we called? Hear the Call that applies to Jesus and to all His disciples the Call to which Jesus responded, and to which you and I are to respond. It reads, "Gather My saints together unto Me; those that have made a Covenant with Me by sacrifice." (Psa. 50:5) By nature we were sinners, like all the fallen race of Adam. But even as sinners we may have been trying to do our best. Then the Message reached us, speaking peace through Jesus Christ, a Message telling us that if we gave ourselves to God we would be forgiven our sins, begotten of the holy Spirit and accepted into God's family.

God's arrangement is that our Lord Jesus is to sanctify and make saints those who have taken these steps. He will impute of His merit to such, to make up for their natural imperfection. To give them of that merit would make them perfect human beings. To impute the merit is to give them a credit on God's account books.

God has arranged that nothing shall come to His altar except that which is without blemish. We cannot come, therefore, except as our Lord Jesus shall make up wherein we are short of perfection. Christ has proposed to do this, in order that you and I may give acceptable sacrifices through Him. Is that not a blessed arrangement? It is made to permit us to share in the sufferings of Christ that by and by we may share in His glories. (2 Tim. 2:11, 12) All that He has He will share with His faithful Church; and by way of encouraging us He says that He will make all things work together for our good. Rom. 8:28 Our Father will bless our trials and difficulties. He will not permit us to be tried above that we are able; with every temptation He will provide a way of escape. (1 Cor. 10:13) I trust that we all shall be of one mind to accept this wonderful provision of God's grace, that we may be fully accepted members of this great Melchisedec Priesthood, of which our Lord Jesus is the Head. As soon as the last members of this order are completed, the entire number-144,000 will stand with the Lamb upon Mount Zion, having His Father's name written in their foreheads. Rev. 14:1-5

BAPTISM INTO CHRIST, WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Providence, R. I. September 26, 1915 Pastor Russell was here today. He delivered a very impressive discourse from the text, "By one Spirit we are all baptized into one Body." (1 Cor. 12:13) He said in part:

The blessings that are ours as Christians are first the possession of the hearing ear when the majority of people have no ears to hear; second, the great favor of God in that He has made all the arrangements by which we who have the hearing ear might receive the begetting and anointing of His holy Spirit. But after we are begotten of the Spirit, although we have still more abundant favor, the issue is with us. It is an individual matter.

Each must make sure his own calling and election. God is doing His part in leading, and in covering, making up for all our blemishes, through Christ. The primary thing that God requires of us is loyalty of heart. We had this loyalty of heart at the beginning of our course; by one Spirit we were all baptized into the one Body of Christ, the Church. And it is by keeping this same Spirit that we are to make our calling and election sure.

CHRIST'S BAPTISM FINISHED ON CALVARY

It is a good thing to be able to say, "I have made a full consecration to God." But that consecration must continue; it is a daily matter. The same Spirit that led you into the baptism must remain with you in the baptism to its completion. "Is not our baptism complete when we have taken the step of entire consecration?" asks one; "was not Jesus' baptism complete when He had been immersed by John in Jordan?" I answer, You remember that when Jesus came to the close of His ministry three and a half years after His baptism in Jordan, He said, "I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how am I straitened until it be accomplished!" (Luke 12:50) You see His baptism was not fully accomplished, and it was completed the following day; for on the cross He exclaimed, "It is finished!" His baptism was there fully consummated.

So our baptism will be finished only in death. It may be that as we come down nearer to the close of our earthly experience we shall realize that there are dregs in our cup for us to drink, as there were in the Master's cup for Him. It is of his cup that we are to partake. But there should be no alarm. We wish to share the Lord's cup of sufferings, and we are glad that he is letting us have similar experiences to His own. The Master will say to each of us, as He said to St. Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee; My strength is made perfect in weakness." (2 Cor. 12:9) We have a sure promise that covers every circumstance and condition. Our baptism into death will not be finished until we expire. Our wills must continue to be immersed into God's will unto the end.

THE HEAVENS WERE OPENED UNTO HIM

Let us note how fully our Lord Jesus received the Spirit of God. You remember the account is given us in the Gospels that when Jesus came up out of the water, after He had been baptized of John, the holy Spirit descended upon Him like a dove, "and the Heavens were opened unto Him." (Matt. 3:16) This means that the higher things were opened to Him, the spiritual things.

As a boy Jesus had lived in Nazareth where He habitually attended the synagogue. Although He had never had any schooling, He was able to read fluently; and so it seems to have been customary for Him to be called upon to serve as a public reader. He would stand up and read the daily Scripture. Not many could read. But being a perfect man, Jesus would have talents and powers above all the others; for He was perfectly balanced. During the time that Jesus was in Nazareth, up to thirty years of age, He was still reader in the synagogue when present. (Luke 4:16) This brought Him into contact with the people. The custom was that one part of the lesson would be chosen from the Law and another part from the Prophets. In this way Jesus gained full knowledge of all the Old Testament.

We have known people of our fallen race who after one reading of a poem could repeat it verbatim. We are sure that our Lord would know every word of the Scriptures from Genesis to Malachi. No wonder that at twelve years of age He was in the Temple questioning the Doctors of the Law! He wished to know the meaning of all He had read. As He asked these questions, they were astonished. Think of a boy of twelve knowing all about the contents of Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, the Psalms and all the Prophets! No wonder they were astonished, just as were the people of His home town when they asked, "How knoweth this man letters, never having learned?"

When Jesus went up from the baptismal waters, and the Heavenly things were opened to Him, this meant, we understand, that He began to see more deeply into these statements of the Old Testament than ever before. Up to this time Jesus was a man a natural man, not a sinful man, however. He was "holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners." The Apostle says "that the natural man [even though perfect] receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can he know them, for they are spiritually discerned." (1 Cor.2:14) Jesus had known about these things before. As a thoughtful man He had studied over all those matters in the Scriptures, but He could not understand them clearly, because He had not yet been begotten of the holy Spirit. But now, after His anointing of the Spirit, these Heavenly things that had seemed strange and obscure began to open up to Him without measure.

Our Lord, being perfect, could upon His begetting receive the full measure of God's mind, God's Spirit. Immediately following His baptism and illumination, His mind being active, He was driven by the Spirit into the wilderness. It was thus His own Spirit that drove Him there. He said to Himself, "My mind is opening: all these hitherto obscure Scriptures are unfolding before Me. I must go away into the wilderness alone to think over these things." And there he had a forty-day Bible study. The Scriptures imply that during that period, while he was thinking of the types of the Law and the prophecies, He did not even get hungry.

SOME OF THE HEAVENLY THINGS UNFOLDED

The account states that Jesus "afterwards ahungered." He was thoroughly absorbed in Bible Study. We can surmise what Jesus was thinking of during all that time. One of the subjects must have been the Passover--what it meant who it was that was to be passed over. Whom did the lamb typify? Why was not a bone of it broken? What did the bitter herbs eaten with the Passover lamb signify? What did the coming out of Egypt prefigure? What was the significance of the overthrow of Pharaoh and his hosts in the Red Sea? What was the meaning of the giving of the Law at Mount Sinai? What the wilderness journey and the entrance into Canaan? What the fiery serpents in the wilderness and the lifting up of the brazen serpent on a pole?

You and I would not have known had not the holy Spirit through the Apostles shown us these things. So Jesus, until He was Spirit-begotten, knew not the significance of all these wonderful types. Then, coming down to the Psalms and the prophecies, Jesus thought of the Scriptures, “Thou wilt not leave My soul in Sheol, neither wilt Thou Suffer Thine Holy One to see corruption”; “He was led as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He opened not His mouth.” (Psa. 16:10; Isa. 53:7) Now He began to see the meaning of these Scriptures that He had long wondered about. He saw that He was to be the Lamb dumb before its shearers. He saw that He was to be the Passover Lamb; that He was to let evil men take His life from Him and not interfere, not even ask God to hinder them, simply yielding up His life in harmony with the Father’s will. Then He considered the typical Day of Atonement the bullock and the Lord’s goat for sacrifice, the scape goat, the burning of the fat, the kidneys, etc., upon the altar, the carrying of the blood within the second veil there, the burning of the carcass outside the camp; He saw that these were all to be fulfilled in Himself and in His followers.

HOW WE ARE MADE PERFECT IN HIM

We are only copying Jesus’ course here to a small degree when we have Bible study classes and conventions for Bible Study. We can have the holy Spirit only by measure, can understand only by measure, because of our imperfections. But it is the privilege of each to have his vessel filled to its capacity. As you keep it full, you will find your capacity increasing, so that you can contain more.

The Apostle Paul says, “We are all baptized into one Body.” Again, of himself, “If by any means I might attain unto His resurrection.” (Phil. 3:10, 11) Was there any doubt about St. Paul’s attaining unto Christ’s resurrection? He realizes the possibility of failure. “Then what chance have I?” some one may ask. We reply, As good a chance as the Apostle. The Lord manages this matter most wonderfully. Our Lord had one hundred points of character, we will say. That represents perfection. We, blemished by sin, may have only ten, fifteen, twenty, even thirty-five points. That is about as far as we dare go, we think. Humanity has fallen far below the perfection in which Adam was created.

You say, Those who have thirty-five points have the best chance. No they will not have one whit more chance than those who have ten. God makes up in Christ's merit to each one as he needs. The one who has only ten points of character needs that the Lord supply ninety points. The one who has thirty-five points needs sixty-five supplied. Where one has greater need, grace so much more abounds, the Apostle declares. (Rom. 5:19-21) It is just as easy for you and me as for St. Paul. He said, "I count all things but loss and vile refuse that I may win Christ and be found in Him." How could he win Christ? How could He be in Christ?

COUNTING ALL THINGS BUT DROSS

The thought is this: The word Christ is not merely a personal name. The name Christ is the name of the Office. Jesus is the Head of The Christ: the Church are the members of the body. What St. Paul means is, "If by any means I might attain to membership in The Christ." This clarifies the passage. What are the terms for gaining this membership? The Apostle knew he must give up everything. Had he done it? Yes. What had he to give up? A great deal. He had been a lawyer. He was favored in being a Roman citizen by birth. His family was wealthy. (He used some of his wealth in Rome when he paid for his own hired house.) He had a good education. Yet he said, "I count all this but loss and dross."

Some one might ask, "Do you not often feel sorry, Paul, that you had to give up so much? I wonder that you did not think of how much you were sacrificing when you gave up these opportunities." "I count these but dross, if by any means I may win a place in The Christ, and be found in Him, a member of His Body," he replies.

Then he continues, "That I may attain unto the resurrection out from among the dead" the First Resurrection, the highest resurrection. That was St. Paul's hope. May we have that resurrection? Yes. The Body of Christ are to share the same resurrection that Jesus had. We are to be exalted from the fallen, human condition to a condition far above angels even to the Divine nature. The Apostle tells us the conditions: "That I might know Him, the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings, being conformed unto His death."

Christ's death was a very special death. Other people die because they have to die, because they share Adam's death penalty. The Church class do not die because they share Adam's penalty. We have been redeemed from this. We are dying voluntarily with Jesus. We might have had share in the future Restitution. But we gave up all these earthly interests that we might be included with Christ in the Mystery hidden from the ages that we might share His nature and glory. For this reward we follow in His sacrificial footsteps.

WHAT IS THE HOLY SPIRIT

Let us each maintain this one Spirit by which we were all baptized into this one Body. Let us abide in Christ. How may we do this? By cultivating the fruits of the holy Spirit, through study of the Word and prayer. "But," says one, "this matter of having the holy Spirit is so confusing. We have heard people say that the holy Spirit enters into each of us. How can one person enter into another, or into many persons?" We reply, It would show that there was something wrong with your reasoning faculties if you could get anything out of that idea. It is just as the Bible tells us.

The holy Spirit is the mind, disposition, energy of the Father. It is also the mind, energy, disposition of the Son, received from the Father. We are partakers of the same Spirit, if we have been begotten of the Spirit. It is the Lord's animating power in each one of us. It will manifest itself if we have it. The fruits of the Spirit are love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, meekness, faith, self-control.

FRUITS AND GIFTS OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

Are the fruits of the Spirit and the gifts of the Spirit the same? No. The early Church received the gifts of the Spirit in addition. The Apostle declared that the gifts would pass away. (1 Cor. 13:8, 13) They did pass away when the Church had become fully established. The fruits remained, and these are far more important. These fruits, if present, are manifest in the life. Meekness is one of them, gentleness another. You find that you are not so rude as you used to be. You do not slam doors so often. You speak more gently. Sometimes you make a slip, but you make amends for it. You say, "Please pardon me, I will try to be more gentle the next time." Every time you tell some one you are sorry you did some thing wrong it cultivates patience and humility. It humbles one to apologize; but each time you thus apologize for a thoughtless word or deed, you are growing in meekness, gentleness and love.

If you have these qualities abounding, "they make you that ye shall be neither idle nor unfruitful in the knowledge of the Lord." You thus have more of the holy Spirit. The holy Spirit is not a person. No Scripture, properly translated, gives any such thought. We need a supernatural illumination to understand the deep things of God and our relationship to Him. If these spiritual fruits abound in you, "an abundant entrance shall be ministered into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Now, dear friends, I leave the matter with you. We have been baptized with the holy Spirit of God. We received the Spirit when we made our consecration. We were then begotten as New Creatures. It is under this Heavenly influence that we are developing the fruits of the Spirit. This brings us into closer and closer fellowship with God. His Truth is sanctifying us more and more as the days go by. Shortly, if we thus continue on, we shall hear the Master's, "Well done, good and faithful servant. Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of the Lord"

St. Paul Enterprise, October 8, 1915

CALL AND PREPARATION OF THE BRIDE CLASS

New York, N. Y., October 3 Pastor Russell delivered a forceful and helpful discourse in the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St., near Broadway, today. His text was, "Hearken, O daughter, and consider, and incline thine ear. Forget also thine own people and thy father's House; so shall the King greatly desire thy beauty; for He is thy Lord, and worship thou Him." (Psa. 45:10, 11) He said in part:

Never was there greater need for the Lord's people to remember the words of this text than at the present time. We recognize these words of the Psalmist David as prophetic, referring to the Church of Christ. The Church has been called out during the Gospel Age to be Christ's Bride. The Prophet here pictures the Call of this class, the terms of the Call, and the Bride's preparation for her marriage to the King's Son. The exhortation is that those who have thus become espoused as a virgin to Christ, who have taken upon themselves the covenant of faithfulness, are to be separate from the world. Hence the injunction, "Forget thine own people and thy father's House."

Our own people are the human family. Our father's House is Adam's House. By nature we belong to his House; we have a natural interest in his inheritance; and although we have received woeful experiences through Adam's fall, yet whatever we have as human beings we have received from Adam. Those who are now the Lord's people "were by nature children of wrath, even as others." But something has occurred in our case. We have been called out of this condition, and invited to become "the Bride, the Lamb's Wife." Rev. 21:2, 9-11; Psa. 45:9

GOD'S WONDERFUL CONDESCENSION

None of the human family could claim to be worthy of this exaltation to be the Bride, members of the Christ company; for neither Jew nor Gentile could keep the Divine Law. Our Lord Jesus was the only one who could keep it; for it is the full measure of a perfect man's ability, and, except Father Adam, there was never a perfect man upon earth but the Lord Jesus. Having kept the Law, He became Heir of all things; and just as a wealthy man might take a beggar for a wife, lifting her up from her degraded condition and making her joint-heir in his inheritance, his name, his honor and his property, so the Lord Jesus is to take a Bride from the fallen human family and make her joint-heir with Himself.

We had nothing which would ever entitle us to be taken into God's family, but God has made this way for us through His Plan of Redemption. How wonderful an opportunity for us, that God should choose us to be the Bride of His Son! God has called us with a Heavenly Calling. This choice is being made in harmony with the custom of olden times as in the case of Abraham and Isaac. Abraham typified Jehovah; Isaac, our Lord Jesus Christ; and Isaac's bride Rebecca, the Church. As Abraham sent his servant to seek a Bride for his only Begotten Son, so God has sent, through out this Gospel Age, the Message of His grace, by His holy Spirit, His servant, to seek a Bride for His Only Begotten Son.

The promises of God have gone here and there through the world and have acted like a magnet upon certain individuals. The Magnet of God's Truth has been a power that has drawn a certain class, but does not attract others very much. Is God making a discrimination? Yes. There are many whom He does not wish at all for His present purpose. He is not seeking the world now.

This statement would have seemed very strange to us once; for we had in mind the idea, handed down from the errors of the past, that whoever did not understand and accept spiritual truths and become a saint during this present life, would have to roast for all eternity. Now we see that God is merely gathering out a special class, that have special characteristics. God uses measures to drive others off. Just as you, if you were drawing tacks to a magnet, would blow off any sawdust that might loosely adhere, so the Lord is causing the winds of adversity to blow upon His Church, in order that any of the worldly who have attached themselves to the Church class may be blown off. But those who are of the true Church will only adhere the closer.

SEPARATION OF WHEAT AND TARES

In the parable of the Wheat and the Tares, Jesus shows that in the Harvest time of the Gospel Age He would completely separate the wheat from the tares. (Matt. 13:36-43) Not a grain of wheat is to be left amongst the tares, and not a tare is to be left amongst the wheat. There will be such persecutions and oppositions as will make a complete separation and division. The wheat class will be taken out by the Lord and gathered into the garner. The tares will be uprooted from the wheat-field and burned. In other words, in the Time of Trouble they will be shown to be of the world, as they have been all along.

There is only one class desired for the Bride class true Christians. Millions of people are associating together and calling themselves Christians that have not the slightest relationship to God. They are tares. God never authorized these. They did not come into association with the Church through the Doorway. (John 10:1-7) Some came in because their parents or their friends were in. Some thought that unless they were baptized they would go to eternal torment.

In the end of this Age, now present, there is to be a great burning time. Not the people, but their religious conceptions and affiliations will burn up. "The fire of the Day shall try every man's work of what sort it is." (1 Cor. 3:13) Those who have built with the stubble of human tradition will suffer loss. Their works and their professions will perish. Those who have built upon the sand will be overthrown. But any who have been real Christians "shall be saved so as by fire." Their systems and their doctrines will be consumed in the fire of this Day a bitter humiliation. These may be assured that their great church systems will suffer complete collapse in the Day of the Lord. They will fall to rise no more. Jer. 51:58

TERMS OF OUR COVENANT BINDING

This special class that God has been gathering out for eighteen centuries to be the Bride of Christ have accepted God's terms and have entered into a special covenant with God in order that they might become members of the Bride class. These terms are very positive and definite. In olden times, when there was a betrothal, it was usually the father that looked after the contract. This was not a merely verbal contract, but a written one. It was a binding engagement with positive stipulations on both sides. Just so our Heavenly Father, in making the arrangement by which we may come into His family, drew up a very positive, unchangeable contract. It is a condition of full surrender to Him. We give up our own wills. This agreement is more binding than any earthly marriage contract.

Those who have become betrothed to the Lord Jesus Christ give up their all to Him. They do not have very much, to be sure. Most of us have very, very little; for not many great, not many wise, not many learned, not many noble, are called. (1 Cor. 1:23-29) But association with the One to whom they are betrothed gives these a nobility of character. The wonderful promises of God begin immediately to work in them to will and to do of His good pleasure. It is a transforming work. The Apostle Paul tells us that we are "transformed by the renewing of our minds" not our bodies. (Rom. 12:2) Our body is the same body that we had before, but we have a new mind. We are New Creatures. All things are new; old things have passed away. (2 Cor. 5:17) This makes a change everywhere.

We need not go into detail as to what changes it makes. We know, if we are of this class, that “the things which once we loved we now hate.” We loved the things that were pure, noble and beautiful in proportion as we were naturally of a noble disposition; but many of the things which once we loved were things of which we cannot now approve. We have received the begetting of the holy Spirit; and as God’s Spirit abounds in us more and more, we become copies of God’s dear Son, our Redeemer, our Head, our Bridegroom.

In the case of the Hebrew marriage contract, if the bride-elect was guilty of infidelity to her betrothed bridegroom, the unfaithfulness was punished with death. So if any of us who have made a contract with the Lord should violate that contract and be untrue to our Bridegroom, we would come under the penalty of the Second Death. “If any man draw back,” says the Lord, “My should shall have no pleasure in him.” God would not give eternal life to those in whom He has no pleasure. The Apostle Paul says that these draw back to perdition destruction. (Hebrews 10:38, 39) So the matter is clear before us. We are espoused to a Husband. We have taken upon us certain obligations. We must go on now, and make our calling and election sure. We must either gain the reward of everlasting life or else go into the Second Death.

CHRIST’S RIGHTEOUSNESS OUR COVERING

Does this mean that if we make slips we shall go into the Second Death? No. One might make unintentional slips of various kinds. Presumably there is no child of God living who has not made such slips. Our imperfections are hindrances to our doing perfectly. “With my mind I serve the Law of God,” but with my imperfect body it would be an impossibility. Our great Redeemer, who is our prospective Bridegroom, has made satisfaction for our imperfections. Therefore when we err, we are to go to the Throne of Heavenly Grace to obtain mercy--mercy with God through Christ. If you and I were perfect, we would not need to go to the Throne of Grace to obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need. (Heb. 4:16) But as we become developed as Christians, we should not need to go so often to obtain mercy. As we grow stronger, we grow wiser.

But we shall always need mercy as long as we are in the imperfect flesh. The Lord knows of the blemishes of our flesh and of our unsuccessful strivings to overcome; and He has provided us a covering--the precious Robe of Christ’s righteousness. So by the Lord’s arrangement this Bride class may be eventually received at the wedding. The spotless robe given us at the first is the wedding garment mentioned in our Lord's parable. (Matt. 22:11-14) Clad in this precious Robe, we may come in and be participators at the great Marriage, as members of the Bride of Christ.

SPOTS ON THE ROBE--HOW REMOVED

The Lord Jesus intimated that some of His disciples will not be ready to go in to that Marriage, because, although they are wearing the robe, they have gotten it besmirched and spotted. We are to keep our garments unspotted from the world. Can any one pass through the world and always remain absolutely unspotted? No; that is not the thought. But if those who are in the right attitude of heart should get a spot upon their robe, it will be so grievous to them that they will hasten to remove it. There is only one way to get a spot off from that robe. We must take the matter to the Throne of Grace; and whatever our sin whether it was temper or what when our lapse has been acknowledged, the cleansing merit of Jesus' blood is applied; and our robe is spotless again. 1 John 1:7-9

In this way our robe is kept white. We are to keep ourselves unspotted by going to the One who alone can remove such spots and by asking the forgiveness necessary. "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." The blood of Jesus Christ, the atoning merit of His sacrifice, cleanses us day by day as we, appreciating our need, come to Him daily to have His blood applied.

There is a class, however, who do not keep their robe clean; for any stain upon this robe remains until the proper steps are taken for its removal. There are many Christian people who have not taken these steps, and who therefore have not had the spots removed. Why do they not have these spots cleansed? you ask.

There are things connected with that matter which some of you know about. When first you came to the Lord, full of earnest desire to keep yourself unspotted from the world, you were very careful about your robe. Oh, how shocked you were at the first spot! You said, "I am a child of God; and oh, what a mistake I have made!" But as time passed and you realized more and more keenly your infirmities of the flesh, you found that you were often overtaken by these weaknesses; and you were so humiliated thereby that you were tempted to remain away from the Throne of Grace, the Mercy-Seat provided by the Lord for this very purpose. But if you were a true disciple of Christ, you conquered this feeling and went to the Lord to have the spots removed.

FOR CARELESS CHRISTIANS-- RECKONING NEAR

But a great many Christian people have not been faithful in this respect and are being deceived; and a reckoning time is at hand. They have doubted the Lord's mercy or else have been careless of their covenant; and they are not living close to the Lord. Their lives are unsatisfactory to themselves and to God. They will not be of the Bride class. Nobody whose robe is covered with spots will be received into the wedding as a member of the Bride of Christ; for the Bride must be "without spot or wrinkle or any such thing." (Eph. 5:25-27) Only thus could she be presentable to the Heavenly Bridegroom. "There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth" amongst the foolish virgins when the door to the wedding is shut. (Matt. 25:10-12) Many will be disappointed in this Day of Christ.

Where shall you and I be then? I hope that we shall make our calling and election sure; that, knowing the terms, we shall keep our garments unspotted from the flesh, from everything that is contaminating. There is a peculiar beauty about a pure white robe. A robe spotted all over would not look very attractive, nor would a robe all wrinkled. The King will greatly love and appreciate those who are in a spotless condition.

"Forget also thine own people and thy father's House." The temptations to wrongdoing, to disloyalty to our covenant with the Lord, come largely through relations with our own people. It is very trying to endeavor to do two things to keep on good terms with the world's people and with the Lord at the same time. To do so is an impossibility. This is where the Great Company class make their failure. They fear what their acquaintances and neighbors will say. They do not care to be considered peculiar. But we are not to be ashamed of the Truth or of the brethren or of reproach for Christ. Matt. 10:32, 33

"So shall the King greatly desire thy beauty." This is a beauty that dwells in the heart, a beauty of character. Every Christian should see to it that he is growing daily in grace. In all the true Body of Christ there is a growth in the Lord's Spirit, a growth in love. This is the beauty that our Bridegroom desires in His Bride this beauty of character-likeness to Himself. We desire this in ourselves. We wish to see our minds and hearts opening more and more widely to take in the interests of others, especially our brethren of the Body of Christ. Those who prove faithful unto death shall receive glory, honor and immortality." They shall walk with Me in white," says our Lord Jesus; "for they are worthy

THE GREAT SHEPHERD AND HIS FLOCK

Detroit, Mich., October 17 Pastor Russell preached here today. He took for his text Psa. 23:1—"The Lord is My Shepherd; I shall not want." He said in part:

All the great families of the world have their coats-of-arms, that differentiate them one from another and that represent their own ideas. Some have figures of rapacious birds; others have various kinds of wild beasts, real or imaginary, so that whoever looks upon them would wish that he might never fall into their clutches. But no family has ever yet adopted the symbol that God has adopted for His family; namely, the lamb, the sheep. There is nothing ferocious about these animals. They are meek and inoffensive.

The Lord tells us that He is the Shepherd of His saints. This means that we are His sheep. It is a wonderful suggestion that the Father of Mercies, the Almighty One who is so high, and in comparison with whom we are so small, should be willing to take charge of us and care for us. And we are very desirous of abiding in His care, of abiding so fully that ultimately, by His grace, we may attain unto all the blessings which He has in reservation for His faithful people. We appreciate this great favor; and the more we consider it, the more we appreciate it.

As we have before our minds so great a God, man in comparison seems some thing like an ant. We pay little attention to the tiny ant; it is of no account to us. When we compare mankind with God there is a still greater contrast. We are like the small dust of the balance, not worthy to be accounted of. (Isa. 40:15) Nevertheless God has favored us, and has made a great Plan for the redemption of every member of our race.

Especially do we who are now God's children appreciate His particular love and care manifested toward us, in that He has invited us to become partakers of the Divine nature, to be associated forever with our Lord Jesus Christ, to share His glory and honor, to be granted the same immortality. This seems more wonderful every time we think of it. The matter grows upon us continually enlarging our hearts.

GOD'S PLAN BEYOND HUMAN CONCEPTION

It seems strange indeed that the Heavenly Father should have adopted so marvelous a Plan. To His Only Begotten Son, who had always been faithful to Him, He desired to give still greater blessings, in connection with the blessing of others. God said, "I will test Him fully, and if He still proves faithful, He shall have the best I can give.” And so the first offer to carry out the Divine Plan and to obtain the Divine nature through humiliation and suffering was made to this Son, God’s only direct creation. (Rev. 3:14; Col. 1:15) The Logos gladly responded. By a transfer of nature He was made man; and by faithfulness and obedience even unto death He became the Head of this company that God purposed to bring from the lowest plane of His intelligent creatures to the very highest.

Now observe the conditions upon which this offer was made. Jehovah would grant the Son this great exaltation only after thoroughly proving Him. His trial would take place in the midst of the adverse conditions prevailing in the lost world that He would come to redeem by the sacrifice of Himself, and from which fallen race His footstep followers would be selected. To these the Father in His great Plan would say, “I will give to you the opportunity to become associated with Jesus in this great work.”

This part of God’s wonderful Plan would never have occurred to our minds. We would never have thought of taking any of humanity into the Plan in such a way of stooping down to fallen creatures who had been under the curse of death and in a depraved condition for over four thousand years, and of making an offer to these sinners, not only of having their sins forgiven and of being reconciled to God through the death of His Son, but also of becoming followers of that Son and, by passing through similar trials and experiences, of becoming joint-heirs with Him in His glorious inheritance. Therefore

And gaze on this ocean of Love!”*

OUR LORD JESUS MOST HIGHLY HONORED

It is well that we notice particularly that the Father has planned that the Lord Jesus shall be first. (Col. 1:18) Jehovah, the Chief Shepherd, has provided that His Son shall be His Representative and our Shepherd, and that we may come in as the first flock of His sheep. There will be others, later on, who are not of this particular fold. (John 10:16) But the sheep of His present fold are the ones in whom we are especially interested now. The sheep of the next fold will be those of the world who shall receive Restitution blessings in the Age about to dawn. The sheep of this Gospel fold are the ones particularly referred to in our text; for the Psalmist David spoke prophetically for Christ and His Church, His Body. The Church, with our Lord Jesus as Head, can truly say, “Jehovah is My Shepherd; I shall not want.”

Until the Lord Jesus was highly exalted at His resurrection, there was none of this Divine nature except Jehovah Himself. All others were of a lower nature. The Logos, although above cherubim and seraphim, and next to the Father, was upon a very different plane of being from God. But it was to this Divine plane that God purposed to exalt some. He designed to have a certain company on that highest plane of existence.

God had first created Jesus, the Logos, and though Him, all the worlds and all the ranks and orders of angels, and finally man. His next creation, instead of going further downward, was to go upward, to a still higher plane than any other the Divine. In harmony with this purpose, the Body members of Christ are to be God's New Creation, as the Apostle Paul explains. (2 Cor. 5:7; Eph. 2:10) And God gave His Son, the One through whom all other beings were created, the first opportunity to demonstrate His love, His devotion, His loyalty.

“But,” you say, “had the Son not always demonstrated this?” Yes; He had always demonstrated His loyalty under favorable conditions, amongst the holy ones in harmony with Jehovah, where there were no requirements of sacrifice. But now God would put Him to a special test, making Him a special offer as a reward; and the two propositions must go together. If he would accept Jehovah's proposition, and be loyal even unto death amongst the unholy ones out of harmony with Jehovah and under conditions of suffering and humiliation, then He should have an exaltation far above angels, principalities, powers, dominions, and every name that is named.

The Apostle sums it all up. After telling how our Lord accepted these terms, how He left the glory which He had with the Father before the world was, how He was made flesh and dwelt amongst us, and being found in fashion as a man humbled Himself and became obedient unto death, even the death of the Cross, St. Paul declares that Jesus was found worthy in that He, for the joy set before Him, endured the Cross, despising the shame, and is now set down at the right hand of the Divine Majesty on High.

That is, our Lord was given a position of the very highest honor. Phil. 2:8-11; Heb. 12:2; 1:3

PRICE OF OUR LORD'S GREAT EXALTATION

We see the earthly experiences of Jesus and their significance shown in the types of the Jewish Law. For instance, every high priest, before he could enter the Most Holy of the Tabernacle on the Day of Atonement, must first offer a sacrifice of a bullock, must take its blood into the Holy and offer incense at the Golden Altar in the Holy representing in type the perfection of Jesus' human nature being consumed as a sacrifice. Then, after he had offered the incense, after its perfume had preceded him into the Most Holy and had rested as a cloud above the Mercy-Seat, the high priest would pass under the second veil into the Most Holy the veil representing death itself.

If the high priest did not fulfil to the letter every requirement of the Divine Law, he would die as he passed under this veil. That priest was a type of the Lord Jesus Christ; and the figure showed that Jesus would have perished if He had not fulfilled to the letter every requirement which the Father made. This being the case, it is no wonder that our Lord felt great anxiety as the time of His death drew near. The Apostle has written of the Master's distress of mind at this time: "Who in the days of His flesh, when He had offered up prayers and supplications, with strong cryings and tears, unto Him that was able to save Him out of death, was heard in that He feared." Heb. 5:6-10

What did Jesus fear? He feared that in passing under the veil of death He might never rise again. He knew that as the antitypical High Priest He was on trial, and that His trial would eventuate in life or death ever lasting. Knowing this He appreciated life with its blessings, and to a marked degree appreciated the life on the higher plane which He had enjoyed with the Father, and which He hoped again to enjoy. Why did He pray with strong cryings? Because He desired to know whether He had been wholly faithful, and whether He might expect the resurrection change.

And He was heard. God sent an angel to minister to Him and to assure Him that He had proved faithful in every respect. From that moment Jesus was calm and self-possessed. None of the disciples had such courage. To the weeping one following Him to the cross He said, "Weep not for Me, but weep for yourselves and for your children." Luke 23:28

A FEATURE OF THE REVELATION

A picture dating back to the time before our Lord Jesus entered the world, and showing God's Plan recorded in figurative language, was given to St. John on the Isle of Patmos. (Rev. 5:1-14) In this picture He beheld Jehovah sitting upon a Throne and holding in His right hand a Scroll written within and without and sealed with seven seals. Then he heard a proclamation made, "Who is worthy to open the Book, and to loose the seals thereof?" But no one was found worthy to open the Scroll no one in Heaven or earth. No one of mankind was worthy because all were sinners. No one on the spirit plane had ever yet proven himself worthy of the great honor of carrying out God's marvelous Plan of the Ages.

In symbolic language the Scroll represents all that God had in mind before the foundation of the world respecting the Church, respecting His great work for the world during the Millennial Age and respecting Messiah's great future. All these things were represented by the Scroll in God's right hand the hand being symbolical of power. At this time the Son had not yet been tested and proven.

On one occasion Jesus had said to His disciples, "But of that day and hour [of Messiah's Second Coming and the establishment of God's Kingdom on earth] knoweth no man, no, not the angels in Heaven, neither the Son, but the Father only." (Matt. 24:36) The Father had not yet permitted the Scroll to go out of His hands. St. John wept when he realized that God had some great purpose to execute, but had found none worthy to carry it out.

Then one of the elders said unto St. John, "Weep not; behold, the Lion of the Tribe of Judah, the Root of David, hath prevailed to open the Book, and to loose the seals thereof." The Lion of the tribe of Judah had proven Himself worthy. When had He done so? Not before He came into the world; for then He was not the Lion of Judah. He was born of the tribe of Judah when He was made flesh; but He had not yet become the Lion, the Strong One. Our Lord was the Lion of the tribe of Judah from the time when He made a Covenant with the Father at the River Jordan, although He did not finish His sacrifice until at Calvary He cried, "It is finished."

It required, in one sense, the entire three and a half years of Christ's ministry to demonstrate Himself to be this Strong One. In the picture in Revelation St. John looked, and behold, "A lamb stood, as it had been slain" (a lamb newly slain, says the Greek) the lamb representing the Lord Jesus sacrificed. By that sacrifice of Himself He had prevailed. As St. John looked, he heard myriads of angels saying, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory and blessing!" There Jesus became worthy not without blood, not without sacrifice, not without being tested by the Father, not without coming off Conqueror. Thus He proved Himself worthy to be the Father's Representative in opening the Scroll and carrying out its provisions.

OUR GLORIOUS HIGH CALLING

How glad we are that God has provided for the ultimate recovery of all mankind from the death-curse, to bring whosoever will back into harmony with Himself by restitution processes during the Millennial Reign of Christ! But we who are of the Bride class, how we rejoice when we think of our invitation to join in with our Savior and be partakers with Him, both in the sufferings of this present life and in the glory to follow! This is our privilege and portion. We may have a share in carrying out the Father's great Plan.

We might well rejoice that, in God's mercy, we have heard the glad Message; that through the merit of Jesus' sacrifice we have been invited to become His footstep followers and to prove ourselves worthy, even as He proved Himself worthy, by laying down our lives in the service of God and His Truth. But we are not worthy without our Redeemer. We are made worthy in Him. This High Calling to be joint-heirs with Jesus comes in as a special privilege, over and above justification. And we must demonstrate our worthiness or we shall never get in.

Our test is the same as in our Lord's case; namely, faithfulness to God, loyalty to the Truth, the putting away of all selfishness, seeking to do only the will of our Heavenly Father. We cannot do God's will perfectly, as Jesus could. But we must do what is possible to us; and the blood of Jesus cleanses us from all unintentional blemishes, making up for our deficiencies. But we are required to have the same spirit, the same mind, as the Apostle admonishes us the mind which is willing to humble self in order to do the will of God. Phil. 2:5; Rom. 8:9

It is important that we realize our need of justification, and that we note the difference between justification and the High Calling. I am sure that not many Christians see the distinction clearly. The Bible teaches everywhere that through Christ we are to be "justified freely from all things." It is God that justifies, and not we that justify ourselves. We are justified by faith in Jesus' blood. "It not of works, lest any man should boast." Justification merely brings us to the place where we can offer an acceptable sacrifice to God. Then we must present our bodies. (Rom. 12:1) We are to follow in Jesus' footsteps.

None have yet been justified except a special class the Church: God has willed that the whole fallen human race shall go down to the tomb unjustified, in sin, and shall wait until the Millennial Age; and in that Millennial Day Jesus, who died for them, will be their Justifier. During those thousand years He will bring them up from the tomb, and will help them up the Highway of Holiness. (Isa. 35) At the close of that time He will present them to the Father blameless. He will not present anybody to the Father in any other way. So the whole world, at the end of the Millennium, will be presented to God; for Christ will have justified them, made them right. But all who will not meet the conditions will die the Second Death.

"FAITH IN GOD'S LEADINGS"

I would take for my text today, dear friends, the words of the Lord through the prophet Malachi: "Ye have said, It is vain to serve God; and what profit that we have kept his ordinance, and that we have walked mournfully before the Lord of hosts? And now we call the proud happy; yea, they that work wickedness are set up (put in power); yea, they that tempt God are even delivered."

These words seem to describe a condition of things that very considerably prevail at the present time. There are very many that are saying these very things.

We look back over a generation or two and we perceive that many of God's people, even though they did not have the light and knowledge that we have today, even though they did not have the blessings of today a great many Christian people of a generation ago were very sincere, very earnest, and very devoted to the Lord, so far as we can judge from their words and conduct. God's name was taken very reverently by them. Songs of praise to God were sung on Sunday. The Sabbath day was kept because they thought God wished it to be kept, and many things were done in the way of Bible Study and all that; and then came a time when prosperity had come to the world in a large measure, when the people of God were zealous and the Bible seemed not to make as much progress as the worldly people. Those who did not reverence God got along better in the world than they did, and then they began to say, What profit is it that we serve God? What advantage is it to us?

It is really a disadvantage, for many of those people that thus trifle with God, they are being established in influence and power, and we are not prosperous in our worldly affairs. And then again, they say that, they are careless respecting God's ordinance and God's will, and yet, they are getting along much better than we who are trying to walk reverently before the Lord. The proud seem to be the ones that the Lord is blessing. It is as though God had said Blessed are the proud; they that work wickedness shall be set up; they that tempt me shall be delivered. As a consequence, we find today, just as in the days of Malachi's prophesy only it was then with the Jews we find a great tendency to worldliness, and little attention is paid to religion, which is only of a formal kind, and not too deep.

Attend more to business, they say, more to the lodge, more to such things, and you will get along much better; God is not paying much attention to the people who are trying to please Him. This is so, in general, not only here in Canada, but all over the world. So, there is less piety today, except among certain classes. Those who have reverence for God, and are being strengthened, are coming to be known as Bible Students, and it is separating them out from all denominations. We are looking for as many as are sincere and genuine, and God has some encouragement for them, giving them to see some of the heights and depths, and lengths and breadths of His great plan. We will wait patiently on the Lord. In His own time and way He will give us the blessings that He thinks are best for us.

So then, this class is more particularly represented by the next statement, "Then they that feared (reverenced) the Lord spake often one to another." You see they became separated from the masses and were brought together; and now they speak often one to another. They talk to each other about these good matters. They have a fellowship of spirit, and often sing, *“Blest be the tie that binds,

Our Hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above.”*

These are the experiences we are having as spiritual Israelites. We are not being blest necessarily in outward things. Perhaps, as a whole, we have less than the average person of the world. Yet, when have I seen any of the Lord’s saints begging for bread? Never. Yet I have not seen very many great and wealthy. It would not be well for us to have too many of the good things of this present life. In harmony with my own experience, so long as they were in business and prosperous in their worldly affairs, they were inclined to have a worldly spirit, and God greatly favored them by taking from them much of their earthly prosperity. One dear brother told me: “I was in the grocery business. Every moment of my time was necessary to make my business a good success. I was putting all of my life’s energy right into it.

From a Colporteur I got the Scripture Studies, but I put them on my shelf because I had no time for them. Brother Russell, the Lord gave me a great fall. I broke my leg, and after it was set and I had to wait for the bones to knit together, I said, I can’t attend to my business, so now is the time to read those books. I did read them, and I want to say that, all that God had given me previous to that time, could not compare with the blessings that came as a result of breaking my leg. I would have gone on the same old way, except this had taken place." So we see that God is giving us what He sees is best for us as new creatures. He is not thus dealing with the world. The world is indeed subject to a general supervision and a certain restraint, in that He says “Thus far and no further,” but He is not treating them as a shepherd deals with his sheep. He treats them more as goats. Let us thank God because we as His sheep are under His special care.

Wisely and tenderly He holds back from us some of the good, earthly things. It is in harmony with this, that Jesus says, I am the vine, ye are the branches. Every branch in me that beareth fruit, the Father pruneth it that it may bring forth more fruit. He prunes the vine that it may bring forth more fruit. I inquired of some who had made a success of cultivating grape vines, and they informed me, that it is the tendency of this vine to spread out every where and have plenty of branches, and the strength of the vine is inclined to go out that way. The result would be a few grapes but not very large. But when the vine-dressers wanted the vine to produce better fruit, they would break off the suckers, and anyone who is a husbandman can tell whether it is a fruit vine or whether it is a sucker. He breaks off the sucker. And then when the vine shows the signs of fruit, he will break off the vine entirely a little beyond the bunch of grapes. This looks as though he was spoiling the grape vine. But is he spoiling it? No; he is bringing the juice right into that very bunch of grapes. If you want a vine that will produce much fruit, you must know how to do it. Now, our Lord says, in connection with that parable, "Herein is my Father glorified, that you bear much fruit." He wants the fruit. The leaves represent profession. Of course, you have to have some leaves. So it is right to have a good profession, but our lives should not be all profession and no fruit. No; No; The Lord wants fruit from the vine good bunches of fruit.

The Father will be glorified by your bearing much fruit. Anyone who would understand the growth of grapes, would get out large quantities of grapes. He is the good husbandman. So, in this way, the Father wishes you to bring forth much fruit. This will be to our advantage and to His glory. These branches that have no fruit buds at all, but are called merely suckers, are illustrative of those who come into the church, make a profession, and never produce any fruit. They are not really of the church class. God only calls fruit-bearers. Those who have the real matter at heart and have a desire to bear much fruit, if the Lord shall knock off some of the tendencies to go out and take in the worldly things, we are not to think that this is strange. The Lord will pinch off this tendency to worldly things, and this will be for your good, not for your injury. You have noticed how the little branches take hold of anything they can reach. So we have a great many things that we are inclined to take hold of: a little pet dog, flowers, a little ground, a little business; taking your strength and energy away from the one thing that is the most important to you. That is the way with the vine. If the Lord shall cut off some of these tendrils, this is to our advantage.

But we should bear in mind, that the Lord is not thus dealing with every one, but only with a special class. We need to make a sharp distinction between the church and the world. We often hear the expression, The Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, as though we were all one brotherhood and all members of the family of God. This might be true from a worldly standpoint, but it does not represent the real truth of the matter. When father Adam was created in the image of God he was the son of God and had a chance of bringing into existence a race of sons, but when he disobeyed God he was cut off from sonship, and his children are therefore, not sons of God. The contrary thought of the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man is nothing but a worldly tradition. The Bible does not speak of the brotherhood of man in such manner. This thought is contrary to the Bible. We have a general relationship one to another, so that we are to do what we can to help those in trouble, even as the Bible says, We are to do good unto all men as we have opportunity, but especially to the household of faith, because the household of faith are the real sons of God. God having discarded Adam and his family, has adopted a new family. When? Where? And How?

This new family began with Jesus. He was begotten again with the Holy Spirit. None preceded Him. Jesus was the first one who was begotten with the Holy Spirit. It came at the time He made a full consecration of Him self. From that time on, He was a new creature begotten to a new nature--the divine nature. This nature was perfected when He was raised from the dead. He was put to death in flesh and quickened in spirit, as the Apostle puts it. Jesus was the first, and so, opened up the way for a certain class. Many? No; not many. It is a little flock. God does not wish many. God is limiting the number. Do we know what the number is? Well; He has intimated that the bride of Christ will be made up of one hundred forty and four thousand. It will be limited to them. Why should He limit it? In the same way that we might limit the number of invitations to a wedding to a certain number. In the army, so many men constitute a regiment. It is limited to that number. Say, one thousand and ten shall constitute a regiment. When you get that number, it is full and you can no longer join that regiment. So God has provided for a certain class, and only the required number can come into that class. It has taken all the Gospel Age to find this class. God has been sending out the message for eighteen hundred years. Simply telling them the message. Those who have responded and make their calling and election sure, when that number has fully come in, then the door will be shut. No more can then get into that class or company.

So then, dear brethren, those who are now being begotten are members of the bride class. It is not open to any and all. It is limited to those who respond in this way. He is dealing in a general way with the world, in that He says, Thus far and no farther, but beyond this general super vision, his is not dealing with the world at the present time. He will deal with them in the Millennial age. But now He deals with the elect of God, and this is the class that is spoken of as being the sons of God. All who are begotten of the Holy Spirit are the sons of God. The world is not begotten of the Spirit. Not all Christians of all denominations are begotten of the Spirit. Very few of them claim to be spirit-begotten. I am sure you will find some of the best of them know very little about spirit-begetting. Our Methodist friends years ago used to make much of this, and spoke of most of the people as being born again. They misrepresented the matter. What they really meant to say, was, that those only are the sons of God who have been begotten of the Spirit, and that those thus begotten to sonship must grow in character, grow in grace, grow in the likeness of Christ, and then, in the first resurrection they will be born again, and be sons of God in the full sense.

Jesus was the first-born from the dead. So with us, we will be born in the first resurrection. Those are the only sons who are the sons of God. Is that according to the Bible? Yes; none others are called the sons of God. John 1:12, is one of the Scriptures on this point, "But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God. Jesus came unto His own, and His own (people, the Jews) received Him not." They had wrong expectations. They were not Israelites indeed, because they did not have the true Israelite spirit. The majority of them rejected Him. They were not true Israelites. Some were Israelites indeed, were loyal to God in their lives, and of them the Apostle speaks when he says, "To them gave He the power, or privilege, of becoming the sons of God." That privilege came to them at Pentecost. They did not have this privilege before.

He put His Spirit upon them and they acted as His representative beforehand, but not until Jesus had finished His sacrifice and appeared in the presence of God for us, not until then would God recognize them and give them the Holy Spirit. He said, tarry; I have made you to be my representatives to go into all the world to witness, but tarry at Jerusalem until ye be endowed with power from on high. After Jesus had ascended up on high and there presented His sacrifice, and had been accepted, then the Father granted Him the privilege of recognizing these as His children. The effect was the begetting of the Holy Spirit the same as Jesus was begotten at His baptism. So it has been all the way down. As many as are the sons of God, they have received the Spirit of God, and if any man have not the Spirit of God, he is none of His.

We did not get the Spirit in the same manner as Jesus did at the river Jordan, but the effect was the same. That was an outward demonstration for the benefit of John the Baptist. Neither did we get the Spirit in the same manner as did the disciples at Pentecost. That was an outward demonstration for a double purpose. It taught the Jews that the Father was specially with these, and it convinced the church that they were received of the Father. And then, what was that blessing they got? It was the gift of the Holy Spirit. This gift came to everybody who became a Christian.

Some had several gifts. Saint Paul could speak with tongues, could interpret tongues, and had the gift of healing, etc. Everyone in the church had a gift bestowed upon him as an evidence that he had been accepted by the Lord. But this did not continue. Why not? Not because the church fell away, but because the church progressed and grew in knowledge. They were then in the primary department, and had primary lessons and illustrations the same as you give a child primary lessons. Thus it was with the early church, and after the early church passed away, the church passed into another stage; and so the Apostle says, "Whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be prophecies, they shall fail" they shall all pass away. Then would come the fruits of the Spirit. As soon as the church had been established by the gifts of the Spirit, then came the period for the fruits of the Spirit, and it is this fruitage of the Spirit that has constituted the riches and blessings of the church ever since.

All down through the Gospel age, those who have been begotten of the Spirit, are expected and exhorted to bear the fruits of the Spirit. These fruits are "meekness, gentleness, faithfulness, longsuffering, patience, brotherly kindness, love. If these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren, nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ, and so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior." These fruits were the important things. Not those who have the gifts of the spirit will get into the kingdom. That was simply something from the outside. The Apostle showed a difference between the gifts and fruits of the Spirit.

Saint Paul shows that a man might have these gifts of the Spirit and not really be any account at all. He might give all his goods to feed the poor, but if he did not have the real motive of love, (The fruit of the Spirit is love), it would profit him nothing. He might give his body to be burned in some religious cause, but if it were not prompted by love, God would not appreciate it. Though one might speak with the tongues of men, or of angels (He had already spoken of the speaking with tongues as a valuable gift of the Spirit), if he should speak with these tongues, and did not have love, it would avail him nothing. The gifts by themselves would count for nothing apart from the necessary character, but if these things were done from the motive of love, they would be acceptable to the Lord, they would then be pleasing to Him. If one should speak the truth at the cost of self-sacrifice, that would show that one had a large development of the fruits of the Spirit. The fruit of the Spirit in an individual manifests itself in an effort to do God's will.

Now then, all the way down, this class has been bearing fruit, more or less, and our Father is being glorified by bearing very much fruit. The fruit grows gradually. The next day after giving your heart to the Lord, you will not have a large bunch of grapes. So with the vine. It does not grow grapes at once. The fruit buds first appear, having small flowers, and very shortly these flowers pass away and the little grapes appear. You can see these under the microscope.

Afterwards they develop and grow. So it is with the Christian. This is the will of God, that we should develop these fruits the fruits of the Holy Spirit. What kind of fruits are these? Are these merely the distribution of tracts? That might be a sign of good fruit that you were willing to distribute tracts. Would preaching be an indication? That might be a very good sign. But the fruits of the Spirit are really more than these activities in the Lord's vineyard. They are those qualities of heart such as meekness, gentleness, etc.

God is more anxious to know how meek you are than the number of tracts you distribute. God is more anxious to know how much love you have. These two things really go together. Our service for the Lord depends very much upon the growth of the Spirit. At first you might have a feeling of pride. Must I give this tract? I cannot do that. Why not? You did not have enough meekness to go out with the tracts. As the meekness grows, the person will get out with the tracts. Not the tracts but the meekness is the thing that counts. You might be sick and not be able to give out tracts, but if you have the spirit of meekness and the desire to do it, God looks at that spirit or intention.

If we get these fruits of the Spirit well developed, such as meekness, gentleness, patience, brotherly kindness, love, they will cause us to be that much more active in God's work. But at first we may have the activity without the proper spirit. You may have noticed this perhaps in some of your earlier efforts to serve the truth. When I first began to see the truth, I would go up to some of my friends and hit them with the texts of Scripture, and would knock them down with the texts. When they got up, I noticed that they were not especially friendly. They would keep away from me so as not to get hit again. I said to myself, you are not getting the people to understand the Bible, they are simply shy of you, you have knocked them down; I must have this thing wrong; I must be doing it in a wrong way.

I then began to study how to do it better, how to speak the truth in love, instead of knocking them down, to just get them to sit down themselves. If one sits down and finds out where he is wrong, that one is getting a blessing. You have, no doubt, noticed that in your experiences the same as I did in mine. Sometimes it is the husband who has this wrong way, and sometimes it is the wife. They have asked me why they did not have better results. I have generally told them that it is because they did not handle the Scriptures right. If you jack people up they will feel sore about it. We are to avoid this knocking way, and this pin-pricking presentation of the truth, and we must try to cultivate the Lord's way and spirit. His spirit is love. And by the time your heart becomes imbued with the spirit of the truth, you will not be thinking about showing off, but will rather forget about your self and want to honor the Lord. If you are going to be somebody, God can't use you in His service. We must be nothing. Just as we often sing:

*“O, to be nothing, nothing,
Only to lie at His feet,
A broken and emptied vessel,
For the Master's use made meet.
Emptied, that He might fill me,
As forth to His service I go;
Broken, that so, unhindered,
His life through me might flow.”*

This is very important. The Apostle puts meekness first. If we have not that, we cannot make any progress. We must have meekness if we are to be used of the Lord. I don't know what may be your difficulties. We all have them imperfections. But we should fight a good fight with ourselves. You do not need to fight the Germans, Russians, French or English, but fight yourself. Get yourself into the full line with what the Lord wants, and the Lord, by His providence, will help you. You might be inclined to get discouraged. Brother Russell, said one of the friends to me, at the beginning of this year I was desirous of making a good start for the year. I said, which one of the fruits of the spirit do you think you lack most? I believe that I need patience more than any of the others. I need all the others, of course. So I prayed that the Lord might grant me a special blessing this year in the way of cultivating this quality of patience, and asked Him for those experiences that would help me to develop patience.

Well, he said, I had the queerest experience. For three months I was wondering why I was having more trials every day. It seemed that I was getting more trials on the line of patience than any one. I could not understand it. Finally, I thought of my prayer for patience, and I then began to see that the Lord was giving me these, so that I might cultivate the quality of patience. As soon as I saw that, it made me rejoice that I was having these trying experiences, in order that I might cultivate more patience. I then began to rejoice in all these various trials. It turned out very fine at last.

This is an illustration. It may be that your imperfection is along the line of meekness. He might try you along this line so as to show you how much you lack in that respect; or, it may be along the line of gentleness you being rude and not doing things in a kindly way. The Lord may be giving you these tests or trials in order to give you an opportunity of developing those fruits in your character. So with the tests of love for the brethren, for the family, for one's neighbors. The Lord might hide His face from you for a time to give you a test of love for Him. All these things work together for good to them that love God, to those who are called according to His purpose. That is not the world, you see. The world are not called according to His purpose. Those referred to are the ones who have heard and accepted His invitation. They are the ones who are called according to His purpose. Everything is working together for good to them. This does not mean the world, although He is making everything in the world get ready for Messiah's kingdom. For the present, it means the church, for they are the ones who have consecrated their lives to the Lord. They are the ones who are desirous above everything else of becoming copies of God's dear Son. With these then, the Lord is now dealing.

When does this matter begin? It began with their begetting. When will it end? It will end when they die. But can't one say, I have fought a good fight, and have finished my course, before one dies? Must we be wondering all the time? You may have this confidence. You have entered into a covenant with the Lord. You have given to Him your time, talents, strength, everything. He has given you in exchange for them the begetting of the Holy Spirit, his providential care, and His exceeding precious promises respecting the future. Are you still in this condition? Are you still seeking to walk in the footsteps of Jesus? Surely then, all is right for you. Do not be afraid. Do not say, I am afraid He will back down. If anyone backs down out of the contract, it will be you, not God. Faithful is He that calleth you, who also will do it. God is sure to carry out His part, so that the failure can be only on our part. Thus we may have confidence according to conditions. What am I to do? If our hearts condemn us not. If your heart condemns you, then it is not all right with you. For what does your heart condemn you? If you have not been living up to the full extent of your ability, then your heart condemns you for that. God is greater than your heart. So, what your heart condemns in you, God will condemn. What does that mean? It means that it is time for you to get right while you can.

If you are to have a share with the bride-class, you must be more zealous. You must be studying your character. You must see to it that you develop these various qualities. It would mean that you resolve that, I am going to see to it tonight; how much I have cultivated these fruits; the faith that goes with love, the patience that goes with love, the brotherly kindness that goes with love. (I want to refresh your memory, dear friends, and bring some influence to bear upon your hearts and lives that will be for your good and God's glory). You should say, throughout this day I am going to keep watch over my thoughts, what my hands are doing, how my time is spent, what my words are. That would be a terrible thing to have to be so careful about these things, wouldn't it, Brother Russell? Oh no; not if you have a proper love of the bridegroom, the proper appreciation of what He has done for you, and the proper appreciation of what He will still do for you. If you have not worked all this embroidery on your robe, you will be glad to take all these stitches with care. This is your wedding robe that you are preparing.

Every stitch tells me of the love of the one who gave me this robe. It tells me about the bridegroom, and the bride class. It all brings up thoughts about God, and about Christ, and about the glorious things He has in reservation for those who love Him love Him more than anything else. This is the class mentioned in our text when it says, "They that revered the Lord spake often one to another:" at the Conventions, in Dawn studies, prayer meetings, every Sunday for worship; they want the Watch Tower, they love to study the Studies in the Scriptures, and know all the various parts of the plan; they observe the daily Manna texts: that is the way they will do. They that reverence the Lord speak often one to another. What of it? "And the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before Him for them that feared (reverenced) the Lord and thought on His name.

"What does He hear when He comes into your meeting? Did he hear you say anything proud or boastful; anything slanderous or unkind; talking about other people's business? Did He see you study His Word, and desire to develop the fruits of the Spirit? Then be glad and rejoice. You have that much evidence that you are on the Lord's side. And if you are seeking in everything to do His will, you have the full assurance of faith. Continue in that way and you are sure to get the prize. If you will continue that way, it is absolutely sure that you will get the prize. God has not required anything from you that is impossible. Just do to the best of your ability what you have agreed to do, with that full assurance of faith, the fine needle work on the embroidery of your wedding garment, and this fellowship with the Lord's people that is a very happy condition. No one else is in such a good condition.

Some have their lodges, various kinds of meetings and socials, but they are not very deep and heart-satisfying. They are pretty empty things. They are froth and foam. We have the best there is those that speak often one to another. You will remember the Apostle Paul in speaking to us, says, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more as ye see the day approaching." So much the more. Of course, you can go to an extreme in attending meetings, but we are not likely to go to an extreme. You have duties at home toward your families and you are not to neglect these, but, having these special privileges, you are to accept them, and thus grow strong in the spirit.

When the Lord hearkened and heard, what did He do? A book of remembrance was written before him. It is not the thought that God had to write down so as not to forget, but it gives us the thought that He does not forget, and that He loves that class. He loves the world with a broad, sympathetic love, but He has a special love for the church, those who have consecrated themselves to Him at the present time. "The Father Himself loveth you," and in one of the Psalms, it is written that we are as dear to Him as the apple of His eye. Think how carefully you would guard your eyes. If anything is going to hurt them He will take care of it. That is a beautiful thought. "They that revered the Lord, spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened, and a book of remembrance was kept of those that thought on His name." In olden times the name stood for character more than it does now. Now we give names too often at random. Too many times we give the name meaning King, or meaning Noble one, to a person who may be very ignoble. But in olden times they were very particular to attach names to the one to whom it would fit. They called His name Jesus because it was He that would save His people from their sins.

GOD'S NAME

What does it stand for? It stands for all that great character of God. Not very many people think about the character of God. Why not? Because the religious teachers have described His character in such a way as to make it very undesirable to think much about Him. They have the thought that He is going to punish people so much, that the name Jehovah stands for one who is to be feared for His great power in throwing them over to the devil, rather than one who is to be loved because of His great love for all His people. But with His dear children, this is not so. They love God and study about His name and character. They think about His care for them. They are trying to be like their Father in heaven. And He is showing to them His character more and more.

Some of the lengths and breadths, and heights and depths of His love divine is being shown to this class, and they are wanting to know more of His character all the time, and consequently are trying to learn more of His plan. In that way we are learning more about His character by knowing more about His plan. When we see the plan of God for the church, and for the world, we are then thinking about His character. So, by and by, the world will be made to know about this great plan. The light of the knowledge of the glory of God will fill the whole world. We get this knowledge of Jehovah's character beforehand. Because in coming into the family of God we have entered the school of Christ, and He is teaching us and showing us these things, and they are written in the Bible for our admonition upon whom the ends of the ages have come, in order that by knowing Him in the full sense we may be ready for everlasting life.

What does the Lord think of this class? "They shall be Mine saith the Lord in that day when I make up my jewels" Here is the possessive case. "Mine" saith the Lord. I have taken a long time to select them and care for them and husband them as a vine that they might bear much fruit. Like one who cares about precious jewels, he takes care that no one shall steal them. So with the Lord. They shall be Mine, saith the Lord, in that day when I make up my jewels. I will make them up. I will care for them. How will He make them up? This is the picture. The one who handles jewels first sees that they are properly polished, but they would not look well except they were mounted. The mounting has much to do with the beauty of the jewels. God is now cutting these jewels. Jesus was the first Great Jewel. The twelve Apostles were twelve large jewels, fine grained and beautifully cut. Some small, and some large ones, have been cut all the way down during the Gospel age. Now, we have this privilege of being jewels. God is going to mount them presently. He is going to make of them a diadem, set in gold, symbolizing divine nature, the mounting is to be done in the resurrection. It will give them the proper setting in the divine nature.

The resurrection work is the work of mounting. According to the statement of the prophet Isaiah, "Thou shalt also be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God." Is He going to wear it? That is what people generally do with them. Will God wear them? Will God do this? Oh no; we could not add to the charms of God's perfection at all. He needs no diadem of any kind to glorify Him. Ye shall be a royal diadem in the hand of our God. We will be in His hand. We will be shown to the angels, and to men, as a piece of fine work that God has done. He did not use force about it either. These are some of the poor daughters and sons of Adam. See what I have made of them, and in doing so, God did not pull, or push them, but simply directed them by the spirit, the exceeding great and precious promises. Promises. No driving nor throwing. Just the promises. Some did not care for the promises, and consequently did not come. What about them? They can stay away. God is looking for those who want to come, just as a piece of steel is attracted to the magnet.

According to the best knowledge we have, the knowledge of God's word, we have now come down to the close. The bride will soon be complete. Today? I don't know. Next month? I don't know. Many months? I cannot tell. "God kindly veils mine eyes." Don't you wish you could tell No; the flesh would say that. The spirit says, I do not want to know anything that God does not wish me to know. I am sure I am better off without the knowledge, since it has not pleased Him to give it. If it had been better to have this knowledge, He would have given it.

We have seen that Elijah is a type of the gospel church. Elijah's experiences correspond with those of the church in many ways. Read the second volume on this. We have pointed out there wherein Elijah may be viewed as the type of the church. You remember, at the close of Elijah's experiences God sent him to this place, to that place, and to the other place, and then was the time when He would take up Elijah, but God did not take him up at any of these places. So God sent us to look at 1875, and then to 1881 as a specially marked time in His great plan. He then sent us to look at the close of Gentile times, but He did not say that we would be taken up at that time.

So it was with Elijah. He sent him here, there and beyond, but God did not take him at any of these places. So God has not taken us at any of these places. We do not know where we are now. He has not given us any other time. In the case of Elijah and Elisha, we read, "And it came to pass, AS THEY STILL WENT ON, and talked, that, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven." It was while they were still going on that they were separated by a chariot of fire. The Elijah class is the bride class, and the chariot of fire is a symbol of trouble. Fire is always a symbol of trouble. This does not look like being carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease. It is more like a bed of thorns. I don't want to alarm anybody. I trust you will not have any alarm in connection with anything that the Lord has given. That Char iot is something that will come very suddenly. It will catch away the elect class, leaving the non-elect class in the church like Elisha. Elisha was left and Elijah was taken, and so, some fiery experiences will come upon those who will be taken. I am not prophesying. I am a poor guesser. As far as I can understand what is written, I am pleased to talk about it, but when I don't understand, I shall just wait awhile. A large bump of imagination may cause us to make God's Word mean most anything.

But we are content to wait. Whenever God has anything to say, I believe He will make it so clear and so plain that we will have no difficulty in knowing about it. But no prophecy is understood very long before its fulfillment. Hardly any prophecies were understood until they were fulfilled. Jesus told His disciples about the lifting up of the serpent in the wilderness, but they did not understand it until after His resurrection. It was after He appeared and explained that it behooved the Son of man to suffer, before they could begin to understand. It was after its fulfillment that they were able to understand. So, I think it will be with us. The Lord does not wish us to see very long in advance, but when the chariot comes, I hope we may be in it. I think it means great tribulation. The whirlwind means what? Not anything good. It generally signifies trouble of some kind. We are having a great whirlwind now. Whether that one will take us up, or not, I don't know. It may be. I don't know. God kindly veils mine eyes. So on we go, not knowing, not wishing to know what God does not wish us to know, but content that Our Father who has lead us these years, will lead us still.

And thus, my dear brethren, I trust our experience will go on favorably for us and prepare us for what is coming. So far as I can observe, God's people are being well exercised by their experiences. I feel God is favoring me in enabling me to do some more work on the robe, and to receive some more polishing. We will leave it all in God's hands. May He do with us what seemeth to Him best.

St. Paul Enterprise, November 5, 1915

TWELVE TRIBES OF SPIRITUAL ISRAEL

St. Louis, Mo., October 31. Pastor Russell gave a discourse here today of intense interest. His text was, "I heard the number of them that were sealed; and there were sealed an hundred and forty and four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel." (Rev. 7:4) He said in part:

Our Lord Jesus, before He came into the world, was the Son of God on the Heavenly plane, the Only Begotten of the Father Jehovah's only direct creation. (Col. 1:15; Rev. 3:14) When in the flesh, He was still God's well-beloved Son. This is the One who when on earth as a man gave Himself in consecration to do the Father's will, even at the cost of His own life, that He might purchase back from death the fallen human race. For this, the Father highly rewarded Him, by raising Him from the dead a Divine Being. Our Lord has had three natures, being now a partaker of the nature of Jehovah the Divine. "Him hath God supremely exalted, and given Him a name above every name. Phil. 2:9-11

This perfect obedience on the part of our Lord Jesus was the basis, then, on which Jehovah God raised Him to His present high position. God might have let Him take at once His power as King of kings and Lord of lords, and begin His great work of blessing mankind. But God's plan was different. In His Purpose the Father not only foreknew the Lord Jesus for this work, but foreknew also that certain ones chosen from the human family would gladly become fellow-sufferers with Jesus that they might be fellow-sharers in His glory to follow. How could God arrange this? The Answer--is that they may have a part in this arrangement by marriage, by becoming united to Christ Jesus as His Bride, His Body, which is to be composed of 144,000 members.

HOW THESE ARE OF THE TRIBES OF ISRAEL

St. John the Revelator tells about this 144,000 12,000 from each tribe of Israel. How does the Church, the Body of Christ, come to be of the twelve tribes of Israel? In this way: God laid out the entire program of the Gospel Age on the Jewish basis. Provision was made for choosing the total number of the Bride class out of Natural Israel 12,000 out of each of the twelve tribes. God foreknew, however, that fleshly Israel as a nation would not receive Jesus as Messiah, and that those who would receive Him would be only a small remnant from all the tribes. But the elect Church was to number 144,000 12,000 from each tribe.

Of those of Fleshly Israel who came into the Gospel Church we do not know the proportion from each of the tribes. All twelve tribes were represented in Palestine when our Lord Jesus came, though chiefly Judah and Benjamin. During the Jewish Harvest there were approximately 25,000 gathered to the Lord from Palestine and adjacent countries an average of a little over 2000 from each tribe. So there was not nearly the required number. Therefore, after the close of the 70 symbolic weeks of favor (Dan. 9:24) promised to the Jews, God turned to the Gentiles, to fill up the number lacking from the various tribes. (Acts 13:46) When we were received into Christ, the question was, Where would we be put? We do not know, however, where the Lord has put us; some will be in one tribe, and some in another, as God wills. But His decision will satisfy us.

ANOTHER COMPANY--A GREAT MULTITUDE

After we are told about these 144,000 from the twelve tribes who are to be of the Very Elect, who are to stand with Christ on Mount Zion (Rev. 7:1-8; 14:1-5), and who only will be able to sing the song of Moses and the Lamb, mention is made of a much larger company. This Great Company say that they will never deny God's name or His cause. But they have not been living in harmony with their vows. Therefore they will not receive the reward coming to those who are ready to meet their Lord at any moment, those whose lamps are trimmed and burning.

This unfaithful class are the ones mentioned by the Revelator as having soiled their garments those who have failed to keep "unspotted from the world." He says, "I looked, and behold, a great multitude, whose number no man knows, of all nations and kindreds and people and tongues; and they stood before the Throne and before the Lamb." (Rev. 7:9-14) These are the Spiritual Israelites who are not of the priestly family. As in Natural Israel the Levites were far more numerous than the priests, so in Spiritual Israel.

The Angel said to St. John, "Who are these, and whence came they?" He replied, "Sir, thou knowest." So the angel said, "These are they who have come up out of the great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." Nothing but the blood of Jesus will ever take away these sins. They must all be cleansed in "a Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation." This class will have their portion with the hypocrites," because they have failed to live up to their covenant with God. They hesitate to step forward boldly and say, "I am striving to be a footstep follower of the Lord Jesus Christ."

But here is our opportunity to take a stand before the world and to lift up the banner of the Lord. Let the people know where you stand! If you say, "Of course I am religious, but I do not wish to be extreme," then your worldly acquaintances will say, "That is right. Don't be extreme; come in and have a game of cards!" Such Christians get themselves into trouble at once.

Some of this class become so besmirched that they plunge into willful deliberate sin. This course would merit the Second Death, so far as we understand the Word of God. But others say, "I will never go deliberately into sin. I am no saint, I know; but I will never deny the Lord; I will never deny the principles of righteousness." There is considerable good character manifested here, even though that person is not living up to the covenant made with God. Such are still loyal at heart. Some of them have been weak through fear of loss of worldly favor, or have been hindered by the cares of this life. This is the class that will be in the second company, the Great Company.

HOW THEY LOST THEIR CROWNS

You ask, "How do they get into such a condition?" We answer, There are various ways. The following illustrates one of these: Suppose you as a child of God should get angry, should speak a bitter word. Afterwards you felt that this was something against you. You hastened to the Throne of Grace and said, "O Lord, forgive! Cleanse me from my iniquity, and I will never do this again!" Perhaps a day or two afterward you made the same mistake; and you felt, oh, so abashed. It was more difficult to go to the Mercy-Seat the second time; but you went and said, "Lord, I am so ashamed, so sorry! I will try not to do this again!" But perhaps in a week, or perhaps in an hour or two, you had repeated the transgression. You were almost discouraged. You feared to go to the Lord. When you were preparing to retire at night, and the time had come for reviewing the events of the day, you said to yourself, "I cannot go to the Lord tonight, and own that I have failed again!"

You succeed in putting the matter off, but you are anxious. You try to get it out of your mind. The next morning you go about your duties, but you have not made the matter right with God. During the day something happens that causes you again to transgress. In distress you say, "I will not think about it. Everybody commits sins. There may be some who can overcome, but I cannot. There is no use to try." So it goes on, the trespasses accumulating. From time to time you offer prayer; but it is largely a formality. If this condition of things is not rectified by the proper steps, you will certainly lose your Crown and go into great tribulation.

All down the Gospel Age there have been some of this class; but the Revelator pictures those now living. "Judgment must begin at the House of God" (1 Pet. 4:17); and these slothful ones must Answer--for their unfaithfulness. But after their sore chastisement in the coming great trouble, they will realize that it has worked good to them, and will say, "Let us be glad and rejoice. Let us glorify God that we were finally delivered. We have not been faithful; we have allowed things to hold us back. But now the Marriage of the Lamb has taken place. Our robes have been cleansed; and we are invited to the Marriage Supper, even though we have missed being of the Bride class. What a pity that we did not yield ourselves up wholly to the Lord;" See Rev. 19:6-9.

NOT MANY WEALTHY, GREAT OR WISE CALLED

God's faithful ones love to meet together and encourage one another in the good way. The association of the Lord's true people is like a bed of coals. One coal will not keep warm alone; but when many coals are brought together, each warms the others. Therefore the Apostle exhorts, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together,... and so much the more as ye see the Day approaching." Heb. 10:25

It is not money that draws us together. There is not a millionaire amongst the saints, so far as we know. Whoever wishes to get into a club of millionaires will not find it in the Church of Christ.. The true Church are not as a rule wealthy, nor are they as a class the most learned, the most talented, the most refined, to be found. If these things are what you are seeking in the Church of Christ, then you are looking in the wrong place. On the other hand, whoever is ashamed of the brethren of Christ is accounted as ashamed of Him.

We are not to be ashamed of the brethren of Christ or of His Truth. Our Lord says, "Whosoever shall be ashamed of Me and of My Word, of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed, when He shall come in His own glory and His Father's." (Luke 9:26) In other words, I will not have him in the Bride class. That Great Company is represented as eventually getting the palms of victory and as serving God in His Temple. But so far as you and I are concerned, I trust that we are looking for something better the Crown of Glory immortality. The class that will receive this great exaltation with Christ is the class that "follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth."

HE COMETH NOW TO REIGN

In Psa. 45:3, 4, the Psalmist tells us of the majesty of our Lord Jesus when He comes to reign on earth. "Gird Thy Sword upon Thy thigh, O most Mighty." Our Lord here girds on His Sword, that with it He should smite the nations. During all these eighteen hundred years He has not until now girded on this Sword. But now the time has arrived. The present great war is the beginning of the work of disintegration. In this war we see a general spirit of partisanship, even amongst professed Christian people. We who are members of the Bride of Christ are to forget that we are British or German or French, etc. We are to be rid of all bias and false expectation, and thus be better able to see God's view of the whole matter.

The Lord wishes to have a judicial class. We are preparing to be the judges of the world. "Know ye not that the saints are to judge the world?" (1 Cor. 6:2) But we are not to attempt to be judges now. We must not make that mistake. We see enough of this war to know that, like all other wars, it is not of God, but of the Devil. We see that selfishness is at the bottom.

This war has been brewing for the past forty years. Each nation has determined to have, if possible, what each considers its rights upon the sea. Each nation has determined that rival nations shall not have the supremacy. Jealousy and selfishness were rampant. When the expense of naval and military armament became too great to be longer borne, and there was imminent danger that the people would revolt, the rulers said, "There must be war" not expecting so much of it.

God is permitting the nations to take charge of the situation, but He is overruling all to the accomplishment of His own glorious purposes. In this war He will permit the world to try their power and to come to the full end of their resources. God is saying, in substance, "I have every thing ready. By the time that these nations have used each other up, My Kingdom, that I have so long promised, will take control. These nations can never bless the world. I will let all the peoples of the earth see how foolish their plans have been. Hitherto I have held back the winds of strife; but now I am letting them loose; for I am ready to bring in the blessings of My Kingdom." Dan. 2:44

CITIZENS OF THE HEAVENLY KINGDOM

It would be very improper for us as Christians to have any prejudice one way or the other. We are to love all mankind. God's true people are waiting to bless all the world. We do not wish to see any one injured; we are sorry that they do not know better than to injure and destroy one another as they are doing. This spirit of selfishness which has prompted the war is spreading all over the world this antagonism, this striving for me and mine. What has the Spirit of the Lord to do with such selfishness? We are to remember that we belong to the Lord and to His Kingdom. If the whole world could get the spirit of our Master, what a changed world it would be! If all the churches in Europe had been teaching the principles of the Word of God, there would be no war. If all were Christians, there would be no soldiers and nobody killed.

Over there in Europe the people claim to be practically all Christians. The Germans claim to be ninety-five per cent Christians; the British make the same claim. Italy is in the lead. It counts in all its people as Christians. These Christian-Italians have been studying the matter of going into this war, have been estimating how many would be killed and how much material advantage could be obtained by entering the war or by remaining out. For months they balanced it up and down. There they were, willing to barter the lives of millions of their own people and of others in order to get a little larger strip of territory under their king. How pitiable are such conditions!

“What manner of persons ought we (true Christians) to be!” We should be the peacemakers of the world. Humanity are all deluded by their wrong doctrines. If they could see things properly, they would speedily bring this war to a conclusion. The Lutheran Church has been teaching the Germans and the Swedes, and the Church of England has been teaching the British, each in its place, that their kingdom is the Kingdom of God. Now they are in God’s holy war. (?) We are sorry. This is all that we can say. The war is a shameful spectacle. We whose eyes of understanding are opened know that all these earthly governments will meet with disaster, with ruin.

Let us, then, as true disciples of Christ, help each other. Let us all be peacemakers and point others to the Kingdom of God’s dear Son, which is soon to be inaugurated upon the ruins of the present evil order, and which will prove to be “the desire of all nations.” Then wars and all other calamities will be made to cease forever; for nothing will be permitted to hurt or destroy in all God’s holy Kingdom. Isa. 11:9

GOD'S PERFECT POISE IN JUSTICE AND LOVE

MERCY IS THE OUTWARD EXPRESSION OF LOVE

New York City, November 7 Pastor Russell delivered a forceful address at the New York City Temple today, W. 63rd Street, near Broadway. His text was, "Mercy rejoiceth against judgment." (Jas. 2:13). He spoke as follows:

Our text signifies that love has gained a victory over Justice; for Mercy is merely an outward expression of Love. Let us reason as to the way in which Divine Mercy, or Love, gains the victory over Divine Justice. In so doing, I believe that we shall be learning something as to our proper attitude; for we should copy God's character. We should study His methods, His ways, that we may have Heavenly wisdom. When, therefore, we see how God's Love gains the victory over His Justice, we shall see how it should be with us, in order that we may become like Him.

In considering Divine Love and Divine Justice, we are to remember that God is perfect in all His attributes. Both His Justice and His Love are perfect. But inasmuch as these are inherent, invisible qualities of the Divine Nature, we could not study them unless they were manifested. Thus far they have been manifested only to a faithful few. It is the manifestation of these qualities that especially interests us. Let us note how these attributes manifest themselves, that we may thus learn valuable lessons.

JUSTICE THE FOUNDATION OF GOD'S THRONE

Undoubtedly there is no lesson that the people of God need to learn more than this particular one of the relationship of justice to love, in order to know how to exercise these qualities as God exercises the, and yet with some variations; for He has some rights which we do not possess. We see that God's Love operated in the very beginning, when He created His Son to be His Logos. His Love was afterwards seen in His creation of the angels and men, in His own image. Then we see that the fall of our race brought into operation Divine Justice; for it was Justice which decreed that man, because of his disobedience, should not live.

"Dying, thou shalt die," was the fiat of Divine Justice. (Gen. 2:17) When Justice decreed that death must result from transgression, Divine Love agreed that the sentence was altogether proper, not only because it is right for God to be just and in harmony with His own Law, but also because it would not be good for man to live everlastingly in a fallen condition.

If God had permitted man to live on in imperfection, we can scarcely imagine the tremendous power he would have had by this time. As it is, we see that some of our race in three score and ten years are able to cultivate such qualities of mind and character as to give them ascendancy over their fellows; and were they allowed to live on indefinitely in sin, they would undoubtedly bring all others into captivity to themselves. Except man should exercise the attributes of his character in harmony with the Divine character, he should not be permitted to live, because of the great injury which he would do to others. Thus, in the Divine arrangement, we see Love agreeing with Justice that sinful man should die.

WHY GOD PERMITTED SIN

Again, when our race came under the death sentence, God might have cut us off more quickly than He did had He not in mind the very Plan of which we are now learning the Divine Plan of the Ages. (Eph. 3:11, Diaglott.) Man was to learn certain lessons during the present life, in order that he might profit by them in the future life. We see, then, that God has arranged a very reasonable and loving way in dealing with the sinner race. In His wonderful Purpose He planned to redeem man from this death condition, and to restore the race in due time.

All the experienced of the present life will have a bearing upon the members of the fallen race during the period of their restoration, in the incoming Age. God planned that mankind should have experiences of pain and death, thus to learn the needful lessons. For six thousand years the world has been getting its education along the lines of sin lessons as to what a terrible thing sin is, how hard it is to control, how ruinous are its effects, how hardening of the heart and that final death will inevitably result from its continued practice. Thus twenty billions of our race have had a great schooling time during the past six thousand years.

LOVE PLANS MAN'S REDEMPTION

As we study the matter, we can see great wisdom in God's course. Love was not indifferent, though for a time God could not show man His interest. Love had beforehand arranged a Plan whereby redemption would come, whereby Love would triumph over Justice. In God's due time a purchase-price for man would be given. Then, after Justice should reign for six Thousand years, during which the world would learn its needed lessons with respect to the heinousness of sin in all its manifold forms, redeeming Love should become restoring Love, calling mankind forth from the tomb, during the thousand years' Reign of the One who purchased them.

So ultimately, when death and hell (the grave) shall have delivered up all that are in them, and when the curse of death shall be no more, Love will have triumphed over Justice. Thus we read, “O Death, where is thy sting? O Grave, where is thy victory?” “Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!” I Cor. 15:55, 57

This is one of the most wonderful things that we see in the Bible the more wonderful as we understand it the more. God always maintains His Justice, and He always maintains His Love; and we are blessed by both. Justice, having triumphed over the world, for six thousand years, has brought our race down to Sheol, Hades the tomb. Love in the meantime, began to operate, though in harmony with Justice; and it has given the great sacrifice of Jesus, and has arranged that at the time of the Second Advent of Christ, and through His Reign of a thousand years, He shall awaken all humanity from the sleep of death.

HOW ONE COULD PURCHASE A RACE

We can thus see in the Bible what a great equalization, or balance, God has arranged. Since twenty thousand millions of souls have sinned, it would, in any other way than God’s way, have required twenty thousand million redeemers. But when we see how God is operating, we wonder at His arrangement He provided that only one man should be condemned to death, and that through this one man condemnation should come upon all men while still in his loins. Thus one man could pay the penalty for all. “For since by man (Adam) came death, by man (Jesus) comes the resurrection of the dead.” (1 Cor. 15:21) One man was a sinner; One man was the Redeemer.

Beautiful! We never heard of anything like this except in God’s Plan. Think of a great Plan, covering six thousand years, in which the salvation of twenty billions of human creatures is involved, and yet all so easily and perfectly poised! Justice will never be cheated out of its dues; yet Love gains the victory and provides the way out of the difficulty, and does this at the expense of the One through whom the whole Plan is consummated our blessed Lord Jesus.

The penalty resting upon mankind was met by the sacrifice of Jesus’ life. But is that not unjust? On no! the Bible assures us that God stated the proposition beforehand to the Son, and that the Son was in full agreement with it not the Man Jesus, but the Logos, the Word, the Messenger Michael, the Godlike One. The proposition was made to Him that by the purchase of the whole race of man through His sacrifice He might obtain the honor and glory of Messiah the opportunity of delivering and blessing the thousands of millions of humanity who had been condemned to death in Adam. And then, what more? Oh, much more! that He should be supremely exalted, even to the Divine nature, for all eternity far above angels, principalities, powers and every name that is named. (Phil. 2:3-11) ALL THIS IS THE GREAT TRIUMPH OF LOVE OVER JUSTICE. While Justice remains forever inviolate, yet Love is the victor. Mercy rejoiceth against Judgement Justice.

GOD'S WONDERFUL PLAN OF THE AGES

When we see the Bible teaching concerning the Divine Plan, it gives us a confidence in the Bible that we can get from no other quarter. It is the study of the Bible from the outside, by those who try to tear it into shreds, and the employment of their brains against the Bible, that proves the professors of our day the worst of all times. Only when we perceive from the inside can we see the strength of the Bible. No human mind ever originated such a Plan. It is surely Divine, surely Biblical. We did not discover it, but it was shown to the faithful "in due time."

We know that this great Plan is of God; and the Book that contains such a wonderful Message is surely the Word of God. It must be that those "holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." The Spirit of God indited this wonderful Message. The many men, in various times and places, who uttered the words did not know what they meant. The understanding was not then due. But their words constitute a harmonious whole, and "were written for our instruction, upon whom the ends of the ages have come." 1 Pet. 1:10-12; 1 Cor. 10:11; Rom. 15:4

Nor could we understand their words until we received the begetting of the Holy Spirit with its consequent enlightenment. This brought these things to our attention in God's due time, and enabled us to understand their meaning. So the Apostle Paul writes to some, "After that ye were illuminated, ye endured." Heb. 10:32,33. We now understand what it means to be illuminated. The illumination is the work of the Holy Spirit, which we received at the time of our consecration unto death. This illumination of the Church had its beginning at Pentecost. Up to that time the Spirit had not been given. John 7:39

The Church is a special class, called out in advance of the world. the early Church had to wait until Jesus had finished His sacrifice for sin, had ascended up on High as the great High Priest, to appear in the presence of God for us (the Church, not yet for the world), to sprinkle the blood of His sacrifice upon the Mercy-Seat on our behalf, and had become the Advocate of those who would follow in His steps. (Heb. 9:24) Having made satisfaction for the sins of the consecrated, He imputed His own merit to them, thereby making them acceptable to the Father. Not until then could they receive the begetting of the Holy Spirit. Ever since that time the Holy Spirit has been with the Church, begetting each one who came into this class.

With this begetting comes illumination. We are then sons of God. Not only does this illumination enable us to understand things previously hidden from our eyes, but thereafter all the Word of God becomes food to us, that thereby we may grow in grace, in knowledge, in justice, in love, in all qualities of the Divine character, that thus we may become more like our Father who is in Heaven.

DELIVERANCE OF THE WORLD

Having, then, seen how Divine Justice has operated up till now for the future blessing of mankind, we look further, and see that Divine Mercy is now about to gain a great victory of the whole world. As soon as the Church is glorified, the merit of the Redeemer is to be applied for all the human race. But it will require the entire thousand years of Messiah's Reign before Mercy will have fully triumphed over Justice. We now perceive what Love will be doing for the world throughout those thousand years. It will be awakening mankind from death and lifting them up from degradation to holiness and life.

This will all come through the Lord Jesus Christ, who will be God's Agent., the Agent of Justice and of Love. The faithful Church will be associated with Him in all His Kingdom glory and honor. In order that we may be of this class, not only must we be begotten by the Spirit of God, but we must also manifest the fruits of that Spirit, we must be quickened by it. then in the First Resurrection we shall be born of the Spirit and shall also share with our Lord this work of Love for all mankind, and shall also share His glory forever. At the conclusion of the Millennial Reign this glorious work of Divine Love will have been accomplished. Through all the outworkings of the wonderful Plan, the principles of absolute Justice and absolute Love will be observed, operating in full harmony. In what manner will God's Justice operate during the next Age toward mankind? may be asked. Some have difficulty in seeing how the world in the future will have their sins forgiven. Will God not hold against the world something for wrongs committed in this life? Will the murderer have the same opportunity as those who have been more noble in their lives? How will Justice then be represented?

We believe that God's dealings will be in full harmony with Justice; that while love will be especially operative or manifest during the Millennial Age, yet Justice will never be violated. Will mankind in the future, then be punished for their sins in the present life? Yes, and no. They will not be punished in the sense of being held legally accountable for sins of the past; for this would nullify the word which Christ accomplished in His death in providing satisfaction for Adamic sin. Christ having made satisfaction for the sins of Believers, this class are no longer legally responsible for them. the same principle will operate with the world in the future.

HOW JUSTICE OPERATES

For the present we will consider the Church of Christ. Suppose one had lived in such a way as to have gotten himself into a bad condition of body and mind or morals. These things will be more or less as a penalty upon him after he has become a Christian. Although God has forgiven his sins and cleansed him from all unrighteousness, nevertheless such a one will have in his body or in his mind certain natural penalties resulting from his previous sinful course. If he had lived a sinful life for many years, the evil would be so much the more deeply entrenched; and he will have all the greater fight to overcome these deeply embedded tendencies to sin. One who has lived a conscientious, moral life will have just that much less to overcome.

If through evil thoughts or evil deeds the mind of that person has become poisoned, he may have to battle all his life against the seeds of sin, not in the way of direct punishment for his wrongdoing, but through natural law; for the New Creature is to be developed while tabernacling in the flesh wherein the evil seeds have been sown. It is like a piece of land which has long been given over to weeds, in which case the roots would have become deeply entrenched in the soil. This land may afterward be changed into a wheat-field; but we know from experience that the weeds will be there also, and that the wheat will not flourish so readily, because of this fact.

It is even so with our hearts and our bodies. After we have given them to the Lord the fleshly tendencies are still there. God has accepted us as New Creatures; His grace has covered our sins; and they are no longer chargeable to us. But whoever has had a larger planting of sin in his former life may have to his dying day a great battle against these poisonous weeds; and that will be a proper and natural punishment for his past course. So it will be in the future. The world will get retribution for their sins, just as we do for ours, and it will take many years to get entirely free from the effects of sin.

St. Paul Enterprise, November 19, 1915

GREAT DAY OF GOD HAS ALREADY BEGUN

WE WHO KNOW THIS SHOULD WALK WORTHY OF OUR GREAT VOCATION

Utica, N. Y., November 14 Pastor Russell gave a helpful and impressive discourse here today. He spoke as follows:

My text, dear friends, is from the words of the Apostle Peter: "Seeing, then, that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the Day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?" (2 Pet. 3:11, 12) The marginal reading omits the word "unto" after the word "hasting." The word "unto" was supplied by the translators in an endeavor to make the rendering clear. The marginal rendering does not give the right thought, evidently; for we could not hasten the Day of the Lord. God's Plan was fixed before the foundation of the world. In this passage the phrase, "hastening the preparation for the Day of God," more nearly gives the Apostle's thought than either of the other translations.

We can hasten our preparation for the wonderful things coming, but we cannot hasten the Day. Indeed, the fact that the marvelous things God has foretold are now beginning to come to pass demonstrates that the Day of the Lord is now present. It is very necessary to realize what manner of persons we should be and then to be such persons. We should be saints, faithful to the Lord in all things. We should give as much of our time as possible to the perfecting of ourselves and to the building up of one another in the most holy faith. We should be ensamples "in all holy conversation and godliness."

This word "conversation" in the old English includes the sum-total of holy living our words, our acts, our general conduct. It has thus in the Scriptures a wider meaning than is given it today. St. Peter knew that God's people would be helped by the thought that the great Day of the Lord was at hand, so he says, in view of this, "Seeing that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be?" Then how paltry all the things of "this present evil world" should appear to us who see the disintegration of the Present Order already under way!

What were the things to be dissolved? The Apostle had just been specifying them—"The heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat; the earth also, and the things that are therein, shall be burned up." Yet God's people, as the Apostle says, "look for a new heavens and a new earth.” He is not speaking of literal heavens, but the symbolic heavens the ecclesiastical heavens, the present church organizations. The Prophet Zephaniah also speaks of this same great burning time of the Day of the Lord. Zeph. 1:14-18; 3:8, 9

THE ONLY TRUE BASIS OF PEACE

Even now the present heavens, the nominal church systems, are in great commotion, in much distress. Preachers and people are wondering what these things mean that are now taking place. They have been telling everybody that the world is getting better, that all will soon be converted through the churches. They have been saying, “Peace! Peace!” but instead of peaceful conditions have come riot and war. (Jer. 6:14-19) There has been no real basis for peace. Christians who are hearkening to God’s Word are the only ones who have a real basis for peace. In the Lord’s Word and in the Lord’s spirit we have the things that make for peace. “Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God.” “Blessed are they that are persecuted for righteousness’ sake; for theirs is the Kingdom of heaven.”

With the world the disposition is, “See that nobody gets the better of you. Fight your own battles.” Life is a battle for all mankind. Some fight for a living, and others in more open warfare. All are more or less contentious to have the best they can get. But the true Christian’s fight is in his own body principally against selfishness, a desire to have his own way, to gratify his own natural inclinations. God is not selecting a class different from people in general in this respect. On the contrary, not many great, learned, noble, wise, has God chosen, but chiefly “the poor of this world, rich in faith.” This fact leaves us no room for pride.

We find that we have something to contend with in this natural meanness of our fallen nature, while the world imagine that they have something to be proud of. “No one shall get ahead of me if I can help it!” is their sentiment. The Lord gives His children different instruction, but not instruction merely; for if that were all, it would be very much harder for us than it is. He gives us a noble incentive and the necessary assistance all along the way. God has set before us a great prize; some of us have seen its glory and are running for it. What is this prize? Oh, glory, honor, immortality, joint-heirship with Christ in the Heavenly Kingdom, riches such as no earthly being ever dreamed of!

He not only has shown us these things but has given us the opportunity of obtaining them.

HEAVENLY RICHES INCOMPARABLE

We see many people who hope some day to be very rich. Now, the Lord offers everyone of us who has the hearing ear something beside which a million dollars or many millions would be as nothing, absolutely insignificant. To those who become His children He offers riches of grace, of life, of glory and exaltation far above angels, cherubim or seraphim, and still farther above humanity; and these riches to be eternal. Of this we are sure; we have the Lord's Word for it many places. The Lord through the Apostle Peter said, you remember, that by the exceeding great and precious promises He had given us we might be made partakers of the Divine nature. (2 Pet. 1:4) Why did He make us this wonderful offer? Because of His love for us and because He has an infinite purpose to be outworked. We are to be transformed, made New Creatures, meet to be partakers of our glorious inheritance.

As St. Paul says, "All things are yours." The whole world would be insignificant in comparison with the Lord's rich promises to those who follow Jesus in the narrow way. Some live and toil for forty and fifty years to accumulate a fortune, and then generally die before they get much besides worry and care out of it; and at best it is all very disappointing. But God has promised to give His children everlasting life on the very highest plane, and glory, honor and joy beyond compare. How rich we feel who have accepted God's great offer and are complying with His terms! Let others contend about these other things if they will. Why should we waste any time quarreling over earthly baubles?

Our future is all dependent upon our becoming copies of God's dear Son, our Lord Jesus Christ. We would surely lose the prize if we were to set our affections on earthly things. "Set your affection on things Above, not on things on earth." Are your affections going to home and business, to cats, dogs and canary birds, or to the things Above? Do you think chiefly of these earthly things, and then when in prayer try to turn your affections Above again? We shall not thus succeed in making our calling and election sure.

When the Master invited the Apostles, Peter, James and John up into the mountains with Him, where He was transfigured, they did not wish ever to go down again. Peter asked permission to build tabernacles there. So when some brethren get to a very uplifting meeting or convention of believers they desire to stay. They think they could be certain of spiritual victory in such surroundings. But we cannot always remain up on the mountain-top. We must return to the valley below for our testing, our proving and our crystallization of character and for service for God.

The Apostle in our text calls attention to the fact that we not only have the Heavenly things, far better and grander than the earthly things, but also that the Present Order is to be dissolved, as we have seen. Let us not become entangled with the things of this world. One might gain a high office, he might get a large fortune, have many servants, a fine mansion, automobiles, etc. But when he saw all these things slipping from his grasp, taking wings, how foolish his course in clutching for these transitory baubles would appear! How he would long for something permanent and substantial!

This will be the case with many. All these earthly things are bound to disappear in the great cataclysm just ahead. In this time of the Lord's Second Presence His saints are to be glorified with Him. We look from the Divine standpoint at the dissolving and shaking of all the things of this present Dispensation. The only thing that will not be shaken down is the Kingdom of God. Let us then serve the Lord faithfully, and realize the value of the unshakable things which will thus be ours. Heb. 12:26-28

Everything unjust, untrue, false, in any sense, everything imperfect, will be shaken down. They will all be burned up. The newspapers say that there is a great conflagration in Europe. The things of the present time--ecclesiastical, social, financial, political all will become "as the chaff of the summer threshing floor, and the wind shall carry them away" forever. (Dan. 2:35, 44) Then the New Order shall come in. The true Church of God will be the "new heavens" God's saints. Then there will be a "new earth" a new social Order. This will gradually bring in perfection. Mankind will be delivered from sin and death. All may become complete through the work of Christ.

Christ will always be the Head of the Church, although after their glorious "change" they will not need the robe of His righteousness, imputed justification. This "change" of the Church is, we believe, very near at hand. Knowing all that is so soon to come to pass, is it any wonder that the Apostle urges us to watchfulness and saintliness? Our salvation, our full deliverance, is ready to be revealed now in this last Day, which is right upon us. For about 1900 years the Church of Christ has patiently waited and prayed for these things to take place.

NECESSARY CHARACTER TRAITS IN SAINTS

It is very important that we heed the Apostle's words in our text, "Seeing, then, that all these things are to be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness?" We hope to be copies of God's dear Son. He had the Father's spirit in all things. He made the Father's will His own. So we are to have the Father's spirit and to make His will our own. We are to have the mind that was in Christ Jesus, the mind of the Apostles and all the true saints.

The Scriptures tell us how the Lord's Spirit manifests itself. It is manifested in meekness in our intercourse with the brethren, in a humble appreciation of ourselves, in contentment with everything our God gives, in a delight to have Christ as our Teacher. It is manifested in gentleness. There are some people who are gentle because, naturally, they do not know how to be anything else, because they have not sufficient character to be anything else. These putty people will gain character during the Millennium; but God now desires those only who have a strong individuality and a love of righteousness. Others are not appealed to by the Lord's Message.

The class that appreciate the Lord's Word are those who have real character, something of a will of their own by nature. You could not give up your will to God if you had none. The condition upon which we may become disciples of Christ is to surrender our wills. From that time on we must keep them surrendered. There is no harm in a person's having a strong will. He will make one of the best soldiers in the Lord's army if that will is turned in the right direction. This class that God is calling have a good, strong will. But this will must be trained to full obedience to the Lord. It must die to self. We are learning this daily in the School of Christ.

If you are inclined to practice patience for a while and then get tired, remember "you have need of patience that having done the will of God you might receive the promise." (Heb. 10:36) The Lord has been patient with you. The prize-winners must become like our Father and like His Son. We must learn patience, if it is not there naturally. You may feel inclined to say, "The Lord must accept me just as I am." But the Lord will not take you into the Kingdom just as you are. He accepted you at first as you were; but He expected you to overcome, to develop as a New Creature. If you wish to be in the Kingdom class, you must attain the character-likeness of Christ.

But someone may ask, "Why does not the Lord make us perfect by His own power, without such painful effort on our part?" We answer, The character you develop is stronger for your struggles, and it is your own. It is a necessary part of our schooling to develop character. Why do we send children to school? It is because by the lessons there learned they will be exercising their mental faculties, thus making their minds stronger for every subject, fitting them for the responsibilities awaiting them later. So it is with us.

Meekness, patience, long-suffering these are some of our lessons. To be long-suffering means to bear long and be kind, to have the quality of endurance toward others, to be very kind in your home toward husband or toward wife, toward the children, toward your brothers and sisters. This is sometimes hard. But remember, "There is none righteous [perfect], no, not one." If you have not found that you have many imperfections, you have not learned the first lesson in the School of Christ.

We each have heads of different shape, and brains whose quality varies. But when we give ourselves to the Lord we all need a course of vigorous training; for we are very defective. We must have experiences that will reveal to us our own individual weaknesses and faults, that by Divine help they may be corrected as far as possible. The Lord desires every one of us to know how much and where we lack, what we need in order to build ourselves up into Christ. We should each know what part of our own character needs the most attention. In order thus to build ourselves up we look to that perfect Law which shows us just what a perfect character is--gentle, meek, loving, forgiving, patient, etc.

WALKING WORTHY OF OUR CALLING

If you are prayerfully striving to do the best you can, God is pleased. He sees this in you, and will love you very much. He will approve you. But the Lord will not say, "Well done," unless you have done well. "What manner of persons ought we to be?" O, dear brethren, do not compare your selves with the world, not even their noblest ones! They are not begotten of God's holy Spirit; they are sinners. We are called to the highest of positions. We have been begotten of the Spirit for a special place of great exaltation in God's family. We are to look for every indication of God's stately steppings in this great Day of the Lord. Jesus only are we to see, that our characters may become conformed to His.

Our deliverance is at hand. "When ye see these things begin to come to pass, then lift up your heads; for your deliverance draweth nigh." Hasten to prepare yourselves for this Day of the Lord. When all the things of the Old Order are dissolved the New Order will be ushered in. When the saints are gathered beyond the veil, will you be among them? Thank God, we have the most wonderful hope in the world! We are the antitypical Elijah class. We have come nearly to the close of our earthly pilgrimage. Let us then be true to God, waiting in patience and faith for our glorious "change

THE PENALTY OF UNTHANKFULNESS

Montreal, Que., November 21 Pastor Russell spoke here today on the subject of Thanksgiving. His text was, "Giving thanks always for all things unto God." (Eph. 5:20) He said in part:

Our experiences in life are to a considerable extent what we make them. Bible students should be philosophers every one of them. Why? Because the Wisdom from Above is the noblest science and best instruction. As St. Paul declares, it tends to promote the spirit of a sound mind and a sound mind is necessarily a philosophical one. Murmurers and complainers are not philosophers, but the reverse. A sound mind tells us to take things as they are, to make the best of them rather than to quarrel over them and find fault with Divine providence and make ourselves and every body else in our environment miserable.

True Christian people in every land and under all conditions have found plenty of cause for thankfulness, even though they have had their share, or more, of life's difficulties. Nor was this thankfulness because they had mastered the Divine philosophy and understood the WHY and WHEREFORE of the present reign of Sin and Death. They accepted their portion of life's joys and sorrows by faith, believing that their portion was measured to them by the Lord, and that full obedience and submission, with cheerfulness, was their duty.

EXCUSES FOR UNTHANKFULNESS

We are ready to concede that the world, awakening from the sleepy superstitions of the past, can readily make many excuses for declining to be thankful. If we mention some of these it will not be by way of endorsing them, rather to show the unthankful masses that we recognize their view point but do not agree with it. We would point them to the better course of thankfulness and proportionate happiness.

To their complaint that they have fewer and smaller blessings than their more wealthy neighbors, we remind them that the poor of this favored land habitually waste more than would make very thankful some of the poor of other lands. We remind that under Divine blessing upon the soil and Divine blessing upon human skill conveniences and comforts have multiplied about us so that the "common people" of our land have home comforts and conveniences and educational facilities and parks and libraries, well paved and lighted streets and cheap transportation such as were not dreamed of in our grandfathers' days, nor enjoyed even by the rich. Let us not greedily ask more along these lines until we have fully appreciated present privileges and blessings and returned thanks therefor.

"But," says one, "our forefathers were superstitiously thankful, and we must avoid that. They gave thanks to God for the sunshine and the rain. We have learned that these are provisions of nature: and we thank nobody for them. Our forefathers thanked God for escape from feudal slavery; but we see that they should have rebelled against feudalism and bought their freedom with their own courage. Our forefathers thanked God, if they were sick, that they did not die and go to eternal torture. We are coming to the rationalistic idea that they should have thanked their physician for recovery from sickness and should not have believed in an everlasting future of torture; for so far as we can see that teaching is all humbug.

"Intelligent people of the world have no more knowledge than ourselves respecting a future. We agree with the college professors that our race is progressing by an evolutionary law of nature; that God has nothing to do with it; and that there is no future life for us except in the sense that we, in the future, will be represented on a higher plane of living by our evolved children. You will perceive, therefore, why we consider Thanksgiving Day a piece of medieval superstition.”

REPLIES TO THE UNTHANKFUL

Our reply to this reasoning must be along two lines: first, philosophical; second, analytical:

(1) Are not these increasingly large numbers of pantheistic and atheistic evolutionists unphilosophical? They admit that they have blessings far beyond anything known to their forefathers, and they admit that their unhappiness has increased in proportion as these blessings and reasonings respecting them have been received. Would not true philosophy tell them that if happiness is their aim and desire, their loss of happiness is not due to the increased blessings, but to the improper and unthankful manner in which they have received them? Would not philosophy alone, apart from the Bible or religion, have warned them that, even if their theories were true, it would be unwise to cultivate them in their own minds and in the minds of others?

(2) Let us now analyze the foregoing complaints. Who can prove to us that there is no living and true God that there is merely a god of nature, a blind force? Who can explain to us the power which holds our earth in its orbit around the sun; which has given the summer and winter, cold and heat; and which has given us mountains and valleys, hills and plains, in pleasing variety and loaded with minerals most useful to us and merely waiting our Heaven-directed genius to bring them forth for the blessing of our race, and to make of earth the Paradise of God?

What philosophy can prove to us that these things have happened by chance and that we are wrong in accepting the Scriptural suggestion, “Day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge, and there is no place where their voice is not heard” proclaiming an all-wise and beneficent Creator? We know that the wisdom and beneficence of our Creator were hidden from our mental view by our superstitions and irrational creeds of the past; but now, as the electric light has superseded the tallow candle, so God’s Word today is shining forth to those who have eyes to see its beauty.

Let us not boast ourselves as possessed of so much greater courage than had some in feudal times. Let us note, on the contrary, that the patriot ism which demanded and obtained the Magna Carta of our liberties was as noble and courageous as any that we have today, or more so. Our freedom from some of the superstitions of the past is the result of the spread of education; and we must thank either ourselves nor our forefathers for this widespread education. We must thank the Lord for it. It came upon the world in spite of the opposition of the rich and the indifference of the poor. It came because God's due time for it had arrived.

The Scriptures fully assure us that this is a special mark or evidence that the New Era of Divine blessing, prophesied in the Scriptures long ago, is now at hand. Compare St. Peter's words (Acts 3:19-21) with the words of the Prophet Daniel. (Dan. 12:1) Rightly understood and appreciated, the very arguments used to oppose God are grounds for sincere praise and gratitude and hope for the future.

TO HIGHER CRITICS AND EVOLUTIONISTS

The law of sin and death is referred to in Scripture. We grant, as all thinking people must, that the teaching of the creeds formulated in the Dark Ages respecting the torture of the dead are absurd; and more than this, we hold that they are unscriptural, that they were conjured up under superstitious fears, and that certain symbolical pictures of the Bible were wrested to the support of those misconceptions of the Divine Character and Plan.

But does the rejection of those absurd theories disprove an intelligent Creator and disprove the Bible declaration that He is a God of Love; and that there is a rational explanation of the present reign of Sin and Death, and a rational basis for hope for the resurrection of the dead, under the glorious Reign of Emmanuel, the Prince of Life, and the blessings which His Kingdom will surely bring to every member of our race? That the human family is in a weak and depraved condition, mentally, morally and physically, is beyond dispute; and evolutionists have not proven the Bible in error in its explanation that present mental, moral and physical weakness is proof of the degeneracy which came to our race as a result of sin. Consanguinity between the human and the ape has not been proven; but if it HAD BEEN, there would be just as much ground for reasoning that a monkey or an ape is a degenerate human as for claiming that humanity are evolved apes.

In opposition to this irrational theory we note that mankind in general, even those of humble birth, have organs of the mind which they rarely use, and which cannot, therefore, be said to be evolved by them, and those organs are not the lower but the higher ones, the nobler ones. Those qualities of minds are present but dormant, merely waiting to be quickened into activity. This fact favors the Bible view that mankind are FALLEN, and that few are living up to even the best of the impaired organism which they possess.

The evolutionary theory, that we should live and die simply for the advancement of future generations, may prove an incentive to some; but in our judgment these will be few. Of far greater interest is the Bible teaching that the present is the NIGHT TIME, in which our friends and neighbors and ourselves, one by one, fall asleep in death; and that God's Infinite Wisdom and Power and Love have provided a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust the just to glory, honor and ever lasting life, the unjust to a glorious condition very different from the present reign of Sin and Death under the Reign of the Prince of Life, with glorious opportunities, for a thousand years, of uplifting blessedness. Then everlasting life will be the reward to the faithful and appreciative.

DISCONTENT THE VIPER OF ANARCHY

We have noted that unthankfulness means discontent, and that discontent means unhappiness and misery. Who then can afford to be unthankful, or to take the road of unbelief, which surely leads thereto? St. Paul draws our attention to the fact that much of the degradation of the heathen should be directly traced to unthankfulness. He declares that the Headship of the Almighty over all creation, and His unlimited power, are clearly manifested in the things of nature.

He declares that the heathen "are without excuse, because when they knew God they glorified Him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened. Professing themselves to be wise, they became foolish" and idolaters. "Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonor their own bodies between themselves." (Rom. 1:20-22) Unthankfulness to God was not punished directly nor threatened with a future punishment. Acting automatically it separated the unthankful ones from their Creator; and their course became downward, degenerate.

The spirit of unthankfulness as a malady threatens our present civilization with death. Year by year this sentiment has been growing; and discontent, when fully hatched out, will be the viper of anarchy, for whose virus there is no human remedy.

We thank God that although this awful anarchy foretold is near at hand, and is beyond human ability to cope with, yet Divine Love has promised to intervene to save the unthankful world by the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom in power and great glory, for the blessing of all the families of the earth, for the making straight of all the crooked paths, for the opening of the eyes of understanding, that all may see the Truth.

THE THANKSGIVING OF CHRISTIANS

St. Peter, addressing Christians, says, "What manner of persons ought YE to be?" Similarly, we might say, How earnest should be the thanksgiving of Christians! But Alas! Thanksgiving Day with us has lost much of the religious import known to our forefathers. Notwithstanding false doctrines inculcated by man-made creeds, our forefathers believed the Bible record of man's original perfection, his fall into sin and condemnation, the redemption accomplished through Jesus, and a restoration to Divine favor thus made possible. These truths constituted the foundation for a living faith in God and led them to give thanks for the harvest of the year, accounting that if every good and perfect gift comes directly or indirectly from the hand of God it should be received accordingly and acknowledged.

Today, however, we have the form of godliness without the power, because the precious faith has been well-nigh destroyed by the Higher Critics and Evolutionists, who for the past fifty years have been laboring constantly to this end, and with wonderful success. Well does God ask the question, "Who hath believed our report" who believes the Divine Record, or Message, and who sees the Arm of Jehovah connected with the world's affairs?

Any one having lost faith in the Bible and its God has therefore little left except a form of godliness, without its power. Nevertheless, here and there in all nations and all sects of Christendom are to be found loyal souls, bewildered by the present trend of affairs, and crying out to God for further light, and appreciating and giving thanks for every blessing, even though they do not understand the philosophy of their own experience.

THE MORNING-STAR DAWN

St. Peter declares that the sunburst of the New Dispensation of Messiah's Kingdom will be preceded by the Morning Star, which will shine into the hearts of God's faithful people in the early dawn, to herald its approach. The Sun of Righteousness has not yet risen; but many of God's people are noting the clear light now shining upon the Divine Word, and are realizing that it comes from Him, and that He is preparing them, through a better understanding of the Bible, to appreciate the glorious sunlight of Divine mercy which will soon overspread the world and scatter the darkness of earth's superstition, sin and death.

And so, as we get the matter rightly adjusted before our minds, we get the true understanding, the special enlightenment needed in our day; and we are enabled to rightly divide the Word better than did our fathers, so that today we can see, as our fathers did not see, the teaching of God's Word respecting the "High Calling" and "Restitution" the spiritual portion of blessing for the Church, and the human portion of blessing for the world. We also see something about the times and seasons WHICH apply to the Church and WHICH apply to the world.

We are not to forget that the Lord promised that He would guide His people to the way of the Truth and show them things to come. We are to “STUDY” to show ourselves approved study the doctrine, and endeavor to have our course of conduct harmonize with it study to perform faithfully the duties of a loyal soldier of the cross of Christ. 2 Tim. 2:15

Such alone are able to give thanks in the highest sense of the term; for they, better than others, appreciate the Divine Program and can fully endorse the words of our text. I urge all of this class to be very thankful, singing and making melody in your hearts to the Lord in respect to all your affairs, and waiting patiently for the full development of the Divine Purpose, assured by faith it will prove exceedingly, abundantly more than we could have asked or thought. I urge the remainder of mankind to cultivate thankfulness to whatever extent they can see and appreciate the Divine character, and to exercise faith therein. There is a blessing in it, not only for the present life, but as a preparation for the life to come

St. Paul Enterprise, December 3, 1915

JEHOVAH PROVES HIS CONSECRATED PEOPLE

Grand Rapids, Michigan, November 28. Pastor Russell delivered a very practical address here today, from the text, “The Lord your God proveth you, whether ye love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul.” (Deut. 13:3) He said:

The words of this text were uttered to Natural Israel, but they are certainly applicable to Spiritual Israel to all of God’s people. The thought is manifest that the Lord’s children are all under testing, that the Lord is proving our devotion. It is not sufficient that God should have called us with a Heavenly Calling, that He should have sent a Message through His Son, speaking peace and declaring that He will forgive the sins of those who surrender themselves to Him. It is not sufficient that we should be informed as to how we may gain these blessings through a full consecration to God through the Savior. It is not sufficient even that we should accept these terms and make a full consecration of our selves to do the will of God. Something more is necessary.

The making of the consecration, according to the Scriptures, would mean the giving up of our lives to do the will of God. “Present your bodies a living sacrifice,” as the Apostle Paul expresses it. (Rom. 12:1) We have seen this privilege. We have accepted the terms. We have given our little all to God, through the Lord Jesus Christ. We rejoice that He has received our little offering through our great Redeemer, who has imputed of His merit to cover our blemishes, thus making us acceptable to God. We have now been received into the family of God in the highest sense and are New Creatures in Christ, members of the Anointed company, sons of God, called to be heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ to the great inheritance of glory, honor, immortality and the Divine nature. 2 Cor. 5:17; 1 Cor. 12:12; John 1:12; Rom. 8:17

It is not enough that God has accepted our consecration. He purposes to prove us, to see whether we mean all that we said. Consecration is more easily made than fulfilled. Having made the surrender to God, we received an enlightenment. As the Apostle says, we were illuminated. (Heb. 10:32) This illumination came to us as it came to our Savior, through the holy Spirit and through the Word of God, enabling us to see the lengths and breadths and heights, and depths, and to know the love of God, which passeth knowledge, giving us an insight into the Plan of God, helping us to appreciate what we have done, what it means to us now, and what it will mean to us hereafter.

All these things become clearer day by day; and we realize more and more the glorious things which our God has in reservation for His faithful children things which “eye hath not seen nor ear heard,” but which the Lord has “revealed unto us by His Spirit.” (1 Cor. 1:9,10) While all this work is going on within us, there is a testing, a proving, a disciplinary training.

A FORETASTE OF COMING GLORY

Every day we are receiving added blessings. God’s mercies are indeed “new every morning and fresh every evening.” His providences are shaping all our affairs. How are we responding to all these blessings coming from the Lord? This is the question. God has indeed entered into a Covenant with us, as He says: “Gather together My saints unto Me, those who have made a Covenant with Me by sacrifice.” (Psa. 50:5) You agreed to give up yourself, your own will, all your our preferences in every matter, not only in word and action, but in thought. It was on this condition that you and I were received. It was on this same condition that our Lord Jesus was accepted and became the Head of the Church.

Jesus was our Guarantor. Therefore the Father entered into this contract with us and gave us the holy Spirit, the first fruits of our inheritance. This He would not give without a definite contract; for it is the advance payment, the earnest of the glory to come. So we see that the blessing which has come to us from God through Christ is only a foretaste of what is in store for us. Our Father waits to give us all the riches of His grace, of His loving-kindness, through our Lord Jesus, in the coming Age and in the Ages to follow. In those future ages of glory He will continue to show to the Church the glorious riches of His grace and of His love. Eph. 2:7

“The Lord your God proveth you.” The Lord does not wish to disprove us. Our Heavenly Father has great love for all of His children, and He has exceeding great blessings in store for them when their loyalty has been demonstrated. The word LOVE has in it the thought of honoring the one who is loved. "Surely we are not worthy of God's love!" you say. Very true, my brother; but we remember that our Lord Jesus said, "The Father Himself loveth you." (John 16:27) The Word tells us about God's deep interest in those who have become His children. It tells us that the Church are as dear to Him as the apple of His eye. (Zech. 2:8) What tender love and care is here expressed. All things permitted by the Lord to come to any of this class are for their good, for their preparation for the Kingdom, that they may be to the glory of God, members of the Divine family.

THE PRIZE OF OUR HIGH CALLING

According to the Bible, our Heavenly Father alone had originally this great thing, the Divine nature, with its quality of immortality, incorruptibility. He has given it to His First-begotten Son since His resurrection from the dead, that He might have this same nature, this inherent life; and through the Son the Father has offered it to the Bride class that they also might inherit the same glory as our Lord, though He will always remain the Head of His Church. (John 5:26; 1 Tim. 6:16; 2 Pet. 1:4) This is the sum total, as we understand the Word that nevermore will any others attain the Divine nature only the Father, the Son and "the Bride, the Lamb's Wife" no more.

Then will come the other natures on the spirit plane cherubim, seraphim, those who will constitute "the great multitude," and then the lower order of angels. We do not know how wonderful some of these orders may be; but none will be so great as those on the Divine plane. Then, to complete the picture, we shall have mankind restored to perfection—"a little lower than the angels." Psa. 8:5; Heb. 2:6-9

This is the glorious outlook before us. Those of the Divine nature will reign over all others. Theirs will be "the glory that excelleth." The Father loves us and wishes us to attain this glory. If we fail, it will not be because of His unfaithfulness. "Faithful is He that hath called you, who also will do it." (1 Thess. 5:24) The whole responsibility is with us. No one can take our responsibility. Each must stand for himself. We cannot go into the Kingdom by classes. There is no other way to get into the Kingdom except as individuals, personally related to the Lord Jesus. Therefore it is for each of us to "make our calling and election sure."

OUR FLESH NOT ON TRIAL

“Is God proving my imperfect flesh, to see whether I will use it perfectly?” someone may inquire. No. Long ago God knew that we could not do perfect works. He would not try our fallen flesh. In that Bible He tells us that all mankind are imperfect, fallen. (Rom. 3:10, 20) He is proving what your spirit is of, your mind, your will. What kind of mind ought we to have? The Lord tells us, “Let this mind be in you, which was in Christ Jesus.” (Phil. 2:5) “But,” you say, “I have not the same body that Jesus had.” Very true; but you can have the same mind, disposition, will, that He had. You can WILL for truth, for righteousness, for faithfulness to your covenant with God. You are to come as nearly to the line as you are able. God looks to see how you rule your mortal body, to what extent you crucify the flesh and its desires. Gal. 5:24

You are the one in charge now. The Lord says, “I will let you work with that poor body, which you have; and if I see you doing your best with that body, in due time I will give you a perfect body. If you prove your loyalty of heart now, with all your imperfections, I will cover those imperfections with the merit of Jesus. I know that if you are faithful in this blemished body, you will be entirely satisfactory in the glorious body I will give you by and by.”

This is a very reasonable proposition, dear friends; and everything about God’s Plan, when we come to understand it, is so beautiful, so reason able, that we could not ask Him to change even one feature. How would it be if we could get glory, honor and immortality without living up to our promises, while another who did not promise would do better? We would say that the one who did not promise would be better than the one who promised and did not fulfill his promise, that the one who did not promise would be more deserving of the reward. If the Lord sees that you mean all that you said in consecration, no matter how poor the body you have, the blood of Jesus Christ will cover all your defects; and you will be acceptable to God and will thus be counted worthy.

WORTHINESS OF THE BRIDE OF CHRIST

The Bible says, “Worthy is the Lamb,” and His Bride will be worthy too. You say, “We know that Jesus is worthy.” Yes; and those who have His spirit have a measure of worthiness also. There must be character if we are approved of God. Unless we develop the necessary character we shall never reach the Kingdom. If you have something to do with developing that character, it will be counted real worth in God’s sight; and Jesus’ righteousness will make up the rest. If you are found wholly loyal to Him, then you will be accounted worthy.

“To Him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My Throne,” declared the Master. (Rev. 3:21) If we do not overcome, we shall not be seated there. "But there are special tests, are there not? asks someone; "Is one test how we keep the Sabbath day?" Not especially, we reply. Such a test would be but a poor proof of character. If you thought that God wished you to keep a certain day as the Sabbath day, you would be injuring your conscience if you did not keep it. It is not keeping a Sabbath day or wearing clothes of a certain style or having your hair cut in a special way that proves character such as God requires.

What are God's conditions? For what is He especially looking? First, God is looking for faith faith in Him. This is an important requisite. "Without faith it is impossible to please Him." (Heb. 11:6) If you have no faith in God, you might just as well stop where you are. The Lord has a glorious arrangement for those who cannot exercise faith, but He is not calling them during this Age. He will deal with them by and by. But He requires faith of those who would have His favor now. Only such can be of the Bride of Christ.

REASONABLENESS OF THE SCRIPTURES

There is a great difference between faith and credulity. We have learned this lesson from the experiences of the Dark Ages. There was comparatively little faith then. We are not to have faith in things that nobody can understand. That is not God's Plan. It may be the creeds of men, but it is not the Word of God. He expects us to have faith in what He has declared; and He says, "Come now, let us reason together." (Isa. 1:18) Today, all over the world, you will find people saying, "I believe in the Trinity, but I cannot understand it." There is no credit in believing what you cannot understand. "I thought that if I did not believe in the Trinity, I would go to eternal torment," says one. My dear brother, there is nothing about the Trinity in the Bible. The Bible is all straight and reasonable.

What the Bible says is this: "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is one Jehovah." (Deut. 6:4; 1 Cor. 8:6) Have faith in what the Bible says. Attend to what God has declared. "To us there is one God, the Father." Have faith in this Scriptural statement. We are to believe what the Word of God declares, and not what men have said that is not in the Bible.

Another thing which God requires of us is loyalty. We are to stand for all that God stands for, and to be opposed to all that God opposes. There are only two sides. "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." You cannot serve Truth and error. Watch where you are standing. There is great danger of being deceived. Thousands of people are standing today where they should not stand, and would not, if their eyes were not blinded. (2 Cor. 4:4) "His servants ye are to whom ye render service."

Whom are you serving? Are you serving Christ or the systems? We must know what we are serving. Only as we are faithful in serving God and in turning our talents to use in His service shall we be acceptable to Him. He is not looking for those who are loyal to sects or systems. This is a part of the test upon us.

WHOM GOD ACCEPTS WE ACCEPT

“The Lord your God proveth you” your faith, your loyalty, your meekness, your love of the brethren. “He that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen how can he love God, whom he hath not seen?” (1 John 4:20) If any man or woman has made a covenant of consecration to the Lord, and has been begotten of His Spirit, that fact is a notice to me from the Lord that He has accepted that one. Suppose I say, “He is not my style, would that be loyalty to God? If we were in an earthly army, there might be some next to whom we would prefer not to march; but we would say, “He is my comrade; he is loyal to my government.” So it is with the army of the Lord. We are fighting “the good fight of faith”; and all who are on our side are our brethren, no matter how ungainly or unattractive they may be according to the flesh. The fact that they may be according to the flesh. The fact that they belong to our King settles it. If He accepts them, I accept them; if He rejects them, I reject them.

This is the cue which the Lord gives me as to the ones for whom I shall lay down my life. He is looking on with loving eyes to see how you and I are carrying out our covenant as to loyalty in faith, word, act and thought.

With the heart man believeth unto righteousness. Out of the heart are the issues of life. If our hearts are right, then loyalty will be manifest by our doing the best we know how for the brethren and in doing our duty toward all. It is not sufficient, however, to love the Lord with part of your heart and to say, “Next to my wife (or my husband) I love the Lord.” God must have the first place. It is GOD FIRST, the Lord Jesus second, and everything else after them.

It is all a matter of the heart. It is not mere Law, although it may begin as such. I may say, “I have accepted God’s terms. It is now a law to me to do His will.” But as I progress and come into fuller sympathy with God, then comes a love for the principles for which He stands. It is my heart that is to serve God. This is the highest attainment of a Christian that with his whole heart he should love and serve the Lord.

PRESENT FOREGLEAMS OF COMING GLORY

Kingdom Of Messiah Is At The Threshold, Reign Of Evil To End

December 5 Pastor Russell gave a masterful address today from the text, "What hath God wrought!" (Num. 23:23) He said in part:

We are living in a most wonderful period of the world's history. On every side are contrivances for man's blessing. Evidently the time is near when all the world may enjoy such assuagement of hardship, such release from excess of toil, and such blessings and comforts as mankind has never before conceived. Yet these things have come upon us so gradually, so stealthily, as it were, that we scarcely realize what progress has been made.

As the Bible foretold twenty-five hundred years ago, so it is true, that all these blessings and comforts have come in "The Time of the End." (Dan. 12:4) As Bible students we find that this term, "The Time of the End," applies to a period that began with the year 1799 A. D.; and so for more than a century we have been living in "The Time of the End." Within this time many wonders have come to mankind. Once we thought that this "Time of the End" meant the end of the world, as all of the creeds of Christendom declare. But that is not the thought of the Bible when rightly understood.

The Time of the End is the end of this present Age. It is the end of the long reign of Sin and Death. We are now coming into a New Era, in which all these evil conditions which have oppressed man for six thousand years are to terminate. Soon the great Sabbath of rest, the Golden Age of blessing long sung by prophet and bard, will be ushered in. Indeed, it has already been ushered in, in some respects.

While these blessings are designed to be for all mankind, they have in a natural way gravitated into the hands of a certain few, because of man's ingrained selfishness. This has caused more or less of pride on the one hand, and of jealousy on the other. This is now about to precipitate a fearful conflict. Already we see a great conflict of nations along commercial lines, each endeavoring to get the lion's share of the blessings which the Lord has provided in these latter days. They have become jealous and envious of one another as they see the opportunities of wealth and power opening up before them. This awful war now raging across the sea has resulted, costing millions of money and of lives.

How broad and how noble in contrast is the view which the Bible holds out to us; namely, that God has made loving and bountiful provision for His blessing to reach all the families of the earth yea, every individual! And the time is now about ripe. How glad this knowledge makes our hearts! We whose eyes of understanding have been anointed to see are greatly blessed in that we are privileged to be ministers of God, to tell of all His mercies and favors planned for mankind. God has permitted us, as members of the Body of Christ, to be co-workers with Him in the proclamation of His Truth. Then, when glorified with our Redeemer, we shall share with Him in the great work of bringing blessing to the whole world. It is a blessed thought, an inspiring thought, a comforting thought, one that lifts us far above the present strife and ambitions of the world.

PRESENT BLESSINGS FROM GOD

While considering all these blessings which surround us, and noting what imperfect man has been able to attain even under present conditions by the blessing of God, let us not lose sight of the fact that these things did not come by man's ingenuity. Let us take note that men just as brainy, just as brilliant, have lived in the past. Where is there a man today who can pen such words of wisdom as the proverbs of Solomon? What poet today can produce the equal of the Psalms of David, the sweet singer of Israel? Let us remember, too, that though Shakespeare lived centuries ago, he remains unsurpassed in his line by any writer of our time.

Let us assure ourselves that we are not the brainiest people who have ever lived, that the blessings of our day have not come to us because we are of superior brain capacity to those of past generations. They are here because this is God's "due time". He is now letting in the light of the dawning New Dispensation. That God has done all this is the firm belief of careful Bible students. And I believe that you all agree with this sentiment.

Behind this thought is another. When I consider what mankind have done in their imperfect condition, I reflect, "What will man do when he is made perfect in the image of God, under the Messianic Kingdom?" Then my mind turns to our great Creator Himself; and I say, "If feeble creatures that God has made can accomplish so much, can produce such wonderful things, even in their fallen estate, who can measure the power of the Almighty God of Him who is perfect in Wisdom perfect in Power, perfect in Justice and perfect in Love? How thankful we are to get this broad, comprehensive view of our God, and to see that He is not only great and powerful, but wise and infinitely loving as well!"

GOD'S MARVELOUS WISDOM AND POWER

So as I ponder over what man has done, and what God has done and has planned to do, the words of the Prophet David come to mind: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and firmament showeth His handiwork." (Psa. 19:1) All that mankind have done or ever will do will merely be copying the infinitely greater skill manifested by our great Creator in His works. As we note the stars revolving in their orbits, we are amazed, not only at the mighty power that can swing these wonderful systems of worlds, but at the wisdom and ability displayed in preserving their perfect order.

But when we consider what God hath wrought in connection with humanity we are still more astonished. Think of the human body. This great piece of machinery has power to oil itself, to feed itself, to manipulate itself, to will for itself, to think for itself, and to direct its own course. If mankind could make such a machine they would have something of which to be proud. But the best that we can do is to copy feebly the works of our Creator and to work in harmony with His laws. When we realize that all the machinery and the inventions of our day are but imperfect copies of what God has done that man is only using principles which God has employed in the past, to the extent that he is able to understand them we see the more clearly that man was made an earthly image of the Heavenly Creator.

JUSTICE AND LOVE MOST ESSENTIAL

Yet some who are inventors or who have talents of one kind or another may be very deficient in such grand characteristics as justice or love. We are coming to look upon these qualities as the ones most desirable to cultivate; and by the grace of God we are seeking to develop these qualities more and more. As the work of transformation progresses in our hearts and lives, we see more clearly what a great blessing will come to the world when these principles of Divine justice and love will operate everywhere.

We look across the water to our neighbors in Europe; and we say to ourselves, "Alas, that they do not have sufficient appreciation of justice to be willing to observe the Golden Rule to do unto others as they would have others do to them!" Selfishness is behind such a spirit as they manifest. One declares, "We will have our share of trade!" Another replies, "You shall never get it if we can keep you from it, if we have battleships enough to take the trade from you!" And so the cruel war goes on, to show which can the more successfully exercise their selfishness to the disadvantage of the other.

Let us ask, "Is this copying God's ways?" Let us take the nobler, higher standard of Divine justice, and do to our neighbors as we would wish them to do to us. Let us promote this principle wherever we go. Let us make known the character of God wherever we have an opportunity, by showing forth His justice,

His sympathy, His kindness. Let this character be manifested in our own lives. As children of God, let us be burning and shining lights, to the glory of our Father in Heaven.

LIGHT BREAKING THROUGH THE DARKNESS

While realizing God's great Wisdom and Power as manifested in nature, we have been seriously handicapped by false doctrines which grossly misrepresent our Creator and show Him as a God devoid of justice and of love. It seems a wonder that we were not all turned aside from Him. Not one of the human family is totally depraved; yet we have had pictured to us a totally depraved God. This misconception of the Heavenly Father we got from the Dark Ages. Thank God, the New Age now at the threshold is bringing blessings not merely of a temporal kind! It is scattering the ignorance and superstition of the past, and is bringing in the light of the knowledge of the glory of God, which is ultimately to fill the whole earth. Isa. 11:9; Hab. 2:14

We are beginning to see the light; for we are awake. But to see clearly we must look in the right direction. There are people today who are quite awake, but they are looking toward the west for the sunrise. We see great college professors, learned men who have given their lives to study and who have knowledge on many subjects, making the mistake of thinking that Evolution is our God; that a microbe started to squirm and has been evolving upward gradually, until our race has reached the station which it occupies today. They do not see an intelligent God in this matter. Their misconception is that Evolution is man's only hope. They say that ultimately there will be "the survival of the fittest."

Think of the present conditions in Europe! There the fittest are the ones who are falling in the trenches and on the battlefields. The unfit the old, the weak, the crippled and incompetent are left at home to propagate and rear the families of the future. That is the science of Evolution, the philosophy which hopes that in millions of years hence mankind may have learned how to cook and to eat so that they will not need to die, and that thus they may have everlasting life. Evolutionists believe that this may be true of their posterity somewhere in the dim, distant future. They do not stop to think that at the present rate of increase in population the world would be vastly overcrowded before that time, that the coal and oil fields would be exhausted, and that a limit would be reached in other directions that things cannot continue as at present for any great length of time.

But the Bible points out that man's extremity will be God's opportunity. After permitting mankind to have all these blessings of our day, He will allow them to dash themselves to pieces in a great cataclysm of trouble, and make shipwreck of all this boasted twentieth century civilization. Before the complete destruction of mankind, however, the Kingdoms of Messiah, God's dear Son, will intervene and will speak peace to the nations. After the terrible storm there will be a great calm. Christ will take to Himself His great power and establish His glorious Reign.

GOD'S JEWELS NOW BEING GATHERED

According to the Bible, God has for nineteen hundred years been selecting from every nation, people, kindred and tongue the Church of Christ, a class which He is about to exalt in the eyes of the whole people. He will use this class for the blessing of the world, for the enlightening and the uplifting of all mankind. Thank God for this truth! I trust that by the grace of God many whom this discourse shall reach may be of this jewel class, those who will fully submit themselves to the hand of the great Creator. May He work in us and upon us and through us, to the great blessing of ourselves now, as well as to the future blessing of all the families of the earth!

Through testings, through trials, through the opposition of the world, the flesh and the Devil, our God is shaping, polishing, preparing this class for their future great work of human uplift. All these things of the present time, which would naturally work to our disadvantage in many ways, the Lord will overrule to our spiritual development. He has promised that all things shall work together for good to these, the called ones according to His purpose, who are making their calling and election sure. (Rom. 8:28) How we rejoice in the precious promises that all of life's experiences shall thus be caused to work for our blessing!

GOD'S NEW CREATION

I remind you of the creation of God thus far. First was the Logos, our Lord Jesus in His pre-human condition. As the great Agent of Jehovah, He created all things. As we read, "All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made." (John 1:1-3, 10; Rev. 3:14; Col. 1:15) The Power was of God, exercised through the glorious Word, the Logos. (1 Cor. 8:6) God's final creation was man. Then sin blighted this fair creation. For a time God allowed it to remain as sin has marred it. But in due time, according to God's pre-arranged Plan, Jesus came into the world to be the Savior of men, He took upon Himself human nature. As a man He gave Himself a Ransom for Adam, and thus for the race that fell in Adam's loins. The price was laid down, even the precious blood of the Son of God. 1 Cor. 15:21, 22; Rom. 5:12, 18, 19; 1 Tim. 2:5, 6

But before the time for the blessing of the world, the Father had a further feature of His great Plan the making of a New Creation, different from angels, cherubim, seraphim or any other creature. From amongst the fallen sinner race He invited a class redeemed them by the precious blood of Christ, to become members of this New Creation, and thus joint-heirs with Jesus Christ their Lord. God is working in these New Creatures. Who are they? You are one, if you are a member of the Body of Christ. If you have given yourself wholly to the Lord under His terms, you are one of the jewels which He is preparing, polishing and perfecting for future glory. Mal. 3:16-18; Isa. 62:3

When this New Creation is completed, they will be the Channel which God will use for the restoration of all mankind. Because of their own experiences with evil, and because they have learned how to overcome weakness and imperfections in themselves, they have learned how to overcome weakness and imperfections in themselves, they will be well fitted for encouraging, instruction and uplifting the human family to the perfection which God designs for them, and which Adam originally enjoyed. They will be able to deal sympathetically with the poor world. This blessing will go not only to the living, but to those also who have gone down into the tomb. All these will be awakened. God will not awaken them now, because it would be to their disadvantage. He will keep them in the sleep of death until the Kingdom of Righteousness is thoroughly established. Then they will come forth to learn of God's infinite goodness, and to receive His salvation; whosoever will, at the hands of the New Creation.

Beyond this, God gives no further revelation. We are merely informed that at the conclusion of Christ's Millennial Kingdom, when all the willing shall have been made perfect, and when all the willfully wicked shall have been destroyed, Christ will turn over the Kingdom to the Father, "that God may be all in all." (1 Cor. 15:28) But through the Apostle Paul God has given us a glimpse of that infinite future. (Eph. 2:7) Seeing, then, all these present foregleams of coming glory, let us consider these present blessings as finger-posts, directing us to the glorious outcome of Jehovah's marvelous Plan of the Ages, as declared in His Holy Word.

CHURCH OF CHRIST REAP AS THEY SOW

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 12 Pastor Russell was here today and gave a profit able and interesting discourse from the text, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." (Gal. 6:7) He spoke as follows:

Some weeks ago we spoke particularly of the world's sowing and reaping. Today we shall apply our text more especially to the Church of Christ. Thus applied, the Apostle's thought would be that whatever a Christian sows, that shall he also reap. The Christian is now on trial for life or death eternal. The world is not now on trial. If the Christian lives according to the Spirit of God, he shall receive life everlasting; but if he sows to the flesh, he shall reap corruption everlasting death.

The Church has more enlightenment than has the world. Some in the world are naturally brighter than are some in the Church; for not many wise, rich or noble are called to be saints in Christ Jesus. (1 Cor. 1:26-29) But in proportion as the Church class have knowledge, they have the opportunity of obtaining the information which God gives to His people, not to the world. When they consecrate themselves to God and become living sacrifices, our Lord Jesus takes them and makes them acceptable to the Father by imputing to them of His merit. Then God gives them the begetting of the holy Spirit; and whoever is begotten of the holy Spirit begins then to have an enlightenment of the mind.

So it was in the case of our Lord Jesus Christ. When He had made His consecration at the Jordan and had gone down into the water, had symbolically gone into death, then as He came up out of the water, the holy Spirit descended upon Him in the form of a dove and “the heavens were opened unto Him.” (Matt. 3:16) All the higher things began to open up to His mind, things that He did not see before, things not seen by the natural mind, things seen only by this power of the holy Spirit.

JESUS' EXPERIENCES AFTER BAPTISM

As soon as our Lord's eyes of understanding were anointed with the holy Spirit, He was driven of the spirit into the wilderness driven by His own newly begotten mind, His own will. He went there to get away from everybody and everything that might distract His attention from the higher things. His was a very great mind. From boyhood He had been studying the Scriptures, but had not understood the deep things; for the natural mind, even though perfect, cannot understand these matters. (1 Cor. 2:14) He knew the various features of the Mosaic Law; He had read the prophecies. But He did not understand them fully. He was familiar with the writings of Moses; He knew the story of the brazen serpent lifted up in the wilderness; He was aware that a bullock and a goat were sacrificed on the Day of Atonement; He was acquainted with the prophecies relating to Messiah. But He did not know what all these things signified.

A perfect mind would be able to repeat whatever it had ever heard. Our Lord's mind was perfect. Therefore everything He had read or heard was fast in His memory, and He could recall any part of the Scriptures. He needed neither Bible nor concordance to refresh His memory or to furnish references.

During His forty days in the wilderness our Lord thought over those Old Testament Scriptures. As He did so, the things therein about which He had previously wondered began to open up to His understanding. He was now illuminated. So busy was He in His Bible study that He forgot all about eating. But after those things which had been obscure to Him had grown clear, He became hungry. He did not understand everything in the Scriptures, however; for He afterwards said that He did not know the time for the setting up of the Messianic Kingdom: "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, neither the angels, nor the Son, but the Father only." God had not given out this knowledge as yet. But our Lord knew all that was then due to be known; and He assured His disciples that as His Father should reveal things to Him, He would reveal them to His followers, in due time. Mark 13:32; Acts 1:7; Rev. 1:1

Our Lord Jesus Christ was granted the illumination of the holy Spirit, and thus was an illustration of how all God's people of this Gospel Age would receive a supernatural illumination. Theirs would not be in the same degree, however; for His life was perfect, far beyond that of fallen man. He had left the glory which He had with the Father, had humbled Himself to come down to earth and be made flesh. (John 1:14) As a man He was perfect, and in addition had the illumination which had come to Him as a spirit-begotten New Creature. This was instructing and guiding Him. From that time forward His life was one of daily guidance by this Spirit of continuous enlightenment.

HOW JESUS SOWED TO THE SPIRIT

This enlightenment was with respect to the Father's will for Him; for He said, "I came to do the will of My Father in Heaven." What He did was to sow to the Spirit. His Father's proposition to Him was that He should present His body a living sacrifice, and be faithful even unto death. He was not to settle beforehand how it should be done; for the Father would direct that matter. He kept looking into the Word of God. His mind was kept open to see what the Word instructed Him to do; and thus He was guided by the Word. He ordered His life by the Father's will. He did those things which the Scriptures said that He was to do.

This course led the Master to be out of accord with the people of His time; and this meant that those who would be in harmony with Him would also be out of harmony with men. His followers were to have only one Master, Christ. Our Lord had only one Master, even the Father. He has set us an example, that we should walk in His steps. Having received the invitation to cast in our lot with Him, to consecrate our lives as He did, we are called to share with Him in the sufferings of this present time, that we may share in the glory that shall follow. The one depends upon the other. Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:11, 12

THE SPIRIT-BEGOTTEN ARE ILLUMINATED

Some of us have accepted this offer. We have consecrated ourselves to God and have received the illumination from Above. When we received this enlightenment, our minds began to open to see the things of God as never before; and we are now seeing truths which our neighbors, children, parents and others do not see. Having the illumination of the holy Spirit, we have the mind of Christ. This Heavenly illumination makes clear the will of God for us. Because we have taken the proper steps, He has accepted us and has given us this earnest of our inheritance the holy Spirit through which we are enabled to discern His will. This causes the true Christian to be separate and distinct from the world.

“Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear,” said the Master. Others did not hear nor see. The great majority of those who heard our Lord Jesus did not comprehend His teachings. Those who could comprehend, blessed were they!

It is for these illuminated ones to sow to the Spirit, and not to the flesh. They are to use their wills, their talents and their influence for the spiritual things, but not for the earthly things. They have given up the natural things, the things of the earth. Of course they must have the necessities of life; but our Heavenly Father has promised to give His children what they need. “Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of.” (Matt. 6:32) We cannot tell Him what we need; for we are not wise enough to do so. He knows, and all will be well. If He should grant us too many earthly blessings and privileges, we would feel all the more fearful lest we should make a mistake in using them.

Whatever may be our talents, they are given to God; and we are to use them to His glory. According to our use of them we are sowing either to the natural, earthly things, or to the spiritual, Heavenly things. If we are sowing to the spirit, we are using our time, our talents, etc., to the best of our ability as God would have us use them; and He will be very gracious in dealing with us.

RESULTS OF LIVING AFTER THE FLESH

There is no standstill for the New Creature. He must go on and reach a certain standard of perfection; else he cannot be accounted as one of the Kingdom class. So we must surely do the best that we are able to do, and then leave the matter with the Lord. But if we should give our lives over to the flesh, to live according to our own natural preferences, to live in the base of the brain, minding natural, earthly things if we should give time and attention to pet cats, dogs, ponies, automobiles, fine earthly appointments, and the pleasures of life, sowing to the gratification of the human nature we would be living after the flesh, even though we do not murder, steal, lie, etc. And “if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die.” Rom. 8:13

Should any one ask why God would destroy a consecrated Christian who lived according to his natural inclinations, we reply that the Christian is on trial for life or death. He has consecrated himself to God. The world has not. He has been begotten of the holy Spirit. The world has not. Mankind are not now in the condition wherein they are on trial for life. But the consecrated Christian has covenanted to give up these natural, earthly things in order to get the spiritual things. The fact that God has given of His Spirit to this class is the indication of their acceptance by Him. Therefore if any of them should turn back, should break his contract with the Lord by minding earthly things, he would die.

During the Millennial Reign of Christ the world will be on trial for life or death everlasting. Then no one may live a thousand years unless he shall be obedient to the laws of the Kingdom, and unless he shall turn to the Lord, shall seek to do the will of the Lord and manifest, at least outwardly, the Spirit of the Lord. Yet at the end of the thousand years those who outwardly obey only will not be accounted worthy of everlasting life. By that time all should have the Spirit of God; for during that period He will pour out His Spirit upon all flesh the Spirit of the Lord in the human nature. Perfected human nature will be able to have the Spirit of God working perfectly in the human body. But if at the end of the thousand years any one shall choose to live according to the flesh, he will not be granted everlasting life.

CHOOSING THE BETTER PART

Those who now choose the spiritual things are wise; for “eye hath not seen nor ear heard” the glories and blessings in store for the Church of this Gospel Age. (1 Cor. 2:9) When our great Redeemer shall present His faithful Bride class blameless and irreprovable in the presence of Jehovah God, then they will receive their reward who have lived according to the Spirit, who have willingly and gladly sacrificed the earthly things, who have continued to dwell in the secret place of the Most High. They will be of the Jewel class, cut, polished and mounted to shine forth to all eternity, a diadem in the hand of our God. Mal. 3:17; Isa. 62:3

To the Church the great Apostle says, “We are God’s workmanship.” (Eph. 2:10) When the Church is fully completed and glorified, then truly we shall exclaim, “What hath God wrought!” We are the children of God, begotten by His own Spirit, to reflect His glory throughout all eternity. He is showing us exceeding great favor now, but this is only a prelude to the future glories, “the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him.” “In the ages to come He will show the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness toward us through Christ Jesus.” Eph. 2:7

St. Paul does not attempt to tell us what these riches are. He would have us see that our God is rich in mercy, rich in grace, rich in every other estimable quality of character, and would have us trust that so rich a Father will do for His children “exceeding abundantly more than we could ask or think.” Indeed, he assures us elsewhere that it is impossible for him to explain or for us to comprehend “the riches of our inheritance.” Eph. 1:18-23

RICHES OF GRACE IN FUTURE AGES

“Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him; but God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit.” Nevertheless, this revelation is only an approximate one. We cannot clearly discern the unseen things; we cannot comprehend them with our finite natural minds. But with the new mind we can, even though but vaguely, grasp the thought of our Heavenly Father’s riches of grace and love, and can draw analogies from the things of this present life. Thus we can gain some faint idea of the glorious things which await the Church; and thus by faith we are enabled as New Creatures in Christ to see the things which are invisible and to rejoice in the wonderful things which are only partially disclosed at the present time.

As we gaze up into the starry heavens, we see great constellations of fixed stars, slowly revolving about some distant center. Astronomers tell us that the use of powerful telescopes has revealed the fact that these stars are suns, and that around each of these one hundred and twenty-five millions of suns revolves a planetary system similar to our own. This would mean that there are probably one billion other worlds than ours. So far as we know, these worlds are uninhabited. But it seems reasonable that God’s work will one day extend to these planets. The foundation may have been already laid; and the glorified Church of Christ may have a work to do in connection with them all under our Father’s direction and in association with our Lord Jesus.

“In the ages to come He will show us the exceeding riches of His grace toward us” according to His loving kindness in Christ. Day by day we are coming to know our Heavenly Father better; and as we see more and more of His loving kindness, it begets this same spirit in us. He first loved us; and the more we know of His love, the more we love in return.

WHAT SHALL THE HARVEST BE WITH EACH

When we consider all our present favors from the Lord, and all the possibilities of the future, what do we purpose to do? Shall we sow to the flesh, and reap corruption death eternal; or shall we sow to the Spirit, and reap eternal life? This is what we desire. But let us remember that "he that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he that soweth bountifully shall reap bountifully." There will be a great difference in the reaping. Those who sow sparingly shall not receive any share in the Messianic Kingdom.

Many spirit-begotten ones will not reign in that Kingdom. While they do not repudiate the Lord, yet they are measurably unfaithful to their covenant. Through great chastening they will wash their soiled robes in the blood of the Lamb, and will come in as honored servants of the King. They will be bridesmaids to "the Bride, the Lamb's Wife." (Rev. 7:9, 14-17; Psa. 45:14, 15) But the Father has invited us to be of the Bride class. Let us not, therefore, be content with anything less than this position. To be of this choice class we must be filled with the Spirit of Christ; we must be copies of God's dear Son, our Lord

WHEN PEACE ON EARTH? WHEN GOOD WILL TO MEN?

Cleveland, Ohio, December 20 Pastor Russell of Brooklyn preached here today in the I. B. S. A. Temple. As usual, he had a large audience and an attentive one. As usual, also, his discourse was out of the ordinary line. He took for his text the message of the angel at Jesus' birth: "Fear not; for, behold, I bring you Good Tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." (Luke 2:10) He said in part:

This prophecy has not been fulfilled as yet. Instead of peace and good will to men, we have war, savagery and other works of the flesh and of the Devil mentioned by St. Paul anger, malice, hatred, envy, strife. Not only have the prayers for peace not been heeded, but instead the war spirit is kindling and spreading from nation to nation, fulfilling the prediction of the Bible enveloping the world of mankind. The bitterness, hatred, ferocity, of the warring nations seems to increase daily. Magnified tales of ferocity are believed, and arouse corresponding bitterness and ferocity on either side. As we understand the Scriptures, the turmoil is only beginning most of the wailing and gnashing of teeth, most of the anguish and despair, suffering, sorrow and devastation, are ahead of us. With the cessation of the war the Bible seems to predict the most gigantic revolution ever known and, following rapidly, a reign of lawlessness, anarchy, producing “a Time of Trouble such as never was since there was a nation. Dan. 12:1

Added to the physical distresses of the world, financial troubles impend in the midst of plenty. With every reason for prosperity the wheels of commerce are slow. The explanation given is loss of confidence; but not so. The world’s financiers and merchant princes are as courageous as ever, but they have met with new conditions. The wealth of the world, once represented in money, is now represented in collateral, stocks and bonds. The war has made a demand for gold, unsettling values of collaterals.

Gold is disappearing becoming more valuable hourly. In the same proportion collaterals, stocks and bonds, become less valuable hourly; because of their plethora they are a drug on the financial market. The great insurance companies, the banks and all wealthy people have their reserve investments in these “securities.” Additionally, the heavy losses of life in this war will be a serious financial blow to insurance companies. It is reasonably estimated that the fall of British bonds to one-half par has already made insolvent all the insurance companies of Great Britain. What must we expect as the war progresses toward anarchy?

As with every war, pestilential diseases must be expected, while interference with agriculture threatens famine in various parts. This is not an over-drawn picture, but a sober look behind the scenes.

THE ONE DAY OF HOPE

“Hope thou in God!” In the midst of all these tribulations the world must learn more and more, until all know the lesson by heart, that earth’s only hope is in God. This is one of the great lessons which God wishes all mankind to learn! For centuries men have boasted of what could and what could not be done of the world’s financial institutions, insurance associations, scientific learning and general common sense. These, we were assured, were a part of an evolutionary system which some time in the future would make man so wise, so great, so efficient, that there would be no more wars, no more dyings, no more trouble. We were reputed to be approaching that grand climax.

Some of the “Peace! Peace!” sermons of even a year ago seem laughably foolish today. The great and the wise deserted the Bible as a foolish old book gotten up by those who were merely emerging from monkey condition. They must yet learn that the lesson recorded twenty-five centuries ago; namely, that the wisdom of their wise men has perished. (Isa. 29:14) They must learn the wisdom of men is foolishness with God, even as the Wisdom of God is foolishness with men.

By the time all shall have learned where to look for help in this great trouble, God's time will have come for giving the aid which He has provided for long centuries ago and promised in the Bible. The aid which God has provided is Messiah's Kingdom. Many have prayed, "Thy Kingdom come," who have failed to study the Message of that Kingdom. Many have thought that it had already come. Many others imagined that because in the past God has not exercised power and force in dealing with humanity therefore He will not do so in the future. The Bible, however, assures us that Messiah's Kingdom will be a forceful one. He will rule the nations "with a rod of iron." As a vessel of a potter "they shall be broken to shivers."

We have reached this time. It is the breaking and shaking processes foretold that, now beginning, are causing this Time of Trouble, which before it ends will be the greatest trouble ever known. The shaking, as we have already shown, will be social, political, financial and religious. The creeds, representing the monstrous fallacies engrafted upon the teachings of the Bible in the Dark Ages, will be shaken to pieces, and all the great institutions misnamed "churches" will be shaken with them. Only the one True Church will stand not the Church of England, not the Church of Rome, not the Church of Germany, not the Church of Russia, but the Church of God. It will include all saintly followers of Jesus of every nation and denomination; and it will exclude all others.

PEACE ON EARTH--VERY SOON

How glorious the hope that Messiah's Kingdom, backed by Divine power, will speedily set the world's affairs in order, bringing peace out of confusion, war, strife! Human strength weakened, human pride humbled into the dust, human hopes dashed, the world will be ready for the New Day the New Era. The Bible beautifully pictures it as the rising of the Sun of Righteousness with healing in His beams scattering the darkness, ignorance, superstition, sin, death, that have caused the night of sorrow never to be forgotten.

The Lord's people, awake and looking in the right direction, already perceive that we are in the dawning of the Millennium that the blessings which have come to the world during the past forty years are Millennial blessings, foregleams of still greater favors soon to be poured out. These Millennial blessings have not brought proper responses in human hearts. Instead of gratitude, the spirit of selfishness has begotten discontent, covetousness, which will shortly eventuate, as the Bible tells, with every man's hand against his neighbor and against his brother. Ezek. 38:21; Zech. 8:10

I CAME NOT TO SEND PEACE

But do the Scriptures contradict themselves? What did the Great Teacher mean when He declared, "I came not to send peace on the earth, but a sword"? (Matt. 10:34) He referred prophetically to the effect which His gracious Message of love and favor would produce in the world during the reign of Sin. He well knew that the Prince of Darkness would oppose all of His followers, as well as Himself. It was foretold that whosoever would live godly would suffer persecution; and so it has been. Eighteen centuries have proven it!

Our Lord sent forth His followers unarmed, like Himself, to be peacemakers, to be helpers, to "follow peace with all men and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord." He counseled His followers, "He that taketh the sword shall perish by the sword." But their Message of peace and love and the coming Kingdom which shall bless the whole world and fulfill the angelic prophecy of our text these things seemed to anger the world not merely the vicious, the ungodly, but the worldly professors of godliness who have schemes, plans and theories of their own to work out, which are contrary to the Gospel Message. The darkness, more or less mixed with selfishness, hateth the light, the Truth, the Love of God, neither cometh to the light, lest its deeds of darkness, selfishness, selfish ambition and hypocrisy be made manifest.

The Master knew what the effects of His Gospel Message would be in the world; and that only those who would compromise His Message could possibly live at peace that all who would be loyal and faithful to Him would be traduced, slandered, persecuted—"beheaded," literally or figuratively. His words, therefore, were a prophecy respecting the tribulations which all His faithful would surely have.

But more than this, his words, were a prophecy respecting the nations. What is it that has brought us to our present degree of civilized savagery? What is it that makes of every business corporation a buccaneer, seeking the destruction of every competing financial craft? What is it that has sharpened the wits of humanity to such an extent that the majority find it difficult to be honest, because they see so many opportunities for dishonesty, while it is impossible for lawmakers to make new laws with sufficient rapidity to keep pace with the intelligent methods of circumvention?

The doctrines of Christ are in a certain sense responsible for all this. The liberty wherewith Christ makes free His followers and the light which He and they let shine upon a darkened world, received into unsanctified hearts and minds, have given wisdom which, misapplied, we call cunning and craft. The proof of what we say is found in the fact that other nations than those which have received this reflected light of Christianity are still quite in the background. Only now, as Christian civilization in a perverted form is reaching these peoples, are they awakening and becoming competitors with so-called Christendom.

THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS COMING

Notwithstanding the eighteen centuries of delay, our test as a prophecy will surely be fulfilled by and through the One whom the angels announced and whose birth is very generally celebrated at this season. Many have gotten the wrong impression that our Redeemer has been waging an unsuccessful warfare for eighteen centuries against Satan, sin and death. But from the Great Teacher's own lips we learn that His Kingdom is not of this Age it belongs to the Age to come. The ruler of this world has been Satan, the Master declared the dominion of earth was given to man. But Satan, deceived our race, putting darkness for light, has become the real ruler, using humanity merely as his tools. Scripturally he is styled "the god of this world," and "the Prince of the world," or Age.

Perplexed and confused, many may ask, What, then, is the hope of the fulfillment of our text? We Answer--that our Master, who declared that He was not the Prince of this Age, declared also that His Kingdom will be introduced with power and great glory; and that, although its initial manifestation will be with clouds, darkness, and a Time of Trouble such as never before has been, nevertheless His Reign will be glorious, triumphant and eternal. "He shall reign until He hath put all enemies under His feet."

Immanuel's victory means the overthrow of sin the crushing of the Serpent's head. At the very beginning of the glorious Reign of Messiah Satan shall be bound, and following its close he shall be destroyed in the Second Death, together with all those who love unrighteousness, after they shall have had full opportunity for recovery from the snares of Sin and Death. Then, indeed, the whole world will proclaim the glory of God.

THE GREAT RESTORER OF ALL

The Great King, who died, the Just for the unjust, eighteen centuries ago, that He might, judicially bring mankind back into harmony with God, is to be the great Restorer of all that was lost in Adam; and He will make all things new. Rev. 21:5

Everything appertaining to this great Plan of Salvation outlined in the Word of God is reasonable. The crucial testing of the elect Church is necessary in order that, as faithful and merciful priests of God and of Christ, associated with Him in His kingly glory, they may be God's instrumentality in succoring mankind from the fallen conditions which have resulted from six thousand years of sin and from the malignant influence of the Prince of Darkness. The thousand years which the Bible stipulates as the period of Messiah's Reign is a period neither too long nor too short in which to accomplish the world's salvation.

Some one may say, if it has required eighteen centuries for the development of the Church, how much more time will be necessary for the uplifting of the world? But, we answer, it is not the Divine Purpose to uplift the world to spirit nature and glory, but rather to Restitution blessings and conditions. It is because of the high exaltation offered to the Church that such crucial testings of sacrificial obedience even unto death is required. With the Prince of Darkness bound and with the Sun of Righteousness rising with healing in its beams, the darkness of sin, crime and sorrow will soon flee away.

One century of such blessed influence upon the world will surely work wonders, bringing in also inventions, blessings and comforts as yet undreamed. Next will come the gradual awakening of all who have fallen asleep in death. They will come forth from the prison-house of death, as the Scriptures declare; they will come forth that they may be made acquainted with the true God, with His glorious Son, our Redeemer, and with the principles of righteousness in contrast with the principles of sin.

We cannot suppose that it will require the majority of men, under these conditions, to sit long counting the value of the blessings of everlasting life and Restitution proffered them. The upward move, resurrection, uplifting, regeneration, will go rapidly on; while meantime, generation after generation will come forth from the tomb and enjoy similar experiences. Finally all will have come forth; for the Love of God made this provision through the death of our Redeemer, who delighted to do the Father's will and who has already been rewarded gloriously with high exaltation to the Divine plane of glory, honor and immortality.

GOOD WILL AMONGST MEN

The attainment of the condition of good will amongst men will mean the attainment of human perfection. God is Love; and when our first parents were created an earthly image of God, love must have been the predominant quality of their characters. What we see of selfishness is largely a matter of heredity; and all of life's customs are in line with it, and continually increasing its hold upon us. But with the new King and the new Reign of Righteousness will come the glorious uplifting and transformation. Gradually, during the thousand years of Messiah's domination of the world, the evils of selfishness will be made apparent, and the beauties of holiness and love will be shown in contrast.

Restitution rewards will lift up out of sin and selfishness to holiness and love. Then, with love as the very essence of man's being, good will towards men will everywhere prevail; for the Divine Law, almost effaced through the reign of Sin, will be rewritten in the human constitution. That Law, as we know, is “Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy strength; and thy neighbor as thyself.”

Finally, dear friends, how glad we are that this is true! How glad we are that the terrible falsehoods palmed off on us during the Dark Ages respecting a God of hatred and a Hell of everlasting torture are not true! Messiah’s Kingdom will be a Kingdom of Peace, notwithstanding the fact that it will be ushered in by a Time of Trouble.

St. Paul Enterprise, December 24, 1915

OUR GREAT CREATOR’S “UNSPEAKABLE GIFT”

Harrisburg, Pa., December 19 Pastor Russell preached a Christmas sermon here today to a very attentive audience. His discourse was based upon the text, “Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift.” (2 Cor. 9:15) He said in part:

There is an appropriateness in the general good cheer of the Christmas season. The happy custom of giving tokens of love and friendship prevails wherever the story of Jesus has gone. Surely this is just as it should be. While some may have been injured by receiving bounties, but few, if any, have been other than blest in the giving of them. Herein we see corroborated our Savior’s words, “It is more blessed to give than to receive.” In proportion as we attain Godlikeness, in proportion as the Spirit of Christ dwells richly in us, in proportion as we possess the holy Spirit, in that same proportion shall we appreciate more and more our Lord’s statement.

In our dealings with God it is necessary that we realize our dependence, our own insufficiency, and His greatness and beneficence; and that we learn to go to Him as His “dear children,” to whom He delights to give His favors, and who receive them and appreciate them with gratitude of heart. In every sense of the word we are debtors to God and always shall be. We can never dispute the obligations under which His mercy and loving kindness have placed us. The sooner we realize this fact the better will it be for us. Some possessed with a false pride declare that they ask no favors from God or man that they pay their way and wish always to do so. As respects our dealings with our fellow men, something of this spirit is praiseworthy; but the entire proposition is inconsistent with our relationship with the Almighty.

As we did not create ourselves, neither can we maintain our being, as the Scriptures assert: “In Him we live and move and have our being.” (Acts 17:28) This would have been true of us whether born on an angelic plane or as perfect human beings, for we could not have created ourselves, directly or indirectly. Through the arrangements of His providence in nature, God was responsible for our birth, and He is the Provider for His creatures on every plane. The fact that He causes His sun to shine upon the just and the unjust, and sends His rain upon the evil as well as upon the good, and thus provides for the world of mankind that in general is in rebellion against Him and His authority, does not prove that the laws of nature are autocratic and that the results could not be otherwise than they are.

Rather, as the Scriptures show, these mercies of God scattered broadcast tell of a provision on our Creator’s part for the necessities of His creatures. That He allows these laws to be interfered with at the present time and permits adverse conditions upon our race He fully explains to be because of its sinful, rebellious attitude, because the sentence, the curse of death, has been justly pronounced against mankind, and because He sees a way by which present lessons of adversity and tribulation may be made instructive as respects “the exceeding sinfulness of sin.”

ALL TAUGHT OF GOD

Two of the great lessons for us to learn are (1) our complete dependence upon God, and (2) His loving kindness and tender mercies over all His Works. But these lessons can be learned only from one standpoint and by one class. Those who view matters from the outside only will surely misunderstand, misinterpret, many of the operations of Divine providence.

“The secret of the Lord is with them that reverence Him, and He will show them His Covenant” His future plans, His agreement. (Psa. 25:14) In order to see, to understand, to appreciate them we must accept certain matters by faith: (1) “That He is” that there is an Almighty Creator; (2) “that He is the Rewarder of them that diligently seek Him.” (Heb. 11:6) Seeking the Lord diligently, we find in the Bible that which commends it to our hearts as well as to our heads.

But right here we are beset by a danger and a difficulty, for while it is possible to receive great assistance from fellow-believers in the understanding of the Divine Word, yet there is much danger of our becoming even more confused by such assistance by the creeds and theories of men, particularly those handed down from the Dark Ages. Whatever, therefore, we receive from men we must accept tentatively for examination, for proving and testing by the Word of God. Thus we “try the spirits,” or doctrines, as the Apostle admonishes. (1 John 4:1) Thus we permit God to be His own Interpreter and to make the matter plain to us. Those teachers who refer us to the Word of God, who point out to us its harmony with itself and with reason, giving the citations and showing the relationship between text and context these are the teachers who are really helpful. All others are apt to be injurious, whether they address us orally or in print.

EVERY GOOD AND PERFECT GIFT

Only after we have been for some time in the School of Christ can we comprehend the force of the Apostle's words, "Every good and every perfect gift is from Above." (James 1:17) Then we begin to look about to find some of these good and perfect gifts. We soon find many gifts and blessings, but very few of them perfect, purely good. Everything connected with our present condition is imperfect. Even the sunshine and the rain, which are common to all God's creatures, are evidently not furnished under perfect conditions. Imperfection seems to be written upon everything we have as well as upon ourselves.

The Bible explanation of this state of affairs is that, while God's work is perfect (Deut. 32:4), our race today are not really samples of His workmanship, but are depraved, fallen, imperfect through the original sin of Father Adam and its entailed weaknesses and blemishes upon his posterity. The good and perfect gifts of God are to be seen only by the eye of faith only by those whose eyes of understanding have been opened to see by faith Jesus, the great Redeemer. By faith this class see accomplished in God's due time His great work of Redemption, the wiping away of all tears from off all faces and the re-establishment of every thing on the plane of perfection the destruction of death and everything connected with it, and the establishment of perfect life conditions, such as God has promised.

Those whose eyes of understanding have to some extent been opened see more and more of the riches of God's grace, and appreciate more and more all of His gifts and favors, especially the great gift, the unspeakable gift, mentioned in our text. What this gift is the entire Scriptures set forth in various presentations. Of these statements one of the most forceful is St. Paul's declaration, "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Rom. 6:23)

A GIFT NOT APPRECIATED

False theologies have diverted or taken away from this Bible statement that eternal life is the GIFT of God, and that He will supply it only to those in fullest harmony with Himself. False theologies have taught us that eternal life is a natural quality yea, that it is a persistent one, that not even God Himself can destroy our lives or being. This erroneous thought has distorted all our reasonings, and has left the issue as between an eternal life in torture or an eternal life in bliss. But the Scriptures clearly define a different issue, namely, as between extinction, destruction and a life in harmony with God, a life which Divine Love and Mercy had provided for those who are in accord with the Almighty.

Let us hearken to the testimony of our Lord, the Apostles and the Prophets on this subject, and see that God is now proffering the Church a gift of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. Let us note that Scriptural proposition that if we are willfully, deliberately, intelligently rejecting this gift it will be withdrawn, and that the effect upon us will be the Second Death, everlasting oblivion, from which God offers no hope of recovery.

Let us note that this is the general dealing of God, and hence that when His time shall come for dealing with the world of mankind in general, during the Millennial Age, the offer then to be made to them will be a similar proposition of life or death everlasting. Those who will accept God's gift upon God's terms are welcome to it. He is pleased to give it to them. Those who will then reject it shall die the Second Death. Acts 3:22-23

"Though Jesus Christ our Lord," is the Apostle's statement. The gift is not offered to us by the Father directly, but indirectly through the Son. To those whose eyes of understanding have been opened the Apostle says, "This is the record, that God has given unto us eternal life; and this life is in His Son. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." (1 John 4:12) Other Scriptures inform us that this life is merely reckoned to the Church now, and that they will not get it until they shall experience the change of the First Resurrection, at the Second Coming of our Lord. Of these it is written, "Your life is hid with Christ in God." (Col. 3:3) Thus every suggestion of God's gift is bound up similarly in Christ. Only as we become united to Him, related to Him, can we have this unspeakable gift of God. Hence it is not improper that we should sometimes both think and speak of Jesus Himself as being

THE UNSPEAKABLE GIFT

Both Jesus and the eternal life which the Father has provided through Him are unspeakable in the sense that it is impossible for us to present fully to others the richness and the glory which inhere in both. Who can describe life eternal on either a spirit plane or as restored and perfected humanity? It is beyond all the powers of our mental comprehension. Even the thought of it can only be imperfectly communicated and imperfectly grasped. It is beyond all the powers of our mental comprehension. Even the thought of it can only be imperfectly communicated and imperfectly grasped. It must gradually dawn upon us, grow upon us in appreciation and comprehension. Similarly the wealth of grace Divine represented in our Lord Jesus is unspeakable. We cannot tell it, and the natural man cannot receive of the things of the Spirit of God, neither know them. 1 Cor. 2:14

Only those who are especially favored of God can get even the first glimpse of the riches of God's grace in Christ. If this glimpse be appreciated, it leads to clearer and still clearer views, for all who will appreciate either our Lord Jesus or the gift of life must be "taught of God." (John 6:54) As our Redeemer said to St. Peter, "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but My Father in Heaven" (Matt. 16:17), so all who would grasp spiritual things must be taught. All our teaching and preaching cannot overcome the blindness of the natural fallen mind in respect to God's gift and the Channel through which it comes.

Only as the Heavenly Father shall grant His blessing may fruits to our labors be expected. It is written, "As many as the Lord your God shall call," and "No man can come unto Me except the Father who sent Me draw him." (Acts 2:39; John 6:44) Hence we see that our present appreciation of Divine goodness implies three gifts: (1) The Divine provision of eternal life, (2) Christ the Channel, and (3) the knowledge by which we are enabled to appreciate both the Gift and the Channel.

RECEIVING AND REJECTING GOD'S GIFT

As we look out over the world and perceive 1,200,000,000 in heathen darkness and the remaining 400, 000,000 of nominal Christendom in the dull, foggy light of superstition and ignorance, our first thought might be that the world in general has rejected God's gift and hence has sealed its doom for the Second Death. Then we find relief in the Scriptural assurance that the present world-wide darkness is the result of Adam's sin and condemnation to death; that, although Christ has come and offered His sacrifice for sin, and thus made possible the removal of the curse and the bringing back of Adam and all of his race to harmony with God and to the possibility of accepting His gift of eternal life upon His terms, nevertheless the offer of this opportunity to the race in general is still future.

How glad we are that in God's due time all the blind eyes shall be opened, all the deaf ears unstopped, and the fogs of superstition and error all flee away before the rising of the Sun of Righteousness the glories of the Millennial Kingdom!

The few who now see and appreciate God's gift are indeed, as the Scriptures declare, a "little flock" (Luke 12:32); and although generally disowned by men, and "counted fools for Christ's sake," they are rich in that they have become, in advance of the world, the recipients of God's favor by faith. Even now they may think of themselves as being possessors of life eternal because of their joy and confidence in Him who has promised.

There is a superlative blessing of eternal life on the spirit plane, “far above angels, principalities and powers.” Those who attain that blessing will indeed be “partakers of the Divine nature.” (2 Pet. 1:4; 1 John 3:2) Surely “eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him.” (1 Cor. 2:9) Those who have now accepted

Christ as their Redeemer and their Bridegroom possess also all the riches of God’s grace that center in Him; and when He shall appear, they shall be made like Him, sharers in His glory. “Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift!”

MORE BLESSED TO GIVE

God Himself is the great Pattern set before us in His Word. In proportion as we have received of God’s gift and have appreciated it, in that same proportion are we so privileged to be so “taught of God” as to become more and more like Him in spirit, disposition desirous of giving generous. Since man was created in the image of God, all men would have possessed this generous disposition had it not been for the fall of Adam; and we find that the fall has especially blighted some in one particular and others in another. Hence amongst “natural men” there are some who are generous, and who to that degree have perhaps more Godlikeness than have some of the children of grace especially until the latter have been trained in the School of Christ.

For we are to remember that God’s Message and His drawing power affect the less honorable of mankind. (1 Cor. 1:26-29) Thus opportunity is afforded for the Lord to demonstrate the power of His grace in the transformation of character. But so surely as we have become God’s children, recipients of His blessing and of the instruction of the School of Christ, this quality of benevolence will grow in us; and the more ripe we become as Christians, the more will it abound in our thoughts words and deeds. But any other condition, any failure to progress, any turning toward greater selfishness, would be sure signs that we are faced in the wrong direction, that we are walking after the flesh, not after the Spirit.

Thousands on Thousands in the world are needy; and those possessed of the Lord’s Spirit will feel an intense desire to give to these. But here the difficulty arises. There are so many needy ones, and our abilities are so limited, that we must discriminate. What lines shall we draw? We Answer--that as comparing spiritual and temporal gifts we should prefer to give the higher, the spiritual, wherever we have opportunity not forgetting the other, however, as occasion may demand or opportunity offer.

Since the judgment of each will be according to his light, it follows that many more can appreciate the privilege of giving earthly blessings, comforts, succor, solace, etc., than can understand the still higher privilege of giving Heavenly gifts, blessings, counsel, succor, consolation, comfort. Whoever, therefore, has spiritual ability to give further spiritual favors should rejoice to engage in this service of blessing others.

1915 Convention Report Supplement

THE ARM OF THE LORD REVEALED

Pastor Russell delivered a characteristic and very interesting discourse from the text, "Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?" (Isa. 53: 1) He said in part:

These prophetic words were used of our Lord Jesus Christ. The Prophet goes on to say, "He shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground. He hath no form nor comeliness, and when we shall see Him there is no beauty that we should desire Him." All of this was very true of our Savior as respects the Jewish view of Him. And the message that was given by Him was not generally believed. And His message is still not acceptable to many. There is today "a form of godliness without the power," that is very popular; and this has been true for many centuries.

The name of Christ and the cross have been linked by many with the persecuting spirit, which Jesus never owned, never acknowledged. This class have never received Him, have never believed our report. They have been driven away by the intolerant, unchristian spirit and teaching of the many who professed the name of Christ. One would naturally expect, however, that the ones who would respect and receive the message that Jesus was the Savior, that God had sent His Son into the world, would have been the Jewish chief priest and other zealous religionists, the most prominent men in the Jewish nation. Surely they would say, "We are glad to receive God's Son whom He has long promised, One able to deliver us. Have we not realized our need of being delivered?" The Pharisees were especially the "holiness people" of the Jews, and one would think they would have received Him.

Our natural thought would be that they would be in the right attitude of mind, would be waiting for Messiah to manifest Himself, and that when He came and spoke to them about the goodness of God and showed forth the power that the Father was exercising through Him, to heal the sick and raise the dead, they would see what wonderful blessings were theirs and would rejoice. But were they in this attitude? No, they were not. The Scriptures declare that "they hid, as it were, their faces from Him; He was despised and they esteemed Him not." This is the statement of our context.

We are looking for another kind of man, they said, "a great general, one that looks like Goliath of old. We do not want any such leader as this Jesus of Nazareth! He is too humble, too attentive to the poor and to sinners. He associates with the common people. None of the priests and Pharisees would do this. We would not want to be known as His followers. There is one Levite among this base lot that follow Him, a kind of renegade, a tax gatherer, and a lot of ignorant fishermen. He is not the Messiah that we have been expecting. When the real Messiah comes, He will be a great man!"

PRIDE AND SELFISHNESS BLINDED ISRAEL

So Jesus "came unto His own (people) and His own received Him not. But to as many as received Him, to them gave He the power (privilege) to become sons of God." (John 1: 12) Who was it that received Jesus? Who believed the report? And did He have any good report to give? Oh, yes! He reported that God is love, that God was now ready to graciously bless the Jewish people, that He had come to seek and save that which was lost, to give His life a Ransom for many, and that He was now calling as many as were appreciative to become members of His Bride, to be heirs of God, joint-heirs with Himself, to bless the world-to fulfill the promise made to Abraham. The majority would not believe. They said, "He is not the kind of man that could ever fulfill that promise."

Why did they say this? Because they were not in the right condition of heart. They were proud, selfish, self-conceited. They said, "We are the great nation of the Jews' True, we are now under the Roman yoke, but our nation will be very great some day; God's promise will be fulfilled in us. When Messiah comes, He will soon deliver us from the yoke of Rome!" They had plenty of pride, but not the qualities that God required-meekness, humility, teachableness, gentleness, brotherly-kindness, love.

THE MEEK RECEIVED THE MESSAGE

But those who received Jesus had to a large extent these qualities that were so essential. Let us look at the personnel of the Apostles. Take Peter, James and John, who had never had experiences to make them think they were great men. They were poor fishermen and were naturally humble. This was nothing to their credit, for they had nothing to be proud of. They were men of strong character, but were unlearned and were of the common people. They were meek. There is a blessing in being meek. "Blessed are the meek," and they must cultivate that quality more and more.

How meek Jesus was! One might think that Jesus had some excuse for being dignified and rather autocratic in His manner. But not so; He associated with the common people. He might have said, "You do not know how great I am. I have come from Heavenly glory. You should not treat Me as an ordinary person." But there was no suspicion of pride in His actions. Meekness and lowliness of heart were characteristics of Jesus. The Report, the Message He gave, was calculated to reach the ears of the meek.

So we find this in the case of one of these, Nathaniel. He was a true Israelite, looking for the light, for the Truth. When one of his brethren who had just been called to follow Jesus said to him, "We have found the Messiah," Nathaniel at first was skeptical. He did not treat him arrogantly, but was ready to be convinced. When Philip said, "Come and see," he went. He had been in prayer under a fig tree. He desired to be led of God. This was just the right spirit, just what Jesus desired. So Nathaniel came to Jesus, trusting in the Lord, saying, "I am going to keep my eyes and ears open and see." As he drew near, Jesus said, "Behold, an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile!" Now, thought Nathaniel, perhaps that is just meant to catch me. How do you know me, and what do you know about me? he asked. That was a very proper question. Jesus answered, "When thou wast under the fig tree I saw thee." That was enough, he was convinced now. The power that could know him and see him under the fig tree was a Divine power. No one was around when he knelt under that fig tree. Here was proof positive given to him that Jesus was the Messiah.

Jesus wanted disciples who had faith in God, and therefore He commended Nathaniel for the prayer. "Who hath believed our report"--our doctrines, our teachings? The Nathaniel class, those who promptly believe and act, on proper evidence. See what a noble band Jesus' followers were--not noble because they were worldly great; they were not Cardinals, Bishops or Reverends, not great from any standpoint except in the qualities which Jesus approved--loyalty to God, confidence in His promise, a meek looking to Him for guidance. In this sense they were peculiar, different from the remainder of the people.

RIGID TERMS OF DISCIPLESHIP

In seeking those who would be Christ's disciples, we are not to try to make it too easy for them. Tell them rather of His arrangement--"If any man will come after Me, Let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me." It will mean the surrender of his own will. Sit down and count the cost, says our Lord. If you think you have too much to give, do not give it at all. The Lord would not accept any such disciple. How different is this from the preaching we generally hear nowadays! Practically all the preaching of our day seems to be an effort to get people to come into bondage which they do not comprehend, and then ten them, after they are in, “You cannot get out of the church now or you will go to Hell.”

The proper advice is, “Do not start to be a Christian until you understand what it means and have carefully weighed the matter.” It is a great proposition. You are dealing with God. To be Christ's disciple will mean the surrender of everything you have, yes, everything, even your life, if you are to fulfill the terms of your covenant. Your new will must govern everything under your control. Do not put your hand to the plow and then look back. This course was characteristic of the Lord and His disciples, and of those who believed their report. They have always been of humble mind, also, not many great, noble, wise, learned or rich. Pretty hard on us, isn't it? No matter; if we get that “prize” it will change us from being of the mean things. And that change is now going on in all of us.

I have had people tell me things about themselves that perhaps they had never told others, people who wondered if it was possible for them to be accepted of the Lord. They realized that they had been truly mean, that they had done many things they should not have done. They wanted me to tell them if that would be a bar to their getting into the Kingdom, if they should now give their hearts fully to the Lord. What did I tell them? “The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin.” Ah, there is something in God's Message that is not paralleled in all the world! It reaches a special class--the “down and outs.”

Jesus appealed especially to these and said, “Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you and learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly of heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls.” That means something. That is the Message of the Lord, and it appeals to the right class. “Who hath believed our report?” Many who have been heavy-laden with sin, many who have been weary and burdened with doctrines of devils, with strife and weakness.

*They heard the voice of Jesus say,
Come unto Me and rest.*

and they came to Him as they were, and they were received and blessed and given life and peace, just as we were when we came.

Sometimes the little all that is given to God is meaner and sometimes less mean, but with Him even the meanest is acceptable if the heart is honest and sincere. “I beseech you, brethren, by the mercies of God,” urges St. Paul, “that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reasonable service.” How are they holy? They are holy because God counts us complete in Christ. It is not that we are really holy in ourselves, but Jesus' merit covering us constitutes us holy in God's sight. Jesus makes up for each one exactly what we lack.

This is the class to whom the Arm of the Lord is revealed. What is this Arm? The Arm of the Lord represents the power of the Lord. The arm has long been a symbol of power. God's Arm, or Power, was revealed in Christ. God purposes to bless the whole world, to lift all mankind up out of degradation and sin back to Himself. Oh, what Power! That will be Power indeed, to make the whole benighted world know God! And He will do this through Christ Jesus. Is this Power revealed to you? Yes, to your eye of faith, if you are His.

Even back at Jesus' First Advent this power was revealed to the natural senses to some extent as the people saw Jesus heal the sick and lame, cast out devils, and raise the dead. But it was only "the finger of God" then. It was merely a little of Divine Power. Men Jesus told them of the power He would Himself manifest in the future that He would bring them all from their graves. "All these things did Jesus, and manifested beforehand His glory." How many people really saw the power of the Lord? Only the one class-the teachable class. How did the others view the matter? With their prejudiced, blinded minds they said, "He casteth out devils by Beelzebub, the prince of devils." If the heart be wrong, even the power and glory of the Lord may be misread.

GREATER REVELMENT NOW DUE

We have come down to the time now when the Lord's blessing is nearly due to be poured out upon all flesh. God's true saints may now have a great deal of knowledge of God's Plan. The Arm of the Lord is being revealed to us more fully than ever before. It takes great faith to believe that God's Arm will eventually be revealed to all mankind, but we are getting the eyes of our understanding opened. Not everybody as yet has the eye to see-only the few. "Blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear." It is only the blessed ones who now see and hear.

It requires something more than a natural mind to discern these things. Remember what our Lord said to Peter when he declared his faith in Jesus as the Messiah: "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but My Father which is in Heaven." (Matt. 16:17) Why was he able to understand the Message of Jesus? Because he was honest at heart. He had the hearing ear, not merely the outward ear. He heard with his heart. So Jesus intimated that all those who received Him had the right kind of ears, and that Satan had blinded the minds of the others, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ should shine unto them.

We have 1,600,000,000 people in the world today. How many of these has Satan blinded? 1,500,000,000, and a good many more, some partly blinded and some completely. Our own eyes are not yet completely opened. "I pray for you," says the Apostle Paul—not for the world but for the Church—"that the eyes of your understanding opening (a progressive work, the Apostle intimating that with the Church our eyes are opening wider and wider), ye may be able to comprehend what are the lengths and breadths and heights and depths, and to know the love of God, which passeth knowledge." Is God's love so great as this? Oh, yes! Satan does not want us to see how good God is, because the more we see of God's love the more it will transform us.

Most people are skeptical on this subject. They will say, "I do not understand the matter. I cannot see how the Lord can ever recover the dead if they are really dead." They do not see the Arm of the Lord. God does not want any to see it now except those who are in the right condition of heart. None but the right kind are ready to receive the Lord's Message. If we are being blessed of Him thus, let us show forth His praises. Our enemies blink their eyes as they look toward the light. It blinds them. They say all manner of evil against those who let the light shine.

THE ELIJAH CLASS SOON TO BE DELIVERED

We should not be surprised at this. If this class could not see the light that shone from Jesus, how could they see our light? If you suffer persecution because of this, the glory of God is resting upon you. That means that you are having added blessing. If a little persecution is good for you, more persecution is better, if you are able to bear it. But, one may say, we are living in a civilized time. We will not have still more persecution, will we? Yes, I think so. We have been looking into the Lord's Word for some time, and have seen that the Prophet Elijah is a type of the Church in its earthly experiences. The taking up of Elijah was evidently designed to be an illustration of the taking away of the last members of The Christ from the earth.

We do not know just how our taking away is coming, but we can say that it is not for us to live ten, twenty or thirty years, and die in the ordinary way; for then it would be some time until the Kingdom would be established. The Lord's people of our day, waiting for the time of their deliverance, first had the date 1874 in their minds as the probable date of the glorification of the last living members of the Church. That was the due time for the Lord's Second Coming, as pointed out in recent years from Bible chronology. But the Church was not taken then. Then they watched for 1878. This was a date of importance, but it was the awakening of the saints who slept. They were awakened spirit beings, to be forever with the Lord.

From this time on those of the faithful ones who remained were not to sleep, but the moment of their death would be the moment of their "change." Why? Because the Kingdom was from that date in process of setting up. The Lord deferred the organization of the Kingdom class until our day. He let His saints sleep until the Morning of the New Dispensation. We have been in that New Day ever since the end of 1874. We have not seen visions nor heard voices, but we have the testimony of the Bible, which is sufficient that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished. What the Bible says is that we who are alive and remain at the Coming of Christ will not need to sleep, and so at the moment of death each one will receive his "change."

It will not be as with the world, who will be brought gradually to human perfection during the Millennium, but our change to be perfect spirit beings will be instantaneous, "in the twinkling of an eye," as it was with the sleeping saints--"sown in weakness, raised in power; sown in dishonor, raised in glory; sown an animal body, raised a spiritual body." This process of change has been going on since 1878, but not very many of the living saints have had that experience. Comparatively few have been changed, it would seem.

I do not know all of the Lord's saints; "The Lord knoweth them that are His." He may have a good many that I do not know personally. But He has given us a standard for estimating. (See I Thess. 5:1-6; Dan. 12:9-10). Let us look at the picture of Elijah. It seems to be very forceful, meaningful. In his case the Lord took him away into the heavens, not into Heaven. Jesus said, "no man hath ascended into Heaven." He was the Forerunner. It was not then due time, for the Church, and Elijah was not of the spiritual class. God wished to make of him a type of those who would go into the Heavenly condition at the close of the Gospel Age, when the resurrection of the Church was due. Therefore Elijah was taken up into the heavens and out of human sight. If we draw a parallel to the case of Elijah, we may suppose that many of the Lord's saints now living will go together. Where will we go? To a meeting with the Lord in the air. Air signifies spiritual power, just as Satan is now "the prince of the power of the air," the one who exerts spiritual power as "the ruler of the darkness of this world." God's spiritual power is to be manifested to the world through Christ and the glorified Church.

FOUR CHRONOLOGICAL POINTS OF TIME

The experience of Elijah on the day he was to be taken up seems to symbolize something that we are soon to expect in our own experiences. We had thought that when the time would come, the parallel of the anointing of Jesus, perhaps that would be the time when the Church would be glorified. But it was not. It was the date of our Lord's Second Advent. Then we came to the spring of 1878, a parallel to the resurrection of Jesus. We said to ourselves, "What should we expect here?" Would not this be the time for the Church's change? But the living saints were not taken then, but we saw later that that was the date for the awakening of the sleeping saints.

Then we looked a little further, to 1881, which corresponded to the opening of the door of the Gospel to the Gentiles, to Cornelius, the first Gentile convert to receive the anointing of the Spirit. The Church was not taken there, but it was the date for the close of the general Gospel Call of this age, as we afterward saw. The only date remaining that was pointed out in Bible chronology was October 1st, 1914, approximately. We watched with interest for that date. We expected that the Church would be taken then. The time came. The great war broke out which the Scriptures had shown to be due at that time. But the Church was not glorified. We had merely drawn an inference. But we are still going on rejoicing in the Lord. We never were rejoicing more. We are not disappointed, we wish God's will to be done.

But there is a correspondency to the experiences of Elijah in all this, as we now see. On the day of his taking away he was sent by the Lord to four different places, first one then another, but he was not taken at any one of them. He was sent to Gilgal, Bethel, Jericho, then Jordan. After Elijah, and Elisha who accompanied him, had crossed Jordan, they went on, talking as they walked. Where were they going now? No place was designated. God had not spoken of any other place. Elijah was simply waiting, just as we are doing now. Then, behold, suddenly a chariot of fire and horses of fire appeared and separated them, and a whirlwind caught Elijah away into the heavens. Will the correspondency come to us this year? I do not know. God has kindly veiled our eyes. As long as He takes care of us and gives us plenty of spiritual food we are content. I know of no others who are having so good a time. Others in general are worrying and fearing.

FIERY CHARIOT NEXT, THEN THE WHIRLWIND

We have much encouragement from the Lord, talking about His Plan, getting more like Christ, more ready for the Kingdom, each day. The next thing to look for is not another date. The next thing is the "chariot." I understand it is to be a chariot of fire, a chariot of trouble. But we wish to be carried to the Lord in His chariot. Elisha, was left behind. We do not want to be left behind. We do not want, either, to do anything rash in order to get into the chariot. We are not needlessly to bring on persecution. Jesus would not tempt God by jumping from the pinnacle of the Temple. Let us keep right on doing the Lord's business waiting for the chariot, trusting that the Lord will take us in. I believe the chariot is not very far away. I want to keep my heart in the condition to get into it. You want to keep yours in condition. We are to have richly those fruits of the Spirit of which the Apostle Peter says, "If these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of the Lord, and so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.”

But the chariot first only separated between Elijah and Elisha. Then comes the whirlwind. That is another way that God pictures trouble, the letting loose of the winds of strife. The whirlwind took Elijah away. We are expecting some kind of fiery trouble soon that will separate between the Lord's people--the “chariot.” When the time comes, we will know what it is, just as they knew back there. Then will come the whirlwind. I think this will mean our death. Did we not all consecrate ourselves to death? Yes, if we are truly the Lord's. Then we are not to be surprised nor sorrowful when it comes. Whatever "chariot" and "whirlwind" may be sent, we will be glad and rejoice, because it will mean our journey Home to die Heavenly Kingdom, and into the presence of our Lord. Let us, therefore, be faithful, dear friends, until our deliverance shall come.

EARTH'S BETTER DAY IS DRAWING NEAR

New York City, Jan. 2 Pastor Russell gave a very impressive discourse tonight at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St., near Broadway. His text was, “He that sat upon the Throne said, Behold, I make all things new.” (Rev. 21:5) He spoke as follows:

The opening of a New Year is like the opening of a new ledger. It is a favorable time for determining what should be disposed of in the profit and loss account, for putting into effect good resolutions governing the New Year. Those who make no resolutions make very little progress in character-building. Poor fallen human nature needs all the braces and supports which a well-directed will can give it. We are not advocating hasty, and sometimes unreasonable vows, resolutions and pledges, thoughtlessly taken and soon broken. What we have in mind is a thoughtful, rational consideration of the matter, a full determination to pursue the way which deliberate judgment tells one is the proper course. In general, the New Year is a time of preparation for a fresh start in life.

On the other hand, the close of the old year is the time for taking stock and for estimating the profits and losses of the year. In other words, it is a time for issuing dividends, or rewards, to those who have made wise investments. It is a time for the meeting of directors and for the election of officers and servants for the incoming year. So at the close of this Gospel Age, its affairs are being wound up. The Lord is judging His people, and is about to reward the faithful in glory. Meantime, the world must be set in order for the inauguration of the New Order, the Messianic Kingdom.

THE REAL CAUSE OF PRESENT CONDITIONS

According to the Bible, earth is the one province of the Universe which is in rebellion against the Creator and at variance with His wise and beneficent Laws. Man, the King of earth, was created in the image and likeness of God, with the Divine Law written in his heart, and only “a little lower than the angels.” (Psa. 8:5) But this earthly king, Adam, rebelled against his Over-Lord and brought himself under a sentence of death—“ Dying, thou shalt die.” Gen. 2:7; Rom. 5:12.

The laws of heredity have so operated that today the children of Adam find the average of life only thirty-five years, and but few individuals pass the century mark. But Adam in his perfection, although less favorably circumstanced, was nine hundred and thirty years in dying. The dying experiences of the race are manifested in mental and moral degradation, as well as in physical degeneracy. With all our knowledge and medical skill the race continue to weaken and the ratio of the insane to increase.

Once Bible students would have stated that God is upon the throne of earth and delights in the present order, which the Bible declares to be a reign of Sin and Death. Once Bible students would have declared that, not satisfied with present conditions, appalling as they are, the Creator has arranged that at death all humanity except the Elect Church shall be turned over fully to the control of demons, who by Divine fore-ordination will be empowered to torture everlastingly the poor unfortunates of Adam’s family beyond the power of human tongue to tell.

These same Bible students would have resented the suggestion that God is NOT reigning over the earth; and that, instead, the world is under the domination of Satan, “the Prince of this World. (John 14:30) But with facilities for Bible study far superior to anything which our forefathers enjoyed, Bible students are finding that Christian people have overlooked many features of the Divine Record. As the eyes of their understanding gradually open wider and wider, they are seeing lengths, breadths, heights and depths of God’s Wisdom, Love, Justice and Power of which they never before dreamed.

We are finding that the horrible teachings of the past, which have caused so generally a spiritual nausea, came not from the Bible, but are “doctrines of demons,” promulgated during the Dark Ages. St. Paul tells us that the present blindness and ignorance, which hinder mankind from seeing and appreciating the real character of God and the Divine Plan for human salvation, are deceptions by Satan “the god of this world.” I Tim. 4:1; 2 Cor. 4:4.

A PERTINENT QUERY

Now, properly enough, comes the query, "If Satan is ruling amongst mankind as a god, or prince of this world, where did he get his authority and power? Did God turn the control of mankind over to demons?"

The Bible answers all our queries. God did not give the dominion of earth to Satan, but to man. In proportion as man lost his perfection and became weak in mind and in body, he became the slave of Satan and Sin. Satan and the fallen angels have exercised especially during the last forty centuries all their power and ingenuity for the ensnarement and degradation of men. Their influence would have been all powerful for man's overthrow, had not the Almighty provided humanity with will power and to a large extent forced the evil spirits to respect it.

As a result, we see that human depravity has made much less rapid progress than it might have done. To some extent man still possesses the image of God, in which he was created. Many still possess a natural appreciation of truth and righteousness, which under God's arrangement the fallen angels are not able to overcome. If mankind realized the true situation, undoubtedly the human will would be more persistently than ever exercised in opposition to the wiles of the Devil. As it is, these evil spirits hide their identity, and through spirit mediums personate the dead, who according to the Bible "know not anything," being asleep in death until the Resurrection Morning. Eccl. 9:5, 6, 10; Psa. 146:4; Job 14:20-22; Gen. 3:19; John 5:28, 29.

"I MAKE ALL THINGS NEW"

By the Heavenly Father's appointment, the Redeemer of men is to be the great King of Glory, who will reign for a thousand years and "make all things new." Repeatedly

He tells us that the first work of the New Dispensation will be the binding of Satan. Not only is this referred to in Rev. 20:1-3, but also in our Lord's parables.

Jesus declared that when the appointed time should come His Second Advent would take place. He likened it to the coming of a thief in the night, when men in general would be off guard, not expectant of a change in the rulership of earth. He intimated that His loyal saints will first be taken, while mankind will be in ignorance of the fact that the time has come for the Reign of Righteousness. Next the Son of Man will "bind the strong man, and then He will spoil his house" overthrow present arrangements. (Matt. 12:22-29; 24:42-44) This picture implies a struggle; for the strong man, Satan, has had a great host serving him, ignorant of the fact that he is a usurper and that many of his laws are unjust.

Many of them have never understood that He who redeemed the world by the sacrifice of Himself holds a Divine appointment to be the King of Earth, to quell the rebellion and to bring back into harmony with God all the willing and obedient. Many do not know that this Messianic Kingdom will be God's Answer--to the Redeemer's prayer, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, even as it is done in Heaven." Many therefore do not know that all things are to be made new; and that the time appointed by the Father for this great work is a period of one thousand years, now chronologically due to begin.

Not knowing these things, many will be found fighting against God, thinking that in supporting the institutions of the Prince of this world they are doing God service. The Redeemer intimated most distinctly that some of these ignorant ones will be prominent in the ministry of His own Church. They will be surprised, when the honors of the Kingdom are distributed, that they will receive none, but will suffer humiliation and tribulation as unfaithful servants. The Master's words respecting this class are, "Many will say unto Me in that Day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied (preached) in Thy name? in Thy name have we cast out devils? and in Thy name done many wonderful works?"

But the new King will say to them, "Depart from Me" come not near to share in My Kingdom. Instead of working righteousness, you have been workers of iniquity. Instead of serving Me as ambassadors for My Kingdom and properly representing Me before men, you have done the reverse. You have upheld unrighteousness. You have promulgated doctrines of demons, and have been My adversaries, not My servants. Depart with weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth, expressive of your disappointment, to be sharers with the world in its great Time of Trouble, from which My faithful Bride class shall be delivered.

Whatever reformation you share in that tribulation shall effect and will determine what I may do for you or with you in the future, in harmony with the Divine arrangements. But I cannot recognize you as in any sense worthy of the glory, honor and immortality which shall be accorded to the Bride class Paraphrase on Matt. 7:22, 23; 13:40-43; 25:30; Luke 13:25-28; 12:45-48.

TWO PARALLEL AGES

Looking at the time of the change from the Jewish Age to the Gospel Age, we perceive that during a period of forty years God dealt especially with Fleshly Israel from the beginning of the ministry of Jesus until the destruction of Jerusalem by the army of Titus. That forty-year period the Master styled the Harvest of that Age. The gathering of the wheat class progressed close down to the consummation of that Harvest the separating of the chaff class meanwhile taking place. John 4:35-38; Matt. 3:11, 12

Finally, when the wheat had all been gathered into the garner of the New Dispensation, by the begetting of the holy Spirit, the chaff was consumed in a time of trouble which utterly destroyed the Jewish polity. The destruction of the chaff did not signify the annihilation of unbelieving Jews nor their eternal torture. It represented parabolically the complete destruction of their Jewish hopes. Those hopes have lain buried for eighteen centuries, and are only now reviving in the form of Zionism.

The parable of the Wheat and the Tares (Matt. 13:24-30) pictures the Lord's work during the Gospel Age. the Master and His Apostles sowed only good seed, the pure Message of the Messianic Kingdom, to which a saintly few would attain and which ultimately would bless all the families of the earth. But Satan, through his various agencies (many of whom wore the livery of Christ), oversowed the wheat-field with tare seed false doctrines, "doctrines of demons."

From this unauthorized sowing by the Adversary as a result of these false doctrines which he caused to be promulgated throughout Christendom many nominally came into the Church of Christ. These never really professed to be wheat, never had the begetting of the holy Spirit, never were disciples in the only sense that Christ acknowledges any to be His followers.

As tares resemble wheat, so these deceived people, the progeny of false doctrines, think themselves to be Christians. They greatly outnumber the true Christians, just as the chaff of the Jewish nation outnumbered the "Israelites indeed." As God then gathered the wheat, the "Israelites indeed", into the spiritual House of Sons by the begetting of the holy Spirit, so now He will gather the faithful ones of this Gospel Age into the Heavenly Garner by the change of the First Resurrection. As the prospects and the hopes of the nominal Israelites, the chaff class, were consumed in the great time of trouble which closed the Age, so the hopes and the prospects of the tare class will perish in the great fire, or Time of Trouble, with which this Gospel Age is closing.

THE OLD ORDER PASSETH

The dispensational change near at hand will be much greater than that of eighteen centuries ago. There, our Lord Jesus merely sent forth the Message for the calling out of His Church. But, here, the Church, having been completed, is to be glorified; and the Kingdom of Messiah is to overthrow completely the kingdom of Satan. In illustrating the radical change which is to take place in the near future, the Scriptures refer to the Deluge, which completely overthrew the systems of wickedness and unrighteousness then prevailing. Matt. 24:37-39; Luke 17:26-30

The Apostle Peter tells us that in the end of this Age the overthrow of present institutions will be as complete as in the days of the Deluge. He declares that the present earthly elements Capital and Labor, aristocracy and common people, plutocracy and socialists will be engaged in a terrible strife, which can be properly symbolized only by a consuming fire. More than this, St. Peter declares that the heavens also will take fire ecclesiasticism will become involved in the strife and will pass away with a great commotion. 2 Pet. 3:1-13

But let us remember that it is neither the physical earth nor the Heaven of God's habitation that will burn up. It will be merely the social and religious institutions which, under the supervision of the Prince of this world, are styled "the present evil world," or imperfect arrangement.

As St. Peter also points out, the present Order will be superseded by a New Order, which the Apostle calls "new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." The new heavens will be the Church in glory, in Kingdom power. The new earth will be the new social arrangements instituted, guided directed by the new heavens Messiah's Kingdom. The New Kingdom will enforce its laws as with a rod of iron inflexibly. No longer will it be true that whosoever will live godly shall suffer persecutions, and have all manner of evil said against him falsely, as a reward of faithfulness to Christ and the Truth. On the contrary, in the Day of Messiah's Kingdom, the righteous shall flourish, and all willful evil-doers shall be cut off in the Second Death. Psa. 71:7; 37:9

THE WORK OF THE KINGDOM

Through the Prophet the Lord calls attention to this new condition, saying, "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind." (Isa. 65:17) Our context tells us of this same "new heavens and new earth" condition as taking the place of the present order of things. Then it describes the Church under the symbolism of "the New Jerusalem," the capital of Messiah's Kingdom, and the center from which authority will go forth for mankind's assistance out of the fallen conditions of sin and death.

We also read that through those blessed provisions, "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things (the present evil world) are passed away." The work of renewing will require the entire thousand years of Messiah's Kingdom, and will be successful to the highest degree.

Let all whose eyes of understanding have been opened to see these things rejoice, and tell abroad the glorious story that the period of the reign of Sin and Death is expiring, and that the new period of the reign of Righteousness is near at hand, bringing life everlasting to every one who will be obedient. With this thought before our minds, the New Year before us will bring us joyful suggestions, helpful in all the experiences of life especially to those who have become followers of Jesus. Those who are seeking to walk in His steps, willing to suffer with Him for the sake of the Truth, shall in due time be glorified together with Him, as members of His Elect Bride class.

The great Divine Plan of the Ages is rolling onward towards completion; and at every stage its progress makes for fresh blessings and fresh revelations of the glorious things which God hath purposed in Himself from before the foundation of the world. Truly, God's ways are higher than man's ways, and His thoughts than man's thoughts! Isa. 54:9

St. Paul Enterprise, January 18, 1916

THE LORD JESUS AS A YOKEFELLOW

Louisville, Kentucky, January 16 Pastor Russell gave a practical address here today from the text "Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me...; for My yoke is easy and My burden is light." (Matt. 11:29,30). The pastor said in part:

We are to remember that our Lord used these words to the Jews; and that He was not addressing so much those who labored and were heavy-laden in a physical sense as those who were burdened in a mental and moral sense. This class had been striving to keep the Law. They knew the terms of the Law Covenant, that "he that doeth these things shall live by them." (Lev. 18:5) But they were all dying; and they well knew that if they had been keeping their part of the Covenant, God would have kept His part.

This class is illustrated in the case of the rich young ruler who came to the Master, saying: "What good thing shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" (Matt. 19:16-22) He had been striving hard to keep the Law. It was no wonder that Jesus loved him; for he was a noble character. Then in kindness the Master told him in what respect he was still lacking. His heart was set upon his riches. So our Lord put him to the test. "If you are weary and heavy-laden with trying to keep the Law from your youth up," was the thought which Jesus presented, "and still cannot gain life, I will tell you the only way by which you can obtain life everlasting. It is simply to cease from your own works, and accept through Me, as a gift from God, the forgiveness of the sins which you cannot avoid. Then renounce all earthly things, become My disciple, and lay up treasure in Heaven."

But the young man departed sorrowfully; for he had much possessions. Others, however, poorer than this young man in worldly possessions, had also been striving to keep the Law Peter, James, John, Nathaniel and the rest. Jesus presented Himself to them as the Messiah, telling them that if they would become His disciples and share with Him in the sacrifices of the present time, they should also share the Heavenly Kingdom hereafter. They gladly complied, unlike the rich young ruler, for they had less to fetter them to the earth.

We can readily see how riches of learning of knowledge, of experience, of honor of men, of social standing of wealth riches in any form would be something to hinder the majority of men from becoming followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. but our Lord has just one set of terms under which any and all may come to Him. There is no royal road to the Kingdom of God. Whoever does not care to come on His terms may stay away and wait for the opportunities of the next Age. God has a great deal in the future Times of Restitution for a needy world. The Call of the Gospel Age is unique. Some learn of this Call; fewer accept it; and still fewer prove faithful to the end.

THE CHURCH VS. THE WORLD

God's Plan for the world is to lift them up out of sin, degradation and death, back to all that was lost by Adam. But no one can get this Restitution now. However it will not hurt men to know in advance that God is gracious, and that He has provided something good for mankind. As the Love and the Mercy of God shine into their hearts, they will come to love Him more and more. At present God is selecting the soldiers who wish to enlist in the battle now being waged between right and wrong. All others may in the future come into the family of God on a lower plane.

As Adam lost his sonship and all his possessions because of sin, so because of the deliverance which Christ will accomplish by and by these sinners may come back into harmony with God and to all that was lost in Adam. Let us thank God on their behalf. But this will not hinder us from having some still better thing. The more we come to know our Heavenly Father, the better we love Him.

When we find that it costs something to be a disciple of Christ during the present time, we are all the more convinced of the value of the good things which He has for them that accept His Call of the Gospel Age. But during the Millennial Age it will cost something not to do God's will. For all such there will be stripes, and eventually destruction if they continue to be disobedient. But there will be blessings for all who will then walk in the way of the Lord. Now, whoever walks in the footsteps of Jesus must walk contrary to the spirit of the world.

Yet this class are the happiest people in the world, even though the world, their own flesh and the Devil are all against them. Satan pays more attention to them than to other people. There is no need for him to give special attention to those who are asleep. But whoever is waking up will be beset with persecution, with worldly inducements and with everything to oppose his way.

But since He that is on their part is greater than all that can be against them, if only they retain their love, faith and obedience, the opposition will become a blessing. The Master told His disciples that all manner of evil would be said against them falsely for His sake. St. Paul also declared, "Yea, all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution," in the present time. But there is a far greater reward for following Christ, for doing the Lord's will under present unfavorable conditions, that there will be for doing the Lord's will in the future. We are glad to suffer now that we may reign then, when the world's opportunity shall come.

THE CHURCH'S GLORIOUS HIGH CALLING

The High Calling of the Church is the most wonderful opportunity which God has ever given to any of His creatures. Those who have made a Covenant of Sacrifice with God may have severe experiences now; but later the faithful ones amongst them will have glory, honor and immortality, and in the ages to come God will show the exceeding riches of His grace toward them through Christ Jesus. (Eph. 2:4-7) But who amongst those that have this hope would surrender it and take Restitution instead a perfect human body, a perfect home in a perfect earth, perfect fruits, beautiful flowers and all the grandeurs of Restitution Times? Not one!

How did we attain this hope? By obedience to the Call contained in our text. By nature we were sinners, even as others, members of the fallen race. But as the Apostle points out, we recognize in our nature the Law of right and wrong. We still retained a part of what was originally given to Father Adam and lost by him. Humanity still has something left of the image of God in which Adam was created. The world in general know about the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as ye would that they should do unto you". But "there is none righteous, no, not one." Fallen humanity find it a hard battle merely trying to live right, to do justly by their neighbors, to be kind and just to family and friends.

To this class that have been trying to do the Lord's will and that have found it a hard task to live up to the Divine standard, our Lord Jesus says "Come unto Me" you who are weary and heavy-laden in your attempts to do what is right, to speak no slander, to treat your neighbor always as you would have him treat you. This class have found out that if God were to require perfection of them, they could never come to Him at all; for fallen humanity cannot measure up to His perfect standards.

But why should we come to Jesus, instead of going directly to God? It is because Jesus is God's appointed Way. (John 14:6) God is aware of our fallen estate. He knows that we have inherited our weaknesses of mind and body. He could not accept us thus; hence He has provided for us a Savior and Advocate. He is seeking now for those who are striving to do right, those who realize the grandeur of His requirements in the Golden Rule. To this class He is sending a special Message. He is inviting them to have a share in the sacrifice of Christ Rom. 12:1, 2

HIS GLORIOUS PROVISION IN CHRIST

But no sacrifice can come to the altar of the Lord except that which is without spot or blemish; and we are spotted and blemished. Therefore unless our Lord Jesus imputes of His merit to cover these spots and blemishes, we never could be accepted as joint-sacrificers with Him. He must do this before we can receive the begetting of the Holy Spirit.

Thus those who realize that they come far short of God's standard and need a Savior may come to the Lord. these enter by faith into the rest of God not merely that future rest for the people of God who enter into the Kingdom, but even now, "We who have believed do enter into rest." (Heb. 4:3) We have rest even in these imperfect human bodies. We know that there were weaknesses before, but we did not know how to get rid of them. Now we know that "the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin," from all unintentional weaknesses. How glad we are that Jesus died for our sins! That He has furnished by imputation a covering for all of our imperfections! So we are resting, trusting, refreshed by this knowledge.

"According to thy faith be it unto thee," says the Master. Our justification is all by faith. God does not purpose to justify those who cannot believe. Some can believe more easily than can others. But the time will come when all can believe.

For my own part, I cannot believe as easily as do some people. I must have a certain amount of evidence. But the Lord was willing to accept St. Thomas even if that disciple could not exercise faith quickly in what he had not seen; in fact, the Master even gave him the demonstration which he needed in order to believe. But unless we can accept the Gospel Call with the evidences which the Lord has furnished, we cannot be of the Kingdom class at all. We do accept. We are resting in the promises by faith. The Apostle says, "The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall guard your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." (Phil. 4:7) Just as surely as we are children of God, and are living in covenant relationship with Him, so surely is this promise ours.

So then, if there be any dear friends present today who have not yet come to the Lord, we would give them this Message, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden; and I will give you rest." If you have not been trying to do the will of God, then you are not weary and heavy-laden. But if you have been trying and feeling your impotency, then listen to this Call. do not stop there, however. "Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me," advises our Lord and Savior.

OUR GREAT YOKE-FELLOW

A yoke is a symbol of servitude. by the use of this symbol our Lord implies that those who are set free, either from the yoke of the Law Covenant, as were the believing Jews, or from the yoke of Satan, as were the believing Gentiles should learn to do His will. A yoke is generally arranged for two; and since our Lord speaks of it as His yoke, we are to understand that He also is a Servant. Having come to do the Father's will, He invites us to become true yoke-fellows with Himself in the doing of the Father's will, to be co-laborers with Christ in the great work of the world's deliverance from sin and death.

The secret of the ability to wear this yoke, to have companionship with Christ in His service, and to have as a result a great blessing in our own hearts, lies in our learning to be meek and lowly of heart, as He was. It is impossible for the proud, haughty, self-willed, ambitious or worldly-wise to labor in the same yoke with Jesus, or to find the true rest of soul which we properly seek. But if we are meek, teachable, humble-minded, ready to know and to do the Lord's will at any cost, then indeed we shall find rest.

Those who wear this yoke have the Divine assurance that all things are working together for good to them; that the heavier the burden now, the greater will be the blessing and the reward by and by; that the severer the experiences now, the brighter shall be their character and the surer shall they be of preparedness for the Kingdom. From this view-point every burden is light, not only because the yoke is easy, but because the Lord is their Yoke-fellow, and assumes the weight of the load for those who walk close to Him.

Having a strange, efficient Yoke-fellow is very different from trying to pull the load alone. Of our Lord it was written, "Of the people there was none" with Him. (Isa. 63:3) But how different it is with His footstep followers! Not only do they have brethren to encourage and assist them, but above all they have the Master with them. "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the Age" is His promise. Although we are now in the end of the Age yet the Age will not close until the last member of the Church is called and proven. Moreover the Lord will be with His followers all the way as a true Yoke-fellow.

LEARN OF ME

“Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me,” says the Master. If we have taken His yoke upon us, we are in His School, learning of Him. Yet at the same time we are being taught of the Heavenly Father. He says, “I will put you into the School of Instruction; and the One who has redeemed you I have appointed to be your Teacher. You are to be under the care of your Elder Brother.” So we are learning the necessary lessons day by day, growing in grace, in knowledge, in character-likeness to our Redeemer, in all the fruits of the Holy Spirit.

What are the fruits of the Spirit? Meekness, faith, gentleness, patience, self-control, brotherly kindness, love. the Apostle says that these fruits are manifest can be seen. “If these things be in you and abound,” declares St. Peter, “they make you, that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.” (2 Pet. 1:8,10, 11) We must therefore exercise ourselves according to the Divine arrangements; and then we shall be ready for the graduation, when our Master shall say, “Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things—” you did not do very much, but you had the right spirit, you did the best that you could—” enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.”

“For I am meek and lowly in heart.” This is one of the main lessons in the School of Christ. Whoever has learned to be humble-minded, submissive, gentle, obedient, shall find rest of soul, and finally shall enter into His rest the Kingdom rest. Then the sons of God will have perfect bodies, complete in every sense of the word. They will have the glory, honor and immortality which God has in reservation for those that love Him supremely.

Those who have learned of Christ have made God’s work the chief interest in Life. Therefore they do not give all of their time to the ordinary vocations of mankind. On the contrary, they are determined to follow the Master, to labor for the good of others, and to let the light of Truth shine out wherever, they may go. Having become members of the Christ company, henceforth for them to live is Christ. Their work is to serve the Truth and the brethren, to suffer with their Lord now, and to reign with Him hereafter.

CALL OF THE CHRIST BOTH HEAD AND BODY

Pastor Russell delivered an able discourse here today, from the text, "Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow His steps!" (1 Pet. 2:21.) He said in part:

The Call of the present Gospel Age has been unique. In this Age there is a different kind of justification from what the world will have in the next Age. They will have actual perfection of body, mind and morals. But now, in His manifold Wisdom God has a different arrangement, so that from the time we hear the Lord and accept His conditions we receive justification by faith imputed justification, not the real thing. This does not make us perfect. We have the same brain, the same mind, the same body. It is merely a matter of reckoned righteousness.

But why will God reckon us right when we are wrong? Because we have an Advocate with the Father, and His robe of righteousness covers us. The world is to have a Mediator by and by; but we have an Advocate, Jesus Christ the Righteous. We come to the Father through Him. We give ourselves by consecration to God, realizing that God's arrangements are all in Christ. When we have done this, the merit of Christ is imputed to us and covers all our blemishes. The robe which God's children now wear is called a wedding garment. This pure, white robe is put on by all those who become the disciples of Jesus. We are not appearing in the filthy rags of our own righteousness, but in the perfect robe of our Lord's furnishing. When we gave up our own wills and God accepted our sacrifice, and we received the Spirit of begetting, we became New Creatures in Christ. Old things passed away, all things became new. This robe covers our flesh, which is imperfect. The New Creature needs no covering, because it is begotten of God. It is only because the New Creature has not yet its new body that it needs this old body as a tabernacle and as an instrument of service. "In this tabernacle we groan, being burdened."

This was not so with you before you became a Christian. It is only since we became New Creatures that we are not at home in the body. God has prepared a Heavenly, spiritual body for every one of us who are His people. He will give us this spiritual body in due time; but not until we develop the necessary character in these old bodies. The Father says, Just keep this old body for a while, and let Me see how you will make out with it. Let Me see how you will fight against the flesh. Remember, however, that you are not to fight with carnal weapons, but with the weapons of My Spirit.

We have the whole armor the helmet of salvation, the girdle of Truth, the breastplate of righteousness, the shield of faith, the Sword of the Spirit, and the sandals of preparation of the Gospel of Peace with which to fight against the Adversary and the imperfections of our flesh and to resist their encroachments. Our mind is our great battle-ground. We are surrounded on all sides by the imperfections of the old nature, and we are also surrounded by temptations and besetments from without. This makes it necessary for us to wage a continual warfare, to fight a good fight, that we may come off conquerors, yea, “more than conquerors, through Him that loved us and gave Himself for us.”

THE FATHER HIMSELF LOVETH YOU

God is not looking on coldly and indifferently, but “as a father pitieth his children,” so the Lord pities those who have become His children and are seeking to walk in the footsteps of His Son. He is deeply interested in them. “The Father Himself loveth you.” Oh, that is one of the most precious texts in the Bible, and one of the most wonderful ones as well! We might see how God could feel an interest in us His offspring, but to think that God loves us, if we have become members of the “us” class!

“God so loved the world (with a sympathetic love) that He gave His Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” But this love that God has for the Church is a special love, such as He had for His Only Begotten. These are as dear to Him as the apple of His eye. He sees that nothing shall hurt these. The eye has the attention of the whole mind when it is in trouble. So it is with God’s care for the members of His Church. We are so glad of this special love which has led God to put the robe of Christ’s righteousness upon us! Our Father is not looking upon us as sinners now. Our imperfect flesh is covered by the robe, but the flesh is not to be preserved. Our bodies have been presented as a living sacrifice. They are to be consumed.

CANNOT HAVE BOTH HIGH CALLING AND RESTITUTION

It is a wrong thought to suppose that God will give us the best of everything for our mortal body, and will so guard us as to prevent any injury to our body. It is the New Creature that the Father is preparing for glory, not the natural man; and He is doing this by means of His precious promises. The old man is perishing. God will not give us Restitution; that is for the world in the future.

We who have received the High Calling cannot get Restitution. It is like the child who went to buy a cake with a penny. He wanted the cake, but wanted also to keep the penny. But he could not both keep the penny and get the cake. If he got the cake he must give up the penny. So we cannot get the glory of the High Calling and at the same time hold on to earthly things and earthly blessings. We have become heirs of the Heavenly things, and have been begotten again as spirit beings, like the Lord Jesus. Therefore let us not think that God is offering us also Restitution. We are to sacrifice our humanity. If you find that you have no sufferings for Christ, you have every reason to question whether God is dealing with you as a son.

God delivered up Jesus freely for us all, and He allowed His enemies to smite Him, to spit upon Him, to put a crown of thorns upon His head, to mock and crucify Him. Jesus truly said, "Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head." The Father permitted all this because He was dealing with Jesus as His Son, whom He had begotten to a new nature, and who was demonstrating His worthiness by obedience in the things which He suffered. It will be so with us if we are true to the Lord, even as it is written: "My Son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of Him; for whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the Father chasteneth not? But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons."

BUT FEW FIND THE NARROW WAY

God did not choose angels for this wonderful High Calling; but all who have received this Call and the begetting of the Spirit, that they may become joint-heirs with Christ, must every one receive chastening, disciplining, testing, because of the great and honorable and exalted position to which God has called them. It is such a wonderful thing that God wishes to test the loyalty and faithfulness unto death of every one who will be of that glorious company. So then, instead of thinking that you are having such great trials, that you are always in some kind of trouble, that you are peculiar in this respect, you will rather think, I wonder how it is that the Lord lets me have so few of these terrible trials; I should think He would want to prove me more.

Not many will prove themselves worthy. "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom," said the Master. It is only a "little flock" that the Father is calling out now. He is the Chief Shepherd of this "little flock," who walk in the narrow way. "Straight is the gate, and narrow is the way that leadeth unto the life, and few there be that find it." The Heavenly Father is the One who has called us. We are following Jesus because God has appointed Him to be the Captain of our salvation, our great Under-Shepherd, whom the Father made perfect through suffering. Every one who follows Jesus must first be called, then proven and found faithful through sufferings, even unto death. The Father is deeply interested in all this.

LO, I COME TO DO THY WILL, O GOD

I remind you, dear friends, you whom God has called, if indeed it be that you have heard His voice, that Jesus did nothing but what He heard from the Father. He said, "My word is not Mine, but the Father's which sent Me." So the Message that Jesus gave us is the Message of the great Chief Shepherd, the Father. This Message coming to us from the Father has been for the purpose of calling us now to be His sheep. "Gather My saints together unto Me," saith Jehovah, "those who have made a Covenant with Me by sacrifice." So then, as the Apostle puts it, "Ye see your Calling, brethren." (1 Cor. 1:26-29.) We are not called to be Roman Catholics, Lutherans, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, etc., but called to be sons of God.

The Message is not, Gather them together unto the Pope of Rome, or unto Luther, or Calvin, or Wesley, or any other human leader, but "Gather them unto Me" Jehovah. These are called to sacrifice. There are no exceptions. If you are not a sacrificer, then you are not of them. These have heard the Father's Call, and have presented their bodies to be living sacrifices acceptable unto God. Jesus our great High Priest has made an atonement for our sins and made this possible. He has become our Surety, our Advocate with the Father, and makes us acceptable as sacrifices.

Jesus at the age of thirty came to John at Jordan. He came as soon as it was possible under the Law. He presented Himself to the Father. What He did on that occasion we all know. The Prophet, speaking for Jesus and telling what were His heart sentiments, says, "Lo, I come to do Thy Will, O God!" everything written in the Book. What book? The Book of the Law and the Prophets. Everything which God had caused to be written respecting the Messiah, Jesus was ready to do.

There was a serpent lifted up in the wilderness by Moses. And it was written, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up." There was the bullock slain by the high priest, Aaron, on the Day of Atonement, in connection with the Tabernacle service. And there was the lamb that was slain every spring at the Passover. All this was written in the Book concerning Him, the Lamb of God. Also it was prophesied that He would be led as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He would open not His mouth.

And so Jesus said, at the time of His consecration, "I come to do Thy will, O God, as in the volume of the Book it is written of Me!" He could not then understand all that was written, but He said, "I delight to do Thy will, O My God!" Whatever Thou hast written in the book, show it to Me, dear Father! I cannot see it clearly now, but whatever is there I will delight to do it, no matter how severe or how great the sacrifice. And then Jesus symbolized His consecration unto death by His baptism in the river Jordan, showing forth both His death and His resurrection.

CONSECRATION MUST BE TO GOD ONLY

This same figure of baptism in water is for you and me, and it becomes an outward confession that whatever is written in the Book concerning us we will be glad to do. We rejoice to do the will of God, and desire that His will may be done in us, even as it was done in our Master. This is the only kind of sacrifice that God will accept. One says, I have consecrated myself to my church. Others say, I will consecrate myself to God and then will try mission work. Another says, I will consecrate myself to work for God in the temperance field. God did not ask them to do any of this. That is not acceptable sacrifice. God says that we are to consecrate ourselves to Him only, and put no restrictions around our sacrifice. "Thy will be done in me, whatever that may be," should be our heart sentiment.

So then we see what God has arranged for us, and how reasonable it all is that we have been invited to become partakers of Christ's sufferings now in order that we may become sharers in His glory to follow. It has been an invitation, not a command. A command to sacrifice our lives would not have been just. God set before us a great prize. He made no threat, used no force. If we do not wish to come without being forced we cannot come at all. He has merely sent forth His Message, and wherever that Message goes it appeals to certain hearts, and to those only.

IS OUR WIRELESS RECEIVER IN TUNE

It is like the wireless messages that go forth from the telegraph instrument. Waves of sound go out miles and miles, clear across the Atlantic ocean. They go from New Jersey clear over into Germany. It is not every one that can catch the message. The send-ing instrument is tuned to a certain key. If you have a good co-hearer, or receiving instrument, and yet do not have your co-hearer properly tuned, you cannot receive the message at all. If you have a good co-hearer and get it in line with the message that is coming in, you can get the message. It is often necessary to tune the receiver up higher and higher before it gets in tune with the sending instrument.

And so you and I must have been in tune with God before we could hear His Message; and we must continue to keep in tune with Him if we would continue to receive messages from Him.

God's messages pass over the heads of millions of people and they do not hear. "Eyes have they, but they see not; ears have they, but they hear not." "Blessed are your eyes for they see, and your ears, for they hear!" Many in Jesus' day had co-hearers that were not properly attuned to receive the Message of the Son of God, and they refused the words of Jesus. Their thoughts were not in tune.

So it is today. God is finding the humble and sincere, those who are in tune with Him. I trust that we are in tune to receive the Message which our great Shepherd has sent forth; that we have true co-hearers, and are keeping our instruments in tune with the infinite One, so that we shall be able to hear the Message more and more fully, and are continuing in that love that rejoices to lay down life itself in His service. In the 8th Chapter of Romans we read that God has foreordained that all who would be of the Church class in glory must be copies of His dear Son; otherwise we shall not receive the "prize" no others can obtain it.

CHANGE OF THE CHURCH NEAR AT HAND

Now, dear friends, I cannot tell you when we shall reach the end of our race course. As far as I can see, judging from the Word, we must be near, very near, even at the door. We are certainly down in the time referred to by Jesus when men's hearts would fail them for fear. Every financier and statesman is fearful respecting the future. The things coming upon the earth are causing great perplexity. But when we, the Lord's true people, see these things beginning to come to pass, we are to lift up our heads and rejoice, "knowing that our deliverance draweth nigh."

The time for the glorification of the Church is close at hand. When the door shall once shut, no one else will ever enter therein. The door of mercy for the world will then be thrown open wider than ever, but the door which has been open for the Bride to enter in to her marriage with the Lamb will be closed forever. So then, if we hope to be joint-heirs with Christ, to suffer now and to be glorified shortly, now is the time to make our calling and election sure.

Is your election sure, brother? It is sure upon the terms which God has made. Have you met these terms. If so, God will never fail you. It is absolutely certain with Him. The only uncertainty is with ourselves. If you are faithful to the best of your ability, God asks nothing more. All things are yours if you abide in Him. Continue in the spirit of the Master, growing in grace and in knowledge, and becoming stronger and stronger. His grace will be sufficient for you, for His strength is made perfect in our weakness; and all things the trials, the sufferings, the persecutions and misunderstandings shall work together for good to those who abide in His love, "the called ones according to His purpose." This applies to us, if we are His. So, as we see the terrible trouble drawing nearer, I trust we are becoming stronger in the Truth, and will be pledged to lay down our lives in God's blessed service.

DESIGNED EFFECT OF TRIBULATION

New York City, February 6 Pastor Russell gave a characteristic discourse here tonight at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St. and Broadway. His text was, "We must through much tribulation enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." (Acts 14:22) He said in part:

God gave the kingdom of earth originally to Father Adam, and put everything in subjection to him. But Adam lost his dominion through sin. Then God imposed upon him the death penalty, which was shared through heredity by all his posterity. Jehovah God, fore-knowing man's fall from his holy estate, had provided beforehand for his recovery. In due time, more than four thousand years after the pronouncement of the death sentence, Jesus came to earth to give a Ransom price whereby man might be restored to Divine favor and have an opportunity to gain life eternal. Our Lord's death was the turning-point of the world's history. 1 Cor. 15:21, 22.

Abraham's natural seed, the Jews, were expecting all that God had promised in respect to His favors and the Messianic Kingdom. But there was another feature of God's Plan which they did not see. This was the selection of a church to be Abraham's Spiritual Seed, through whom all the families of the earth were to be blessed. Today we are entering upon the seventh thousand year since man's creation and fall man's great Sabbatic Year. The Church is almost completed. The time for the setting up of the Kingdom has come.

Ever since man lost his kingdom its restoration has been more or less vaguely expected. At the time of the fall God declared that the Seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. All the blessings implied in this statement looked forward to the Messianic Kingdom, through which man's first dominion was to be restored. Now this Kingdom is just at hand. Therefore we are living today in the most important period of the world's history. As the poet has said:

*We are living, we are dwelling,
In a grand and awful time,
In an Age on ages telling;
To be living is sublime."*

These words seem almost prophetic of the glorious time to come, and these glories are about to burst upon the world. But the world will enter into that Kingdom through much tribulation. Mankind are not ready to appreciate their needs, their impotency. They have been thinking that they could do almost anything. Leading minds have thought that they could heal the world, could properly govern and bless it. But now it is gradually dawning upon the people that these hopes and plans are abortive. Now we see their schemes going to pieces. The theories and projects of those Christian people who a short time ago assured us that soon they would convert the world are being scattered like chaff before the wind.

THE TIME OF TROUBLE NECESSARY

These nations which have claimed to be Christian, to be Christ's Kingdom—"Christendom" are demonstrating that they have not understood the real Kingdom at all. Instead of being Christ's Kingdom of blessing and peace, they have proven to be Kingdoms of blood-shed, kingdoms of this world. God will bring in His Kingdom through great tribulation, as foretold by the Prophet Daniel and the Lord Jesus Christ. (Dan. 12:1; Matt. 24:21) This tribulation has already begun. We can hardly imagine anything worse, but present distresses are only "the beginning of sorrows". Darker and darker will grow the times until men's hearts shall utterly fail them. All their cherished hopes and plans will be overthrown by the mighty whirlwind of trouble. Then earth's rightful King will take control and bring order out of confusion. Upon the ruins of human institutions, plans and shattered hopes men shall see arise a glorious new arrangement which shall be "the desire of all nations".

Men's hearts are already failing them though fear of the things which they see coming upon the earth. (Luke 21:25-28) This is because they are entering into the coming Kingdom through much tribulation. God cannot introduce His Kingdom through peace and blessing. Men have no ears to hear his Word. They are too busy looking after their own projects and affairs, too busy making money. They care not for God, do not appreciate him. Consequently they require a catastrophe to awaken them. The coming great tribulation will do this most thoroughly. The ears that now hear only the jingle of money will then open to hear something much more important. Men will begin to cry unto the Lord, as upon the Sea of Galilee the disciples cried unto Jesus. Then He arose and rebuked the wind and the waves; and immediately there was a great calm. Matt. 8:23-27; Psa. 46.

THE REAL THOUGHT OF THE TEXT

An examination of our context reveals the fact that the Apostle is referring, not to the trouble upon the world, but to that upon the Church. Living at the beginning of the Gospel Age, he was telling the Church of the tribulations necessary to fit them for the positions in the Kingdom to which God has called them. So surely as we are God's children we shall have tribulation. At first our painful experiences are not seen to be a blessing; but after a while we come to see that adversity drives us nearer to God and gradually develops strength of character.

The Church will not share the world's tribulation. Those who are called and chosen and faithful will be accounted worthy to escape those things coming upon the world. (Luke 21:36) The tribulation of the Church will be different from that of the world. Our Lord Jesus suffered tribulation. That of the Church will be similar to His. Messiah's entrance into the Kingdom is different from the way in which the world will enter. Jesus enters as King; and the church is invited to share with Him His Kingdom, as joint-heirs, under His Headship. The world will enter into the Kingdom as subjects of the King.

GOD'S HARP OF MANY STRINGS

We are beginning to see reasons for every feature of the Divine Plan. The Church is called to wonderful glory and honor. In Rev. 14:1-3 we read of a song which no one could learn to sing except the hundred and forty-four thousand who will, with their Lord and Head, constitute the Church in glory. This song is a Message. We who have learned are singing it in all the affairs of our lives. The world does not understand this song; neither does the Church nominal, nor do the babes in Christ. A Christian must get beyond the infantile state before he can sing this new song.

Not all Christians have the ability to sing this song. Some can sing it more appreciatively than can others. The whole Divine Testimony, whether communicated by the Law, the Prophets, our Lord or His Apostles, is in harmony; and this fact is the proof of their Divine inspiration. The Scripture of the Old and New Testaments constitute what the Lord Himself calls "the Harp of God." When tuned by the holy Spirit dwelling in our hearts, and swept by the fingers of devoted searchers after Divine Truth, that Harp yields the most entrancing melodies that ever fell on mortal ears.

Once some of us harped about civic righteousness, prohibition, female suffrage, etc. But now we have something far grander. We have the most important subject in all the world. We are harping about the Divine Plan of Salvation. We have the Message of God, the glad Tidings which yet shall be to all people. We are ambassadors for the Lord. He has accepted us in Christ, and has authorized us to tell His Message to all who will hear to tell them that God will receive into His favor again those who come to Him through the Savior, through faith in the precious blood of Christ.

But when we come to discuss some of the deep things of God, we sing, as it were, a new song. It is not really new, however; for it was sung in the days of the Apostles. But it has been so long forgotten that it is practically new today. All of the people of God are privileged to learn this song. Some learn it more quickly than others. It is "the song of Moses and the Lamb." Rev. 15:3, 4.

When we come to see how great is god's Plan, formed before the foundation of the world--that Jesus should be the Lamb of God, that would take away the sin of the world; that in due time God would select a Bride for his Son; that afterwards He would establish the glorious Messianic Kingdom for a thousand years, in order that every member of Adam's race might have an opportunity to hear of God's love in Christ and be saved; and that eventually all the willfully wicked would be destroyed we are indeed ready to say, "How wonderful are Thy works, O Lord! Who shall not come and worship Thee!"

Preparation For Future Exaltation

It is to this class who can sing "the song of Moses and the Lamb," those who have given their hearts to the Lord, who have been accepted by the Father, and who have become the children of God through spirit-begetting it is to this class that our text applies. How reasonable is the thought that we should enter the Kingdom through much tribulation? If the Master needed tribulation in order to be perfected as a Son, to demonstrate His love and loyalty to the Father's will, how could we expect to be treated differently? How otherwise could the Heavenly Father recognize us as His children?

Perhaps we once wondered why the Lord permitted such trials and tribulations to come upon the righteous, while the wicked often had a comparatively easy time. Now we see why this is. God has invited these righteous ones to become kings and priests, to reign over the earth during the next Age; and in order to qualify for this great work this class must reach a certain condition of mind and heart, a certain development of character. Unless they learn their lessons they will not be prepared for their future high station. Every one exalted to reign in the Kingdom of God will be qualified for his place; otherwise he will not be there. No one will be appointed through favoritism or partisanship. Each individual must thoroughly demonstrate his fitness.

No trial can overtake us that is not subject to the Lord's control. He will make all things work together for good to those who love Him. If we would be of the Church of glory, we must become like our Lord, who loved righteousness and hated iniquity. We must be thoroughly honest. We cannot do as do others, for the reason that we are following a different course. We have entered into a Covenant with God, not only to love God with all our soul and to keep the Golden Rule, but to do more in order to be merely just we are bound to love God and keep the Golden Rule.

Jesus did all this and more. He loved His neighbor far beyond what He would have His neighbor do for Him. His love led Him to die for others. We are privileged to do likewise.

We must live up to the Golden Rule. Above all things we should learn to appreciate and practise the Golden Rule; for it is a fundamental principle in God's requirements. The Heavenly Father must have the first place in our hearts. god must be first. We must intend to love our neighbors as ourselves, although we may not always be able to do so. While we may not be able to do all that we would, yet the longing to do so must ever be in our hearts. And it is this honest will that brings us into conflict, necessarily, with those of a contrary will.

Thus we see whence this tribulation comes to the Lord's people. In the case of Jesus. his name was cast out as evil, because he was true, because He was honest, because He would not join with the scribes and Pharisees, because He was wholly loyal to the Lord. And "the disciple is not above his Master, nor the servant above his Lord. If they have called the Master of the House Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of His Household?" Matt. 10:24-26

STONES FOR THE SPIRITUAL TEMPLE

Throughout the Gospel Age God's people have been prepared for the Kingdom "through much tribulation." St. Peter speaks of them as "living stones," for the great spiritual Temple. Of that glorious Structure Jesus is the Chief Corner Stone. He has already been chiseled, polished and taken His position. The last members of the Church are now being chiseled and polished for whatever place they shall occupy in His glorious Temple. for more than eighteen hundred years the work of preparing the "living stones" has been in progress. Their tribulations have been preparing them for their position in the Temple structure.

But if under the Lord's chisel or hammer any one should fail in obedience, in submission, in loyalty, in learning his lesson, he might become unfit for the place to which he had been invited, and thus become what St. Paul calls "a castaway". (1 Cor. 9:27) He might serve some other purpose in the future, but he would not be fit for the place for which he was originally intended.

We should submit ourselves fully to God. We are to be "His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them". (Eph. 2:10) It is God who is working in us both to will and to do. When first we gave our hearts to Him, He was working in us to will. After the spirit-begetting that followed our consecration to Him, our minds began to expand. We began to grow in grace and in knowledge. Then we began to see and appreciate our privilege of serving the Lord. Thus God's grace worked in us to do.

God does not accept works as a ground of justification, however. We are justified because of our faith in the Ransom-price provided by our Lord Jesus. Until we became children of God we had neither opportunity nor ability to do any work that God would accept. Now that we are related to Him as children, He is working in us. But we have hardly begun our good works as yet. They are to be carried forward throughout the Millennial Age, and on into the eternal future.

OUR FATHER'S TENDER CARE

But now we are not able to do much. Our main work now is to show God by our endeavors what we would like to do. We may make heroic efforts; we may do our very best in the Lord's service; but after all there is little that we can do, and that little is done very imperfectly. Our work is acceptable to God because of the honest, earnest, loving effort which He sees; for it represents our heart's sincere desire to do His will. When we first come to God, we have not learned to do things in a wise way; and we are often like a child carrying a pail of water and spilling more than he carries home. God lets us have these experiences, that we may learn wisdom by our mistakes. Meantime, He accepts the will that prompts our act, imperfect though it be.

We are not, therefore, to become discouraged because of our mistakes and imperfections. As we seek to serve our Heavenly Father. He is very tender and merciful to us. Let us take everything to Him in prayer, and persevere in the good way. Let us cultivate in our hearts a strong love for everything that is right, that is noble, that is Godlike. We are to love righteousness and hate iniquity injustice. This rule should apply to all the affairs of life, both great and small. We should always take our stand for what is right.

Then let us have our minds so thoroughly established in righteousness that when the Lord shall give us a perfect body, we may be ready, may be found worthy of a share in the glorification of the overcoming Church. But let us remember that we shall not get the necessary qualifications by miracles, but by trials, difficulties, tribulation. (Rom. 5:3-5) For it is written, "We must through much tribulation enter into the Kingdom of God."

AM I SERVING GOD OR THE ADVERSARY?

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 13 -Pastor Russell delivered a very impressive discourse here today, using for his text Romans' 6:16 -- "His servants ye are to whom ye obey." The Pastor said in part:

If the words of our text were rightly appreciated, they would make a deep impression upon the whole civilized world. Our Lord instructs us that there are only two Masters God and the Adversary. We are serving either the right or the wrong. We must serve the one cause or the other. There is no middle ground. As we look over the world, we see nations engaged in deadly strife. Whom are these millions serving? Whom do they profess to serve? They have been accustomed to speak and to think of themselves as Christian nations. But we doubt whether any intelligent person would make such a claim today.

The Scriptures clearly point out that there are no Christian nations; but that God is preparing a new nation, the members of which will constitute the rulers of the world when the Messiah sets up His Kingdom. When this new nation comes into power, all other nations will be out of business. We accept the Bible declaration that these are the kingdoms of this world, and that they are under the domination of "the Prince of this world," Satan. And they are manifesting what is their true condition. The Apostle tells what are the fruits of the Spirit of Christ gentleness, meekness, long-suffering, patience, godliness, brotherly-kindness, love. He tells us also of the opposite spirit the Satanic spirit anger, strife, bitterness, hatred, envy, murder. (Gal. 5:19-23); Col. 3:5-8) Judging the nations according to this Scriptural standard, we can draw only one conclusion.

Doubtless there are true saints of God in all these warring nations, but the nations themselves are surely far from Christian. They profess to be serving Christ, yet by their works they deny Him. "His servant ye are to whom ye render service." These nations have been giving money and sending missionaries to teach the heathen nations how to be Christians, how to do right. What impression must the present spectacle in Europe make upon these heathen people? Surely some grievous mistake has been made in calling these nations Christian. They are each serving purely selfish interest. The object of each is solely its own advancement. It is a great shame to see these nations bickering as to how much territory they have gained or must gain, when they have sent millions of men to slaughter and are laying waste homes and lands, as well as breaking unnumbered human hearts.

GOD'S KINGDOM TO DISPLACE THESE

So far as can be discerned, principle seems to have been lost sight of; the main issue seems to be, "What can we do? How can we further our interests as a world power? How can we become a greater nation?" Although we are not qualified to judge hearts, nevertheless it seems that there has been great hypocrisy man and nations pretending to be what they are not.

"His servants ye are to whom ye render service." Evidently the service of many both in America and elsewhere, has been selfish. Wherever we may go throughout Christendom, we see church steeples rising on every hand. One would naturally think, "How happy these people must be! How they must love the Lord and one another!" But, alas! how often we find many things that are contrary to "the spirit of Christ!"

The Word of God has foretold all this however; and despite the present gloomy outlook we are assured in this Word that the glorious Kingdom of Righteousness under God's dear Son will soon displace these kingdoms of this world, whose lease of power has now expired. But this will not be until the Church of Christ shall have passed from these present conditions of strife, selfishness and dishonesty and shall have been glorified with their great Head. Then a new force will take control in the earth. Every evil thing will be brought under restraint. All the people will be enlightened, and enabled to come to a full knowledge of God and righteousness. Gradually the world will be uplifted and blessed; for they will have learned the bitter lesson of the exceeding sinfulness of sin, as manifested in the fruitage of selfishness.

Apparently many things are taught and practiced under the name of Christianity that are not really Christian at all. Many people profess to believe what they do not actually believe. Whom are they serving? They cannot be serving the Lord; for the Lord does not desire dishonesty in His service. Apparently many join the church for purely selfish reasons. When people join a denomination whose teachings they do not believe, it would seem as though they did so for some personal advantage, as though some earthly interest is being served. People seem ready to profess almost anything if thereby they can make a better living or get along more prosperously. We are not judging the heart, nor do we wish to condemn any individual; but surely the majority know not the first principles of the matter of being a Christian.

We ask ourselves, To whom are this majority rendering service? Evidently they are serving Self. Nearly everybody is bowing down to himself, seeking his own pleasure and profit. Although there are noble exceptions, yet this seems to be the rule. Of all the various forms of idolatry, the meanest and worse is self-worship, the doing of everything just for self. Mankind do not seem to realize that whoever is actuated by selfishness is rendering effective service to Satan and his empire.

WHAT IS IT TO BE A CHRISTIAN

As a counterfeit always implies the genuine, so counterfeit Christians imply the existence of genuine Christians. The genuine Christian, the loyal Christian, serves the Lord only; for this is the meaning of his contract, his consecration vow. Jesus said, "If any man will be My disciple, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." This means the giving of self to the Lord. The Master lays a deep foundation. Giving ourselves away, renouncing our own will, is the hardest thing one can do. But whoever would enter the School of Christ must do this very thing.

To give ourselves to anyone except the Lord would be most unwise, most dangerous. Satan and his evil associates, the demons, seek to gain control of the human will. They seek to have people present their bodies to spiritism and occultism, that they may ensnare their victims and make slaves of these poor unfortunates, by taking away their will and substituting the will of another, as in hypnotism, etc. The will should be subjected to no one but God not even to husband or wife or dearest friend. We may properly enough submit our course to another, but the will should never be submitted. To the Lord alone we may safely entrust our will. Given over to Him, it is made strong for the right, and our best interests are conserved.

To those who desire to follow in the path of righteousness, the Lord says, "Give Me thine heart." This means, Submit your will to Me. But merely to submit, saying "I do not care to have it so, although I will be obedient," will not do. This will not bring us into the Lord's family. The Lord will have no half-hearted service. We must give all or nothing. We must give up our will absolutely, must have no contrary will of our own. We must be all the Lord's Should some one say, "This is carrying the matter very far," we reply, Yes; it is carrying the thought to the limit. This is exactly what Jesus did. He said to the Father, "Not My will, but Thine, be done." On another occasion He said, "I came not to do Mine own will, but the will of Him that sent Me." He would have no other will but the will of the Father; and He set us an example, that we should follow his steps. To do so is to be a Christian.

The Apostle speaks of seeing from the Divine standpoint; of looking at things as God looks at them. So after we have given our hearts to the Lord, after we have been accepted in Christ and after God has given us His holy Spirit, we learn in the School of Christ to see things from God's viewpoint. Having given up our own wills to Him, we desire to think as He thinks, to view matters as He views them, and to do as He would have us do.

A COMMON, BUT INCORRECT, THOUGHT

God has His own way of choosing, and He accepts only certain ones; no one can enter His family except upon those definite terms which He himself has made. This does not mean, however, that He will harm those who are not chosen; or that He will say to any one, "If you do not become My son, I will send you to the Devil, to be roasted and tormented to all eternity." Our God would not do this. Whoever would thus act would be a devil. Our God loves all, and has arranged a Plan of Salvation for all who will accept His terms during the Messianic Kingdom.

The way of life now open is a difficult one. "Strait (cramped, difficult of entrance) is the gate, and narrow is the way, that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." (Matt. 7:14) It is very evident that the great majority of mankind do not understand the matter at all. "Eyes have they, but they see not; ears have they, but they hear not, neither do they understand" the Word of the Lord. The words of our Savior seem not to penetrate, even when they are read. How thankful should those be whose eyes of understanding have been opened to see the terms laid down by the Lord!

Comparatively few people have a correct view of consecration. On one occasion a young minister came to us, wishing to cooperate in some way in our work. We said to him, "Have you made a full consecration of yourself to the Lord?" "Oh, yes, yes!" was his response. Then he began to speak of his talents, his oratorical ability, etc. We saw that he had considerable pride and very lofty ideas of how great a preacher he was to be; and we wished to make sure that he understood what consecration means.

So we said, "You know that all the true followers of Christ must have the same attitude that the Apostle Paul had. He declared that he counted all things but loss and dross that he might win Christ. The Bible presents the matter in just that way. Unless we make a thorough work of our consecration, we shall not win the prize of our High Calling. This making a consecration indicates that we shall be thus loyal to the Lord and thus much in opposition to the Devil."

The young theologian began to get his eyes of understanding open a little. He said, "I was not thinking of going into it as deeply as that." We answered, "Brother, it is a matter of going in deeply or not at all. There are not different stages of entrance. There is but one Door our Lord Jesus Christ; and consecration is connected with the entering through that door. The Lord will not change His terms to please you or me. We must either enter as He invites us to go, or else remain outside. Full consecration is the only way into the Body of Christ.” Then we pointed out to him what great talents St. Paul had and how he counted them as nothing in comparison to attaining a membership in Christ’s Body, the Church. But all this was a new thought to him.

WHAT SHALL I RENDER UNTO THE LORD

When we begin to see the matter from the right viewpoint, we see that at best we have very little to give to the Lord. When we begin to realize what He has offered us in exchange for all that we have, we really feel ashamed to offer our all to Him; for it is very, very small. He has offered us glory, honor, immortality, joint-heirship with Christ in His Throne. (Rom. 2:7; 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:12) And what have we to give Him in return! So far as being of real benefit to Him, our all is really worthless. We are the ones who receive the benefit. We are the recipients of marvelous favor, amazing grace. It is as if we were to offer to a man of immense wealth a few broken chairs, a cracked stove and a ragged carpet in return for being made his heir.

God desires to have our heart, our will, our affection; and He graciously condescends to accept these along with our poor imperfect talents and to use them in His service, in the blessing of others. When we give Him our will, we give Him our all; for it includes our talents, our pocketbook, our influence, our time everything that we possess. Then He places all these in our hands to be used for Him; and we, as His stewards, are to render to Him an account of how we use these things. All that we now do is to be done to the glory of God. We are to consider His will as to what we shall wear, what we shall eat, how we shall spend our time, where we shall go, etc. As His servants, we are to seek His will, His glory, in everything.

WHOSE SERVANT AM I

What service have you rendered today, yesterday, last week; last month? We cannot do much; and when we have done our very best, we are still unprofitable servants, as the Master told us; that is, we are not able to bring any real gain to our Lord. (Luke 17:10) But He lovingly and graciously accepts our best endeavors, and grants us His blessings. It would be impossible for a true child of God to tell what Divine grace has done for him. What shall we render unto the Lord for all His benefits to us? surely, as the Psalmist says, “I will take the cup of salvation (the cup which the Father pours) and will call upon the name of the Lord; I will pay my vows unto the Most High.” Psa. 116:12-14

Let us who have taken these vows upon us to be wholly the Lord’s be very careful, as the days go by, that the words of our mouth and all the conduct of life, even the very thoughts of our minds, shall be such, and such alone, as will bring glory to God making these mortal bodies faithfully serve our Master.

As we give this subject prayerful consideration, we see more and more how close girdling this whole matter is. It enters into every detail of life. Our God is watching to see whose servants we really are. He scrutinizes us, not unkindly but lovingly, to see whether we have the filial spirit of a true son the spirit of Christ. In His faithfulness He tests us that it may be demonstrated whether we are wholly loyal in thought, word and action, or whether at heart we are self-seeking. He does not expect perfection in the flesh; for He knoweth our feeble frame. But He expects us to do our best; and the merit of our dear Redeemer will cover what we are unable to perform.

The Lord our God is giving each one of His children the opportunity to prove to Him, to our Lord Jesus and to the angels how sincere we are, how thorough is our consecration, and how desirous we are to do the Divine will. He gives us opportunity to “lay down our lives for the brethren,” and “to do good unto all men, especially unto the Household of Faith.” The Lord is taking notice of all these things; and “a book of remembrance” is being “written before Him for them that fear the Lord, and that think upon His name. And they shall be Mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that Day when I make up My jewels; and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not. Mal. 3:16-18

CHRIST COMPANY'S FIGURATIVE BEHEADING

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 20 Pastor Russell was here today and delivered a discourse of great power and interest. We give a condensed report of his address. His text was from Rev. 20:4: “And I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God... And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.”

The Pastor referred to Revelation as a beautiful symbolic book picturing very much truth. He said that the chapter from which his text was taken contained in itself several pictures in a few words covering the entire Millennial Age. Satan's binding at the beginning of the age is first shown; then the judgment of those who are sitting upon the thrones of earth, which judgment has now begun; then the exaltation of the governments of the world, while capable perhaps of giving some blessing, are not satisfactory and must soon give place to the new Government under God's dear Son, which will bring blessing to all the families of the earth.

A brief mention is made respecting what shall occur at the close of the thousand years of Christ's Reign. After men have been made perfect, they must be tested, while Satan shall be "loosed for a little season," prior to his destruction. Then going back to the beginning of the Millennium, the Revelator depicts the Great White Throne, before which all the world, the living and the dead, are to be brought for judgment, for trial, during that thousand years. They shall receive the wonderful opportunities of the glorious kingdom of Christ.

HOW THESE SOULS ARE "BEHEADED"

But the Pastor's subject related to a part of Verse 4. He declared that here, as elsewhere in Scripture, the word soul signifies person. Through erroneous doctrines this word has come to have attached to it a wrong meaning, as being something that people POSSESS rather than something that they ARE. St. John the Revelator was given a vision of the persons who would be beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God. He was given a foreview of what would be beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God. He was given a foreview of what would be their portion--first of suffering, then of glory and reward.

Their reward would be to live and reign with Christ. These are a special class, who had been beheaded for a certain reason. The word "beheaded" here is symbolic. All the true Church were to be beheaded. We know that Christ and the majority of the Apostles were not literally beheaded. And but few of Jesus' followers have been beheaded literally.

The Bible shows, said the speaker, that God has appointed that those who come into Christ shall renounce their own headship, their own will, and receive instead the will of Him whom God has chosen to be their Head Jesus Christ. They are to be members of Christ's Body. "God hath given Him (Christ) to be the Head over the Church which is His Body." (Col. 1:18:Eph. 1:22-23; 1 Cor. 1:27) Jesus is the great Mediator of the world. During this Gospel Age, God has been preparing a Church class, who are to be the members of the Body of this Mediator and to be associated with Him in His great future work for mankind. The first members of this Body were the Apostles. These freely gave up their lives in the Cause of Christ. They gave up their wills, submitting themselves to the will of God they were beheaded.

Down through this present Age members have been added to Christ, first from the Jews, then from the Gentiles from every nation, kindred and tongue. The only way that any one can become a member of this anointed body of Christ is to present himself a sacrifice to God, first trusting in the sacrificial merit of Jesus. He is our great Substitute, who has redeemed us from the death penalty resting upon Adam's race. Accepting Him thus, and presenting ourselves to God through Christ, His merit is imputed to us and we are accepted as joint-sacrificers with Jesus, who then becomes our Head. We are thus beheaded. Our own will is dead. So all during this Age there has been a little company of people who have taken a course different from that of the remainder of the world, different from that of the apostate systems. These become sons of God. They are dead with Jesus as human beings, and are begotten to a new, a spiritual nature. Col. 3:3

WHAT THIS BEHEADING SIGNIFIES

The Pastor emphasized the importance that all those who make a consecration of themselves to God understand clearly that they are thus renouncing all the hopes and ambitions of the world, for the far grander and Heavenly hopes now held out to those who become disciples of Christ, who deny themselves to take up their cross and follow Him. The question for each one who has made this choice is, Am I faithfully following in the footsteps of Jesus? Jesus gave up His will wholly to the Father. He said, "I Came not to do Mine own will, but the will of Him that sent Me." We are to follow His example, to walk in His steps. We are to lay down our lives for the brethren, as He laid down His life.

The losing of our heads, our wills, does not mean that we actually have no will, but that our wills are fully submitted to God's will. Whatever we see to be contrary to His will for us is to be wholly relinquished. We may be sure, said the Pastor, that our Savior when on earth, being a perfect man, had a will, a strong will, but that will was entirely submitted to the will of His Heavenly Father. "Not My will, but Thine, be done," was His expression. "The cup which My Father hath poured for Me, shall I not drink it?" He said.

Because our Lord Jesus fully gave up His will to God and was obedient even unto the ignominious death of the cross, the Father highly exalted Him, giving Him a name "far above angels, principalities and powers and every name that is named." (Eph. 1:20,23) And we, His church, if faithful to our Heavenly Calling are to be exalted with Him, and under Him as our Head. The Bible presents a beautiful picture: God, the Father of all; our Lord Jesus Christ next to the Father; the Church; the Body, or Bride, of Christ, next; then the lower spiritual orders of being; lastly, will be the restored world, when God's great Plan is complete. How wonderful it seems! said the Pastor. How much more wonderful than anything we could possibly have conceived of ourselves! What a great and good God we have!

GOD'S CHARACTER LONG TRADUCED, NOW UNDERSTOOD

The speaker then dwelt upon the great misconceptions of God's character which have for so many centuries beclouded men's minds. Those nations calling themselves Christian have made God out as worse even than heathen nations represent their gods. While we declared, "God is Love," we pictured Him in our creeds as the veriest Demon taking pleasure in carrying out a Program which would mean an eternity of torture to thousands of millions of our race. But while we were long blinded by the Adversary to thus think of our gracious God, we have great cause for thankfulness that through Divine blessing our eyes are now opening more and more widely, and we can see something of the lengths and breadths and heights and depths of God's LOVE.

When we see how the Father has exalted our Savior for His faithfulness, we who are following in Jesus' footsteps have sure grounds for faith that God will also exalt us with Him. Otherwise we might be inclined to say, "Oh, it is too wonderful! The thought that we have been invited to be sons of God and to share the Divine nature with Jesus seems too marvelous for belief." But when we see how the Father fulfilled His promises to our Lord and Head, and realize that we have been called to share His glory and Throne as His Bride, surely we can believe. Jesus verifies the Father's promise to us, saying, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My Throne, even as I also overcame and am set down with My Father in His Throne." Rev. 3:21

DOOR TO HIGH CALLING STILL OPEN

The Pastor stated that he believes there is still opportunity for some to gain this "High Calling." He believes the "door" to this great favor is not yet closed. There is a little time remaining. If any could gain the whole world and yet lose this great prize, they would be losing much oh, so much! Nothing that earth can offer can compare with it. All the wealth of a multi-millionaire would be as nothing. Many millionaires have great trouble and sorrow.

When we give up our wills to the Lord this is not all. We are then to take up our cross and follow Jesus. We are to carry out our consecration vows. Our time, our influence, our money, our property, our ALL, now belong to God.

The Lord does not mislead us into thinking that fulfilling our consecration is something easy. It does not mean merely going to Church. It means living as Christ lived. It means walking the way of the cross even unto death. The world will consider such a course very foolish. They will say "Don't do it! Have some pleasure in Life. Don't give up your will to anybody!" This would be sound advice if our will were to be given up to any other than God Himself. The Adversary would like to make us think that giving our will to God is a most foolish thing, and then he will endeavor to entrap us so that we are completely in bondage to his will, which is a wholly evil will.

CONTRAST OF SATAN'S SNARES AND GOD'S GUIDANCE

Satan also seeks to ensnare and destroy the individual will through Hypnotism, Mesmerism, etc. It is a dangerous thing. Were it not that God has implanted a strong will in mankind, we cannot doubt that Satan and his evil angels would long ago have led the entire world into complete captivity to sin. He puts light for darkness and darkness for light. We are to be on guard against the machinations of these evil spirits through Spiritism. All these are methods by which the Adversary seeks to seize and capture the will. When our will is given to the Lord, however, it means the turning of it in a direction that will bring our own highest blessing and welfare. Our will is not captured, but guided and strengthened in the right way. We have found by experience how unsatisfactory has been the result of trying to guide ourselves, of following our own will, without the leading of the Lord. Our very best endeavors, unaided by Divine Grace, are very defective and the results disappointing. How glad we are, then, to have the Lord take charge of us and guide our wills and our efforts! We know that thus we are safe.

If any one, said the speaker, is afraid to trust the Lord for fear that He will require something that would be harmful, he had better hold on to himself until he comes to see how fully he can trust the Almighty God with safety. If He were the God we once supposed Him to be, we might well be afraid to place ourselves in His hands. But since we have learned of His love for us, of His wonderful provision for us notwithstanding our fallen condition, of His provision of Restitution for the world, and of the High Calling for the Church, we can well exclaim: "Oh, this is the very personification of Justice and Love!" We rejoice in this great, loving God, and are so glad to give ourselves to Him and call Him our Father.

PASTORAL COMMENTS ON HYMN OF CONSECRATION

The Pastor gave a beautiful, running comment on a popular hymn of consecration, by Frances Ridley Havergal: "Take my life and let it be, Lord, acceptable to Thee." Yes, he said, we are acceptable to God through Christ. Thus only can we come. We give Him our whole life. "Take my hands, and let them move at the impulse of Thy love." Yes, but our hands are imperfect, and it is only through Jesus that our work is acceptable to God, that our hands may glorify Him. "Take my feet, and let them be swift on errands, Lord, for Thee." Yes, we wish Him to use our feet in His dear service. Gladly will we hasten on errands of love for Him. "Take my voice, and let it bring honor always to my King." Yes, we wish Him to take our voice. But our words are very imperfect. Our brain and our tongue are faulty. But the Father says, "I will cover you with the merit of Jesus. He was perfect, and I will credit His perfection to you. Your voice may have sometimes been used to slander another; the tongue has great power for evil as well as good. But now you have submitted that voice, that tongue, to Me, I will make it a power for good."

"Take my lips and let them be moved with messages from Thee." Yes, dear brethren, that is the thought. Let the blessed Message of salvation and grace overflow our lips to God's praise and to the blessing of others. "Take my silver and my gold; nothing, Lord, would I withhold." The Lord answers, Yes, dear child, I will take this which you give to Me. I do not need your gold and silver; for "all the silver and the gold are Mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills." But I will receive it as a mark of your love, as an indication of your devotion to Me.

"Take my moments and my days; let them flow in ceaseless praise." We often fear that our moments may not always praise the Lord as they ought, and our days are not always just what we would like them to be. But our Lord lovingly answers our troubled hearts and says, "I know even better than you do how imperfect you are in word and deed. But through Christ I receive you and accept your imperfect works and endeavors. He will make up for your unavoidable deficiencies." So we take courage and strive that our days and hours and moments may indeed bring glory to our King who so loves us and whom we so love. His arrangement for us in Christ is so wonderful.

"Take my will and make it Thine." Ah, yes! that is the very first thing to be done. "It shall be no longer mine." We wish our will to be the Lord's and His alone. If we have any self-will God cannot use us. "Take my heart, it is Thine own." Yes, we have consecrated our heart with all its impulses and affections to the Lord. "Thus in me Thyself enthroned." Our heart shall be His royal throne forevermore.

*"Take my love, my God; I pour
At Thy feet its treasure store.
Take myself I wish to be Ever, only, all, for Thee!"*

This is indeed our sentiment. The doing of all this is a life-work. While our consecration was the work of a moment, yet the fulfilling of it is the work of our entire lives. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." So while in one sense our beheading, our decapitation, is an instantaneous matter, yet we must continue to keep ourselves beheaded even unto death. Then we shall live and reign with Christ a thousand years, and be His associates in all His glory and honor forevermore. Glory, honor, immortality! Wonderful, wonderful!

If such a prize does not appeal to our hearts, what would? When we see the loyalty and courage manifested by the soldiers of the warring nations across the sea, how they are willing to go down to the valley of death for their kings, not knowing what they are fighting for, how loyal should we be to our Heavenly King--we who have hopes so glorious held out to us, who have a King so infinitely worthy of our zeal and loyalty? Our King does not say, "Go," He says "Come." Gladly will we be beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God.

LIVING THE LIFE OF THE TRUE CHRISTIAN

New York City, March 5 -- Pastor Russell delivered a very pointed, practical address this evening, at the New York City Temple, West 63rd Street, near Broadway, from the text: "See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil." (Eph. 5:15-16) He said in part:

This text, like all the injunctions of the Scriptures, is addressed to the Church of God, not to the world; for the Lord is not dealing with the world at present. It is an important thing to recognize this fact. Many, losing sight of it, are in confusion when they come to study the Bible. In His Word the Lord is not telling the world what they should do, but is telling His servants what steps they should take from the time they become His people. Many think of the Bible as being addressed to the entire world, and then are surprised that the world cannot understand it. But we who know that our Lord said to His disciples, "To you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven," are not surprised that before any can understand God's Word they must take the step of full consecration to Him.

It is to Christians, then, that the Lord gives this message of our text. God's children should walk circumspectly, wisely, carefully, redeeming the time. Our time is redeemed, bought back, by making some sacrifice, that we may have that time to use profitably. There are certain natural claims upon our time. We need time to eat and to sleep, to earn and prepare our food. Besides this, there are other calls. Our families have some demands upon us, whether Christians or not. Husbands have some proper demands upon wives, and wives upon husbands; children upon parents, and parents upon children. Our neighbors have some proper call upon us in the way of helpfulness.

MANY SEDUCTIVE ALLUREMENTS TODAY

Then, beyond all our obligations, the world now has many things to allure and attract, to please eye and ear. There are newspapers and periodicals, moving pictures and fairs, art galleries, concerts, and what not. Anyone who has brains may have his time filled to the full in these multitudinous ways. The Lord's children find that their entire time might be taken up by earthly interest, if they would permit it.

But God has called us to be new creatures. He has put into our minds new plans, new interest, and into our lives new work, new obligations. The earthly ambitions have died since we received the new ambitions, since we have found that the Lord has invited us to become joint-heirs with His Son Jesus in the glories of the Kingdom. We say to ourselves, "All those earthly things are transitory, and never were worth very much at best. The riches which God has promised are everlasting and of infinite value." So we wish to have our minds set upon these things.

God invites us to Himself through the promises of the Bible; and these promises work in us to will and to do His good pleasure. In selecting His Church, the Lord is not using force. We are not called to be driven, but sheep to be led. The Heavenly Shepherd calls His sheep; and they follow Him. "They know His voice," and "they know not the voice of strangers." The Good Shepherd's voice sounds forth from the Bible; and if anybody says of some voice, "This is the voice of the Lord," we are to make sure by going to the Bible and proving or disproving the claim. We might get some serious error even from a friend. We must in every case, as Christians, prove all things by the Word, and hold fast that which is good.

As we endeavor to meditate upon the things God has promised us, we find that we have very little time for that purpose. One may begin the day by thinking, "I will do thus and so." But difficulties and interruptions come pressing in, and fill the day. What shall be done? The Apostle says, Redeem the time buy it back. Curtail some of the other things, that you may have some time to use in the cultivation of your own character, in the study of the Scriptures.

HOW TO STUDY THE BIBLE

Presumably, as Bible students, we have all had experiences in reading the Scriptures without helps. We have read chapter after chapter, and often it did us little good. But we find that there is a different way to study the Bible, by which we may enjoy the Scriptures and be profited. We find that we have needed a kind of outline or plan for study. We now see the outline from Creation down to the Deluge one great period; from the Deluge down to the First Coming of Christ another period; from the First

Coming of Christ to His Second Coming another period; then the Millennial Age; and lastly the ages of glory to follow. This helps to straighten matters out.

When we read, we should ask ourselves, “With what does this part of the Scriptures deal?” The Bible is full of problems to solve, like an arithmetic. We do not merely read through an arithmetic; if we did we would learn little. We are to study the Bible, according to dispensations, and according to what God outlines as His great Plan of the Ages. Nobody can comprehend the Divine Plan of the Ages (Eph. 3:11, Diaglott) without studying it. This plan of God is all outlined in the Bible. We must examine each Scripture in relation to its context. So we need considerable time to understand properly the Word of God.

MILK FOR BABES, MEATS FOR ADULTS

The older we grow as Christians, the more time we find is necessary for these spiritual things. Natural food is to make one strong, bright, intelligent, quick, as a natural man; spiritual food is to make the New Creature intelligent, quick, well established, apt to teach, able to “rightly divide the word of Truth.” As we mature, we need stronger food. It was sufficient that we had milk to start with. But milk will not suffice for adults.

While we are growing to appreciate more the Word of God, the whole world is becoming filled with attractions. But as we see the Day of Christ drawing on, yea, that it is even now upon us, we as God’s children must be more and more attentive to our heavenly calling. Why did not the Lord arrange things some other way, that we might have more time? He wishes to see whether we appreciate the spiritual things or not. Whoever is not hungry for spiritual food, has no desire to go to the spiritual table, is not using his talents along spiritual lines. We should give a good share of our time to the study of the Truth as it is in Jesus. We should have a hunger for righteousness, for Bible Truth. The Lord is testing us. He knows that whoever is really hungry and thirsty for righteousness will redeem the time. And the zeal with which we redeem the time and devote it to the spiritual things is one of the evidences we give of our real Christian character.

TESTS OF OUR LOYALTY TO GOD

If you take time for a picture show, but do not take time for the study of God’s Word, this is abundant proof that you do not love Him supremely. You say that you are hungry for the Word of Truth. How much time do you spend with the newspaper? How much time do you spend with the Bible? There is no use in trying to deceive the Lord. "God is now mocked." He knows all about what we are doing. He will not be deceived in respect to our character.

We know that as Christians we have two natures to deal with. We have the old nature reckoned dead which has its ordinary appetites and desires, the same as other people. We like certain kinds of food. We have a variety of natural tastes, all of which are clamoring for recognition. We desire to investigate machinery, to look into investments, to think about the triumphs of mankind, to study the sciences, etc. These are all right enough in their place. God does not say that it is wrong to have a desire to know; but He is putting things in such a way as to give us tests as to whether we are the more appreciative of these things or of the Heavenly things.

Whoever spends his consecrated time in reading history, novels, etc., or in attending places of amusement, is not spending it in building up the New Creature. Each human being has his natural individual desires; but the New Creature is to put these natural cravings down. The New Creature is as yet only in the mind. He figuratively puts down his foot and says, "God has promised me His grace to rule this body. Backed up by His help, I can succeed. I agreed to sacrifice these earthly interests, and it SHALL BE DONE! I am determined to live on the spiritual plane; therefore I must grow; I must get stronger every day." If we let ourselves drift, the flesh will take possession of everything; and we shall die of spiritual starvation.

The Apostle Paul wrote to certain of the Church of his day, implying that some were still babes. He says, "When for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of this doctrine of Christ, and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat." Heb. 5:12-14. What a sad condition for New Creatures in Christ!

We must not think that we are to do something for somebody else first, neglecting our own spiritual development. As New Creatures we must build up ourselves first. Then we may do all that we can to assist others, "doing good unto all men as we have opportunity, especially to the Household of Faith." This is the speaker's personal contract with the Lord; and thus it is with the whole family of God. We are building one another. The faithful members of Christ's Body are growing, everywhere; and soon, we believe, this spiritual family of God will be completed beyond the veil.

REDEEMING THE MOMENTS

Many of the Lord's people do not see the force of the Apostolic injunction that they should redeem the time; and therefore they are living at a disadvantage. They do not notice the many minutes they waste in the twenty-four hours. Let us then, as consecrated children of God see that we do not squander time. Let us see what we can lop off, how we can get the minutes under our control. If one can get sixty of them redeemed, he will have an hour. By pinching and economizing here and there one may very easily save this hour for the service of the Lord or the Bible study.

“Because the days are evil,” says St. Paul. His thought is, “Realizing that our days, as they are passing, are unfavorable to us as New Creatures.” This is particularly true of our own day. With all the enlightenment of today there are many blessings of an earthly kind coming in, preparatory to the New Age. The nearer we get to the establishment of God’s Kingdom, the greater is the pressure on every side from the world.

As we see that the Day of Christ is right upon us, this should be all the more an incentive to draw us together as the children of God. (Heb. 10:25) We shall have special need of the helmet of salvation, the shield of faith, and all the Christian’s armor. (Eph. 6:12-18) We have come down to the time when there is trouble all about us. It is the fire of the “great day of the Lord.” This fire “shall try every man’s work.” Some who have built their faith structure on traditions of men will find that they have built with wood, hay and stubble. Others have built their faith with gold, silver and precious stones, God’s revelations. All who have builded with combustible material will find that their structure will be consumed. Only those structures will stand that have been built with God’s Truth. 1 Cor. 3:11-15

MORTIFY THE NATURAL CRAVINGS

If we wish to make our “calling and election sure,” we shall have special assistance, but we shall have trials to correspond. People today have many more trials than our grandfathers had. On Sundays they had little else to do but attend worship. They had much quiet in which to think about God and the Bible. We do not find it so. But God has so provided that His people of today have abundant supplies of grace to carry them through if they will make use of the helps which He has furnished and will eliminate the unnecessary things. But in order to make use of God’s provisions we must deny ourselves these things that the flesh is craving. As the Apostle says, “Mortify your members which are upon the earth.” Col. 3:5-10

There is a beauty about the Lord’s Plan. He deals with us like this: “You have said that you have given your life to Me. I told you that you must redeem the time which you have consecrated to Me. Now demonstrate your ingenuity in the matter, your earnestness and your spirit to sacrifice your earthly interest.” If you have thought that in your consecration your earthly interests are to be just as well taken care of as before, then either you do not understand the matter, or else you are not living up to your covenant. Give less attention to bodily comforts. Give more time for spiritual food, to service for the Lord, the Truth and the brethren. This is God's arrangement for us as New Creatures. We are happy to learn His will. He is not expecting anything unreasonable of us. He does expect us to be careful of our time, of our conduct, of how we live our profession.

We know that God loves all His children, and desires to see them beautiful. Then why does the Apostle advise the Lord's people not to adorn themselves with "gold or pearls or costly array?" (1 Tim. 2:9-10) In the present time there are various reasons why God would advise us not to wear jewelry and expensive clothing.

In the first place, our present fallen condition of mind, when we put gold or diamonds upon our fingers and in our ears, in the bosoms of our shirts, etc., it indicates a certain amount of pride, a factor that would not be advantageous to us. We are naturally, like the rest of mankind, more or less susceptible to pride, although we have nothing of which to be proud. Moreover, it might have a bad effect upon others. Some might see a Christian elegantly appareled and say, "Look how that lady or that gentleman is decked out! And that ring must have cost $200 or $500!" Then they feel envious—"What right has he, or what right has she, to have these things when I cannot have them?" Is it not better that Christians who have money should not wear such things and thus excite the cupidity and envy of those who cannot afford them?

There are a great many people in the world who have a very hard time to make a living, and never get enough to have the reasonable comforts of life. Why should a child of God put on diamonds or rich clothing to show himself or herself off as a picture, while many others lack food or clothing or medicine? Rather than wear such things, would he not prefer to give their value to somebody who needs help, or to carry the Truth to others? Certainly this would be the mind of the Lord!

There is a further reason. As Christians we stand more or less as reflections of God. We profess to have renounced the pride and vanity of the flesh and to have set our affections on Heavenly things, and to be putting on the spiritual adornments. We must therefore not follow our natural mind in this matter, but the mind of God, that we may show forth His praise "who hath called us out of darkness into His marvelous light."

St. Paul Enterprise, March 21, 1916

NEW CREATURES ARE PERFECT IN HOLINESS

Brantford, Ont., March 19 -Pastor Russell gave an able address here today, based on 1 Pet. 1:16—" Be ye holy; for I am holy." We give a condensed report:

The word "holy" is related to the word "whole," which signifies complete, unbroken. Viewed from this standpoint, our text is a wonderful exhortation. Our Lord Jesus also exhorted us, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in Heaven is perfect." (Matt. 5:48) Very properly we note who are thus addressed. It is not the world; for the Bible is not addressed to the world. In their fallen condition, out of harmony with God and not seeking to know His will, mankind are not in a position where God can thus address them. They are aliens, strangers, foreigners, as the Lord speaks of them through St. Paul. At present they have neither lot nor part in the things of God. So far as they are concerned, His great Plan is yet future. The Father loves the world sympathetically, and has made provision that ultimately they shall have a glorious place, rich blessings, but not yet. Eph. 2:11, 12; 1 Cor. 1:21-25; John 3:16

During the long period from Adam to the making of the Covenant with Israel at Mt. Sinai, God recognized no nation. Mankind were cut off from fellowship with Him because of Adam's transgression. God did, indeed, speak through a few; such as Enoch, Noah, and Abraham, to whom He made certain declarations not clearly understood by any at that time. No one was permitted to come into covenant relationship with God except in the sense that Abraham did, and through animal sacrifices, which typified the great Sacrifice for sins yet to come.

Then came God's dealings with the one nation of Israel. He separated them from all other nations. (Ex. 19:3-6; Amos 3:2) He gave them His law, and promised that if they would keep that law they should have everlasting life and should exercise those gracious privileges which God mentioned to Father Abraham; namely, that through them all the families of the earth might be blessed. They thought that they could keep God's law; but they found that they could not do so that they could not be holy.

This holiness was briefly comprehended in the command, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength; and thy neighbor as thyself." (Luke 10:27) But Israel could not attain to this holiness, this completeness; for, like all of the Adamic race, they were imperfect. No imperfect man could keep a perfect law. Year by year, for over sixteen centuries, God permitted Israel to offer typical sacrifices; and they renewed their covenant annually on the day of atonement. Thus they were made acceptable to God for the ensuing year, and were kept in covenant relationship with Him. Over and over again they tried to keep the law, but failed continually. The Apostle Paul tells us that during all those centuries not one Jew was justified through keeping the law. Rom. 3:20; Gal. 2:15-16

HOW CHRISTIANS CAN KEEP GOD'S LAW

Then came the Gospel Dispensation. Our Lord Jesus, by His life and by His preaching gave forth a message of mercy and peace, even to those Jews who could not keep the law, saying still to them, "Be ye holy." During all those many centuries the Israelites had tried to be holy, but had failed; and how could those of our Lord's day expect to be holy, complete lacking nothing, any more than could their ancestors? Ah, there was a secret which Jesus disclosed to the earnest and sincere, the "Israelites indeed!" The reason why any could keep the law after Jesus came, was that Christ accomplished an important work, applicable to those who became His disciples. The Jews could not succeed in keeping the law of God, but Christians can do so. This is not because they are better born than the Jews; for naturally we are all "children of wrath, even as others." Eph. 2:3

In the absolute sense, Christians cannot keep God's law any more than could the Jews, and for the same reason. Doubtless we have all proved to our own satisfaction that we cannot keep that perfect law in the sense of having no imperfection of thought, word or act. When the Apostle says that righteousness of the law is fulfilled in us (Rom. 8:4), he means that God has made an arrangement through Jesus by which our imperfections are legally canceled, made as though they did not exist. Thus, by keeping the law in spirit and by having our Lord Jesus cancel our infirmities of body, we are perfect before God. As Christians, we keep His law.

According to God's plan, our Lord Jesus laid His life down as a ransom, a corresponding price, for the life of Father Adam. Adam sinned, and must meet the penalty of sin death. He died; and all of his posterity have been born under the conditions of sin and death which his disobedience entailed upon them. Mankind die because sin entered into the world through one man's disobedience, as the Apostle explains. (Rom. 5:12) But through His death our Lord Jesus secured the right to annul Adam's death sentence and to take possession of all mankind. Thus Adam and all of his posterity will be awakened from death; otherwise the entire human race would suffer eternal death; for the penalty of sin was not the mere act of dying, but remaining dead forever. 1 Cor. 15:21-22; 1 Tim. 2:5-6.

At the beginning of the Messianic Kingdom our Lord will take possession of the world. Mankind are something like a scrap heap of old machines, engines, boilers, etc., all rusted and twisted out of their original shapes. But the One who will take control has infinite power and ability to repair and to reconstruct all these defective beings. During the thousand years of His reign this will be His work. It will affect the dead as well as those having a measure of life when that reign begins. The Messiah will bring all who will out of sin and death conditions back to the perfection lost in Eden, redeemed at Calvary.

OFFICES OF THE GLORIFIED CHRIST

God purposed, before the foundation of the world, to permit sin to bring forth its evil fruitage for six thousand years, and then to usher in a great Sabbath day, the Millennial Sabbath, during which He would do, through Jesus, His appointed channel, a work for mankind which they cannot do for themselves. Meantime, He has been selecting and preparing the classes that will be His agents, under Christ, to accomplish His great work for humanity first, an earthly class (enumerated in Heb. 11), and then a spiritual class, the Church.

Jehovah God has also purposed that our Lord Jesus shall be the great King of the world during the Millennial Sabbath, and that this spiritual class shall be associate kings under Him; moreover, that Jesus and the Church shall be a royal priesthood to bless and instruct the world of mankind, their subjects; and that this great High Priest and His under priests shall also be the judges of the world. These different features of the work of Christ were shown in type in the anointed priesthood of Israel, their anointed kings and in their judges. The Apostle Paul says, "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?" (1 Cor. 6:2) The Christ, Head and Body, will also be the world's great Prophet, the antitype of Moses. Acts 3:22-23

All this shows us that the Church of Christ is separate and distinct from the world at large, as Jesus said. (John 17:14; 15:16-19) What God will do for the world through our Lord Jesus during the incoming age, by restoring whosoever will to all that was lost in Adam, bringing them back to human perfection, something very different from what He is now doing is for the Church. The inheritance of the faithful Church is to be spiritual, not earthly; and it is the Church that are now called upon to be holy.

During the millennial age all mankind will be called upon to be holy; for then the standard of holiness will be set before them, and by the assistance of the Christ all the willing and obedient may attain human perfection. Whosoever will may become holy, as the Father Adam before he sinned. While on earth, our Lord Jesus was holy in the perfection of human nature. (John 1:14) During the Millennium the whole world will be expected to come up to the standard of holiness, of completeness nothing lacking, nothing imperfect. The merit which our Lord has, by virtue of His faithfulness to the Father even unto death, gives Him the right to purchase the human family and to help them back to that condition of completeness, of holiness, in which they can be holy, as God is holy.

GOD'S GROWING WORK

The difference between the call to holiness now extended to those who have an "ear to hear" God's present Message and the call to holiness to be extended to all mankind during the Millennium is this: It's not the flesh of the Christian that is holy, but the New Creature. His human imperfections are covered with the robe of Christ's imputed righteousness. This unique dealing with the Gospel Church is for a specific purpose. We understand that God, who had already created various ranks of spirit beings, and who then created man "a little lower than the angels," had planned before the foundation of the world that in due time He would have a New Creation, different from anything created before then, and the greatest, the most wonderful, of all His creations. 2 Cor. 5:17; Eph. 1:4; 2:10

This New Creation, God tells us (2 Pet. 1:4), is to have the Divine nature, His own nature. It will not only be higher than the human nature, which in perfection is the image of God. It will be the spirit nature in its highest form.

God first began to develop this New Creation in the person of our Lord Jesus Christ at the time of His baptism in Jordan. The Father's purpose in sending the Son into the world was: (1) That He might be the Redeemer of the world; (2) That He might become the leader of the Church. (Heb. 2:9-10) God has made our Lord to be Head over the Church, which is His Body in the same sense that Congress is a body. The work of the Gospel Age has been the gathering of the members of this Body. The blessings promised to the world cannot begin until this work of gathering and developing the spiritual Body of Christ shall have been completed. We believe that this work is now almost accomplished.

THE HOLINESS OF THE SAINTS

Now we see what the Apostle means when he says, "Present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." (Rom. 12:1) We should rejoice to know that if we offer our little all to God, Jesus will make up what is needed to render our sacrifices fully acceptable to the Father. When the holy spirit comes upon one, an unction for on High, it constitutes him a son of God, on a new plane. He is no longer counted as a human being. He has been begotten as a spirit being; but he has no spirit body as yet. He still has the old body, the old brain, although a new will is there, a new mind, “the mind of Christ.” He had the mind, the disposition, of Christ to present himself as a sacrifice; but when he was begotten of the holy Spirit he received from God the start of a new nature. He became a New Creature in Christ.

During the present life the New Creature must dwell in this earthly tabernacle. (2 Cor. 5:4) If he continues to walk humbly and faithfully before the Lord, seeking to do the Divine will, as the consecrated have agreed to do, he will be more and more filled with the holy Spirit, until eventually God will complete the matter by giving the resurrection “change,” the birth of the Spirit. (1 Cor. 15:51-53; John 3:5-7) Then the new mind will be transferred to a Divine spirit body, and the New Creature will be complete.

The fallen human body of the saints cannot do perfectly the things that the New Creature would have it do. But the merit of Christ, imputed to each spirit-begotten child of God, covers them as a robe, constituting them acceptable to God. If any of these should take off this “wedding garment”, he would lose his life as a New Creature. But so long as the merit of Jesus covers the unintentional blemish of the fallen nature, those which the New Creature is not able to overcome, the Father regards them, not from the standpoint of the flesh, but as New Creatures. Rom. 8:9.

NEW CREATURES TO JUDGE THEMSELVES

It is the New Creature that is to be holy, perfect, as the Father in Heaven is holy, perfect. This does not give any one liberty to sin with the body, however. “How shall we who have died to sin live any longer therein?” asks the Apostle. (Rom. 6:2) If we consecrated ourselves voluntarily unto death in opposition to sin, how shall we find pleasure in sin? Whoever enjoys sin thereby manifests that he has not the holy Spirit. The mind of the Lord does not enjoy sin. We are to make a clear distinction, however, between the impulses of the flesh and the desire of the heart. Through the impulses of his fallen human nature, any one of God’s people might be overtaken in a fault, and under stress of circumstances might do or say something that he did not approve. But so surely as he is a New Creature, he will make amends for his fault, in order to return to full harmony with the Lord.

God is judging His people according to the heart. (1 Sam. 16:7) The world cannot know all about God’s people. They look at things from the natural man’s standpoint; and when they see a child of God do or say something unkind or improper, they draw their conclusions accordingly. But we must not judge them. Our heart attitude must ever be to wish to do the Lord’s will. Should any of God’s people willingly consent to sin, he would be a partaker of that sin. If overtaken in a fault, he must correct it.

Whoever as a New Creature in Christ is seeking to be holy as God is holy, will watch his words and conduct and will try to keep a strict rule over his mortal body; and if that body should temporarily get from under control, he will discipline it by way of punishment, will correct it in order to make it remember for the future. 1 Cor. 11:31-32

All true Christians should be on the alert to note God's providences. Nothing can come to the Lord's people by accident; for all things must work together for their good. Should one of them meet with what would appear to be an accident, if he should have some peculiar experience, he should think, "Is this something to teach me a special lesson, or is it a chastisement from my Father for wrong-doing?"

Every child of God must receive discipline, in order that his character may be developed. Even our Lord Jesus had disciplining. But in His case these experiences were never punishments; and it is for the Lord's people to be on guard to see that their disciplinings are not in the nature of punishments, so as to get the greatest benefit from them. Heb. 12:6-11; 5:8

The Lord's people should also study the character of God, to see His wholeness, His completeness, that they may copy His example. They are to have the "spirit of a sound mind." Our minds are not sound, being blemished by the fall; but the mind of the New Creature is always loyal to God. The Scriptures tell us what God's will for us is, what His mind is; and we are to copy Him. God is LOVE. But He will not be loving at the expense of justice. So let us copy God in His Wisdom, Mercy, Justice and Love. All these noble qualities will be manifest more or less in the Church of Christ.

THE WONDERFUL CALLING TO THE DIVINE NATURE

Roanoke, Va., March 26 -Pastor Russell delivered a very impressive address here today, from the text: "God hath given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these we might be partakers of the divine nature." (2 Pet. 1:4)

God designs that the elect Church, the Royal Priesthood, shall, when completed and glorified, occupy positions of great honor and responsibility. They will be kings, judges, priests, throughout the thousand years of Christ's reign. Moreover, they are to be the honored associates of the Lord Jesus throughout eternity, spirit beings of the very highest order -the Divine. We trust that many of those who hear us are of this class. Do we realize what all this means, dear brethren? Unless we have thoroughly tested characters we shall not be fit for so great an exaltation. If we have any sympathy for sin, it would be unsafe to trust us; for the sin might spread and make us in time emissaries of evil, whose influence would be disastrous. God is looking for those only who truly love righteousness and hate iniquity. He does not expect perfect works in an imperfect body; but He seeks a perfect heart and an overcoming spirit, with as nearly perfect conduct as we are capable of by His grace.

If those of this class do anything wrong, if they are overtaken in a fault, they are very repentant. They have a feeling of sorrow and regret, and go quickly to the Throne of Grace for forgiveness and cleansing. This shows that the heart is fully loyal. So the Lord tells us for our information and consolation that He judges us not according to our unavoidable weaknesses, but according to our hearts and our earnest endeavors. Surely in this merciful arrangement the blessings of the Lord have made us rich! While God has not given us perfect righteousness as yet, He has imputed it to us. Every blessing we have comes to us through the Lord Jesus Christ.

How rich indeed the Lord has made His children, even in this present life, while we are only heirs of all this wealth laid up for us in Heaven; while we have only the earnest, or hand payment of the wonderful things which we shall inherit when we enter into the glory with Christ! The Spirit of the Lord gives rest of heart to His people and sounder judgment than they every had before (2 Tim. 1:7) It often increases their physical health and their mental efficiency. As a business man a Christian is more capable, more conscientious, and hence more valuable, whether he be an employer or an employee. Those of this class who are housewives know better how to keep the home, how to keep things in order, how better to exercise common sense, than before they accepted the Message of Truth and began to live its spirit. Common sense is not a common article, even though it is so called.

The Lord's Truth brings a rich blessing wherever it is received into a good and honest heart. Many of you are parents. If you are faithful, obedient children of God you are better parents than you were before. When you brought your children into the world you assumed a responsibility for them in the sight of God. This thought is sobering, strengthening. It helps you to watch your example, to see that you carefully train these children up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, as well as caring for their material needs.

WHY GOD CHOOSES THE POOR

Many of the Lord's faithful are amongst the humble and obscure. They are largely from the poorer walks of life. "Not many great, not many wise, not many noble are called, but chiefly the weak ones of this world. Why has God chosen these? We answer, the people who are naturally poor and ignoble realize that they are nothing in themselves; they feel their weakness and long for something better that God can give. Men who are rich and learned and influential note this, and sometimes say, "This Gospel is a good thing for these people. They need something to lift them up." Those who are thus high-minded are not in the proper attitude of heart to realize their own need and to come to God. No matter how rich, how learned, how noble a man is, according to human standards, he must come to the point of acknowledging that he is a sinner, wholly dependent upon God for forgiveness and for every blessing. All such self-righteous ones miss the special blessing the Lord is now offering, for they do not realize their need.

This is why Jesus said of these, "Woe unto you that are rich; for ye have received your consolation! Woe unto you Pharisees!" for you are not anxious to know about God. It is as we would say, "Alas! alas! for they will lose this great privilege of the Kingdom! Only those who will humble themselves will ever be exalted. It is not advantageous to be rich in this world's wealth, either socially or financially. Those who are rich now in these things will in the next Age have difficulties that the poor will not have. "Blessed be ye poor!" if your poverty leads you to Christ, or assists in this direction. Few are willing to walk in this way of humility and self-abnegation; but to those who do, a great blessing comes the blessing of the Lord which maketh rich. A work of transformation is going on in them. From the Divine standpoint, these poor and lowly ones are the truly rich, the only ones who are rich.

The Apostle Paul says that the Truth of God which illuminates the mind gives a better mental poise, the spirit of a sound mind. The minds of all fallen men are unsound, just as their flesh is unsound. Our minds are more or less twisted and warped. But God has a sound mind; and He tells us of His will, His plans, His ways. If we accept these, then we have the mind of God, the mind of Christ. We direct our conduct by the Divine instructions. We receive from Christ these riches of God's grace which become a transforming power, working in us to WILL aright.

Should a Christian make a mistake, then he will go to the Lord for forgiveness, and resolve. "I will endeavor so to live that henceforth this difficulty shall never overtake me again." But if it should again overtake him, he will go again to the Lord, with deeper contrition. So the mind of Christ continues to work in God's children to will and do all His good pleasure, and they become richer and richer in character.

THOSE EDUCATED BY GOD TRULY LEARNED

This class are not only the richest people in the world, but the most learned--learned in Heavenly wisdom, the only true wisdom (Jas. 3:17) Many have said of the Bible Students, "These people have a general knowledge of nearly everything." Whoever knows the Bible from Genesis to Revelation understanding God's great Plan for both the Church and the world is highly educated, whether he has been instructed in the world's schools or not. He is educated in the best and most thorough School in all the universe the School of Christ. Many of the enemies of present Bible Truth admit the unequaled knowledge and understanding of the Bible which even the humblest of these Bible Students possesses. And they say that these have a wonderful knowledge of right principles, in every direction. This was true of our Lord Jesus and His immediate followers; and these children of God have been instructed by them.

We read that when St. Peter and St. John were preaching in the temple, the people perceived that they were ignorant and unlearned men; and "they took knowledge of them that had been with Jesus and learned of Him." (Acts 4:13) They had not been in the school of the Scribes and Pharisees, but they had been with Christ. Whoever attends the School of Christ receives the best education for the present time and for the life eternal.

ABRAHAM'S TWO SEEDS

Everything that God has to bestow is designed to be a blessing. He has provided a great blessing for all the families of the earth. He declared to Abraham that this blessing should come through his Seed. The opportunity to become of Abraham's earthly seed will come to every member of Adam's race; and every one will have an individual opportunity, except those who get their full opportunity now. There is only the one class who have this opportunity during the present life.

The vast majority of those who live in so-called heathen lands have no knowledge of Christ at all. Very many in Christendom so-called have very little or no real knowledge of Christ. Some of these attend meetings with more or less regularity where Christ's name is spoken and where hymns are sung, and they join in the singing, though many who do so know not what they say. There was a similar class in our Lord's day, and it was these who joined in crucifying the Lord of Glory. St. Peter says of them, "I wot that in ignorance ye did it." Acts 3:17

So everywhere today there are many who do not understand. Having eyes, they see not; having ears, they hear not. But the Spirit of God gives wisdom, quickens the understanding. Jesus said of this class who see and hear, "Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven." It is this class which is now on trial for life or death everlasting. The world is not now on trial for life or death, though their present course will have a bearing upon their future. For the world now to know these things that the children of God know would only increase their responsibility. The class that really knows does not include one thousandth part of even the church membership of the world.

Those who know are those who have accepted the terms of discipleship laid down by the Master—" If any man will be my disciple, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me." (Matt. 16:24) This means that he must give up his own will to take instead the will of the Lord Jesus Christ who represents the Father. Whoever has not done this has not been accepted by God at all. Much more is necessary than abandoning sin. Nobody ever had a right to live a wicked or immoral life. We come into the family of God in only one way. Jesus is the Way. The first step in consecration is to deny one's SELF. The second step is to adopt the will of God, to take up the cross and follow in the Master's footsteps. These are the only steps.

Once we had the impression that the Bible taught that whoever would be saved must get into this Church of Christ, otherwise he would go to hell to suffer torture forever. And in sympathy for our own we said, "John and Mary must join the Church!" But getting their names on the roll of one of the church organizations did not get them into the true Church, "the Church of the Living God, whose names are written in Heaven," not on earth. We get into God's Church by accepting Christ as our ransom from sin and death and by fully giving up our minds, our hearts, our wills to God.

IF ANY MAN DRAW BACK

For all who become His disciples Jesus become the Advocate. He accepts them to be members of His Church and presents them to the Father. Then the Father receives them by begetting them of the holy Spirit. They are then members of God's family, sons of God. They are New Creatures in Christ and constitute the true Church. It is this class who are to go on from grace to grace, from knowledge to knowledge. The Father, through Christ, deals with them as with sons, giving them the chiseling, polishing, disciplining, refining, necessary to make them ready for their great inheritance in the Heavenly Kingdom. Heirs of glory are these. If faithful unto death, they will enter forever into the joys of their Lord.

But if any who have once been begotten of the holy Spirit and have tasted of the Heavenly gift shall draw back from God, it will be impossible to renew such to repentance, seeing that they have crucified unto themselves the Son of God afresh and put Him to an open shame. There is no further hope for those who have had their opportunity and have misused it. They will die the Second Death.

The great mass of those in the churches of today have not been begotten of the holy Spirit, and cannot die the Second Death without further knowledge and opportunity. They are still to have their share in the future blessings coming to the world at large. But in proportion as any shall have been closely in contact with the Truth, and have seen and rejected it, to that extent matters will be unfavorable for them in the future. However, all will have an opportunity except those who have been made partakers of the holy Spirit and have fallen away through wilful sin. If these fall away, there remaineth no more a sacrifice for sins; for Christ dieth no more. "But we (who are faithfully following Jesus) are not of those who draw back into perdition, but of those who believe to the saving of the soul." Heb. 6:4-8; 10:26-31

God's promises to His faithful ones are so rich, so precious, so wonderful, that were it not that they are given by Jehovah Himself, in unmistakable terms, they would be beyond belief. "But," says one, "can we believe that God really meant that we might have a part in His own nature, the Divine nature?" Surely! Of what use would the Bible be if it does not say what it means? The Apostle Peter, one of the inspired mouthpieces of the Lord, has so declared. Our Lord said to him and to the other Apostles, "Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in Heaven, and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in Heaven." Matt. 16:19; John 20:22-23

The Twelve Apostles were supernaturally guided in their utterances. Jesus promised them that after the holy Spirit should come upon them, they should be guided into all Truth. (John 16:13) So we may have full confidence in St. Peter's words. The intent of God's wonderful promises is that they shall work in us, day by day, to will and do the perfect will of God. "According to your faith be it unto you." If you let go your faith, you lose all. The greater your faith, the greater your blessing. God seeks only those who will trust Him in everything, whether they can trace Him or not.

Whether we shall be of this blessed company is for us to decide. Our Lord Jesus has promised us the needed help. He will make all our trials and difficulties work good for us. He will make us meet for the glorious station to which the Father has called us. But He expects us to cooperate with Him, to have faith, trust and the spirit of loyalty and obedience. We are to be true to our covenant, true to all the principles of righteousness. He wishes all of His people to gather under the same banner the banner of truth and love and of faith in God.

But, as we have said before, not many of the professed children of God are of this mind. Not many of the great and mighty and wise are thus obedient and teachable, but chiefly the poor of this world, rich in faith. But to those who appreciate the glorious High Calling of God, the call to the Divine nature, to jointheirship with Him who has been exalted far above angels, principalities and powers and every name that is named, next to the Father, we would say, Having tasted of the exceeding riches of God's favor, are we not determined to go on and obtain the full inheritance promised?

The things which eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, which God hath in reservation for them that love Him, are for those who love God more than they love father or mother, brother or sister, children or friends, houses or lands, wealth or fame or pleasures of earth. If we are of this class, let us rejoice and be of good courage! God is for us. He has been blessing us all along the way; and if we continue thus to follow on, the end will be glorious. We shall be made partakers of the Divine nature!

PREDESTINATION OF THE CHURCH

New York, April 2 Pastor Russell delivered a very interesting and logical address at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St., near Broadway, this evening, on a subject which has greatly confused people in the past. His text was, "For whom He did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren." Rom. 8:29 He said in part:

It seems very wonderful, dear friends, that our great Creator should so long ago have planned not only the blessing of the world, but also the High Calling of the Church. He foreknew us before the world was created, before we had come into existence. He knew the end from the beginning, as we on a small scale often do today. If a man would put up a great building, he would employ an architect to draw up plans and specifications, and in the plan everything would be arranged for beforehand. The size and the location of the various rooms, the character of the material to be used, etc., would all be foreknown and forestated, so that whoever would read the specifications, and see the architect's drawings, would know exactly what kind of building was to be erected. Just so our Creator is a great Architect and Builder; and His entire Plan for mankind was prearranged before the foundation of the world.

God has a special purpose in everything He has made. He has had a blessing in view for all His intelligent creatures. He has not been working in a hap-hazard manner, doubtful of the outcome of His plans and purposes, as it once seemed to us in our ignorance. It is very comforting to know that our Heavenly Father has infinite wisdom and power, as well as infinite justice and love; and that His glorious purposes cannot be thwarted or even delayed, but are grandly progressing to their completion. No opposition of man or demons can interfere with the glorious outworking of His great Plan of the Ages. Isa. 55:8-11; Eph. 1:9-12.

At one time many of us thought that the Devil had come into competition with God, and so opposed the Divine plans that the Almighty did not know just how to get around the matter, but tried first one way and then another. We supposed that somehow God would finally get His few children out of Satan's clutches, but that everything and everybody else would be burned up with literal fire, the unsaintly being confined in a place which we called Hell, to be tortured eternally. Now we see that we had very crude, confused ideas, especially when we tried to connect this thought with the Scriptural declaration that God had foreknown all this from before the foundation of the world. We are very thankful that all this darkness is scattered; and that we can now see why God has permitted evil, and how He will overrule all things in the end for the good, not only of the Church, but of the world.

THE SECOND ADAM AND EVE

According to the Bible, our great Creator predetermined first the creation of various ranks of angels and then the creation of man. All this was accomplished through the Logos, our Lord Jesus Christ in His pre-human state, as the Father's Agent. God knew that man would fall into sin. He knew that at the proper time He would send the Logos, His well-beloved Son, to redeem man. All this being known to God, He also foreknew that He would issue a special Call for a Church class to be associated with His Son as the Bride of Christ, for the judging, instructing and restoring of the race which that Son died to redeem.

We perceive that our Lord Jesus, now supremely exalted because of His obedience unto death (Phil. 2:8-11), is to be the second Adam, the second Father of the human race. He is to make good where the first Adam failed, and to recover him and his posterity as many of them as will to all that was lost in Eden.

Thus the Bible presents before us a beautiful picture a second Adam and a second Eve, the new Father and Mother of the race. The father is the one who generates the life; the mother nourishes the life that is generated by the father. So the work of the church when completed and glorified with Christ will be to care for, to nourish and to upbuild the human family, who will be re-created by Jesus Christ, their Redeemer. Step by step she will raise them up to perfection. What a marvelous Plan a Plan by which the Heavenly Father's likeness shall be restored to the human race! Oh, how glorious it is to have a God like this, One who is working all things according to the counsel of His own will! We can rest securely by faith, assured that our God knows what He is doing; and that His plans are all good, wise and benevolent.

At first we could only take the A, B, C, lessons; but as we have grown in love and intelligence concerning our God we know Him better, and are beginning to see lengths, breadths, heights and depths of His Love and Wisdom which surpass all human understanding. "Whom He did foreknow," says the Apostle, "He also did predestinate." At one time that word "predestinate" had a terrible sound to us. We said "Oh, yes; Calvin taught that God predestinated a few saints to be saved to Heavenly bliss, but that everybody else He predestinated to go to eternal torment."

But, dear friends, God has never predestinated anything of that kind. There is not even a hint in our text regarding predestination of the world. Our text refers only to a predestination of the true Church, a company who after they were called, would by faithfulness to the terms of their covenant make their calling and election sure. God has predestinated a certain class, to be composed of a definite number, for a special purpose. Whoever would be of this class must meet the required conditions.

THE BIBLE PREDESTINATION

This class is predestinated to be conformed to the image of God's dear Son. This is a grand predestination. It rests with us individually whether or not we shall thus conform ourselves. In this same Epistle the Apostle says to the Church, "Be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed, by the renewing of your minds, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." (Rom. 12:2) Nobody will be in that elect class who does not become conformed to the character likeness of God's dear Son. This Church of Christ is almost completed. The predetermined number 144,000 is about filled up. Every one of them will surely be a copy of Christ in character.

Since God has foreordained that He will have such a company, it follows that all of our experiences from the time that we have come into the Church will work favorably to us if we continue loyal. But if any who have been numbered amongst this class should become tired of the narrow way and should walk out of it, their names will be dropped, and others chosen to fill their places. There is absolutely no Scriptural authority for the doctrine held by some that none of the Elect can fall; in other words, "Once in grace, always in grace." The Bible abounds in warnings as to the danger of falling.

When we consecrated ourselves to the Lord through Christ, we made our covenant with God (Psa. 50:5), we were accepted through the merit of our great Substitute. Our Lord Jesus became our High Priest. We were begotten of God's holy Spirit, and then became New Creatures (2 Cor. 5:17) To all such God guarantees that so long as they abide in Christ, they shall be kept; and that all things shall work together for their good. If we remain faithful unto death, we shall have part in the first resurrection, Christ's resurrection, as members of His glorious Body. (Rev. 2:6) If we keep our covenant of sacrifice, if we keep our sacrifice upon the altar until it is finally consumed, we shall surely win the crown of life glory, honor and immortality. Keeping our covenant means to walk daily in the narrow way, to walk in the footsteps of Jesus.

The attainment of the character-likeness of Christ is a gradual work, an education. We cannot get it all at once. When first we are accepted into the family of God, we enter the School of Christ to receive daily lessons along this very line. By the Word of God and by the providences of life we are taught. Being imperfect, blemished by the fall, we cannot render perfect service to God, as did our Master; but we are to do our best to follow our great Pattern. Our loyalty is demonstrated in our wills, our hearts; and our wills are manifested in our works up to the point of our ability. Any shortcoming, any mistake or sin on our part would not be an act of the New Creature; for it cannot sin, being begotten from Above. The wrong-doing would be of the old nature, the fallen flesh.

TRIALS ESSENTIAL TO DEVELOPMENT

The new mind, working in us to will and to do of God's good pleasure, grows stronger day by day, hour by hour, and makes us more and more copies of His dear Son. But in order to have this new mind grow stronger, trials are necessary. How could we know that we are developing, if we had not trials to demonstrate the matter? As we pray for patience, meekness, love and various other fruits of the holy Spirit, we are sure to have trials along these lines, to demonstrate our growth and to develop us further in each of these directions. Only by continued and earnest effort, only by struggling and prayer and the study of the Word of God, can we grow as New Creatures in Christ.

God answers our prayers for more of His holy Spirit, by giving us experiences whereby we may have a larger measure of the likeness of Christ. And we should rejoice in this; for by no other means can we be developed and proven. We need patience, meekness, gentleness, faith, long-suffering, brotherly kindness, love. It takes time to develop these qualities. We desire to be fitted for the Kingdom. But what kind of characters will be acceptable? The Church is to govern the affairs of the world for a thousand years; and how could anyone be qualified for such a work who had not learned the necessary lessons? The Church is to govern the affairs of the world for a thousand years; and how could anyone be qualified for such a work who had not learned the necessary lessons? Those, and those only, who have developed the necessary qualities will be fitted for so exalted a position. We must learn patience before we shall be able to teach patience to others. We must become loving, kind and meek before we can teach these graces to the world.

TRIALS SUMMED UP UNDER TWO HEADS

We might sum up all of our trials under two general heads; faith and loyalty. Faith in our Lord Jesus is one of the great tests not merely a belief that He was the Son of God, but a different kind of faith from that of intellectual assurance. We must develop faith in the precious promises of God and in His loving care. Our Lord Jesus assured us that if we are faithful in that which is least, we shall be faithful in much. In all our experiences with the brethren, in our business affairs and in our dealings with the world, we are to learn the required lessons.

We are ever to recognize God First, and to remember that we have given ourselves to Him. We are to recognize His hand in all the affairs of our life and to believe His promise that all things are working together for our good. Whoever has this faith will have a rest of heart and mind. When difficulties arise, his first thought will be, "What lesson has God for me in this experience?" The Lord's people are not to think, "This person has opposed my plans and has brought me this trouble;" but they should say to themselves, "My Father knows all about this difficulty, and has permitted it for my good. He will overrule it all."

If circumstances so shape themselves that we are obliged to change our residence, we are not to feel, "I do not wish to make this change. I prefer to continue just where I am." Rather we are to think, "If the Lord wishes me to make a change, it is all right; for I know that His way is best, and that this experience will work out for my good." Our Lord Jesus always recognized the Father's will and gladly bowed to it, whether He understood it or not. We are to be followers of Christ; we are to have His mind. There is no lesson that the Lord's people need more than this lesson of implicit trust in God. 2 Pet. 1:12-14

Let us never forget that nothing can come to us unless it is permitted by the Lord. Let us look beyond our environments and say, as our Master did, "The cup which My Father hath poured for me, shall I not drink it?" He did not say, "Why do the people treat Me so? Why do the rulers scheme against Me?" On the contrary, He accepted all His painful experiences in perfect faith and trust, as the cup which the Father had poured for Him to drink.

THE GOLDEN MEASURING-ROD

Now what about our loyalty? The loyalty of the New Creation is loyalty to God. This means loyalty to the principles of righteousness for which He stands. The first of these is justice, the very foundation of His Throne. The Master gave us a beautiful picture of justice when He gave us the golden rule: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." (Luke 6:31) This is indeed a golden rule. We could not properly represent God unless we practised the law of our great King the Ruler of the Universe. This is His first requirement loyalty to the principle of justice.

In Rev. 11:1 St. John was given a reed, or rod, with which to measure the Temple of God. That Temple, which is the Church, is now being measured by the golden rule, here called a reed, or rod. If we are earnestly endeavoring to apply the golden rule in every affair of life in the home, in Church, in dealing with the world, then we are practicing the principle of justice. Each of us is to do the measuring for himself. We are not to measure one another. Only in an extreme case is the Church to do the measuring. (Matt. 18:15-17) We are to judge or measure our thoughts as well as our conduct by this rule; for "as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

But loyalty to God goes beyond the golden rule. It includes supreme love to God, love to the brethren, love to the whole world, even our enemies. Our love for God causes us to wish to represent Him properly, as His ambassadors. (Phil. 2:15) We are under the banner of Jesus Christ. This means that we are to fight against all manner of sin and error not with carnal weapons, but with the sword of the Spirit. We are to fight the good fight of faith against the weaknesses of our flesh, striving to bring ourselves into a condition where we may glorify God in every act, word and thought. This is loyalty.

SPECIAL BLESSINGS OF CHURCH TODAY

This predestinated class, the church of God, has been in process of preparation for more than eighteen hundred years. Now we have come to the close of the Age. The Church of today has had wonderful favors from God. We have Bibles and Bible Helps such as were never before possessed. We have various translations of the Scriptures, good lights, shorter hours of labor, affording more time for study, etc. In this time of special blessing and advantage, however, we have correspondingly more trials, as we should expect.

Moreover, we are favored with a fuller understanding of God's great plan, with its times and seasons of fulfillment, than the Church has ever had before. Therefore we should be better able to use skillfully the Sword of the Spirit than were our brethren of an earlier day. Surely we should have on securely "the whole armor of God." (Eph. 6:12-18) We need every piece, that we may be able to stand. A great fight is on now, at the end of the Age. There is much contention against “the faith once delivered to the saints.” We must not only stand ourselves, but we must help others to stand also. Thus shall we be conformed to the image of God’s dear Son, and fitted for our exaltation to bless the whole groaning creation.

AS A MAN SOWETH SO SHALL HE REAP

Trenton, N. J., April 9 Pastor Russell was here today. He gave an interesting discourse on 1 Tim. 6:12: “Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.” Excerpts follow:

In the discourse of last Sunday we saw that during the present time the merit of Christ’s righteousness is imputed to the church class in order to permit them to become New Creatures in Christ, of a different order from the world. As we then noted, the sins of those who now leave the world to follow Jesus are covered by the imputation of His sacrificial merit, that they may join Him in sacrifice and thus be accounted worthy to reign with Him in the coming time of blessing for the world the Millennial Age. They are to be a distinctly new creation. This covering of their sins lasts from the time when they become Christians until the end of their journey here below.

During this period each one will have a battle against the downward tendencies of his flesh a severe conflict; and by the close of his earthly life he will have demonstrated to the Lord to what extent he has been loyal and true in the striving against sin; for that which constitutes our battle as children of God, as soldiers of the Cross, is not merely a campaign against error. In times past we have all been under a cloud of error. It is important indeed to have recognized this condition and to have come out into the light of God’s Truth. We are not to minimize the value of correct doctrine. But this is not the main thing; it is only a means to an end. The most important thing is to get rid of sin.

There are errors of mind, of doctrine, of thought, of morals, of character. From childhood all these things had been going on in our life. We did not realize just what they were. As to errors of doctrine, few preached about them. Ministers of the Gospel said nothing about them; in fact, many of the clergy did not recognize these things as errors. But now we see very clearly what the Bible has to say about doctrine. Now we see that God wishes His people to be free from doctrinal errors. But especially does He wish them to be free from any sympathy with sin, unrighteousness, iniquity, injustice.

In other words, God wished His people to be very loyal to the golden rule. This is the first proposition; and to learn this lesson requires sometimes the experience of years. Very many have never practiced justice. They are unjust in their dealings with their families. Husbands deal unjustly with their wives, parents with their children, wives with husbands, and children with parents. With some people injustice would seem to be the rule of life.

But from the time when we become followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, and see how justice is written in the law of God, we begin to perceive that God expects us to observe the golden rule. We should begin to do right in our own families with our parents, our children, our companions in life. This golden rule will affect all the affairs of life. It applies everywhere and in everything. "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you." As we learn to consider carefully, in our dealings with others, to do for them and toward them as we would wish them to do for us and toward us, we shall find a great transformation going on within us. Gradually the whole course of life is changed.

GREAT DILIGENCE NECESSARY

If we could get this rule thoroughly worked into our hearts and lives, it would prove to be one of the greatest possible blessings, not only to ourselves, but also to others. No part of God's instruction to the church is more important than this exhortation to justice. Nothing that He ever does is out of line with absolute justice; and He has invited His people to copy His character-likeness. He wishes us to cultivate and develop in ourselves the great qualities which He possesses and which He has illustrated to us.

There are brethren in Christ who from outward appearance are seemingly not so far advanced as they might be in this respect. Measure not yourselves by the world; for the world does not heed the golden rule. We are not to measure them as we measure ourselves; we are not to expect as much from them. Neither should we measure ourselves by other Christians. (2 Cor. 10:12) Some who are called Christians are only morally inclined people who have never been begotten of the holy Spirit, who have never come into the School of Christ. We appreciate their characters, but we are not to measure ourselves by them. We should measure ourselves only by the Word of our Lord, which asks, "What manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and Godliness? 2 Pet. 3:11

This pointed question of the Apostle Peter implies that the Church of Christ are a special class, different from all other people in the world a peculiar people, as the Apostle Paul puts it not peculiar in dress, but zealous of good works, zealous for everything that is right, laying down their lives for the Truth, in the service of others. Tit. 2:14

In other words, God wishes His people to be very loyal to the golden rule. this is the first proposition; and to learn this lesson requires sometimes the experience of years. Very many have never practiced justice. They are unjust in their dealings with their families. Husbands deal unjustly with their wives, parents with their children, wives with husbands, and children with parents. With some people injustice would seem to be the rule of life.

But from the time when we become followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, and see how justice is written in the law of God, we begin to perceive that God expects us to observe the golden rule. We should begin to do right in our own families with our parents, our children, our companions in life. This golden rule will affect all the affairs of life. It applies everywhere and in everything. "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you." As we learn to consider carefully, in our dealings with others, to do for them and toward them as we would wish them to do for us and toward us, we shall find a great transformation going on within us. Gradually the whole course of life is changed.

JUSTICE IN THE HOME

We should endeavor not only to say nothing to our families that would injure them, but rather to study to be a blessing to them. And so with our dealings with all. Every human being calls for justice. As followers of Christ, we are to be foremost in exercising justice toward all. There should be nothing less than this in our intentions. If with our heart we are recognizing the golden rule, we shall continually seek to think as generously of our neighbor as we would wish him to think of us, and to speak as kindly of him as we would wish him to speak of us. The principle of doing good to others would be exercised toward all.

Some who seem to be exact in their dealings with the world, who would not keep even one cent back from the person to whom it was due, appear to be very careless in dealing with their loved ones, treating them very unjustly. This should not be. Justice is the foundation of the Throne of God; in practicing the golden rule we become more and more like our Heavenly Father. He does to others only what He would wish them to do to Him. As He would not wish others to roast Him or torture Him, so He does not roast or torture them.

Let us ever keep the golden rule in mind, and it will furnish us with the very essence of the spirit of justice. First and always, let us treat others as we would wish them to treat us. Afterwards, let us do a little more; but let us strive never to come short on this fundamental principle. We should indeed, as Christians, give more than justice, but never less. Love will lead us to do more, even as it led our Lord Jesus. He kept the golden rule inviolate in every instance. He never did less than justice; but He did more, much more. He gave His life for others.

And this is what His followers have engaged to do. This is our covenant. We are to follow the golden rule, and then do more. We are to lay down our lives for the brethren and to do for the world as we have opportunity. This is the Bible thought for Jesus' disciples. It is one which should appeal to us even from the human standpoint as being the highest ideal of Christian living.

FIGHTING THE GOOD FIGHT

There is no place where we can better learn to rule our own spirit than in our own home. With husband and wife, with parent and child, with brother and sister, the constant practice of the golden rule is an important matter. The battle with self is the greatest battle the Christian must fight; for in it he learns to exercise his will in the right direction in the direction of control of self. It is only after we have conquered self, only after we have become master of our own flesh, only after we have subdued anger, malice, hatred and strife in our own hearts, that we are enabled, by means of these severe battles with our own weaknesses, to assist others, to aid them by our example to overcome their own besetments and infirmities.

No matter where this conflict may begin, we find entrenched within ourselves many armed and opposing powers. These have possession of us by heredity; they are there as the result of Father Adam's fall. If, when we begin the battle, we have passed the days of youth, these imperfections and weaknesses are all the more strongly entrenched; and it requires the greater conflict to rout them. But he that would win the prize of the high calling must fight the good fight of faith down to the very end of his earthly existence.

This continual battle of the new mind against the fallen flesh is a good fight in the sense that the New Creature is fighting against the weaknesses and besetments of the fallen human nature, against temptations from within and from without, that appeal to us as human beings. It is a fight of faith because the entire course of the New Creature is one of faith; for "we walk by faith, not by sight." In this battle we could never succeed without aid from on High. Hence, we must watch and pray. We must put on securely "the whole armor of God." Eph. 6:12-18.

INSPIRATION OF GOD'S PROMISES

All of use who have become true followers of Christ have had these thoughts come before our minds. As we progress, we learn better what God wishes for us. When first we gave our hearts to the Lord we did not know all that is included in full consecration. Many things were hidden from the eyes of our understanding. But as we have gone on step by step, the Lord has brought us to the clear realization that we must suffer with Christ. Let us, then, progress along this way of sacrifice sacrificing our lives for the Truth, following in the footsteps of Jesus.

Although we have learned that it is our privilege to sacrifice our lives with Christ, yet the greatest lesson for us to learn is what God is to do for us. He is the One who is doing the really great things. Our hearts are stirred within us by His great and precious promises. We feed upon them and meditate upon them. We are enamored of the things which eye hath not seen nor ear heard.

Thus we grow stronger, taller, as Christians day by day. With our desire to grow ever increasing, we see the necessity for meeting together with others of like precious faith in order to build each other up in the most holy faith. We see the Heavenly things more clearly. Other things pass away from our vision. We see the great basic principles of justice and love, and realize their bearing upon our lives in every respect.

NATURAL TRAITS REQUIRE ATTENTION

We note that after we have made our consecration and have learned that God has justified us freely from all sin through our Lord Jesus Christ, there is a tendency with some of the Lord's people to violate unintentionally the fundamental principles of justice and love as existent in the Divine character and manifested in the Divine dealings with the people of God. It is not enough that we should have to walk in the ways of the Lord, and that we should recognize the downward tendencies of sin. If we have the spirit of the Lord, we shall be anxious to do right. We shall meditate upon God's character; and as we see these basic attributes, we shall endeavor to copy them. Thus the work of grace in our hearts will continue and increase, more and more transforming us into the character-likeness of God's dear Son.

We are not to judge one another in these things, however. "The Lord will judge His people," according to His knowledge of their abilities. Mercy will be granted for every unintentional defect; but no mercy will be extended toward those things which we could avoid. Whatever ability we possess we are responsible for; and God will hold us responsible if we do not do our best with what we have. Those who are living up to their opportunities and privileges should go on with courage, doing their best, exercising full faith and confidence in the Lord; for He has promised a sufficiency of grace to cover every imperfection. But there is no excuse for any one to live in careless neglect of his duties and responsibilities. Such are not fighting the good fight of faith.

It is the New Creature who will be held responsible for carelessness respecting conduct, for indifference to the requirements of the golden rule and to the additional exercises of love; and it is he who will fail to receive the commendation, "Well done, good and faithful servant," unless he exercise great care respecting these important matters. God will have none in that special class of overcomers except those who measure fully up to the standard of His requirements. If we are to be the future judges of the world, we must cultivate justice as well as love, so as to be fit to occupy positions of influence and power, in which we shall be able to bless all the families of the earth.

IN THE NEW DISPENSATION

During the Millennial Age, the Lord Jesus will deal with the world. As He declared "All that are in their graves shall hear His voice (' the voice of the Son of Man'), and shall come forth." (John 5:25, 28, 29) Those who thus come forth will be the same imperfect beings that they were when they died. Justice will turn them over to Christ imperfect just as they went down into death. The lifting up to human perfection of all who are willing and obedient will be the work of the incoming age. The lower down they were, the more steps will they be required to take in order to climb up to perfection. Some will have much more to overcome than will others. But in every case the test will be the same.

The Messianic reign will be the world's judgment day. As the Master said, it will be more tolerable in that day for those who during this life had less opportunity than it will be for those who had more. (Matt. 11:20-24) The latter class will come forth more tainted in mind, weaker in character, less inclined to hearken and obey; whereas those who had not heard the message of God's love will be all the more inclined to give heed. The judgment day will be a tolerable time for all mankind, but more tolerable for those who have never before heard and have never known.

Confucius, for example, will come forth in the Messianic Kingdom, and will be a towering giant morally amongst the people in that day. Many who see him will be surprised at what a strong character he will be a heathen man, who lived without our opportunities, who heard no church bells, who attended no church services. As they behold him, some will say, "If only we had availed ourselves of the privileges and opportunities that we had, we might have attained a place even amongst the glorified saints in Heaven." But when they consider themselves in the light of their past lives, they will conclude that they are in their proper position; and, stimulated by the example of various worthy characters, as well as encouraged by the assistance afforded them at that time, they will strive to progress as rapidly as possible. Gradually they will learn the rules of the Kingdom the laws of righteousness, based upon justice and love. Those who are willing and obedient will attain unto life everlasting; but the unwilling and disobedient will be cut off in the second death.

PASSOVER IN TYPE AND IN ANTITYPE

With the exception of the last two paragraphs printed below, this discourse has been republished in Pastor Russell's Sermons, pages 557-564, entitled "Passover in Type and in Antitype."

AS YE ARE UNLEAVENED

The apostle Paul points out these items to which we have called attention. He says that the Lord's consecrated followers are counted as members of the Body of Christ, the Church, under Jesus the Head. He indicates that the broken loaf represents primarily our Lord Jesus, who was broken for us, and that secondarily it represents the Church of Christ, those who willingly and joyfully yield themselves for the sake of the Lord's cause. He also points out that the cup of Christ's blood, of which we are invited to partake, signifies to us a common union in the sufferings and afflictions of Christ.

Therefore, whoever intelligently partakes of the Memorial Supper thereby indicates two things: (1) His faith in Jesus as the Passover Lamb, and his appreciation and participation in the merit of Jesus his justification by faith; and (2) his membership in the Body of Christ, all the members of which agree to be broken membership in that "little flock" whose faithfulness is manifested by drinking of the Master's cup sharing with Him in His sacrifice, suffering with Him in order to reign with Him. 1 Cor. 10:16-17; 2 Tim. 2:11-12.

SALVATION IS FOR ALL BY THE GRACE OF GOD

Lowell, Mass., May 7 Pastor Russell gave a very interesting address in this city this evening. As usual, he was heard with close attention. His text was, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation for all men hath appeared." (Tit. 2:11) The Pastor said in part:

The word grace is a term which is peculiar to this Gospel Age. As used in the Scriptures, it has the significance of unmerited favor. Whoever believes in the grace of God, believes that he is privileged to have a favor that he does not merit. That which is merited would be justice; and it is not justice which we are receiving from the Lord, but mercy, favor.

To the nation of Israel God offered, through the law covenant, something peculiar to them He gave them the privileges of coming into relationship with Himself. This privilege was not given to other nations. But God's favor was not extended to them upon the terms of grace. He offered Israel life upon condition of terms of grace. He offered Israel life upon condition of perfect obedience to the law covenant. (Lev. 18:5) But their endeavor to keep the law merely demonstrates what the Apostle Paul and our Lord Jesus Christ point out, namely, the fact that no imperfect man can keep God's law. (Rom 3:20; John 7:19) The Bible explains why this is so. It is because God's law is adapted to perfect men, not to the imperfect. Hence it is that the imperfect could never gain life under the law covenant. God does not purpose to have a Kingdom with imperfect subjects.

The Almighty Jehovah has made full arrangements that all who attain life everlasting shall be perfect. Here it is that the work of grace comes in. This grace of God was brought to us through our Lord Jesus Christ. It has appeared for all men, although it has not yet been manifested to all men; for the great majority have never yet heard of the grace of God in Christ our Redeemer. But it is for the benefit of all, "to be testified in due time." (1 Tim. 2:5-6) As yet the grace of God has appeared only to those who have heard and received the message of God "speaking peace through Jesus Christ." It appeared to the disciples of Jesus who followed Him when He was on earth. It has appeared to all those who have since heard the message and become His followers. To these the Master says, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear."

GOD'S GRACE REVEALED TO BELIEVERS

The Christ, the Anointed of God, had been promised for many centuries. But until the time of the First Advent the grace of God had not appeared. For 4,128 years after Adam fell there was no grace manifested, only the law and justice. But when our Lord Jesus came, "herein was manifested the love of God," as the Apostle declares. (1 John 4:9-10) God had this love all along, but it had not been manifested; for He wished mankind to learn a great lesson in regard to the effects of sin. He wished them to learn their own weaknesses and their need of Divine assistance. So He permitted them to take their own course of waywardness and sin, in order that they might see that it would result in depravity of mind, body and morals, that it would lead them down the broad road to destruction. Matt. 7:13-14

If God had not intervened, had not provided a recovery, all mankind would have slipped down that broad road to eternal ruin and death--death, not eternal torture. God never provided eternal torture for anybody. A great mistake has been made regarding this matter. During the night of the Dark Ages people got the idea that God had purposed a devilish thing that He had provided a way for the vast majority to slip down to an eternity of torment.

Once born, they could not help themselves, unless they were of the elect. But not so! As Bible students, we are finding that the Bible most positively and clearly declares that the “wages of sin is death;” that “the soul that sinneth, it shall die;” that the broad road leads to destruction. Rom. 6:23; Ezek. 18:4, 20; 2 Thess. 1:9; Prov. 2:22; Eccl. 9:5,6,10.

The justice of God has been manifested ever since the fall of man. The power and the wisdom of God are manifested in all His great works of creation, in the planetary systems, in the human body. But the love of God, the grace of God, had not been made manifest until our Lord Jesus came; and it is not manifested even yet to the whole world. Only a comparatively few have any clear perception of the grace of God as it shines in the face of our Lord Jesus Christ.

REVELMENT OF TRUTH GRADUAL

When our Lord came to earth to become the Messiah and to die for mankind, even His apostles were slow to grasp the real import of His mission. (Luke 24:25-27) They could not comprehend that it was necessary for Him to die as a ransom-price for Adam and his race. When He was crucified, they were sadly disappointed; for they had hoped that the Man Jesus would set up God’s kingdom upon earth, would deliver the Jews from the Roman yoke and would use Israel for the blessing of the world. They hoped soon to reign with Jesus in His kingdom. After His resurrection they understood much more clearly. But it was not until after Pentecost that they grasped the matter in full. Then they saw that He could not set up His kingdom to bless the world until first He became the Redeemer of mankind by dying for them; and that they themselves could not reign with Him until they had first suffered with Him and died with Him.

The disciples then saw that as only one man Adam was sentenced to death all others dying in him so the death of only one man was necessary as a ransom, that the whole world might be purchased back from death. (1 Cor. 15:21-22; Rom. 5:12,18) The penalty for sin is death. Our Lord Jesus died, and thus laid down the sufficiency of price on behalf of the whole world. God had dealt with only the one man Adam. Only one man had been sentenced Adam. When Jesus died, therefore, He was the equivalent, or corresponding price to Father Adam. His death fully offset the matter. It was sufficient to procure the release of the whole world.; for the whole world was under condemnation, under the curse. Through the one man sin had entered the world. Therefore the death of the Man Christ Jesus furnished the price sufficient to ransom Adam and all his race.

Such is the beautiful picture that God gives us in His Word the beautiful story of the operation of His grace toward man. The philosophy of God’s great plan is indeed clearer today than ever before; for the fulfillment of all its parts is at hand. The more we study the wonderful plan of God for human salvation, the more we grasp its fullness, the more are we in love with the glorious character of our Heavenly Father. As we see its lengths, breadths, heights and depths, we are truly “lost in wonder, love and praise!”

OPERATION OF GOD’S GRACE

As we have just said, this grace of God has as yet appeared only to a few, a “little flock.” But the revelation of His grace to these does not mean that God will overlook all their sins and imperfections, call them to Himself and give them all His gracious promises, just as they are by nature. The grace of God does not operate in that way. There has been a “grace fund” provided in the death of Christ, sufficient not only for the sins and imperfections of this class, but for the whole world. But God has His own arrangement as to how the merit of Jesus’ death is to be applied.

Thus far the death of Christ has only opened up the “narrow way” for the Church, and provided for their cleansing. The Lord is now seeking those who have the courage and the strength to climb this rugged pathway.

(Luke 13:24) All the grace of God now manifested is in this narrow way. Of course, the world are recipients of God’s unmerited favor in the sense that He causes the sun to shine upon the evil and the good, and sends His rain upon the just and the unjust. He treats the whole world graciously; but He is receiving none into His favor now except those who have entered the strait gate and the narrow way.

God has not sent His message of grace to the heathen nations save to a very limited degree. It was first sent to the Jews, and took out from amongst them the “Israelites indeed.” Then the nation of Israel was set aside and left in the dark regarding the message of the Gospel Age. God then opened the door of opportunity to the Gentiles, sending the Gospel principally to the civilized nations of Europe and later to America. He knew what parts of the world would be most fruitful as respected His present message.

The Apostle Paul explains why it is that all mankind do not hear the message. “The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not.” (2 Cor. 4:4) Even in the so-called civilized nations, the great majority have no ears to hear the message of God’s grace; for they are under the same blinding influences. Only here and there is there a truly hearing ear. This class God is now taking out of the world to be a people for His name—“a peculiar people, zealous of good works.” Acts 15:13-17; Tit. 2:14.

Some who for a time seem not to heed the message come later on to have a hearing ear. Perhaps something has occurred that changes the current of thought and purpose. Today there are many who have an ear to hear who did not have it a few years ago. The great European war has brought many people to their senses. They are listening now and asking, "What does this war mean?" Others have been sobered and set to thinking by severe afflictions. Some have lost friends whom they almost idolized. But these sorrows and sudden awakenings have proved to be their greatest blessings, for by these experiences their hearts have been turned to the Lord.

MEANING OF THE NAME CHRISTIAN

It is only with this peculiar people that the Lord is now dealing. The merit of Christ has as yet been applied only for these. Some may ask, "Do you mean that good, moral people, honest in their business and clean in their lives, are not Christians unless they are walking in this narrow way of self-sacrifice?" "Yes," we answer. Unless they have taken the definite pathway marked out by our Lord Jesus, they are not walking in His steps. (Matt. 16:24) Hence they are not Christians; for a Christian is a follower of Christ. To none others that the followers of the Master had God's grace come.

As others have watched God's dealings with His own people, they may have learned lessons of morality and obedience. Perhaps they have learned that fire burns, that sin brings punishment, and so have learned to walk decently and honestly; but they are still in the broad road. The only way to get out of that broad road is to get into the narrow way; and they get into the narrow way by accepting Jesus Christ as their Savior and making a full consecration of their wills and of their lives to God.

After one has entered the narrow way, there is still more for the grace of God to do for him. After one has come into Christ he is a new creature. Of itself this new creature needs no grace. But this new "mind of Christ" must tabernacle in an imperfect earthly body, which needs continual cleansing from earthly defilements. The new creature must use all the force of the new will to control the thoughts, words and actions of the mortal body in order to serve and glorify God properly. But while he is in the imperfect flesh, he cannot perform perfect deeds, even as the best musician cannot render a perfect melody on a very imperfect instrument.

As the Apostle says, "Ye cannot do the things that ye would." (Gal. 5:17) But we are to fill up the measure of our ability, by Divine assistance. If we do this we are reckoned perfect, through the imputed merit of Christ. This is where the grace of God comes in, after we have become disciples of our Lord Jesus. The Lord has arranged that if we are overtaken in a fault, we are to go to the Throne of Heavenly grace to obtain mercy and help for every time of need. Thus “the blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin.” Heb. 4:16; John 1:7

As we apply daily for forgiveness for our unwitting transgressions, the blood of Christ keeps us cleansed. If we have yielded our will to any extent, we must suffer stripes proportionate to the degree of willfulness; for God will not cover willful sins with Christ’s merit. Fully willful sin in a child of God would mean to such a one the second death. So we see the responsibility resting upon each one who has become a member of the body of Christ. He must make good or lose life altogether. This is a very solemn thought.

The true Christian learns valuable lessons from his mistakes, and gradually grows strong in the Lord. As in his daily experiences he notes the loving providences of God, his faith is increased and his love deepened. Appreciating more and more his own weaknesses, he learns not to trust in self, but in the Lord alone. He gains greater control over his natural infirmities of character, and thus is gradually transformed into the likeness of Christ. Thus the “grace of God that bringeth salvation” is made applicable to him.

RICHES OF DIVINE GRACE

This salvation has not yet been brought to the children of God, however. As yet they are “saved by hope” only. (Rom.8:24) We are not yet fully delivered. When we receive our new bodies and are freed from all imperfections, we shall be saved in the complete sense. The Apostle Peter speaks of this salvation as “the grace which is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ.” (1 Pet. 1:13) So it was still future in the Apostle’s day. But we believe that today we are very near to the revelation of Jesus Christ, and that the last members of the body of Christ will soon be with Him in glory. As they lay down their consecrated lives in death, they “will be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye;” for “flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God.” 1 Cor. 15:50-54.

This salvation we could never get of ourselves. We receive it only through the grace, mercy and favor of God, through our Lord Jesus Christ. Whoever becomes a member of the glorified church, the bride of Christ, becomes a joint-heir with our Lord “to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, that fadeth not away.” 1 Pet. 1:4; Rom. 8:17.

But the grace of God only begins with the church. Just as soon as these are glorified with their Lord and Head, the narrow way will be out of commission at once; and another way will be opened up the Highway of Holiness, upon which men shall walk in the glorious new age soon to be ushered in. (Isa. 35:5-10) This great highway will lead up to perfection of human nature; for the blessing to the world will not be a change of nature, as with the church, but will be the attainment of perfect human life and an Edenic earth. The redeemed of the earth shall walk upon this great highway, which shall lead to life everlasting upon the earthly plane. But only the willingly obedient shall walk up this highway. The willfully disobedient shall be destroyed. Oh, the grace of God is a wonderful thing! The grace that bringeth salvation to the entire fallen race, giving each member thereof a full individual opportunity to attain life everlasting.

GOD'S BENEDICTION UPON HIS PEOPLE

Dayton, Ohio, May 14 Pastor Russell spoke here today from the text, "The Lord bless thee and keep thee; the Lord make His face shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up His countenance upon thee and give thee peace." (Num. 6:24-26) He said:

While many blessings were pronounced in olden times upon the natural Israelites, we are not to forget that natural Israel was a picture of Spiritual Israel. All of God's blessings to the natural seed of Abraham are still more abundantly applicable to the Church of Christ, which is the spiritual seed of Abraham.

If the Lord shall bless us, will it mean that we shall have temporal prosperity? This is by no means certain; for temporal prosperity is not the promise to spiritual Israel. To this class the blessing of the Lord is of a far higher kind than this. 1 Cor. 10:11; Gal. 3:29; John 16:33.

The Lord's blessing was very richly with our Lord Jesus Christ and with His apostles. Yet they did not have fine houses or chariots or great luxury of any kind. Therefore, in wishing you the blessing of the Lord, we are not wishing you earthly prosperity, but rather whatever the Lord may see best to give you as His children. The Bible treats the church of Christ from the standpoint of a new creation. Not according to the flesh, but according to the spirit, does our God deal with us. The Bible keeps before our minds continually the thought that those who have consecrated their hearts and their lives to the Lord are dead, so far as the flesh is concerned. (Rom. 8:10; Eph. 2:5; Col. 3:3) They are to be dead to fleshly hopes, ambitions and pursuits, but alive toward God, alive to the Heavenly promises and ambitions, alive to the glory, honor and immortality promised to the faithful overcomers, alive to the things which God has set before us in His Word. To this class our text is applicable.

The thought of having the light of God's countenance upon us is a beautiful one. It means that He will look graciously toward us, will give us His favor, His protection, His blessings; that there shall be rest and peace in our hearts. It is inspiring to think that the Almighty One who inhabiteth eternity is our Father; and that He is prepared to do for us everything that could be expected from an almighty, gracious, loving Father provided that we are His children, that we have accepted His terms in Christ.

It does not matter to us, therefore, whether men shall bless us or whether they shall curse us. They cursed both our Lord Jesus and His apostles. Moreover, it was largely the chief religionists who did this. Our Lord said, "If the world hate you, ye know that it hated Me before it hated you." This hate came particularly from the religious world. "If ye were of the world," the Master continued, "the world would love its own; but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you." John 15:18-25; 1 John 3:11-13

GOD SEEKS STRONG CHARACTERS

Our Lord proceeds to tell us that it is only a natural thing that darkness should be opposed to light. It has always been so, both physically and morally. Physical darkness cannot be in the same place with light; for the light swallows up the darkness, so to speak. Spiritual light works in the same way. If not quenched, it will scatter the darkness. In proportion, therefore, as your life emanates the light, in the home, at your work, or in any other place, there will be opposition from those who are under the dominion of the Prince of Darkness. (John 3:19-21; 1 John 2:8-11) This class do not wish to have the light reveal and thus rebuke their darkness, do not wish to have the Lord's way; for they have plans and projects of their own that would be thwarted by the way of the Lord.

But it is not for us to succumb to opposition. On the contrary, we are to overcome, to be faithful to the light, and to let it shine before men. Only to the overcomer is the proposition made that he shall sit down with Christ in His throne. (Rev. 3:21) The Lord is not looking for a company of weaklings, without moral and spiritual backbone. Those who will sit with Him on the throne must receive the new spirit, the new disposition, the new mind, the mind of Christ, and must maintain it.

While these overcomers will not be contentious in the objectionable sense of the word, they will nevertheless "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints," as the apostle enjoins. (Jude 3) This they will not do with fleshly bitterness, however; for at the same time they will be developing the fruits of the holy Spirit patience, meekness, gentleness, long-suffering, brotherly kindness, love. (Gal. 5:22-23) These are the fruits that must appear in those who have received the spirit of God.

Our main overcoming is in ourselves. We are to rule our spirit, to exercise self control, to “be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.” We are to overcome our own natural preferences, our weaknesses, the spirit of the world in ourselves. This is our first victory. Then there are things that we are to overcome in the way of opposition from the Adversary and his servants. (Rom 6:16) We may never “give place to the Devil,” never yield to that which would be in opposition to the Lord and His cause. But we are to be ready to lay down our lives in support of “the Truth as it is in Christ Jesus.” We are not to contend about little matters that are purely personal, and that would not affect the Truth. We should be ready to waive any personal preferences where no principle of righteousness is involved. But where principle is at stake, we must stand fast. We may not compromise principle.

RESPONSIBILITY UPON CHRISTIANS

When we look back to the time when the bishops of the Church began to call themselves “apostolic bishops,” we can see what injury the compromising spirit has wrought in the world. Then it was that the Divine arrangement was set aside, and the creeds of men were substituted for God’s Word. The Apostle Paul says, “The Word of God is sufficient, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto every good work.” (2 Tim. 3:16-17) No matter who may seek to teach us, we must not receive the teaching except as it is proved to be in full accord with the word of God. Men have been in error in the past, and often are in error now.

We are to look for a “thus saith the Lord” to be back of all teachers and teachings. If any one comes to us with any doctrine that cannot be proved by the words of our Lord Jesus or of the Apostles or of the prophets, we should not accept it. St. Paul warns, “Though an angel from Heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.” (Gal. 1:6-9) Even the angels are not authorized to be the teachers of the church, as shown in the Word of God.

As we seek to be overcomers, seek to be wholly faithful to the Lord, and as we trust His promises, we abide in His love. As our Lord Jesus said, “If ye keep My commandments, ye shall abide in My love.” (John 15:10) He did not force these commandments upon us. He merely pointed out to us the opportunity and the privilege of becoming His disciples. Then we voluntarily said, “Dear Lord, we desire to be Thy disciples. We desire to give up all earthly interests in order that we may share with Thee in Thy sacrifice. Enroll us amongst Thy followers this is our prayer.” After we have been accepted of the Lord, He says to us, “Now, in harmony with your request, I give you these commandments.

They are your instructions as to how to walk in My ways. If you wish to be faithful disciples and to continue in My love, keep these injunctions.”

While our Lord endorsed the Ten Commandments given to natural Israel, He made it plain that the essence of them all was contained in the one broad command, “Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength; and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.” Matt. 22:37-40; Luke 10:27

THE “NEW COMMANDMENT”

To His disciples the Master said, “A new commandment I give unto you.” (John 13:34-35) This was an additional commandment which went beyond the law; for it means sacrificial love. “Greater love hath no man that this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.” (John 15:13) This is the love which our Lord Jesus had for us. If we have the same love for the brethren that He manifested, then we have the self-sacrificing love. The Apostle John says, “Hereby perceive we the love of God, because He (Christ) laid down His life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.” (1 John 3:16) Our Master laid down His life for us. This is the measure of His love; and we are to love as He loved.

If we are true disciples, true followers of the Master, we shall be willing to lay down our lives for the brethren. We are to love and to desire to help all who love the Lord. We are to be forbearing and long-suffering with their frailties. Otherwise we cannot remain under the benediction of our text.

The Apostle Paul says that if we bite and devour one another we are in danger of being consumed one of another. (Gal. 5:15) There would be a continual clash and warfare; and we would die as new creatures. In order to glide along together without much friction we need much of the lubricating oil of the holy Spirit. More and more we should learn to appreciate the good qualities of the Lord’ people, to learn the lesson that if God shows favor to any one we have sufficient reason for loving that one.

Whether or not we can see anything to admire in another of the Lord’s people is another question. No matter how uncouth one may be according to the flesh, we must love him and be patient with him until he learns to do better; for we must recognize that the Lord must have seen honesty of heart there or He would not have received that one as His child. This does not mean that we are to ignore serious faults in the brethren, and to make no kindly effort to assist them to overcome their weaknesses and blemishes; but that as long as they give evidence of trying to do the Lord’s will we should be patient, sympathetic and brotherly with them.

THOUGHTS FOR CHRIST'S SOLDIERS

There are many lessons which the children of God may learn from the armies of the warring European nations. What heroism those soldiers are manifesting as they fight for their various countries! Because of patriotism or some other motive, those men over there endure the most terrible conditions. If men will thus endure from love of country, what should the Lord's people be willing to endure for the Heavenly country? If these soldiers do such things for earthly kings, princes and captains, what shall we do for the great Ruler of the Universe, who is our Captain and our King? How shall we fulfil our obligation as soldiers of the Cross of Christ?

As we consider how these soldiers of the warring armies labor under such unfavorable circumstances and conditions as are reported from time to time, in contrast with the favorable conditions which we enjoy, we should feel an increase of courage. We should be ashamed of anything like cowardice, of anything of disloyalty, when we see these earthly soldiers, without any such hope as inspires the soldiers of the Cross, without the backing of the holy Spirit, yet displaying such courage and loyalty to their rulers. If they so endure, "what manner of persons ought we to be? 2 Pet. 3:11

No matter what may have been their station in life, when these soldiers get into the ranks they are fighting for one general cause. If they had difficulties with one another before, this is all left behind in their desire to serve the common cause. In their fight against the common foe they must stand together; for they are enlisted under the direction of one commander, and they are fighting for the one ruler.

Likewise the followers of our Lord Jesus are all soldiers under one great Captain our Lord. We are all enlisted under the banner of the Heavenly King, not for a few years, but until death. We have a common foe; and we are all children of one Father. We have not entered upon this warfare to escape hardship and trial. It is a battle all the way down to the close of our earthly life.

What should be our course, then? In our dealings with the brethren, should we not deal in holiness, in helpfulness, in sympathy, in love? Do we not all have trials of our own? Do not the brethren have trials and difficulties also? Then let us be loyal to them and to our King. "Let us show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into His marvelous light," by being true soldiers in the army of Christ.

CLOSING WORDS OF BENEDICTION

May the blessing of our text be our portion. May "the Lord bless thee and keep thee!" May each one of us enjoy the blessing of the Lord day by day! But should any one desire to leave Him at any time, He will not hold such a one back; for it was by giving up our will that we were accepted by the Lord at all. Our remaining with Him is altogether a voluntary matter.

“The Lord make His face to shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee. The Lord lift up His countenance upon thee and give thee peace.” As the Scriptures show, the peace of God is not the peace which comes from having no enemies to overcome, no difficulties to surmount. We have enemies within and without; and we shall have them, down to the end of our sojourning in the flesh. The Master said, “Peace I leave with you; My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you.” (John 14:27) He then declared that His peace would be of a kind that we might have in the midst of afflictions and tribulations.

Let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankful," urges the Apostle Paul (Col. 3:15) We have great reason to cultivate thankfulness. The more we study the matter, the more we shall see how much we have to thank God for. If our hearts are filled with gratitude, all murmuring and repining will be crowded out; for there will be so much discerned for which to praise the Lord that there will be no room for ingratitude. As we go onward in the narrow way, we should note all our blessings, both great and small. If we have trials, difficulties and perplexities, we should realize that these are all working out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Thus will the Lord bless us and cause His face to shine upon us. Thus will He lift up His countenance upon us and give us peace.

We trust that more and more we are coming to appreciate this peace of God, which passes all human understanding. May the Lord grant each of us more and more the wisdom, grace strength and peace needful to enable us to press on in the narrow way to the end of our course! “Faithful is He that hath called you, who also will do it.” He will do “exceeding abundantly above all that we can ask or think, according to the riches of His grace” and His lovingkindness in Christ Jesus our Lord. Blessed are they that put their trust in Him!

ALL SEEK WEALTH— WHO GETS THE BEST?

Chicago, Illinois, May 28 Pastor Russell was here today, and delivered a very practical address, taking for his text, “Godliness with contentment is great gain” (1 Tim. 6:6) We report his discourse in part:

Six thousand years ago, away back in Eden, man met with an irretrievable loss. He lost his relationship to God. He lost his right to life, and came under the penalty of death through disobedience. Ever since that time man has unceasingly searched for his lost treasures, has searched for happiness and for rest of mind and heart. Few have known the truth concerning man's lost estate, and few have found the way back to God. The quest for the fabled fountain of youth has been unavailing. Man has continued to die ever since the death sentence was pronounced upon Father Adam.

At the time when our first parents were driven from their Eden home into the unprepared earth, there to earn their bread by sweat of face until the death sentence should be fully carried out, a vague promise of restoration was made them. Later, this promise was still more plainly stated to Abraham. Four thousand years after the fall of Adam, our Lord Jesus came to earth to lay down the great ransom price for man's deliverance, and to open the way whereby Adam and all his posterity might regain that which was lost, and once more be godly.

Today's text draws to our attention the true gain which man so long has sought in vain, and suggests how that gain is to be obtained. The apostle is especially addressing the saints of God, those who have learned of Him and are seeking to meet the conditions for gaining the true and lasting wealth. Only these are the godly; only these can have true contentment. There is a sort of contentment, however, which even the worldly may possess a slothfulness of mind, a carelessness, an indolence. But this is not real contentment, and can bring no gain. Such contentment is not advantageous to anyone. It is merely an apathy of the brain. But so surely as God has given us brains, just so surely does He expect that we shall use them.

TRUE CONTENTMENT BASED ON GODLINESS

The contentment of our text has a good basis and the best of reasons for its existence. This contentment is born of faith in God, of acceptance of His terms of salvation from death, of study of the Message which He has sent through His Son. Everything that the Word of God directs us to do and to be implies perfect wisdom on God's part. Therefore those who have come to know Him and to trust Him are becoming more and more pleased with everything in that Word. They rejoice to have found the true wisdom. They find, as the apostle expresses it, that "The wisdom that is from Above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and of good fruits." Jas. 3:17

Since the godliness and the contentment which bring great gain come only from God and a knowledge of His Word, whoever has learned this secret can be content under all conditions. To this class the Master said, "Take no thought for the morrow." He did not mean that they should be improvident, making no provision whatever beyond the needs of the present day. By careful attention to His words and to the general teaching of Scripture we see that our Lord referred to the taking of anxious thought, to a failure to exercise faith in our Father's loving care over His children.

God's Word instructs us to take proper thought for the morrow, and gives us the ant as an illustration of thrift and provident care for the future. (Prov. 6:6-8; 30:25) But as children of God, we should be free from worry and anxious foreboding; for these indicate a lack of faith. We are to "do with our might what our hands find to do," and then to trust in the Lord for the rest. He has promised to care for all our needs, and to cause all things to work together for good to those who love Him.

In our text St. Paul puts godliness first. This quality the world does not now possess. When Adam was created, he had this likeness to God in his mental organism. Created in the image of God, he had fellowship with his Creator. But when sin entered, it disturbed the relationship which Adam had sustained to God as His son. (Luke 3:38) Then God cast him off from further communion with Himself. Adam lost all the privileges of a son of God, and was thenceforth permitted to take his own course. He has taken it, with all his posterity; and mankind will see where it will all end. After six thousand years it has brought the world into a very deplorable condition.

PRESENT CONDITIONS PROVE NEED OF GOD

We look over into Europe, whose people are supposed to lead the world in intelligence and civilization. There we see them in the most lamentable and abject condition, fighting not like saints, against their own weaknesses and blemishes, but against one another like demons. Oh, what an illustration of what man will retrograde to when God lets go of him and leaves him to his own devices! And this is the great lesson which God designs that man shall learn.

We need to keep ourselves in the love of God in the condition where we shall love God and He will love us. We need to realize that if we thus do, then all things shall go well with us; but that if we fail to do this, all shall go wrong, as they have in the world. As we look back over the past six thousand years of sin and death, and behold the results the sickness, disease, sorrow, insanity, death, the funerals, the cemeteries, the terrible wars and pestilences, etc. we are led to exclaim, "Oh, that our race were back in the original likeness of God, where all could be God-like, where love would dominate instead of hatred, where life and peace would prevail instead of turmoil, strife and death!"

RANSOM AND RESTITUTION

Here the Bible comes in and tells us of God's great arrangement for the recovery of the race of Adam. The image of God lost by the first Adam is to be restored by the second Adam the Lord Jesus Christ, as the King of earth and the new Father of mankind. And since Mother Eve had a share in the sin which brought death into the world, so the second Eve, the Bride of Christ, will have a share in the regeneration of the world of mankind. That second Eve will be the glorified "Church of the First-Borns."

The Church will not give life to the world; for life comes from the Father. The life of the world was originally in Adam; and when Adam was condemned, the life of the world was lost. Adam alone was sentenced to death. His children all go into death, not because of their individual trial and death sentence, but simply because Adam, having failed to maintain his perfection, was unable to give his children what he himself did not possess. By one man the whole trouble came. By another Man the whole trouble will be rectified. This is pointed out by St. Paul, who says, "As by a man came death, by a man comes also the resurrection of the dead; for as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive every man in his own order." 1 Cor. 15:21-23

As Adam was the original life-giver to the world, and as Eve was the nourisher or caretaker of that life, so our Lord Jesus will be the second Life-giver, and the Church, the Bride of Christ, will be their nourisher and caretaker training, disciplining and teaching, and uplifting the world to human perfection. Our Lord Jesus, the Redeemer of mankind, has the right to restore to man the life which was lost in Eden. He will be the great Regenerator of the human race. To his disciples of old He said, "In the regeneration, when the Son of Man shall sit in the Throne of His glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Matt. 19:28

The time of this Regeneration will be the time of the Millennial reign of righteousness. Regeneration means re-creation. Man has gone into death; and God's purpose is that he shall be restored to life, under the provisions which He has made in His Son. Only the finally incorrigible will fail to gain this great gift of God to man. (Rom. 6:23) These will be destroyed in the second death.

How happy we are to know all this to know that God has a plan whereby the race which has gone down into death is to be restored to life! In Acts 3:19-23 the Apostle Peter tells us of this glad time for the world, and styles it "Times of Restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began."

THE SONG OF MOSES AND THE LAMB

How happy this knowledge makes our hearts! We can now sing “the song of Moses and the Lamb, saying, Great and marvelous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty! Just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of saints! Who shall not fear Thee, O Lord, and glorify Thy name; for Thou are holy. For all nations shall come and worship before Thee; for Thy righteous acts are made manifest.” (Rev. 15:3-4) They are manifested to the saints now, but not yet to the world.

By the eye of faith the Church can discern that this is God’s great Plan. Others do not see because they have not this eye of faith. But we do not berate them for their blindness. On the contrary, we are sorry for them. And so with the world of mankind. They perceive not, neither do they understand. We rejoice, however, that this blindness will not be an injury to them in the future, but that in God’s due time all the blind eyes shall be opened, all the deaf ears unstopped. Then they shall have a share in the restitution work. Isa. 35:5

The glorified church of Christ will have a most blessed work in the succoring of the world of mankind. How glad we are that we have such a high and heavenly calling! We should rejoice in this, not only because we are to be made partakers of the Divine nature, but because we are to be made partakers of the Divine nature, but because we are to be used of the Lord as the great Mother Eve, to be the caretaker of the world. We can think of nothing that would give us more pleasure than what God has provided for us. In past years, when we were taught that when raised to the Heavenly condition we would sit upon a cloud and play a harp, we used to wonder what it was all for. We guessed a few things; and we generally guessed wrong. Now we see that our Heavenly Father has a much more profitable way for us to spend our time when we reach the Kingdom. Now we see the rich provisions of grace which God has in reservation for His people.

PROVISION FOR THE CHURCH UNIQUE

However, in our text the apostle is not speaking of the future, but of the present. It is to those who are now God’s consecrated people that he declares, “Godliness with contentment is great gain.” In what sense is the church now godly? We have not been restored to perfection. We have not had the original godliness in flesh brought back to us, such as Adam originally enjoyed. But there is a feature of God’s plan now operating by which He provides for the class called to be the church. He is working all things according to the counsel of His will and in an orderly way. He has made an especial arrangement in Christ, whereby during the Gospel Age those who desire to avail themselves of His great offer to leave the world and to join with Christ in His sacrifice may be able to do so.

By nature the church class are of the condemned race of Adam, as are all the world. But God has arranged that these may be justified by faith, may have a reckoned standing with the Father through the imputation of the sacrificial merit of Christ, and thus may be counted as perfect, all their weaknesses and blemishes being covered from God's sight through this merit. Thus they may present themselves to God as sharers in Christ's sacrifice, and be accepted of Him. Christ imputes to each one whatever that one lacks of perfection.

We are justified through the blood of Christ. Thus we can give up our little all to God, who accepts us and begets us with His holy Spirit; and we are then made members of the Body of Christ. But we must present all that we have. We must hold nothing back. Our dear Lord Jesus gave all that He had, when He came to earth to die for mankind. He gave everything in order to purchase the "field" the world and the treasure hid in the field the church. (Matt. 13:44) If we are to join Him in His sacrifice, we must have the same spirit. We cannot give as much as He did; but if we give all that we possess our will, our time, our affection, our influence we are doing just as He did. We cannot give more than we have.

We are to have "the mind that was in Christ Jesus." (Phil. 2:5) If we had perfect bodies, we would give perfect bodies; but we give what we have. We come to the Father, not in our own name, but through Christ our great Advocate. When we present ourselves, Jesus, our great High Priest, offers us to the Father, and guarantees that we shall be sacrificed. Then the Father accepts us and begets us with His holy Spirit. We are now new creatures, with new hopes, new aims, new ambitions and prospects. (2 Cor. 5:17) We have a new mind a desire to do God's will and to have His will done in us. Now we are to go on and develop more and more of the mind of Christ, growing in character-likeness to our Savior.

GROWTH IN GODLINESS

Day by day we are on trial as new creatures. We are to overcome the old nature with its tendencies. Daily the Lord our God proves us to see the depth of our loyalty to Him and to the principles of righteousness. He tests us as to our love for Him, for our brethren, for our neighbor. Are we daily putting on more and more the fruits and graces of the holy Spirit meekness, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, brotherly-kindness, love? If so, we are progressing favorably; and continuing thus to the end of our course, we shall attain the prize. If we are doing the best we can, this is all that the Lord will require of us.

The matter of godliness is in our minds the harmony of our mind with the mind of God. As the apostle assures us, we find a continual warfare between our new mind and our fallen flesh. (Gal. 5:17) If we have no such warfare, something is wrong; for every true child of God has this warfare. Our flesh was born under sin, and is in accordance with the world. Our new mind is begotten from Above, and is in accordance with God and Heavenly things. So we are continually striving to keep the body under, to bring it into subjection to the mind of Christ. (1 Cor. 9:27) It is a fight to a finish. One or the other must die. Rom. 8:13

It is well to note that the apostle does not say that contentment alone is great gain, but that godliness with contentment is great gain. Truly, he who is God-like, whose heart is content, resting in the precious promises of God's Word, serving the Lord with gladness, is rich. If, as children of God, we are looking to Him for His providential leadings in all life's affairs, trusting Him while we endeavor to do our best to please Him, then we have learned that "Godliness with contentment is great gain."

TRAINING FOR THE ROYAL PRIESTHOOD

New York City, June 4 Pastor Russell spoke at the New York City Temple, West 63rd St., near Broadway, this evening. His discourse was based on 1 Pet. 2:9—"But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people, that ye should show forth the praises of Him who hath called you out of darkness into His marvelous light." The Pastor said in part:

The apostle is contrasting those who accepted Jesus as the Messiah with those who rejected Him.

The word generation seemingly is used in this text to signify a race. God first called the nation of Israel to be His chosen people, His holy nation. (Ex. 19:5-6) for over eighteen hundred years they were trained under the law to demonstrate whether they were worthy to be God's people. But God foreknew that even with their best endeavors they could not keep His law, because they were imperfect. He knew that they could never thus gain the prize of everlasting life. (Lev. 18:5; Rom. 10:5) He had arranged, however, for the redemption of Israel and of all the world through the death of our Lord Jesus Christ; and He knew that the Mosaic law would be the schoolmaster to lead the Israelites to Christ. Gal. 3:24

The Israelites hoped God would make of them a great people, that eventually would rule the world as God's kingdom. Because they were the natural seed of Abraham, they considered it a foregone conclusion that God's promise to Abraham could apply to no others than themselves. They overlooked the fact that the true seed of blessing would have the faith, the heart obedience, of Abraham. The Jewish nation lacked this faith and obedience.

When the Messiah came, long foretold by their holy prophets, they rejected Him and slew Him. Only a few, "Israelites indeed," of humble, teachable heart, received Him. But God had foreknown the rejection of His Son by the nation, and had prearranged that when the faithful few had been gathered from Israel, the call for this Seed class should go to the Gentiles.

In Jehovah's plan, this Abrahamic seed of blessing was to be composed of 144,000--12,000 from each of the twelve tribes of Israel, under the headship of His Son, our Lord Jesus Christ. Hence when the 20,000 or more Israelites who proved worthy had been brought into the Christian church, the Gospel message was sent to take out from the Gentiles a sufficient number to complete what was lacking from each tribe. These Gentiles thus became members of spiritual Israel, all of whom have had the faith of faithful Abraham.

SPIRITUAL ISRAEL -- A NEW NATION

The Israelites having been rejected as regards the Gospel call, a new nation was to be formed, composed of the faithful few from both Jews and Gentiles. God then opened up a new way of life, through Christ Jesus. (Heb. 10:20) The calling out and preparation of this new nation of spiritual Israel has been the work of this Gospel age. The way opened to them has not been a failure, as was the way opened for natural Israel. The Gospel church is "not under law, but under grace." God's provision in Christ enables these to succeed who are walking in the new way of life. They keep the Divine law in spirit, and the robe of Christ's merit covers all the imperfections and blemishes of their flesh which are unavoidable.

Those who were chosen from amongst the Jews became dead to the law covenant, under which their nation had been bound for over sixteen hundred years. Those who were chosen from amongst the Gentiles became dead to their former sins and wrong condition. Together these became espoused to Christ, the middle wall of partition separating them having been broken down. They are to be the Bride of Christ. Those who constitute this bride class lose all their former relationships as men, and become heirs of God, joint-heirs with Christ. They are now new creatures. 2 Cor. 5:17

THE KINGLY PRIESTHOOD

It is to this class that St. Peter says, "Ye are a royal priesthood." The office of a king is to rule, to reign; the office of a priest is to teach, to heal and to bless. These two offices are to be united in the work which this class is to perform when they shall have been exalted in the kingdom. “Ye are a holy nation, a peculiar people,” adds the apostle. This class have become separated from all other people. They are strangers and pilgrims on the earth. With their Head, Christ Jesus, they are to constitute the new government of Messiah’s kingdom, soon to be set up on the earth. It is not as human beings, however, that they are to reign, to teach and to bless the peoples of the world, but as spirit beings after their glorification in the first resurrection. (Rev. 20:4-6)

For more than eighteen hundred years these royal priests have been in process of training, developing the character necessary to make them worthy and capable rulers of the next age. The character tests applied to this company of prospective rulers are very rigid. They must first learn to judge and govern themselves before they would be fit to judge and govern others. They are placed in the school of Christ to be taught of Him. They are to learn lessons of meekness, self-control, patience, faith, gentleness, sympathy, love. Without these important characteristics this class would not be able to deal properly with the sinful, fallen world. but if they have these qualities well developed, they will, the Apostle Peter tells us, have “an abundant entrance into the everlasting (age-lasting) kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.” (2 Pet. 1:5-11)

Our Lord Jesus, who was perfect, learned obedience, we are told, by the things which He suffered. (Heb. 5:8-9) The finest quality of character can be developed in no other way. Therefore all who are to be associated with Him in the Messianic kingdom work must suffer. If obedience were always easy, we could not learn what it really means. All who hope to be of the kingdom class must develop faith and obedience from the very first. There can be no real growth without these characteristics; and they must continue to increase.

JEHOVAH’S PECULIAR TREASURE

This loyal class are indeed a peculiar people, and the Lord calls them so. This statement of our text has the meaning of an acquisition. The Lord has acquired these as something especially precious. To Israel of old He declared, “Now, therefore, if ye will obey My voice indeed and keep My covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto Me above all people.” We know that natural Israel was a type of the spiritual Israel of the Gospel age; and that the seed of Abraham who was to inherit the chiefest promises was to be his seed according to faith and not according to the flesh. This is clearly taught in the New Testament. Rom. 4 :14-16; 9:6-8; Gal. 3:8, 16, 29

Accordingly, the twelve tribes of Israel who are really God’s peculiar treasure are the twelve tribes of spiritual Israel. (Rev. 7:1-4) These are the people who are keeping their covenant with the Lord. They are as dear to God as the apple of His eye.

Nominal Christians are not included in this choice treasure. Saints alone are meant. Each one of his class has entered into a special covenant with the Lord a covenant by sacrifice. (Psa. 50:5) Their Lord and Master first made this covenant with the Father, and we are following in His steps.

All during the Gospel age God has been gathering these, one by one. Not many great ones, not many mighty ones, are amongst them, but chiefly the poor of this world, rich in faith. (1 Cor. 1:26-29; Jas. 2:5) These are to be the heirs of the kingdom which God has promised to them that love Him. He is not gathering them to any sect or party, but to Himself. "Gather My saints together unto Me," is His command. He has not instructed us to gather the world to Him; for the world's time has not yet come. On the contrary, we are to seek the humble, teachable ones, those who hunger and thirst after righteousness.

Those now gathered to the Lord are all covenanters. No one can become a member of the Bride class who does not make this covenant by sacrifice and then live faithfully up to it. The covenant is an agreement to surrender our will fully to God, to consecrate to Him our entire life, with all that we have. Whoever comes to Him during this Gospel age must come in this way. Whoever has not made that kind of covenant with God, has not come into the Lord's family at all. God's terms are very definite. We are not to be afraid to yield ourselves wholly to God. His will for us is our very highest good. We are to remember that our Lord has said, "My grace is sufficient for thee; for My strength is made perfect in weakness." The Lord tells us through His Word that He knows that we are of the fallen race, that He does not call us because we are perfect, but that He has made abundant provision to cover all our need.

THE HOLY SPIRIT ESSENTIAL

After we have given our will to God and have taken His will, we are then to take up our cross and follow the Master in the narrow way. (Matt. 16:24) The Lord's people are to be just as narrow as His Word. "Strait (difficult) is the gate, and narrow is the way that leadeth unto life" the life now offered. If we walk with the Lord now, while sin is reigning in the world, we must walk a narrow way. Of this way the Master said, "Few there be that find it." Matt. 7:13-14

Those who will be of this class that follow the Master now must be willing and glad to suffer the loss of friends, of social standing, of all earthly hopes and prospects, for the sake of the heavenly hopes and glories. All of this class will be guided by the Lord, by His holy Spirit -not by hearing words spoken to their inner ear, not by impressions made upon their mind, but by the Word of God, the Bible, by the things written therein aforetime for our learning and our admonition. The spirit of God operates through the inspired Word for the instruction of His people in the Truth. 1 Cor. 10:11; 2 Tim. 3:16

Why do we need to have the guidance of the Lord's holy Spirit His influence, His mind in order to understand the Bible properly? It is because if we go to the study of the Bible with our own unaided reason, or if we go in a wrong spirit, we are sure to make a mistake and to get wrong views. But if we go prayerfully, in a spirit of meekness, gentleness, patience, love, we are going in the right manner. Then, if previously begotten of the holy Spirit, we shall understand the deep things of God. The Bible says that the natural man receiveth not the things of the spirit of God, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. 1 Cor. 2:9-14

St. Peter points out the fact that to some who profess to be the people of God, our Lord Jesus and His cross become "a stone of stumbling and a rock of offense, even to them that stumble at the Word, being disobedient." (1 Pet. 2:7-8) This class lack humility and teachableness; they lack loyalty to God, and prefer their own theories, which minister to their pride. They are blinded by their own wrong condition of heart. To the humble and faithful, this Rock, which is a stone of stumbling to others, becomes a refuge, a support, a stepping stone to God.

SOME APPOINTED TO STUMBLE

Aside from stumbling at the cross of Christ, these unfaithful ones stumble at His teachings in general. The Master taught His disciples to love even their enemies. This unfaithful class do not wish to do this. He taught His disciples not to war, and forbade the use of carnal weapons, saying, "They that take the sword shall perish with the sword." But this class are today advocating war, and are using their influence to induce men to kill their fellow-men. They have not submitted their wills to the will of God, their minds to His mind. Hence they are always in conflict with Him and with His plans.

Of those who profess to be God's people, but who are disobedient and who stumble at His Word, St. Peter says, "Whereunto they were appointed." What does this mean? Does God appoint that any of His people shall stumble? We answer, God does not design that any shall understand

His Word at present except those who are wholly loyal and obedient. He does not wish the worldly-minded to see as yet. Unless one is in the right condition of heart, the Truth would do him harm; for it would greatly increase his responsibility. Of our Lord some said, "He hath a devil and is mad." The Master declared that if their eyes were really open to see, their sin would remain. (John 10:19-21; 9:39-41) The whole world is stumbling and fighting against God; but being blinded by the Adversary and his sophistries and falsehoods, they are perhaps not so much to blame. For us who have been enlightened, it would be a terrible thing to take the position which is now taken by practically the entire world, including the great majority of professed followers of Christ. On the day of Pentecost, when telling the Jews that they had been guilty of crucifying the Lord of Glory, the Apostle Peter declared that he believed that they had done it in ignorance, both they and their rulers. They were largely blinded by the Prince of Darkness; and hence there would be mercy for as many of them as would repent when they came to see their error and sin. From this we infer that the majority of people are not so culpable as they would be if they realized what they were doing.

PARALLELS OF EXPERIENCE

During the Harvest of the Jewish age, God permitted the unfaithful Jewish nation to stumble, and gathered the faithful "Israelites indeed, in whom there was no guile" into the garner of the Christian church, leaving the remainder to go into an appalling time of trouble and national overthrow. (Matt. 3:11-12; Luke 13:34-35; 21:5-6) They must await in the tomb the judgment of the day of Christ, and take their place with the world of mankind, who are then to be dealt with under the great Mediator whom God hath appointed. Likewise the professed people of God today, nominal Christendom, are now coming into a great time of trouble and overthrow, incident to the establishment of the mediatorial kingdom of God's dear Son. During this struggle all present institutions and systems social, ecclesiastical, financial and industrial will go down forever.

As to individuals, all must pass their judgment some to become members of the great company who are to stand before the throne of God and to serve in His temple; some to be dealt with during the age to come, under the reign of Messiah. For a thousand years the great Mediator between God and men will be with the world, to help all the willing and obedient to rise out of degradation, sin and death conditions and to get back to perfection of human nature. But those who will then either refuse or neglect the opportunities of Messiah's kingdom will be destroyed in the second death.

We rejoice to know that through the Millennial Kingdom everyone will have an opportunity to come into relationship with God, as at the first, before sin entered the world. We rejoice that "there's a wideness in God's mercy like the wideness of the sea;" and that we can see His glorious purpose not only for the faithful church, but also for the less faithful and for all the world when they shall have learned the needed lessons, eternal destruction awaiting only the needed lessons, eternal destruction awaiting only the finally wilful and incorrigible. For us who see the Heavenly privileges and glories, it remains to prove our faithfulness even unto death. There will be no disloyal ones in that kingdom class beyond the veil. Then, when the royal priesthood shall have been installed in office, the work of the new dispensation shall begin for the blessing of all mankind.

NATURAL LAW PARALLELED ON THE SPIRITUAL PLANE

Indianapolis, June 11, Pastor Russell was here today and gave a very interesting lecture on the text, "He that soweth bountifully shall reap bountifully; but he that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly." (2 Cor. 9:6) A condensed report follows.

The speaker showed that reaping invariably corresponds to sowing, not only in kind, but also in quality and in quantity. It is very evident that his view on the application of both text and context differs from that of the majority of even professed Christians.

Usually this passage is applied in a general way to everybody; but the Pastor applies it only to Christians. While he admits that it is true that all reap as they sow, yet he claims that only Christians those who have made a full consecration of themselves to God are begotten of the holy Spirit can sow to the Spirit; that these are now on trial for life or death everlasting. He believes that only a few are sowing seed along spiritual lines and reaping spiritual harvests; and that the great majority are sowing along merely natural lines, whether the seed be good or evil, and will reap accordingly, some a noble and some an ignoble character.

So far has man fallen from the estate in which Adam was created that it may be truly said, as the apostle declares, "They are all gone out of the way; they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one." (Rom. 3:10-12) Instead of being a holy Spirit a holy mind or disposition the mind of fallen man today is largely unholy, perverted and imperfect. But those who have stepped out from the world, those who have become, through faith in Christ and dedication of themselves to God, children of God, have His holy Spirit His mind or disposition; and this they have in proportion as they are living close to God, following in their Master's footsteps.

According to the measure that this latter class "sow to the Spirit" will they reap the character of Christ, the fruitage of the holy Spirit. The Lord desires His people not only to sow to the Spirit, but to sow bountifully. There is a principle of justice that runs all through the matter. God does not say, "Never mind what you do, I will forgive you and make it all right with you. I know that you are imperfect.” No! The principle constantly operates that whoever sows good seed will reap corresponding blessings; but whoever sows evil seed may expect to reap corresponding injury. The merit of Christ covers the Christian’s unwitting mistakes when he is doing his best; but it does not make up for negligence, carelessness or indifference as to the kind of seed he sows. “Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.”

INFLEXIBLE LAW OF CAUSE AND EFFECT

Those, now children of God, found before they left the world, that when they lived in accordance with the will of the fallen human nature, the things from which they expected good results and happiness gave poor results and dissatisfaction that anticipation was much better than realization. They also found that following their own will generally yielded bad fruitage. They had sown wrong thoughts; and these thoughts produced more of the same kind. Then the wrong thoughts brought forth wrong deeds, which in time developed a wrong character. The things which at first were merely optional became fixed characteristics. As somebody has well said, “Sow a thought and reap an act, sow an act and reap a habit; sow a habit and reap a character; sow a character and reap a destiny.” To the extent that an unholy character had been developed it must be painstakingly demolished, and a righteous character erected.

In this connection, parents should begin with their children, by keeping before their minds from earliest childhood pure, noble, loving thoughts. While it is impossible to make them perfect, yet parents can do much toward shielding their children from the evil in the world. By giving their children a right start in life, parents would be bestowing upon them a legacy for which the children would thank them throughout eternity. If mothers could only know how much they have in their power the molding of the minds of their children, how careful they would be! How vigilantly they would guard their own mental conditions and attitudes in order that they might bring into the world children whose dispositions would be noble, upright children that would be a blessing rather than a curse.

But if vicious passions control, if wrong thoughts are harbored, the child will be born with these evil tendencies; and no matter how hard he may try in after life to develop a noble character, he will have a lifelong battle with the results of improper pre-natal influences. How sad it is that these facts were not set before us long ago!

The fathers also have especial responsibility along this line. Not only should they themselves be noble if they would hope to bring forth noble offspring, but they should see to it that so far as possible the mother should have the proper associations and environment, the proper care and attention. As these things are all taken into consideration in the breeding of fine horses, dogs, etc., of how much more importance is it that our children be given thus a noble heritage!

PROPER TRAINING OF CHILDREN

It is high time that all thinking people agitate this subject, and thus head off as far as possible the propagation of children badly equipped mentally, morally and physically. We cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of proper pre-natal influences in forming the child's disposition. But parental responsibility does not cease with the birth of the child. Its entire life requires supervision. Here again the mother has her care to see that the child is not unjust in dealing with its playmates not even with the dog. She must inculcate cleanliness of body and of mind. If she is careless about these things, the child gets the idea that it does not matter what one does; and thus the liability to do unjustly and to live uncleanly is greatly increased.

Peculiar responsibility along all lines rests upon Christian parents. As we come to see the principles of God's government, our minds should be filled with thoughts of justice, righteousness, kindness, love. These thoughts should be reflected upon our children; and thus they are taught of God. Even though they may not become spirit-begotten children of God, yet all who ever attain unto life everlasting on any plane must have this holy Spirit, mind. If a child is not naturally meek, if its pre-natal development was neglected in this respect, then it should be taught meekness. It should be shown how unbecoming are rudeness and self-assertion. It should have held up before it the beauty of gentleness and kindness. If a child is handled properly during the early formative years of its life, it will soon get these good principles fixed in its mind. Meekness, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, kindness, love these are traits that parents should carefully cultivate in themselves. They are qualities of the Spirit of God which He expects all His children to develop richly. However bad a Christian's habits may have been before he became God's child, the Heavenly Father expects him to eradicate his undesirable traits of character as rapidly as possible, by Divine grace. He is to dig them up by the roots, as he would pull up noxious weeds from his garden. Then he must plant instead the beautiful and fruitful things. What a beautiful adornment is meekness! How unlovely are arrogance and headiness!

As this beauty of character is manifested by the parent, it will be noticed by the children, who are very quick of discernment, and who generally have a keen sense of justice and of consistency of example. Sooner or later this beauty in the parent is sure to bear fruitage in the child, unless its character had become too firmly fixed before the parents realized their responsibility along these lines. Undoubtedly the disrespect of parents so common today and neglect of parents in their old age are the legitimate fruitage of parental neglect in earlier days. Many parents today are reaping the harvest of their own failure to train their children properly in early childhood. In many cases evil seeds have been sown in the child mind instead of good seed; and today the bad fruitage of such sowing is evident. In other cases the seed has been sown far too sparingly; and the reaping has been in proportion.

GOD'S CHILDREN CAREFULLY TRAINED

As the child-life is a training school, so it is with the spirit-begotten children of God. As soon as we enter His family, He puts us to school; and during the remainder of our lives in the flesh we are given a systematic course of training, schooling. As new creatures, we are in the school of Christ, where we have daily lessons to learn lessons of meekness, gentleness, patience, brotherly kindness, love, as well as lessons of doctrine. Chronology shows us where we are on the stream of time. Doctrine is the foundation upon which our character structure is to be built. But the most important of all our lessons is that of character likeness of our great Teacher, Christ Jesus.

St. Peter tells us that this work is accomplished through the "exceeding great and precious promises," given to us that thereby we "might be partakers of the Divine nature." (2 Pet. 1:4) As the children of God feed upon these promises, they work in us to will and to do God's good pleasure. Thus we become like Christ, who always delighted to do God's will. At first we were willing to do that will, but now we are striving to do it. And this is right; for it is just what the promises are designed to do in us.

This school of Christ was opened at our Lord's first advent. During His earthly ministry, about five hundred pupils were enrolled. At Pentecost, when the holy Spirit was first given in begetting power, many more entered this school and came under the instruction of the Master Teacher. At first the pupils were of the Jews only; but a little later the door of favor was opened to the Gentiles also. Then all who would meet the conditions of discipleship were invited to enter this school.

The terms of discipleship are very definite and rigid. To be a disciple of Christ one must entirely surrender his will to God, and then take up his cross and follow Jesus, henceforth to have no will of his own, but to strive day by day to copy Christ. (Matt. 16:24) This class shall, if faithful to the end of their course, reap the legitimate reward of their careful sowing to the Spirit full character likeness to Christ Jesus our Lord; and this will bring them joint-heirship with Him in His Messianic kingdom.

TRAINING FOR THE PRIESTHOOD

Whoever desires to hold on to his own will can have no part nor lot with Christ now. He cannot enter the family of God at all. Before we shall be accepted of God, we must give up everything that we have. Thenceforth we are to live, not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. Thus the new creature will grow stronger day by day, while the flesh that is the fleshly nature will grow weaker. As long as we are in this mortal body we shall have a struggle with the flesh; but through the strength of the Lord we may win a glorious victory and in due time receive a new spiritual body, like that of our glorified Lord.

This class are the ones who are to rule the world during the incoming age. No others will be fit to rule the world. But before this class can be qualified for such a position, they must first learn to submit themselves fully to God, must have fixed characters for righteousness. No one could make a competent ruler of others until he had learned to bow to lawful authority, until he had first learned to govern himself.

The pupils whom the great Teacher is now training are to be the priests of the incoming age. The priests of old taught the people and healed the sick. This typified what the royal priesthood will do in the future, when empowered by the first resurrection change. (Rev. 20:4-6) "Sown an animal body," they will be "raised a spiritual body." It will be a grand class that God will have. Our Lord Jesus Christ, the great Head of the church, will be there. St. Peter, St. John, St. James, St. Paul and the other apostles, as well as all the faithful saints of the Gospel Age will be with Him. A glorious company it will be.

Some of this company, however, did not always do right before their transformation in the likeness of our Lord and Head. Sometimes they manifested a wrong spirit. But afterwards they became well developed in meekness, gentleness, patience, brotherly kindness, love. When all of them shall have been perfected and receive their spirit bodies, all their earthly imperfections, some of which they were never able to overcome fully, will be forgotten. Perhaps they will shine all the brighter because of what they once were and what they overcame.

CHRISTIAN RESPONSIBILITY

It is well for us to remember, as Christians, that the responsibility of our character development rests with us personally. God does not do the sowing. We are doing this; and we are to do the reaping. God supplies the seed, and tells us how to sow it; but He does not do the sowing for us. Whoever is not following the Master's instructions is not making himself ready for the kingdom. How sorry we shall be in the future, if we find that we have been giving time and attention to worldly business or pleasure or any other thing to the neglect of the development of character necessary for joint-heirship with Christ, and thus miss our share in the kingdom of glories!

God expects each Christian to have the greatest concern as to his personal character development. Important as it is to assist others in the narrow way, the building up of his own character is paramount. Each has an individual work in himself that no one else can do. God desires His children to possess character; and each develops it according as he cultivates those traits which make it.

THE WORLD'S SOWING AND REAPING

As now it is true of the church that we shall reap as we sow, and that the amount sowed will determine the size of the crop, so it will be with the world in the next age. The character developed in this life will determine their status when they enter the next. The bad marks now made upon their character will remain to be erased by a process of discipline and development.

For instance, the Emperor Nero was probably the most contemptible man who ever lived. The man who set fire to Rome that he might see a great conflagration, who then blamed Christians for the deed, who caused them to be covered with oil and burned as torches, and who murdered his own mother, was deeply degraded. The measure of his responsibility we are unable to estimate. We leave the decision to the Lord. But he surely sowed lavishly to his depraved flesh, and correspondingly reaped an abundant crop of evil.

With such a disposition, with sin so deeply entrenched in his nature, Nero will have an uphill road to travel, if, when awakened from the dead, he shall ever regain the image of God. There is no change in death. "As a tree falleth, so it shall lie." The resurrection will find Nero in the same condition in which he died. Of such persons the Bible says that they "shall awake to shame and everlasting contempt." (Dan. 12:2) The Hebrew word here translated "everlasting" is "olam," meaning lasting, not everlasting, as in our common version Bible. Such characters will be held in contempt as long as they continue to deserve it.

We are glad that our gracious God has an arrangement whereby Nero and all others who were born predisposed to evil may have an opportunity under favorable conditions to uproot the noxious weeds of sin and regain the lost image of God. But those who refuse to do so will abide in shame and contempt will die the second death.

HEIGHT AND DEPTH OF INFINITE LOVE

Sunday, June 18, 1916. Pastor Russell discoursed last Sunday upon the comprehensiveness of Divine love. The text was, "God commendeth His love toward us in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." (Rom. 5:8) He said:

It is a wonderful thought that our great Creator, infinite in power and majesty, before whom the mightiest cherubim and seraphim bow in humble adoration, should condescend to pay any attention to creatures as small as we are, sinners by nature and encompassed with infirmities and imperfections. That He can love us and take an especial interest in us seems very wonderful indeed.

Our Lord Jesus Himself assures us that "God so loved the world that He gave His only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him might not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3:16) It is very certain that the love which God has for fallen men is not a love of congeniality, of fellowship, not a love for their character, but a love of pity, of benevolence, of compassion. In their condition of rebellion and alienation from their Maker there is little in the human race that is worthy of love. They are "children of disobedience," no longer recognized as sons.

But God has pity for mankind in their fallen condition, in which they were born; and He has provided for their recovery from the fall. As any one of noble, sympathetic heart would have a compassionate love for even a poor dog that was wounded and in need of care, so our God, in a much greater degree, sympathized with fallen man, originally created in His own image and likeness, but now full of wounds and putrefying sores. Isa. 1:6.

This compassionate love of our Creator for mankind, who are unable to recover and to restore themselves, has caused Him to make a provision for their redemption, through the death of our Lord Jesus Christ. This arrangement provided not only that God's Son should die for mankind, but that He should afterward become the great King to uplift the world from their helpless, degraded condition and bring them back to the perfection in which Adam was created.

BLESSINGS OF THE "IRON ROD"

This work will all be accomplished in the Father's appointed time, when the Messianic kingdom shall have been set up in the earth. Messiah is to take His great power and reign for a thousand years for this very purpose. His will be a rule of the iron rod; that is, it will be an inflexible domination, one that will neither bend nor make compromise with sin. It will be a rule that all will be compelled to obey; for this kind of government will be absolutely necessary until rebellious man shall have learned the advantages and the desirability of righteousness. Such a reign will be for the highest good of all. In their sinful, selfish condition, men have had entirely too much liberty. Might and oppression have crushed the weak and helpless. Truly, "Man's inhumanity to man has made countless millions mourn." Such a hard and fast law as Messiah will enforce will be needed. Psa. 2:9; Rev. 2:26,27; 19:15.

But while the great King will rule with an iron rod, He will also be the world's merciful High Priest. All necessary allowance will be made for the inherited and cultivated weaknesses of all. Knowledge and enlightenment will be given to everyone, and assistance up the Highway of Holiness then opened up to the world. (Isa. 35:8) As in the Jewish type the priests taught the people and brought blessings to them through the Atonement Day sacrifices, so the great High Priest, Christ Jesus, and the under priests, the faithful Church of Christ, will during the next age bless and instruct the people, as the result of the sacrifices which have been offered for the world during this anti-typical Atonement Day the Gospel Age.

This great royal priesthood will be the future healers of the world. They will heal the diseases mental, moral and physical of every one who will accept the gracious terms and provisions then offered. The death of our Lord Jesus as the ransom price for Adam and all who died in him was necessary in order that the death penalty resting upon the human race might be lifted. The merit of Jesus' death, as the purchase price for all mankind, has thus far been available only for the Church of Christ; but the time is very near when this merit is to be paid fully into the hands of justice for the sins of the whole world, the entire race of Adam.

WHY THE WORLD'S BLESSING DELAYS

This purchase price for the sins of the world has not been applied for the world as yet for two reasons: First, God purposed in His infinite wisdom that mankind should have an object lesson through the permission of sorrow, pain and death for six thousand years as the result of man's fall into sin, in order that they might learn thoroughly the nature and the effects of sin and see it in all its hideousness. Man's experience was also designed to be an object lesson to all the angels and to every intelligent creature of God throughout eternity.

Second, God purposed first to utilize the merit of Christ's sacrificial death for the class which are to be associated with our Lord Jesus in His great future work of the world's uplift and restoration. As soon as this class, called in Scripture the Church, the Body of Christ, the Bride of Christ, has been completed and glorified with their Lord and Head, has been exalted to reign with Him in the Messianic kingdom, then the merit of Jesus will be applied for all of Adam's race and in the sealing of the New Covenant for natural Israel and for all of mankind who will then become a part of Israel. Those who refuse to accept the terms of this covenant, whether of natural Israel by birth or of the Gentile world, shall suffer the second death everlasting destruction. Acts 3:23; 2 Pet. 2:12.

HUMAN POWER UNAVAILING

The six thousand years during which sin and death have reigned over the world are six great days of a thousand years each. During this period God has permitted sin, has not interfered with the reign of sin and death, save in so far as His great plan might otherwise be hindered or thwarted. He wished mankind to have full opportunity to try every device, to use every means in their power to extricate themselves from their fallen condition, and thus to demonstrate what they could do.

Physicians have exhausted every means in striving to cure the world of their maladies of mind and body. Pills and plasters, remedies too countless to enumerate, have been unavailing. Every conceivable method has been resorted to in the endeavor to conquer disease and restore health. Skillful surgeons have vied with each other in their efforts to nullify, if possible, the effects of disease and accident. But all these can hardly keep pace with the new diseases that are manifesting themselves.

The moral condition of the race is deplorable. Organizations for human uplift and for the recovery of the criminal classes from vice and crime are finding themselves baffled at almost every turn. Sin is so deeply entrenched that the most earnest efforts to overcome evil is like an attempt to stem the course of a mighty river with a few cartloads of earth. Not long ago a noted preacher gave an address on the terrible plight in which the world finds itself today. He declared that immoral diseases are flourishing more than ever before, that the race is headed for destruction, and that unless something radical is done the whole race will destroy itself in a short time. The array of facts which he presented seems all the more remarkable because this gentleman is an evolutionist by profession, and evolutionists claim that the race has always been rising toward perfection. Now this evolutionist declares that man is fast hastening toward destruction!

As to the mentality of the race, we are informed that the average brain is weaker today than ever before, and that insanity is greatly on the increase. It is said that more money is being expended upon our insane asylums than upon both army and navy combined. So, despite all the efforts of mankind to alleviate their distresses, these are the conditions prevailing after six thousand years. The lesson is obvious. Man is entirely unable to extricate himself from his fallen condition. Therefore the world must look to God for aid. Unless they do so the entire race will be wiped out of existence in a few more centuries. Unless Divine help comes, the whole world will become insane.

THE WORLD'S GREAT SABBATH

During the six great days of man's great work week, humanity has labored hard and accomplished little. Now the great seventh day has come, during which man will rest from his own laborious effort at self uplift and salvation; for God will take all man's affairs into His own hands in the person of His Son. Messiah, with His Bride, the Gospel Church, will then begin the great work of restoration of the world. The Lord Jesus will set up His Millennial kingdom. Everything will be turned over to Him, and all the world will be under His control. Mankind will have no voice in the administration of earth's affairs. The great King and His royal associates will regulate everything.

Under the Messianic kingdom, punishment will be immediately administered for any attempt to do wrong, and reward for every good deed will be immediately forthcoming. It is not so now. A person may steal now, and oftentimes not be found out. A man may be so shrewd as to get possession of the hard earnings of others by a form of legality which is none the less a fraud. People have stolen and defrauded, on a small scale or on a large scale, and have never been detected and brought to justice. But under the new order it will be very different. All the hidden things shall be made manifest. Evil and evil doers shall no longer prosper. But the righteous shall flourish; and the meek shall inherit the earth and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace. Psa. 37:7-11; 72:1-8.

The Bible tells us that when this kingdom is set up, the ruling power will be on the spirit plane. This phase of the kingdom will be composed of the Christ, Head and Body, who will all be glorified spirit beings. None but the saintly will compose that kingdom class, that Heavenly Body of Christ. Under their Lord and Head, they will be the judges of the world. (1 Cor. 6:2) These are not judges while in the flesh, but are counseled to "judge nothing before the time." After their glorification they will be qualified to judge righteously, but not before.

God is now fitting this class by disciplinings, trials, testings, prunings, for their glorious future work, that they may be made ready for a share in the first resurrection. This will bring a wonderful change to them. Sown in weakness, in dishonor, with blemished human bodies, they shall be raised in power, in glory, in honor, in glorious immortal bodies like their Savior and King. They will then have such spiritual discernment as to be able to know the intentions of all mankind. Rev. 20:6; 1 John 3:1-2.

EFFECT OF THE IRON ROD

Respecting that day of Christ, the Scriptures declare: “Nothing shall hurt or destroy in all my holy mountain (kingdom);” “when the judgments of the Lord are abroad in the earth the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness.” (Isa. 11:9; 26:9) Under such conditions people will soon learn to do right. Everybody will then wish to do a kindness to some one rather than to injure another. For a time there may be a degree of selfishness in their kindly acts, but they will soon come to love the ways of righteousness, to do right and to be kind because they desire to do so.

In time the world will come to love the law of the Lord; for they will perceive that His is the best way. The children of God see this by faith now. They do not receive an outward reward for right-doing, however; they do not secure relief from pain and suffering because they keep the law of righteousness. But they believe the Divine promise, that in due time they shall be rewarded; and they have a present reward in the joy of heart which the righteous course brings. They have learned to love the right because it is right. Thus they are in harmony with the principles of God’s law.

Doubtless within ten years after the establishment of the kingdom a great change will be manifest in the affairs of earth. The prompt rewarding of every good deed and the swift punishment of every evil endeavor will make the world a very desirable place in even five years. While mankind have been under the reign of sin, the Lord has permitted them to be also in a large measure of darkness; for if they had seen the Lord’s way clearly and had known the Truth while their hearts were out of harmony with God and righteousness, their responsibility would have been greatly increased.

Light is a blessing only to those who have given their hearts to the Lord. As the Bible says, “Light is sown for the righteous.” (Psa. 97:11) If people are not in harmony with God, what knowledge they have is certain to be used for evil rather than for good. So the Lord withholds the knowledge until His “due time.” The light which He has granted to His people in advance of the world has been as the light of a candle. Thus we have been enabled to see our path a step at a time, and thus to know where we were going. But now we have come to the close of the gospel dispensation, and the Lord is throwing a flood of light before us, enabling us to see that the time for the exaltation of the Church is just at hand and that the deliverance of the world is just beyond.

GOD'S LOVE MADE MANIFEST

Soon the glorified Church will be, with their Lord and Head, the Sun of Righteousness, which is to scatter the darkness which has so long covered the world. "The glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together." They will not need to walk by faith as the church does now. They will walk by sight; for the light will be shining around them everywhere. In that day the world will be rewarded according to their works, and not, as with the church, according to their faith. While the church are expected to do all the good works possible, nevertheless there is a special premium upon faith now, when conditions are very adverse. While faith will then be necessary still, it will be much easier to exercise than now. Therefore works will be demanded, and the special reward will be for works.

Thus we see, in harmony with our text, God's great love for all the world, manifested in His wonderful provision for them. Every human being who has ever lived shall have the fullest opportunity to return to God and to the ways of righteousness. But if, after all the manifestation of Divine love, any shall still prefer the ways of sin, they will "be destroyed from among the people." But all who shall come fully into line with the laws of the Kingdom shall have God's perfect law of righteousness rewritten upon the tablets of their hearts. The Lord will take away the stony heart, and give mankind a heart of flesh. Ezek. 11:19; Jer. 21:33.

But the love which the Heavenly Father has for the Church of Christ, the Bride of His Son, is a very especial love. To these our Lord Jesus says, "The Father Himself loveth you." He declared that the Father loves them even as He loves the Son. (John 16:27; 17:23) So much does He love them that He has purposed to give them the very best that He has to bestow upon any of His creatures glory, honor, immortality, joint-heirship with His Son in His Kingdom. Then in the ages to come, He will show the exceeding riches of His grace in His kindness to the Church, through Christ Jesus. Eph. 2:7.

GOD'S BLESSING BRINGS RICHES TO THE WORLD

New York City, July 2. Pastor Russell spoke here today at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd. St., near Broadway. His discourse, as usual, was both interesting and instructive. He said in part:

Our topic for this occasion is found in the wise man's words: "The blessing of the Lord it maketh rich; and He addeth no sorrow with it." (Prov. 10:22) The blessing of the Lord is here put before our minds in contrast with His curse. For more than six thousand years the whole world has been under the Divine curse pronounced in Eden. (Gen. 3:14-19) When our Heavenly Father created man in His own image and likeness—"very good," as He declares He was conferring a great blessing, one not sufficiently appreciated, perhaps, by Father Adam and Mother Eve the blessing of Divine favor and fellowship, the blessing of living amongst the perfect conditions of an Edenic home, in which everything was favorable to happiness.

We have every reason to believe that God has a good purpose in connection with the creation of mankind as in connection with the creation of angels, and that the present greatly different condition of man as compared with that of the holy angels is the difference between a condition of sin and one of righteousness. The angels who live in a state of holiness and happiness are those who kept their own estate. This, some of the angels failed to do but left their own habitation. These, God has restrained under chains of darkness to await the great Judgment Day. (Jude 6; Gen. 6:1-6) In his fallen condition man is sick, mentally, morally and physically. Because of sin he has come under a Divine curse not as once we thought, a curse of a devilish kind, a curse of eternal torment, but that which the Bible declares—"Dying, thou shalt die." Gen. 2:17, margin; Ezek. 18:4, 20; Rom. 6:23, etc.

Our text suggests that a great blessing is to come from God to all men when the curse upon mankind has been removed. That a universal blessing is yet to come upon Adam's race is made very clear in the Scriptures. This blessing will come through our Lord Jesus Christ; "for as by a man came death, by a man also comes the resurrection of the dead. For as all in Adam die, even so shall all in Christ be made alive, every man in his own order." 1 Cor. 15:21-23; Heb. 2:9.

The curse pronounced in Eden was a world-wide sentence, which reached to all of Father Adam's posterity; and as the curse brought all mankind into condemnation through Adam, so it is the Divine purpose that a release from this condemnation shall come to all through Christ. Every man, woman and child of Adam's race, living and dead, is yet to experience an individual opportunity for life everlasting through the death of our Lord Jesus. But this blessing will be everlasting only upon certain conditions.

FEW SEEING EYES AND HEARING EARS

The proposition which God has made is that all who have gone down, and all who are going down, to death through sickness and sorrow because of Adam's transgression will be brought up again, but will not be further blessed contrary to their wills. Let us illustrate this point by referring to condemnation under human law. Suppose that you had a friend in prison, and that in some way you had secured a remission of the penalty and an order for the liberation of that individual. The responsibility is then his. If he rejects the pardon and release, the blessing will be of no avail. But before he can be responsible for the rejection of the blessing, he must know that he has the opportunity to go free from condemnation. Even then he might be brought from the prison and be told that he could go free, but if he should then say, "I prefer to remain in prison," he would lose the benefit of your friendly action entirely.

There are some Christian people who claim that the world's only opportunity for salvation is now. They cite the proclamation that whosoever believeth in Christ shall have everlasting life, and declare that this offer does not extend to any one beyond this life, and that thereby the responsibility to accept this offer rests upon all now. The Bible indicates, however, that not many now hear or see, not many understand, even the first principles of the great blessings which God has provided. The majority believe not, because Satan has blinded their minds through ignorance, superstition and priestcraft. Moreover, vast multitudes have died without ever having heard of Christ. Since intelligent faith in Him as a Savior is absolutely essential to salvation, according to the Scriptural declaration, how can these have any opportunity for salvation if the present life ends all hope?

To His disciples the Master said, "Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears for they hear." (Matt. 13:16-17) The intimation is that now few hear or understand. Again, our Lord said, "To you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom, but to them that are without all these things are spoken in parables and dark sayings, that seeing they may see and not perceive, and hearing they may hear and not understand; lest at any time they should be converted, and I should heal them." Here again, in our own day, we see that it is given to some to know the mysteries of the Kingdom; and to others, the majority, it is not given. How inexplicable this is without the key! The explanation is that God's time to enlighten the world at large has not yet come. Only a few are now in the proper condition to be profited by the Truth. For others who are not in that condition of honesty of heart it is better that they should not know too much about God's arrangements; for the knowledge would give them the more severe condemnation. The Lord sees that this knowledge is not given to any except those who are in the right attitude of heart and able to exercise the necessary faith. Upon others God's Message makes little or no impression even if they should hear with the outward ear. Weakness of heredity or handicaps of training, or both, hinder them.

THE BLESSING COMING UPON THE WORLD

"The blessing of the Lord it maketh rich." All who have the hearing ear and the understanding heart realize this blessing. Something has entered into their lives the like of which was never known before. During the next Age the blessing of the Lord will come upon the world, but will operate quite differently. The arrangement for the next Age, as we see from God's Word, is that, first of all, Christ will take the Kingdom, and will have absolute control of the whole world. His first step will be to bind that old serpent, Satan, who has been deceiving the nations for 6,000 years. Christ will restrain him, that he may deceive the nations no more, that the people may be relieved from that deceptive influence, that they may the better appreciate the Plan of God, which will then be made known to all.

Will not that be a blessing from the Lord, a blessing of knowledge, when the world is shown that God, instead of being the greatest devil that they could imagine, is a God of sympathy and compassion? Will they not be glad when they learn that God has for a thousand years turned the whole world over to His Son, that our Lord may reign to the intent that the blessing of life everlasting may be granted to all who receive God's gracious offer into good and honest hearts? God's blessing will make rich in body, in mind and in moral quality whoever receives it.

The Apostle Peter declares that these Times of Refreshment shall be "Times (years) of Restitution." (Acts 3:19-21) Restitution means restoration. When Adam fell, he gradually lost his moral and physical perfection, and went down, down, down into the tomb. So have all mankind, his posterity. Adam and all his race are to be offered restitution a restoration from sickness, from sorrow, from death, a restoration from mental, moral and physical disabilities back, back, back to the image of God which Adam lost by disobedience in Eden, but which our Lord Jesus redeemed for all mankind at Calvary.

These wonderful blessings are all to be given to the race by Messiah's glorious Kingdom. Whoever will accept these blessings of God will receive riches beyond human pen now to portray. Just think what this will mean! Suppose that we had the power now to bring the world back from its selfish, mean condition to the image and likeness of God. Where would the European war be in two minutes? Where would all selfishness and sin be? The removal of all these evils is just what God purposes to do, not by magic, but along better lines. If such a change could be wrought by magic, it would go by magic.

WHY EVIL IS PERMITTED NOW

God purposes that man must learn a great lesson that sin burns and devours like fire. The true Church of Christ have learned that lesson. The world is learning a similar lesson, and will learn it still more fully. The great Time of Trouble now coming upon the nations will enforce that lesson as it has never yet been realized. Then under the Messianic Kingdom, the world will learn righteousness; they will climb the ladder back to perfection. The Lord sees that this will be far better than magical changes could be.

Now there are sin, sorrow, misery, poverty, all imaginable difficulties and even death itself. But then, the Lord tells us through His Word, there will be no curse, no more poverty, nor sorrow, nor crying, nor dying. The earth will become a Paradise. The blessing of the Lord will make the world rich, and He will add no sorrow with it. If any should then have sorrows, it will be because they add the sorrows themselves. Whoever will be obedient to the laws of the Kingdom will be blessed by the Lord. All who will love righteousness and hate iniquity shall have the blessing of the Lord, making them richer and richer, until by the close of the Millennial Age they will be absolutely perfect, as perfect as are the holy angels, as free from pain as are the angels no more insanity, no more broken hearts, no more curse!

PRESENT BLESSINGS OF THE FAITHFUL

Even in the present time it is true that the blessing of the Lord maketh rich His people now. "But," says one, "not many of them are very rich." I am not so sure about that. To be rich is to have all that one desires. If one is a true child of God, he will desire the things that God sees best for him to have. He will wish God to give him whatever Divine wisdom approves. In proportion as he is yielding his life to God, in that same proportion he is getting his desire, and therefore he is rich.

There are plenty of people who cannot get the peace they covet. Many rich people lack much that they crave. But those who get the riches of the Lord are rich indeed; for they have the peace of God, which passeth all understanding. It is the blessing of the Lord which makes His people rich in the blessed sense of sins forgiven, in the realization that God no longer condemns us, that we are His children, "joint-heirs with Christ, if so be that we suffer with Him." Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:11-12.

In harmony with the call which God has been sending forth during the Gospel Dispensation, He has received us as His children. He has been calling out of the world a certain company. The call goes to the world, but not with the purpose of gathering the world. God's purpose now is to take out from the world "a people for His name," (Acts 15:13-17) To illustrate, if a young nobleman should come to this city to seek a bride, he would choose a young woman of especially desirable qualifications to bear his name. He would select her from amongst all others. Similarly God is now choosing a Bride for His Son, to take the name of Christ. (Jer. 23:6; 33:16; 2 Cor. 5:21) For more than eighteen hundred years this has been God's special work.

GOSPEL CHURCH ALMOST COMPLETE

This work of choosing the church is almost complete. Probably there are a few more vacant places, but not many, so far as we understand the Word of God. We must be very near the time when the last member shall have come into the Bride Class. In the parable of the Ten Virgins (Matt. 25:1-13), we read that when all the wise virgins had gone into the marriage, the door was shut. This does not mean, however, that when the door to the Marriage of the Lamb shall have closed, the door of mercy shall also be closed. As long as there shall be any proper use for mercy, there will be mercy. Only the church as yet experiences mercy from God. But during the next age all mankind will receive it.

It is not the door of mercy that is closing now, in the end of the Gospel Age; for that door will be open throughout the incoming age. Nor is it the door of opportunity for salvation that is about to shut. It is the door into the Bride class, into the marriage of the Lamb, that is soon to close; and when once it is closed, no more will ever get into that class. No other class will ever receive offers as good as those now offered. The Bride of Christ will be fabulously rich. Hers will be the highest honors. She will have all the riches of grace promised in the Word, all the loving kindness which her Lord has provided for her.

But even while still in the flesh the church class are greatly blessed. The peace and rest of heart which we enjoy is conducive to physical health. This does not mean that all of the Lord's children are well and strong physically, but that all things considered, their health is likely to be better than it would have been with the same amount of activity had they remained in the world. Even in a temporal way the Master's words, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," have great force. This rest in Christ, this realization that we have the God of the universe as our best and truest Friend, as our constant Helper and Guide, lifts a great load from the heart and brings a joy, a freedom from anxiety; that none others than the Lord's own people can understand.

We may not be richer in the sense that we shall have more wealth, finer homes or greater influence in the world. This will be very unlikely. Nor do we desire these things. But we have the true riches, which far outweigh all these other things; for they cannot bring happiness nor peace of mind. The Heavenly riches give the spirit of a sound mind. This makes the brain clearer, the judgment more reliable, the nerves more steady, the heart more buoyant. We are keeping our eyes fixed upon the unspeakable blessings which await us; and so we rejoice as we go on our way.

“EYE HATH NOT SEEN NOR EAR HEARD”

The glories which God hath in reservation for His faithful, loyal children are things that eye hath not seen nor ear heard. (1 Cor. 2:9, 16) Wonderful indeed will be the riches of the world when mankind shall have been fully restored to human perfection and to an Edenic home. But far more wonderful will be the riches of the church, the Bride of Christ. She shall be made like her Lord in His present glorified condition far above angels, principalities and powers—"partaker of the Divine nature" 1 John 3:1-3; 2 Pet. 1:4.

Our Lord was exalted to be Head over the Church, His Body; and the Church is to sit with Him in His throne. (Rev. 3:21) What a wonderful blessing of the Lord is this! What earthly riches can compare with it? Then, dear brethren, "let us run with patience the race set before us, looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith."

CHURCH HUMILIATION PRECEDES GREAT GLORY

Sioux City, Iowa, July 9. Pastor Russell is in our city, in attendance upon the I. B. S. A. convention here. Today he delivered a powerful lecture based upon Matt. 11:12—"The Kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." He said in part:

According to the Bible, our earth is the only province in all God's universe that is in rebellion against the great Creator. We will not recount the history of this rebellion, save to remind you briefly that our father Adam was created in the image of God, in perfect harmony with his Maker. He was abundantly supplied with suitable food, delightful surroundings, and everything needful to his welfare and happiness. The terms under which he might have life and its accompanying blessings continued everlastingly were clearly stated to him by Jehovah God, and were most reasonable. But the temptation to disobedience came; and in his inexperience Adam succumbed to the Tempter. He became a rebel against his Creator, and brought upon himself the sentence of death not eternal torment. That sentence was, "Dying, thou shalt die" NOT "Living, thou shalt live in torment." Gen. 2:17; 3:19; Ezek. 18:4; Rom. 6:23.

This is the plain statement of the Scriptures, no matter how much we have been taught to the contrary. That rebellion which set in more than six thousand years ago, has continued ever since. During this period God has not interposed to stop this rebellion in the human family. Ever since the fall of man, Death has reigned over all of Adam's posterity. God purposed to permit sin to take its course, for a certain limited period, in order that mankind's experiences with sin should be a great lesson, not only to themselves, but to all of God's intelligent creatures throughout eternity.

The angels have been very deeply interested onlookers regarding what has happened upon this planet, as the Scriptures plainly show. Some of the angels followed man into sin; others remained true to their Creator and His laws. But while the holy angels have not transgressed at any time, yet they have beheld the transgression of mankind, and are noting how it has turned out. They perceive that in its very nature sin brings a sure penalty; that its only possible effect is mental, moral and physical decay; and that misery, pain and sorrow are its inevitable accompaniments, ending in death.

DIVINE PLAN OF THE AGES

But our wise Creator does not purpose to permit sin to continue indefinitely. Why should He permit sin to mar His great universe? Before deciding that nothing can be done for humanity, God purposes to give the whole human family an opportunity to return to harmony and fellowship with Him. This opportunity, the Apostle Peter tells us, will be given during the "Times of Restitution." "Times of Refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and He shall send Jesus Christ which before was preached unto you: whom the Heavens must retain until the Times of Restitution, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began." Acts 3:19-21.

There have been no times of refreshing since Father Adam's sin of disobedience; for there the curse began and has continued even until now. St. Peter tells us, however, that in God's great plan, our Lord Jesus Christ is sent to earth, to accomplish the great work provided for in His death over eighteen hundred years ago. For a thousand years He will reign for the purpose of eradicating sin, of helping mankind up out of their fallen condition and bringing back to the image of God all the willing and obedient. That will be the time when Messiah will take to Himself His great power and reign. First of all He will bind Satan, so that the nations will no more be deceived by him.

In His own due time God sent forth His Son to be the King, sent Him into this world, this rebellious province, to tell mankind that the great God who had condemned them has mercy on them and wishes to bless them. Our Lord Jesus came to the most favored nation of His time; but they rejected Him and crucified Him. He who had come into the world as its rightful King, as God's Representative, suffered violence even unto death. Since He represented the kingdom which God purposed to set up on earth, when He was crucified, violence was done to the Kingdom.

These things have not take the Lord by surprise. God foreknew it all from the beginning. It was a part of the Divine program to permit His Son to be crucified; and knowing that it was the Father's will, the Son permitted His life to be taken from Him by wicked men. He humbled Himself and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. "Wherefore God hath highly exalted Him and given Him a name above every name," next to His own. He who came into the world as its rightful King was crucified. But His death as a man was the gateway to glory, when He was resurrected by the power of the Almighty, and sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on High, there to remain until He should come to earth again to take His rightful authority as earth's Ruler for a thousand years.

WHY THE SAINTLY ARE MISUNDERSTOOD

God foretold the death of our Lord Jesus through the prophets hundreds of years before He came to earth as a man, in order that we might be able to see that all things have worked according to the counsel of the Divine will, and that sin and evil have not been permitted in any wise to frustrate His plans and purposes. And as it was the Father's design to permit the great Head of the Church to suffer violence, even so has it been His design to permit those who have followed the Master in the way of sacrifice to suffer violence. "If they have called the Master of the house Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of His household?" (Matt. 10:25) In these, as representatives of the Heavenly Kingdom, the Kingdom of Heaven has suffered violence throughout the Gospel Age.

How comes it that so false and unjust an impression of Jesus and His saints could exist? Why should good appear to be evil to many and the evil appear to be good? We answer, "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not." (2 Cor. 4:4) The religious leaders of Jesus' day said He had a devil because He did not join in with the Scribes and Pharisees, because He would not teach the traditions of men, because He would not endorse their theories nor walk in their ways. Had He joined in with them, He would have been popular. They would have praised Him and pointed to Him as one of themselves. But He would not do this because they were wrong. Our Lord stood for God and the Truth; therefore He could not and would not endorse the theories of the religious leaders of His day. He would not teach their doctrines. As a result, the leaders opposed, maligned and persecuted Him. And thus it has been with all who have followed in His steps ever since.

There was a time when Christ's true followers were put to all manner of gross indignities, were tortured on the rack, were roasted at the stake. We may not today suffer in the same manner; for such physical tortures are out of style. Tormenting, burning, crucifying, etc., are no longer practiced. Now the Lord's faithful servants are held up to public opprobrium. This is called "roasting." The former kind of roasting has become unpopular; and so we now have this more modern method.

Many newspapers and preachers seek to dishonor those who follow the Master and have His Spirit. What shall we do when thus misrepresented and defamed? Shall we return evil for evil? Oh, no! Our Lord Jesus did not do so. (1 Pet. 2:21-23) Although He had the power to do so, yet He would not use that power. He could have saved Himself from the cross; but if He had done so, He would not have been the Savior of the world. He knew that His enemies did not realize what they were doing. This was the testimony of the Apostles. Acts 3:13-17; 1 Cor. 2:8.

SUFFERING PRECEDES GLORIFICATION

Thus it has been all down the Gospel Age. The members of the Kingdom class have suffered violence from those who knew not what they were doing. Had they realized that they were persecuting the true Church of Christ, they would surely have refrained at once. But the Lord's faithful followers are to put up with this ill treatment with good grace, knowing that it is working out for them a great blessing, and that in due time a blessing will come even to our persecutors.

This is God's arrangement for all whom He has called to be of the Gospel Church. If the Head of that Church, our Lord Jesus Christ, had not suffered, even unto the death of the cross, He would not have received the high reward of exaltation to the right hand of the Majesty on High. The same principle is operating toward all the Kingdom class. If we miss the persecution, we shall also miss the blessing, the reward. (Rom. 8:17; 2 Tim. 2:11-12) We cannot change God's plan.

The Scriptures assure us, however, that this matter of suffering violence under present evil conditions will ultimately work out for the good of the saints of God. It is written, "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to the called according to His purpose. (Rom. 8:28) How reasonable a proposition, that He whom God has purposed shall be the great King to bring the fallen race of man back to harmony with Himself should first learn sympathy for those whom He would uplift and restore! How reasonable, too, that those called to be associate rulers and blessers with Him should learn the same lessons!

THE MASTERPIECE OF DECEPTION

There has been a great mistake made regarding the nature of the Kingdom of God and the time for its domination of earth. We have not properly understood the matter. We have thought that the Kingdom of God was already here, that its rule had already begun. Some have thought that it was set up when our Lord arose from the dead. Others have supposed that it was set up at Pentecost. But long after Pentecost St. John prayed for this Kingdom to come. (Rev. 22:20) Still others have thought that it must have come with the destruction of Jerusalem. But it did not come then.

Many people believe that the Kingdom of God was established on earth in the year 800 A. D. Then the Roman Catholic Church had become very powerful, and the European kingdoms very weak. Religious leaders said, "We have waited eight hundred years for our Lord to return and set up His Kingdom. He has not come. But the church is growing strong and influential. Surely it must be the will of God that we should set up the Kingdom."

According to this conclusion, the Holy Roman Empire was established about the year 800, with the bishop of Rome, as the Vicegerent of Christ His earthly representative. Doubtless the leaders of this movement thought they were following Divine instructions regarding the establishment of the long promised, Kingdom; but the Adversary deceived them. The Bible tells us that he has deceived the whole world. (Rev. 20:1-4) For centuries this pseudo-kingdom of God made and unmade kings, as appointees of God's Kingdom. For a while the kings had to walk very humbly and quietly; for if they displeased the Pope, he would depose them and appoint their successor. History records many humiliating experiences which disobedient European sovereigns were compelled to undergo as a result of the Pope's anger at their course.

COUNTERFEIT VS. REAL MILLENNIUM

Surely the Kingdom which had such power was not the Kingdom of Heaven which according to our text, was to suffer violence at the hands of men throughout the Gospel Age! In the light of the Scriptures we cannot believe that the Kingdom of God has been reigning on earth for the past 1,100 years. If it has been in power, we would be greatly disappointed; for the Word of God leads us to expect that Kingdom to accomplish something far greater and more lasting than anything that has been accomplished during these centuries. The Word assures us that when Messiah reigns; He will reign in righteousness and in judgment; that His control will extend over the entire earth, for the uplift and blessing of the whole world, for their deliverance from sin, sorrow and death. Isa. 32:1-4; 35:1-10; Psa. 72, etc.

We have seen nothing like these blessed results during the Papal Millennium. For the past 1,100 years the records of history reveal nothing but a reign of corruption and violence, not a reign of righteousness and peace. All evil-doers have not been cut off; neither have the righteous flourished. Speaking through the Prophet David, the Lord says of this present evil time, "I have seen the wicked in great power, and spreading himself like a green bay tree." "Their eyes stand out with fatness." (Psa. 37:35,36; 73:3-12) But to the righteous our Lord Jesus says, "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for My sake." Of the same class the Apostle Paul declares, "All that shall live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." Matt. 5:11; 2 Tim. 3:12

All this is in harmony with our text, which declares that during the present life the Kingdom of Heaven, the true Church of Christ, suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. The meek have not yet inherited the earth; they seldom get even a good slice of it. Are the righteous blessed and the wicked punished today? No; just the reverse. Those who are living godly lives in Christ Jesus are misrepresented, persecuted and put out of the synagogues. All manner of evil is spoken against them falsely for Christ's sake. And this is being done in the name of Christ! John 16:1-4

REIGN OF TRUE KINGDOM AT HAND

For centuries the true Church has suffered violence at the hands of the rulers of this world. Some have done this under one name, some under another; but the persecution has been done under the direction of Satan, whose object it is to destroy the true saints of God. But when the true Kingdom is set up, there will be a great change in this respect.

God's times and seasons are absolutely fixed. No one can hasten them. Everything is in the Father's power. Now we see that God wished the world to have six great Days of a thousand years each, during which to learn certain necessary lessons; and that these six Days were to be followed by a Seventh Day, during which Christ and the Church will occupy the office of Prophet, Priest and King, in order to teach, help and uplift the world, restoring them to all that was lost in Eden and redeemed at Calvary.

The present order of things will not last. Our Lord will set up the Kingdom of God (Dan. 2:44) which will do away with this present order and will bring in the New Order. At that time He will have associated with Him all those who have been loyal to Him and His Cause, and who have proved themselves faithful even unto death. Only such will be His joint-heirs in the Kingdom.

Seeing these things, perceiving the fulfillment of the prophecies of the Scriptures all about us, and knowing from the sure Word of God the outcome of present events, the Lord's faithful people may well wait in patience for their deliverance, may well lift up their heads and rejoice. (Luke 21:28) Daily we are getting ready for the Kingdom by proving and manifesting that we have a thorough-going loyalty of heart to the coming Kingdom and its principles of righteousness. If we are willing to suffer violence for the Kingdom and its righteous principles, God will know that we are loyal to Him; and He will reward us openly. The deliverance of the suffering saints of God draws near.

BARTON FUNERAL SERMON BY PASTOR RUSSELL

On Sunday, June 18, the Philadelphia Friends were called to order at the close of the evening service and informed that our dear Brother Barton had suffered a complete breakdown. Prayer was offered in his behalf. On Sunday following, the Friends were informed that our dear Brother was on his way to Portland, Ore., to take two weeks' treatment from a physician there, after which he was to make his way home by slow stages. On the next Sunday, the Friends were informed that Brother Barton had indeed arrived "home", having passed beyond the veil the day before, Saturday, June 24.

All that was mortal of our dear Brother arrived in Philadelphia in the latter part of the next week and arrangements were made to have the funeral on Monday, July 3. The body was on view during the evening of Sunday, July 2, and on Monday at 12:30 p. m. was taken to the hall at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, where Brother Russell was to deliver the funeral address, where there was also an opportunity given the Friends for a last look at the tenement of clay our Brother had left behind him.

There were three large floral designs and many sprays of flowers. One of the designs, an open Bible was the loving remembrance of the Philadelphia Ecclesia. Another design, a floral cross, was broken up at the cemetery, after the casket had been lowered into the grave, and each of those present presented with a flower. These were cast into the grave as the Friends passed by. The burial was described, by one of the Friends present, as the "cleanest" he had ever witnessed. The grave was lined with evergreen branches, and the earth that had been taken from it was covered in like manner.

All the members of the Philadelphia Ecclesia who could possibly arrange to do so were present during the funeral service at the old Y. M. C. A. hall, as well as a number of the Friends from classes in Camden, N. J.; Chester, Pa.; Norristown, Pa., and Wilmington, Del. Brother Russell spoke for about forty minutes, in part as follows:

NOTES OF FUNERAL DISCOURSE DELIVERED BY BROTHER RUSSELL

There are so many precious texts in the Word of God that it would be difficult to confine ourselves to a single one. therefore we shall use a number of them the first that we shall use is Psa. 116:15:

“Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints”.

We wonder that the great Creator of the universe should take any notice of us at all. We wonder at His great sympathetic love for all mankind; that love that caused Him to send His only begotten Son to be a Ransom for all. If God had such wonderful love for the world, how much more He must have for those who are seeking to please Him. so we are not surprised when we read that “Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints.”

Jesus was the first of this saintly class. God specially loved Him because He was always worthy of His love. The Bible shows that Jesus was the first, or Head of a company of saints. A saint is one who has been “sanctified,” set apart. And we see that Jesus set Himself apart to do the Father’s will when He presented Himself to Him at Jordan.

The Bible tells us that God has been seeking out a sanctified class, a Bride class, to whom He will give honor, and glory, and immortality and a place upon the Divine plane of existence, even as He gave these things unto His Son. And as His Son was holy, so, He indicates, are all of Jesus’ followers in His sight. Not that we are anything in or of ourselves. This holiness is imputed to us for Jesus’ sake.

Jesus was the first to make a covenant of sacrifice with God, the first who was possessed of a spirit of sacrifice. All of Jesus’ followers have this same spirit of self-sacrifice, the spirit of being willing to lay down their lives. This is a very special class, and as Jesus was certainly precious in the Lord’s sight, so are His followers. And they are also precious in the sight of all the Lord’s people. And so our dear Brother, whose life experiences we are here to memorialize, has been very dear to a great many of the Lord’s people.

If we have this great love for those who are the Lord’s, we should manifest it in our daily intercourse with them. the very fact that God has “called” you, and given you an ear to hear, endears you to me. so, no matter what the world may think or say, we should regard one another, and love one another, and uphold and strengthen one another. We are coming more and more to see that those whom the Lord has honored we should honor also.

Precious in the Lord's sight is the death of our dear Brother Barton; and also precious in our sight. His course is run; he has delivered up what was committed unto him, and we believe that he is with the Lord.

In Isa. 33:17, we read: "Thine eyes shall see the King in His beauty; they shall behold the land that is very far off." Our dear Brother had a defect of vision, he was near-sighted. When he came into the Truth his vision was enlarged, he saw, by faith, a land that is very far off, and he saw something of the King and of His beauty. But what our Brother has seen by faith, we believe he now sees actually.

Our Brother was an architect. But when he got rightly in touch with the great Architect of the universe, he dropped the pencil and the eraser and went forth to give his life in telling others of the wonderful plans and purposes of the great Architect. And so he spent his later years, showing forth the praises and telling of the Plan of the Architect of the Universe, that wonderful Plan founded on the sacrificial death of Jesus, telling how God was building a great spiritual Temple through which He would bless all the families of the earth.

I am sure that we have all heard our dear Brother, and have all remarked how clear the Plan was in his mind; and I feel like congratulating his parents that another has finished his course and has passed beyond the veil. For we have a most glorious hope, and do not mourn as do they of the "world," who have not this hope.

What is our hope?

In Revelation 14:13 we read, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." All who have ever died have fallen asleep. Jesus fell asleep and remained asleep until He was awakened by the Father. Since Jesus' awakening, all of His followers who have died have fallen asleep in Christ.

We do not mourn for those who fall asleep at night, because we know that they will awaken in the morning. So, the Bible tells us, will it be with all who have fallen asleep during the long night of sin and death. Because of Jesus' sacrifice, all are to have an awakening in the glorious morning of Messiah's reign.

Why not awaken them before that? It was much better that the world should have fallen asleep. Suppose that Adam had remained awake all this time. How he would have suffered as he witnessed all the pain and sorrow and suffering that the world was experiencing because of his sin. No, better it is that he should sleep. each generation has received a sufficient experience with sin and death and the consequences of disobedience. It is best not to awaken the world until the earth has been prepared and made a fit place for them.

Jesus' followers, the Church, are to sleep also, except those who shall be living in the days of our Lord's second advent. The apostle, speaking to the Church, says, "We shall not all sleep." God will awaken the Church right early in the morning. The apostle says, "The dead in Christ shall rise first." Then he says that we who are alive at the Lord's coming shall be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye. And thus we believe it was with our dear Brother. The moment of death was the moment of change from the earthly condition to the heavenly.

We believe this because of our faith that the Lord Jesus is now present. This faith is based, not upon what we can see with the natural eye, but by what we see with the eye of faith in God's Word. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth" not previously. We believe that Jesus is present, and that those who die in Christ since He has been present no longer sleep, but are changed in a moment and added to that company beyond the veil. And you and I are hoping that ere very long, we too shall be changed as our Brother has been and be present with the Lord.

Why should we be changed? "Because," says Paul, "flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of heaven."

Notice the rest of the text in Revelation 14:13, and apply it for your own comfort. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." Our dear brother's labors here are ended; he now has a new body that never tires, but his works "follow" him. Rest assured that he is not idle; the good work is still going on beyond the veil.

The Church in glory is increasing and will soon be completed. When the last member passes beyond the veil, the door of opportunity to joint heirship with the Lord Jesus will have closed. Then, apparently, there will be a little period of waiting. Then the Bride will be led into the presence of the King. She will be all glorious within, for only the pure in heart shall see God; and Jesus says that He will not be ashamed of His Bride. The Bride will also be arrayed in fine needlework those painstaking stitches of character that we have been making during our earthly pilgrimage and preparation.

After this, in a little while, the Great Company will have passed through their time of trouble and will also be brought into the presence of the King. Then what? Then comes the marriage feast. This marriage feast is a picture, a symbolic picture of a great time of rejoicing.

Is that the end? No, that is only the beginning. The Christ in glory, Jesus the Head and the Church His Body, will then begin the blessing of all the families of the earth, that blessing that was promised should come through the Seed of Abraham. Then will come the time when Satan shall be bound, the time of great peace, when men shall beat their swords into plowshares; the time when the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea. A time when men will learn that God is a God of love and grace and not the monster He has so long been pictured.

The whole world will be privileged to come to this feast. It is for all people. The prophet has described it as a “feast of fat things.”

Have we any reason to weep, or to sorrow upon this occasion?

Nay. We are not like those who have no hope. I will not say that a great man has fallen in Israel. That would have been appropriate at one time, but not now. Now I say, a great man has risen in Israel. It is only the old nature, the body of flesh that has fallen; the new nature, the new man, has risen and is with the Lord. Let us strive to copy our dear brother’s faithfulness and zeal, that we, too, may make our calling and election sure and form one of that ever-increasing number beyond the veil.

FROM DEATH UNTO LIFE IN CHRIST JESUS

Cleveland, Ohio, August 13 Pastor Russell delivered a very instructive and interesting address here today. His text was, “And you hath He quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins” (Eph. 2:1) He said in part:

In these words of our text a great deal is expressed. The Apostle is addressing the Church. These were formerly dead in the sense that they were condemned in Adam, with all the rest of the world. They were under the death sentence, legally dead. From the Divine standpoint all the race of mankind is a dead race. None have life in a legal sense except those who have obtained it from God through His provided channel Christ Jesus. The Church of Christ have life now by meeting the terms which God has laid down. They “have passed from death unto life.”

The world in general are still under condemnation to death. They can gain life only through the great Life-giver whom God has provided. The life He will give to the world in God’s due time will be the life purchased for them by the sacrifice of His own human life the life of the Man Christ Jesus. Adam and his race may receive back all that was lost by Adam's disobedience whosoever will through the merit of the sacrifice given at Calvary. It will be the sacrifice given at Calvary. It will be a restitution to human perfection in a perfected earth. The Scriptures speak of Adam in his original perfection as a son of God. (Luke 3:38) He was created in God's image, "very good." (Gen. 1:26, 27, 31; 9:6; Eccl. 7:29) He was a human son.

The holy angels were also sons of God. They are thus spoken of in the Bible. The Lord through the Prophet Job tells us that at the creation of our race, "The Morning Stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy." (Job 38:6, 7) They were united in praising God for His wonderful works of creation. They rejoiced in Him and all His doings. God created all these different orders of beings, angels and men, through the great Logos, "the First Born (first brought into being) of all creation." (Col. 1:15) He was the active Agent of Jehovah in all His creative works. "Without Him was not anything made that was made." John 1:3

SONSHIP REGAINED ON A NEW PLANE

Through means provided in Christ, God has been extending an invitation during the present Age to some from the fallen race of Adam to become His sons, and on a new plane of being the Divine. This is higher than anything man has ever known, higher than anything the angels have ever known. In bringing forth this New Creation, Jehovah God is utilizing the conditions under which sin prevails in the world.

We may suppose that He said to Himself, "This would be an opportunity for making a grand character-test. I will therefore take a class from the fallen family of Adam and make them associates of My Son in the great work which I have for him to do; for the fact that they will be amongst men and have the same weaknesses of the fallen nature to contend with during the period of their development and preparation will serve only so much the more to test their loyalty and the strength of their character. I wish them to be associated with Myself in My great work of blessing all mankind, of uplifting the human family."

Thus the Father's thought is expressed in the Bible. "This will be an excellent opportunity for Me to take a specially select class from amongst all peoples, nations, kindreds and tongues. For when I shall have gathered them out they will be exactly the ones suited to My purpose, to perform My good pleasure in uplifting the world from their sin and imperfections back to perfection. Not only so, but certain great principles will be demonstrated that otherwise would never be known by either angels or men. It will show that I can take the mean things, the ignoble things, and so transform them that they shall be useful on the very highest plane of existence. Then if any of my intelligent creatures on any plane of life should in the future be offered a high position, they would know that they could attain it. If I offered a reward for any service, all would know that it could be gained.” So we see, dear friends, how the Lord has embraced the opportunity to call out and train a very special company for a very special purpose. And the arrangement by which He does this is suggested in our text: “And you who were dead in trespasses and sins hath He quickened!” Made alive.

WHEN THESE SONS WERE QUICKENED

The Apostle Paul is not speaking here of the complete making alive of this class in the First Resurrection, when they will be perfected as Divine spiritual beings but of a present condition—“You hath He quickened.” They were quickened, made alive as New Creatures, when, after they had accepted Christ as their Savior and presented themselves to God in full consecration, they were received and had the merit of Christ’s blood imputed to them as sacrifices, and were begotten of God’s Holy Spirit (His power) to a new nature. There the new life in Christ had its beginning; and this embryo life is to grow and develop until it is perfected in the resurrection, when they will receive their new spiritual bodies.

Though these spiritual sons are the creation of the Heavenly Father, yet it is His arrangement that their quickening, both in its present stage and in its completion at their resurrection, is not accomplished without the Son. All things are of the Father and by the Son. (1 Cor. 8:6) It may be asked, Why could God not quicken these without the Son? We answer, Because they were dead in trespasses and sins, and must have a perfect, sinless Redeemer to deliver them from death before God could have any dealings with them.

Moreover, as they must still use their imperfect mortal bodies, it is necessary that the merit of their Redeemer should continually cover them as a robe as long as they remain in the flesh; and because of their daily imperfections they need that this Redeemer be also their Advocate before the Father, that they may continue to be acceptable. It is the Father who quickens these, but it is not without the Son. “The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ hath begotten us,” says the Apostle 1 Pet. 1:3.

CHURCH’S AND WORLD’S SALVATION DIFFERENT

So we see that the receiving of life in the case of the Church class is different from the way in which the world in the next Age will receive life. Our life is from the Father, through Christ. The life of the world will be a direct gift from the Son, who alone will deal with the world during the incoming Age. He will be their “Everlasting (Age-lasting) Father.” (Isa. 9:6, 7) He is not the Father of the Church, but their Elder Brother. The world can have no access to the Father until the close of the Millennial Age.

The Church have access to the Father now, through the imputed merit of Jesus. We are being dealt with in a peculiar way and for a specific purpose. What the world are to receive will be something purchased for them directly by Christ. What the Church receives is something far above what was purchased by Christ. This purchased human life they laid down as a joint-sacrifice with Jesus, that they might share in His glory. This higher life and glory they receive as a reward for their sacrifice, just as Jesus Himself received it as a reward for His sacrifice.

The Church are New Creatures in Christ. The New Creature was never condemned. The New Creature was never redeemed. It starts out on a new plane altogether. To the world our Lord Jesus is to give His merit, the merit of His death. In the Church He only imputes it in order that it may at once be laid down as a sacrifice. The Church, as members of the human family for whom Jesus died, have as much right as the world to receive the restitution provided for them in Jesus’ sacrificial death. But these have relinquished their right to the perfect human life that they may attain with their Lord the far higher and grander life the Divine. They have become dead with Him to the human life, human rights and blessings in order that they may live and reign with Him on His Throne.

Let us represent the matter thus: We will say that a thousand dollars represents the perfect life with all the rights and privileges which would have been ours in common with the world. We still have, as members of the fallen human family, some remains of the original likeness of God in which our first parents were created. This has a certain worth; but as all the race were born under the death penalty, this worth or value could not be used by God in our fallen condition. But God has made an arrangement whereby this value can be made available. Let us say that this value which we have is represented by a hundred dollars. This represents our present life, our present influence.

To us who now offer ourselves to God to be dead with Christ, Jesus says, “I will take what you have and add to it by imputation sufficient of My sacrificial merit to make it perfect in God’s sight. In other words, I will impute nine hundred dollars to your hundred and thus make the full thousand. Thus I can present you to the Father a perfect sacrifice, perfect as was My own.” He does this, and the Father accepts the sacrifice. At once it is killed by our great High Priest, Jesus, and at the same moment the Father begets us by His Holy Spirit to the new spiritual nature. Thenceforth we are counted dead as human beings; we are partakers of Jesus’ sacrifice, sharers in it. We are New Creatures in Christ.

DIVINE PREDESTINATION GLORIOUS

Jehovah's great Plan is being carried out on a wonderful scale! And I am sure that, had we not been instructed as to what is His Plan, we would never have thought of such a nicety of justice and such a marvel of mercy and love as His has demonstrated in His arrangement for the Church and for the world. Such a Plan would never have occurred to us. We see that our God is a wonderful God and His Plan a most wonderful Plan; and the farther into it we see, the more confidence we have in Him, and the more we grow in knowledge, in grace, in His character-likeness and in the likeness of His dear Son our Savior and Advocate.

God has foreordained, predestinated, that the members of the Body of Christ, the Church shall be conformed to the image of His Son. He has not predestinated, as many once thought, that so many are to go to Heaven and all the remainder the vast majority to endless torture. We are greatly enamored of the Lord's predestination; we could not ask for anything better, nor half so good. Surely we should show Him our great appreciation of His wonderful Calling in Christ to those who "have ears to hear." Jesus says, "No man cometh to the Father but by Me," and "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." So we have come. Does the Father accept of such? Yes; He accepts us and gives us the begetting of His Holy Spirit. That is our start as New Creatures in Christ. "You hath he quickened who were dead in trespasses and sins."

QUICKENING THAT FOLLOWS BEGETTING

There is another sense in which the Bible speaks of us as being quickened. As we had stated, when we consecrated ourselves to God and the merit of Jesus was imputed to us, the sacrifice was killed, legally, and we were begotten as spirit beings. But as we still have to use the human body which was legally killed, it must be made the servant of the New Creature. By the Holy Spirit dwelling in us God quickens, energizes, this body that it may render service to Him. Thenceforth this mortal body is the property of the New Creature. He is to bring it fully into subjection to the new mind. It is to be used to develop the new mind until the New Creature is perfected in character and ready for his glorious spiritual body, which he is to receive in the resurrection.

If we fail to develop and bring forth fruitage in proportion to our talents, our opportunities for service, we cannot ask to be of that great, highly exalted Body of Christ. As soon as the newly begotten child of God comes to the point of activity in the Lord's service, he has been quickened. This quickening, energizing, of the New Creature to labor for God, to lay down his life for the brethren, should follow the begetting of the Holy Spirit in a comparatively short time. Until this time he has not begun to walk in the footsteps of the Master; the embryo new life is yet too feeble to manifest itself. As in a natural begetting the conception takes place some little time before there is a quickening, so it is with the spiritual begetting. But the quickening should follow in a reasonably short time! Otherwise something would be wrong. The Truth requires a little time to impregnate the heart and mind, and then the evidences of quickening begin to manifest themselves.

JEWELS IN PROCESS OF PREPARATION

This called-out class the Father denominates His jewels. “They shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that Day when I make up My jewels.” “Thou shall also be a crown of glory in the hand of Jehovah, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.” (Mal. 3:17; Isa. 62:3) Some may be inclined to criticize as they see evidences of imperfection in the mortal flesh of those whom the Lord is preparing now for the Kingdom. But the Lord looks beneath the surface. He knows who have the jewel quality. He knows who have the requisite decision of character, the necessary heart-loyalty to the principles of righteousness, the proper humility. Certain qualifications are absolutely essential in those whom God is now choosing for the highest positions in the Universe next to Himself and His First-begotten Son.

Jewels are scarce; and these jewels that the Lord is now taking out of the world have the right heart-condition, whatever may be the natural blemishes of the mortal body, which they are endeavoring to conquer to the best of their ability. “Blessed are the pure in heart,” said the Master. These pure-hearted ones shall be the Lord’s in this Day, now present, when He is making up His jewels, His royal diadem. God is to make a glorious exhibition of them to the entire Universe human and spiritual. He is to have a wondrous diadem of glory and beauty.

Each of these jewels must be cut and polished for his place in the diadem. The various difficulties and trials of life are making us ready for that position. We are to “think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try us as though some strange thing happened unto us,” but are to rejoice that we are “counted worthy to suffer with Christ.” Thus only can we glorify with Him. If we submit to the process of the great Heavenly Lapidary we shall be mounted in gold.

This time of mounting will be when we, as developed New Creatures, shall be given our new spiritual bodies in the First Resurrection. The Lord tells us that He will display this crown, or diadem, in His hand as His masterpiece, the crowning work of all God’s great creation. It will be an entirely new creation upon the very highest plane a position never offered to any but our Lord Jesus and those who walk in His sacrificial footsteps. Then let us “lay aside every weight, and the sin that doth so easily beset us, and run with patience the race set before us, looking unto Jesus, the Author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down on the right hand of the throne of God." Heb. 12:2.

PRESENT BURNING OF FALSE FAITH STRUCTURES

New York City, August 6 Pastor Russell was at the New York City Temple today, and delivered an address of great power. His text was, "Every man's work shall be made manifest; for the Day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." (1 Cor. 3:13) He said in part:

We have now come to the time to which the Apostle refers as "the Day." Both Old and New Testament refer frequently to this period as "that Day." The reference is not to a twenty-four hour day, but to a period of time in the end of this Gospel Age, in which things will be different from what they had been before. We are greatly pleased to be living in this time; for in it occur not only special trials—"the fire of that Day" but also special blessings and enlightenment.

It has always been true that trials and testings are proportionate to knowledge and privilege. What a wonderful blessing is ours to be able to understand God's Word as we may today! In this respect especially is our day superior to all previous time. We possess the Bible in a most convenient form with marginal references, concordances, good type, etc. We have the ability to read; we have superior lights, comfortable houses, and shorter hours of labor, thus having more time for study than people have previously had. In fact, we have every advantage; and this means greater opportunities, greater blessings, greater responsibilities and greater trials.

As shown by our short context, the Apostle clearly points out that the fire of "the Day of the Lord" will burn up the faith structure of some. Our Lord Jesus, speaking of this same Day, said, "When the Son of Man cometh, shall He find the faith on the earth?" (Luke 18:8) He intimated that very few then would have the faith of God's Word, the true faith. The faith structure of many is likened in our text to "wood, hay and stubble" combustible materials. He indicates that such Christians have the proper Foundation Christ but a poor superstructure, because they did not build with proper material. Wood, hay and stubble represent a flimsy, inferior, unsuitable material, while gold, silver and precious stones represent substantial, superior, indestructible material. Those who have built with the wrong kind of material will suffer the loss of their entire faith-structure; but those who have used the right kind will pass safely through the fire. The faith structure will endure.

WHAT IS THE PROPER MATERIAL

By contrasting these two kinds of building material, we believe that we are quite right in understanding that the gold, silver and precious stones represent the promises of God's Word, the teachings of Christ and the Apostles. This proper material must be built upon the only true Foundation Christ Jesus, our Ransom-sacrifice. (Acts 4:12; 1 Cor. 3:11) Evolution is no foundation. The creeds of the past are no foundation. The creeds were merely poor superstructures built upon the true Foundation. Christ is the one Foundation. Upon this substantial Foundation were built the twelve Apostles, who are Scripturally represented as precious stones. In these twelve foundation stones of the Church are the names of the twelve Apostles of the Lamb St. Paul taking the place of Judas. Rev. 21:14,19,20.

Upon this Foundation which God has furnished His Church, we are to build ourselves up in the most holy faith. Using the teachings and promises of the Bible for the erection of our faith-structure, we should make sure that we add to these nothing which men say. We are not to inquire what Calvin or Wesley or Knox says, and build their opinions into our structure, except as we prove every word by the Holy Scriptures. Rather, we are to ask, "What says the Word of God?" and to build with that alone; for it is all-sufficient. (2 Tim. 3:16,17) We may get good suggestions from these various teachers; but we must build with the Word of God alone, if we would stand the test of "the fire of the Day of the Lord."

THE WOOD, HAY AND STUBBLE

Having considered the true Foundation, we next inquire, What is meant by the wood, hay and stubble with which many build upon it? These represent the creeds of the past and of the present, not founded upon the Bible, not established by the Word of God. These are "the traditions of men," to which our Lord referred at His First Advent, when He said to the Jewish teachers, "Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition." (Matt. 15:1-9) There are many of that kind today, who always wish to know what the Church fathers or commentaries and theological works have to say about a subject. All this is the wood, hay and stubble which will be consumed in the fire of our day.

We believe that we have come down to the testing time, the Day of reckoning. For the past forty years the fire has been under way. Those Christians who have built with the gold, silver and precious stones of the Word of God will not be injured by this fire; but those Christians who have not built wisely or carefully will suffer loss, and will have a great deal of trouble as a result of that loss. Already this burning has consumed much wood, hay and stubble theology.

For instance, in nearly every public audience which we address, perhaps three-fourths of them, as Christians, have lost their faith-structure. If asked what they believe, many of them will reply, "I do not know what I believe, I only know that I believe in Jesus; but I do not feel very sure as to what to believe about Him." Such have no faith-structure; but if they are still on the Foundation, Christ Jesus, they may thank God. Probably they are the better off for the loss of any part of their faith that was erroneous. Some of us have had what wood, hay and stubble we possessed burned up; and we are all the better off for the loss. We did not know how poor we were until our false theology was consumed. Something has occurred that has burned out this false doctrine. It is the fire of this Day.

MAN'S SIX GREAT WORK DAYS

The Lord has divided the world's history under its sin and death experiences into six great Days of a thousand years each. As the Apostle declared, "A Day with the Lord is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one Day." (2 Pet. 3:8) God used the six days of our ordinary week to symbolize man's great Work-Week of six thousand years from the fall of man until the time for the beginning of his recovery as a race until the great Seventh Day should begin.

God has given fallen man these six thousand years during which to show what he can do toward his own uplift, to prove how the race can manage themselves. Mankind have tried to overcome the weaknesses and infirmities of the race--mental, moral and physical. They have sought to rid themselves of sickness, pain and death, have sought to find some elixir of life which would heal their diseases and restore their youth and health. The ablest physicians have been unable to discover the secret of perfect life. Their only hope is to keep abreast with the new diseases that are coming up; but they cannot prevent sickness and death. Man's best efforts have been in vain. Is man, then, ready to look to the Lord for help?

Gradually the whole world is being convinced that unless God shall bless mankind and give back life to the race, unless He shall come to the rescue of humanity, they are both helpless and hopeless.

With respect to the morals of the world, the case is as bad or worse than their physical condition. As we read of the morality of some of the heathen kings of the remote past, we are astonished; for it seems far beyond that of today. It puts to shame much that may be found amongst kings and princes of our day, as well as amongst the common people. Has morality increased, then, in modern times? We think not.

We see a striking example of present-day immorality amongst the so-called Christian nations now at war, where the theory of the "Survival of the Fittest" no longer holds. On the contrary, it seems now like the destruction of the fittest. Despite their assertions, their claim that they are fighting for God, for civilization and for humanity, nothing is clearer to the on-lookers than that the rival combatants are waging a war for commercialism. One holds the commerce of the world by sea power. The other wishes to get a share of that commerce. And so the struggle continues, a selfish strife for place and preferment above their neighbors, a spirit of slavery. For a century past, these warring nations have been engaged in land-grabbing and in holding these possessions, at times against the best interests of the peoples from whom they were taken.

ALL THIS FORETOLD IN THE BIBLE

How these nations have haggled about this war! It took Italy three months to decide which side to join which side would pay the higher price for her services. Yet she claims to be 100% Christian. One might as well hire a man to sandbag a personal enemy as to pay a nation to take part in a war. The principle would be identical. The same condition obtained with Japan. That little kingdom suggested that if the price were paid, she would send five hundred thousand soldiers to become murderers. "If you will give us Cochin China (a section of land stolen from China by the French), we will go into the wholesale killing business for you," was the sentiment. What gross immorality!

All this is not hurting real Christianity, however, It is only manifesting the false claims of those nations which have called themselves Christians. We are now in the Day of the Lord, when every hidden thing is being brought to light, as He forewarned us. There are saints in all these countries; but they are not making these false claims and professions, nor are they responsible for this war. In any country, the true saints are very greatly in the minority. The utter falsity of the claim that for eleven hundred years the world has been governed by Christian nations Christendom, Christ's Kingdom is being made clear. The Word of the Lord is now shining forth as never before. The world is taking knowledge that the present condition of things is radically wrong.

The fire of this Day is spreading, and the light goes with it. The whole world is becoming involved, just as the Bible has predicted for this Day. As the fire of trouble spreads, the light of Truth spreads also. God represents Himself as "a consuming fire." (Heb. 12:29) We also read that "God is Light, and in Him is no darkness at all." (1 John 1:5) The figures of fire and light are both applicable to Him. The sun is a ball of fire, and at the same time a source of light. God is a consuming fire to every form of iniquity and injustice; and all systems founded upon selfishness and inequity must go down during this great Day of the Lord, when He has risen to shake terribly the earth. Isa. 2:12-19

In the present time of trouble and distress of nations, however, there is light for the “children of light,” while the consuming fire is doing its work of destroying everything that is wrong. We have come down to “that Day,” wherein “the fire shall try every man’s work of what sort it is.” The fire has already started.

SPIRITUAL NEED OF OUR DAY

The fire which is consuming the false faith-structure of many in our day is the light of knowledge. This fire is burning up false faith and doctrine, and all that is built thereon. Much that is generally taught and accepted as Truth today is utterly subversive of all true faith and doctrine. The fire of God in this Day of Christ is destined to destroy all false teaching and the works resulting therefrom.

The great institutions of learning of Europe and America today are hot-beds of infidelity. Most of these institutions were founded by the churches as mediums for the Christian education of our youth, and were called the custodians of Christianity. Today there is hardly one Christian college. The young people who are sent to these schools soon have whatever faith they possessed destroyed. They hear the Bible story laughed at and ridiculed. Faith in the fundamental doctrines of the Scriptures is met with sneers. Those whose faith in God and in His Word has been destroyed by the influence of the religious institutions of our day need our help. We should do all in our power to build them up.

There has never been a time when the people seem so anxious to hear as now. They are bewildered sheep, longing to hear the voice of the true Shepherd. They refuse longer to believe the eternal torture doctrines of the past; and they find no soul-satisfaction in the Christless, loveless teachings held out to them today as spiritual food. Let us give them the Truth of God’s Word, which will satisfy their hearts as nothing else can do.

When we tell them about the fall in Adam, the redemption in Christ, the selection of the Church in this Age, and the blessing of the whole world in the coming Age, now so near at hand, when through Christ’s Kingdom all the willing and obedient shall be helped up out of death, sin and sorrow into life, joy and peace, there is something soul-satisfying in this Message. To a hungry, sorrowing heart the doctrine of Evolution is poor comfort indeed!

WHO SHALL ABIDE IN THESE BURNINGS

This great burning of our day will not stop with the church. The fire of this great Day will continue its work until all of the tares are consumed not as individuals, but as imitation Christians. Heretofore there has been no separation of wheat and tares in the nominal church systems. In His parable of the Wheat and the Tares (Matt. 13:24-30, 36-43), our Lord directed that both were to be permitted to grow together until the Harvest, and that then the separation would come. This time of separation is here. For nearly forty years the work has been under way, and is nearing its completion, we believe. The whole field must be cleaned up for the new crop of the incoming Age.

Who shall be able to abide in these burnings? (Isa. 33:10-17) Only those who have built with the gold, silver and precious stones of the Truth of God's Word. Everything but the Truth and the structures built thereupon will be consumed. The social "earth," as well as the ecclesiastical "heavens," with all its various elements political, industrial, financial, etc. will be burned up. (2 Pet. 3:10,14) The fire will cease only when there is nothing left to burn. It will be a lasting fire one that will continue until everything of the present order of things shall have been consumed. It will burn even down into the Millennial Age; "for our God is a consuming fire," and is irreconcilably opposed to all wrong, injustice, impurity and unrighteousness. There will be a clean world when His work is completed.

For many centuries men have tried to patch up this old order of things, and the Lord has permitted them to do their best. Now is His time to work. He will not patch up the old order. If the world were in that condition in which a little patching would do, it would have been done. If Babylon could have been healed, the healing would have been done. But the case is too desperate for anything less than just what God now purposes. (Matt. 9:16,17; Jer. 51:8,9) The world has failed to hear the message which God has sent through Christ and the Church; and therefore the curse is coming The Time of Trouble. But after that curse of trouble will come "the desire of all nations" —the Messianic Kingdom of peace and righteousness.

LOVE VERSUS FEAR AS CONSTRAINING POWER

Denver, Colo., Sept. 3 Pastor Russell spoke here today in his usual impressive manner. His text was from 2 Tim. 1:7—" God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." The Pastor spoke in part as follows:

As far as we are able to discern, the whole world is under the spirit of fear. It seems to be the great power that the Adversary has used these many centuries to delude mankind and to keep them away from God. This is very manifest amongst the heathen nations. The Bible declares most positively that the fallen angels always have been the real gods of the heathen, whose hideous idols are only the representation of their deities. Undoubtedly the gods and demigods of mythology were the fallen angels and their progeny, referred to in Gen. 6:1-4. The world cannot realize this fact; for they have not the guidance of the Word of God. Many professed Christians are also being deluded, because of their neglect of the teachings and warnings of the Bible. Consequently many have departed from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of demons, "by reason of which the Truth is evil-spoken of." Lev. 17:7; Deut. 32:17; Psa. 106:34-38; 1 Cor. 10:20-22; etc.

It is through the spirit of fear that the great Adversary has been able to deceive the race with false doctrines during these many centuries. Those who have been set free by the true Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ can now see how formerly they were enslaved, and can also understand how others become slaves. (John 8:31, 32) This spirit of fear, together with the worldly ambitions of the leaders of religious organizations, brought on the Dark Ages. Fear was used as a lash to drive people into the churches in an effort to convert the world. Blasphemous doctrines which grossly misrepresented our loving Creator were foisted upon the people to frighten them into subserviency.

But fear never has amounted to anything in bringing people to the Lord. The most that it could do would be to cause its victims to make an outward profession which belied their heart sentiments. It is the love of God, the love of Christ, that constrains us. (2 Cor. 5:14, 15) There was a time when we had this same fear; but instead of driving us to God, it had a tendency to drive us away from Him. History proves unmistakably that the blasphemous doctrine of endless torture has utterly failed to bring men to God. The most hardened criminals are very generally those who have been taught this doctrine. The great mass of the careless, the indifferent, the morally lax, are those who from childhood have been thus indoctrinated. It is not God's design to draw the world to Himself by any such methods.

THE BLINDING EFFECTS OF ERROR

The Truth is beautiful. It has a drawing and sanctifying power that nothing else can have. If the world were not under the blinding influence of "the god of this world" Satan all would be captivated by the Truth; for it is the only reasonable proposition on the face of the earth. If those who hold false doctrines are not ashamed of their errors, it is because they do not know enough to be ashamed. All should be ashamed of every doctrine except the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. Of this Gospel the great Apostle Paul declared that he was not ashamed. The Gospel of the Love of God as manifested in Christ was the Apostle's continual glory. Rom. 1:16; Gal. 6:14

But the god of this world has blinded the minds of "the children of disobedience" lest the light of the knowledge of the glory and the goodness of God should shine into their hearts. Satan does not wish this light of God's goodness to shine in upon humanity. Consequently he has endeavored to cause people to think of their Creator as the greatest Demon imaginable. One can scarcely even imagine a being as monstrous and cruel as the creeds of the Dark Ages represent our God to be. No human being, however depraved, would be so devilish as to do what has been attributed to God. A being who would torture throughout eternity billions of his creatures would be a devil of the blackest dye. And when we consider that these creatures were born imperfect and blemished by the Adamic fall, and blinded by superstition and ignorance inherited from their forefathers, the matter would be still worse. How could we imagine such things of our Heavenly Father!

HEATHEN DRIVEN AWAY FROM GOD

It is no wonder that such teachings have caused the majority to prefer not to think about God, but to seek pleasure, to immerse themselves in business, in society, in almost anything rather than to think of their Creator. This has been a most successful device of Satan to hinder people from any true worship of God, from any real love for Him. Naturally man would have a strong drawing toward his Maker; for in every human being there is something that would cause him to long after God. The faculty of reverence lies at the top of the head. Reverence is the highest faculty of the mind. Whoever lacks fellowship with God is living in the lower parts of his brain.

Even the heathen naturally would wish to find God. (Acts 17:22-28) But when we send missionaries to them with such terrible misrepresentations of the Divine character, the heathen are repelled. They do not wish to have such a God as the creeds of Christendom represent. Consequently the missionaries have accomplished comparatively little in leading the heathen to the religion of Christ. If the missionaries had had the real Gospel Message, the heathen would have desired it.

Some time ago we were in India, where we were somewhat disappointed with the attendance at the meeting we held in a city there. The next morning two intelligent natives came to us as we were on our way to the railway station. Calling us by name, they expressed regret that we could not remain longer in their city. Amongst other remarks they said, "Had we known last night that you were present here, we would have gone to the meeting. We care nothing for what the missionaries say. Our gods tell us that we should not harm even the tiniest insect. Then to think that the Christian God has damned our forefathers to suffer through all eternity! We cannot trust such a God as He. But we are told that your message is altogether different from that of the missionaries."

We had to apologize to these men, and to tell them that they were quite right, but that they had been misinformed respecting the true character of God of the Bible. We assured them that we would be glad to remain longer and tell them about the true God, but that our appointments made it necessary that we go on at once. We do not know whether they heard us at any other point or not; and so we leave the matter.

Practically the only natives of India who pay any attention to the missionaries are what are known as "rice Christians." They were poor heathen a short time ago, and had very little to eat. Rice was promised them on condition that they would attend the meetings conducted by the missionaries. Naturally they attended whichever mission would promise them the rice. Poor creatures! It was not the message that drew them, but the material benefits promised.

PERFECT LOVE CASTETH OUT FEAR

Notwithstanding the fact that we are living in such an intelligent age, fear is a potent factor throughout the whole world. All the educated people of today are abandoning the Bible. Still the great mass of mankind, doubting that there is a Hell of eternal torture, and yet afraid that there might be, turn occasionally to the Bible to try to get some little insurance against such a place of torment. They are actuated by fear. Why is this? It is because of false teaching, misrepresentation of the real Message of the Bible, because of the blinding influence of the great Adversary. 2 Cor. 4:4

This condition was clearly foretold in the Bible. It has been permitted by the Lord for a wise purpose. The work of this Gospel Age has not been the conversion of the world, but merely the taking out from the world a very special class, “a people for his name.” (Acts 15:13-18) The present adverse conditions in the world are most favorable for the training, the testing and the proving of this class. In connection with their Lord and Head, Christ Jesus, they are to be used of the Father in blessing the whole world during the incoming Age in scattering the ignorance, the darkness and the superstition, in enlightening the minds of mankind, in instructing them concerning the Love of God, concerning His provision for their salvation and uplift through the Atonement work of their Redeemer. Then the world will be delivered from the slavish fear in which they have long been bound.

The love of God in the heart casts out this fear. This we know experimentally. Having the love of God in our hearts, we find that it has cast out fear, that our knowledge of God’s great Plan for the salvation of both the Church and the world has banished the fear which has torment. (1 John 4:18) To us, God is no longer a great Devil, who seeks for some pretext to justify Himself in torturing His creatures throughout eternity. On the contrary, He is a loving Father, who seeks the highest good of all His creatures, and has provided great blessing for all who will accept them upon His gracious terms, when these terms are made known to them, and assistance granted according to their need.

THE GOOD TIME COMING TO ALL MANKIND

The Scriptures promise that the knowledge of the glory of the Lord shall yet fill the whole earth, and that Christ shall be a Light to lighten the Gentiles the heathen (Hab. 2:14; Isa. 11:9; 42:6, 7; Luke 2:25-32) That Light will reveal, not devilishness, but the glory of God, His goodness, His grace. Oh, that will be a happy time! And it is not far distant. Soon men will bow before “the Great White Throne.” It will not take them long to learn in the incoming

New Age, when all the blind eyes shall be opened, and all the deaf ears unstopped.

During this night-time of six thousand years, during which “darkness has covered the earth and gross darkness the people,” it has required faith and courage to walk with the Lord. But presently, when the light shall be spread abroad, all shall know Him, from the least unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord. (Jer. 31:34) We are just finding out what it really means to know our God. This knowledge has wrought a great change in the lives of those who have come to this condition.

It is blessed to know God, to have an intimate acquaintance, a fellowship of spirit, with our Creator. Our Lord Jesus said that to know God is life eternal. (John 17:3) There are few as yet who know him. We who are beginning to know Him have this knowledge as an evidence that we are in the way to eternal life. But not until we become His children can we thus know Him. Every child should know his father better day by day. Therefore from the time when we are begotten of the Holy Spirit of God, our Heavenly Father is willing that we should become thoroughly acquainted with Him, with His character. This is what it means to have the love of God shed abroad in our hearts. Rom. 5:1-5

WORSHIPING IN SPIRIT AND IN TRUTH

No one can truly worship God until he is set free from the bondage of fear. The more we are freed from this slavish fear, the more are we enabled to come into the light of God. The spirit of slavish fear represents Satan; for it is his spirit. Therefore until we get free from it we cannot properly worship God. When we thought of Him as a God who sent 999 out of every 1,000 into eternal torment, we could not understand how He could be a God of Love. Only those who would have no brains could fail to be troubled about such a question. But now we know that "God hath not given us the spirit of fear." It came from the Adversary.

God is not seeking slaves who will fall down to worship Him lest they be thrown into eternal torment. He desires the worship of those who worship Him in spirit and in truth. (John 4:24) He tells us that slavish fear of Him is taught by the precepts of men. (Isa. 29:13) It does not come from God. The spirit which He gives His children is a spirit of courage. "The righteous are as bold as a lion." One with God is a majority. One shall chase a thousand; and two shall put ten thousand to flight if God be with them. (Prov. 28:1; Deut. 32:30) This is not self-confidence. It is the confidence born of the exceeding great and precious promises of the Word of God; and we dare trust these promises.

We love our Father and our Savior, and in this Divine strength will we go on, fearing nothing. God has given us this spirit; and it will increase in proportion as we endeavor to be loyal to the Lord God and seek to walk in the footsteps of our Master. "Be of good courage," children of the Heavenly King; "and He shall strengthen your heart." "Be not afraid!"

"THE SPIRIT OF A SOUND MIND"

People are often astonished at the courage manifested by the true children of God. With all their meekness, they develop a wonderful amount of courage. They have found a Friend, oh, such a Friend, who loved them ere they knew Him. They find Him a very present help in every time of trouble. The courage which He gives them is not courage to do mean or unkind things, but courage to do right, to speak a word in season, to assist those who need a helping hand, courage to proclaim the Truth of God kindly and lovingly, whatever the opposition brought to bear against them. All the meek need to have this courage. Meekness, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, brotherly-kindness, love all these are qualities which the consecrated child of God must possess; and with them all he must also have courage.

The Truth of God gives its possessor the spirit of a sound mind, no matter how unsound his mind may have been by nature. The Spirit of God gives one a better balance, better judgment, better powers of reasoning. It does not make one perfect in the flesh; for God does not purpose to make His consecrated children perfect in this life. Those whom He is now training for membership in the Kingdom of His son are to be made perfect in heart, developed in character, but not perfect in the flesh. Were they made perfect in the flesh, they could not be so well tested and proved, nor could they so well sympathize with the world in the next Age, who have all these human weaknesses and whom these sons of God are to judge.

The spirit of a sound mind gives the Lord's children courage to fight against the weaknesses of the flesh, against the world and against the Devil. It keeps them from wasting their consecrated time upon foolish, unprofitable things. It leads them to redeem the time for the things that are worthy. Having given their time, their money, their all, to the Lord, they seek to spend and to be spent in His service and to His glory. Meantime He is watching to see how they are carrying out their vow of consecration. Therefore they are daily striving earnestly to increase their talents and to improve their time, that they may use all to His glory who has called them out of darkness into His marvelous light. These experiences are working out in them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory, preparing them to be associated with Him in giving blessings to the world. So they are going on from grace to grace, from glory to glory.

CHARACTER LIKENESS TO HEAVENLY FATHER

Los Angeles, California, September 10 -- Pastor Russell gave an excellent discourse today to the I. S. B. A. Convention which is in session here. He spoke from the text: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in Heaven is perfect." He said in part:

3H844

Every child should be like his father; that is to say, if mankind were normal, and every child well born, such would be the natural course of things. The love between the father and the mother of a child would then tend to produce that very desirable result. The father would be so noble, that he would be the mother's ideal, and the child would be in the father's likeness. Hence when our Lord speaks of His followers as being like their Father, He implies that we have been begotten of the Holy Spirit, have become children of the Highest One, our Heavenly Father, and are developing His character-likeness.

We are not to understand that the Lord Jesus was addressing everybody, in the words of our text. No; we are to make a wide distinction between Jesus' disciples and the world. We remember that Jesus said to some, "Ye are of your father the Devil; for his works ye do. (John 8:44) And when we get the right focus on the matter, we see that, as the Apostle tells us, "The whole world lieth in the Evil One." (1 John 5:19. R. V.) We see that Adam in the beginning was a son of God, as the Bible declares. Luke 3:38

God created man in His own image, as we read. The first man, Adam, was God-like in the sense that his mind and his heart were predisposed to righteousness. Man was not made physically in God's likeness; for God is not a man. Man was made in the mental and moral likeness of his Maker. Thus it was that God placed man on trial, with the provision that he might maintain this perfect life by obedience; that then God would direct him as His child; and that Adam's children would all be God's children, because born in their father's likeness who was created in the Heavenly Father's likeness. And thus it would continue all down through the ages. Instead of being more or less weak and fallen, all human beings would then have been glorious sons of God.

RAPID DEGENERATION AFTER THE FALL

The Bible tells us that although God permitted man to go into sin and then cut him off from sonship, nevertheless He had sympathy for His creatures and did not design to let them go without making a provision for their recovery. But first He would deal with them as a race, and permit them to have a large experience with sin, sorrow, death, and all the penalties of wrong-doing, of neglecting the Heavenly Father, of losing His likeness. That large experience they have had during the past six thousand years. Rom. 1:18-32

Thus man's sin has brought on the whole trouble. This mental and moral perversity impressed itself upon their children yet unborn. They were generated imperfect in mind and body, with a decided bent toward sin. Then subsequent training and environment of sin had their part in accentuating the already existing conditions. So we see, as St. Paul points out, that the whole world lost God's image to a very large degree. They are not at all what we would expect if they were children of God.

But the Bible tells us that notwithstanding the world's present depravity Jehovah has a glorious Plan for their recovery. Everything that He will do for mankind is to be done indirectly, through Christ Jesus. To this end Jesus died, became the world's Redeemer. As the Bible declares, He is to be the Purchaser of all the world, paying the death penalty of Father Adam. He buys back all mankind by giving His own life for their ransom. It was to give this Ransom-price that He left His glorious pre-human station and became a man. Now He is highly exalted to the Father's right hand of power. Shortly He is to be further glorified by the Father and given control of the whole earth and all of the human race, that He may carry out God's great Purpose as God framed it from the beginning. Our Lord Jesus is now the express image of the Father's person, fully desirous of carrying out all that the Father has purposed.

RANSOM AS FAR-REACHING AS THE FALL

Jehovah's Plan is broad, taking in the whole world of mankind since Adam's creation. All are provided for in the great Purchase Price furnished by the death of "the Man Christ Jesus," that all may return to God's favor if they will. This provision will in due time be brought to the attention of every human being. Very few in the present life have had their attention really drawn to this matter. Some have heard a church bell ring or have heard some hymns sung, or have perhaps read somewhat in the Bible with their minds holden. As a rule these things have very little effect upon men.

The Bible speaks of people having ears and yet not being able to hear. The whole world is deaf and blind as respects God's great Plan for a future Restitution, to be accomplished by the Heavenly Father through Jesus Christ during the Millennial Reign the time that God has arranged for giving the world its opportunity of coming back into harmony with Him. St. Paul speaks particularly of this matter. He says, "For the earnest expectation of the creation waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For the creation was made subject to frailty, not willingly, but by reason of Him who hath subjected the same in hope, because the creation itself shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now." Rom. 8:19-22. R. V.

Man was made subject to frailty away back in Adam's day, when he fell from his position as a son of God. Mankind were born frail in the moral texture of their character, frail in every way. Our Common Version reads, "subject to vanity" but the Revised Version translation, "frailty," seems clearer, though both conditions prevail. Mankind were thus subjected, not willingly; that is to say, it was not their will that they should be born weak in mind, in body, in morals, but it was "by reason of Him who hath subjected the same in hope." In other words, God permitted man's fall and its results, knowing that it would be overruled in His Purpose for the everlasting good of all who would be rightly exercised by the bitter experience with sin and death, and all their accompanying miseries. There is a large hope for man in respect to this matter.

This hope is in Christ. Mankind now under the bondage of corruption, are to be delivered, says the Apostle. They are now slaves to sin and to Satan, the Usurper. But their shackles are to be broken, and whosoever will may then go free. They are not delivered yet. Only a few--the Church—have a measure of deliverance now; and these will, we believe, soon be fully delivered. God is saving the Church first. But the world is still in corruption, going down lower every day. But God declares that the world shall be delivered. He has provided the great thousand-year Day of Christ for the deliverance of humanity from the bondage of corruption.

ATTAINING THE LIBERTY OF SONS OF GOD

The creation is to be delivered “into the glorious liberty of sons of God.” The whole human family may become sons of God, sons on the human plane. They will not be sons of God, however, until they become perfect, as was Father Adam before his fall. God will not recognize any imperfect being as His son. The purpose of the incoming Millennial Age, now at the door, is to bring whosoever will back to the original perfection as it existed in Eden, plus all the valuable experiences of the past six thousand years. Men will not be sons of God until the close of the Messianic Reign of a thousand years. During that period they will be gradually rising up, up, up, to a full resurrection. That is the meaning of the word resurrection a full raising up from death. All who give heed to the Lord Jesus and the teachings of the glorified Church will gradually get rid of all sins, all mental, moral and physical weaknesses and disabilities, and will be come eventually perfect.

At the close of His Reign, Christ will deliver the entire world over to the Father, all who refused to come under the terms of the New Covenant in Christ having been destroyed in the Second Death. Then mankind will be tested as Adam was tested in the beginning. Now men for the most part sin through ignorance and weakness. But then there will be no excuse; for all will be perfect, fully enlightened and able to do perfectly. Satan will be “loosed for a little season,” and permitted to try again to lead mankind astray. The Scriptures inform us that all who then yield to sin and disobey God shall be destroyed by “fire from heaven.” Satan will also then be destroyed finally. Then God will have a clean Universe. All sinners, human and spiritual, will have been cut off in death.

What a glorious prospect lies before the whole world! No more will mankind be bound by sin, weakness and ignorance. They will have fully learned what the Bible says all should learn—“the exceeding sinfulness of sin.” They will profit eternally by the great lessons which they will have learned in their experience with sin and its terrible effects, all of which experience our first parents lacked. How much these lessons will mean to thousands of millions! There will be no danger that they will take such a step as Adam and Eve took in their simplicity. Mankind will then know just what is good and what is evil. They will be fully able to discriminate between right and wrong.

WE MUST LOVE RIGHTEOUSNESS AND HATE INIQUITY

Everything that God has decreed and directed is right and makes for the good and the happiness of His creatures; and everything contrary to the will of God is wrong and produces evil somewhere to somebody. When the whole world shall have learned well this lesson, it will be something worth knowing. The liberty then granted to these sons of God will not be freedom from obligation to do right. No one ever will be free from God or from responsibility to God. Everybody will always be under obligation to do right. God places Himself under this obligation. "Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?" says the Word. (Gen. 18:25) He certainly will. In the case of our Lord Jesus, one of the severest tests which the Father placed upon Him was the test of loyalty to the principles of righteousness. "Because thou hast loved righteousness, and hast hated iniquity, therefore God, even Thy God, hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above Thy fellows," was God's commendation to Him. Psa. 45:7; Heb. 1:9

The Bible gives a beautiful picture of Jesus' exaltation for faithfulness. the whole world must yet come to the heart attitude of the perfect man, Christ Jesus. Those who refuse to do so will be cut off. Men must learn to love and appreciate everything that is right. They must love justice, mercy, and every other good quality of character. They must learn to hate injustice and impurity. They must root out all anger, malice, envy, strife. they must love and develop to perfection gentleness, kindness, meekness, humility, patience, self-control, love. they must have God's own character-likeness.

GOD'S PURPOSE FOR THE CHURCH

This same principle holds good with the Church of Christ but operates differently; for it is a different part of God's Plan that relates to the Church. We do not need to wait until the Millennium to become sons of God. As the Apostle says, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God." As the Apostle says, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God." (1 John 3:2) By an arrangement peculiarly for this Gospel Age we are made sons of God in advance of the world and on a different plane a spiritual plane. The Church is an altogether new creation. they give up their earthly life to become associated with Jesus their Lord in His Heavenly inheritance. As He sacrificed Himself for the world, so do these, through the imputation of His sacrificial merit. they share His sufferings in order to share His glory. Not only during the Millennial Reign, but throughout eternal ages, they are to share His honor and glory, as “the Bride, the Lamb’s Wife” and Joint-heir.

It is to the Church of Christ that our text is addressed. These alone being sons of God at this time, these alone have God as their Father. He is not the Father of the world of sinners. The Church have been chosen from the sinner world, and have been brought nigh by the blood of Christ. They have been washed, cleansed, and covered with His robe of righteousness. They have died as human beings, and have been begotten of the Holy Spirit as Spirit beings. they are to be “born of the Spirit” in the First Resurrection, if faithful unto death. They are members of Christ’s mystical Body. At their begetting as New Creatures in Christ they are only embryo spirit beings. They have merely the new mind, which must grow and develop into the character-likeness of their Father in Heaven, even as their Master had this character-likeness.

They are to grow in love and in all the fruits and graces of the Holy Spirit. But they cannot grow without spiritual food and exercise, even as a human child needs food, exercise and instruction in order to grow strong mentally and physically. The basis of our strength of character is our will; and as we seek to exercise our will in harmony with the expressed will of the Lord for us we grow up into Christ our Head in all things. We are instructed by the Master to be perfect even as our Father is perfect. We are to become thus perfect in character, in will. We are to be like Him in our minds.

It is the New Creature that is to be like God that is to be perfect, not the flesh. The flesh will never be like God except in the sense that we as New Creatures compel our fleshly body to serve us, to render service to the Lord as our instrument. We shall never succeed in making our body perfect, for God does not purpose to give us restitution, as He will the world a little later. Our human body is merely our servant while we wait for “our house which is from Heaven,” our glorious spiritual body.

We are to have the mind of Christ. His mind was to do wholly the Father’s will. Have you the mind of Christ to the degree that you are willing that the doing of God’s will shall cost you something? This is a very important point. The Lord will not ask you to attain this too soon; He will doubtless bring you to the place where it will cost you a good deal before you become a member of the Body of Christ in glory. You must prove that your heart is right and fully loyal to God. “Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.” But we are to bring our bodies as fully into conformity to the perfect Law of the Lord as we are able by His grace.

When we become copies of God's dear son, we are fulfilling our Lord's injunction to become perfect even as our Father in Heaven is perfect. We become copies of Christ in character. God loves us when we are babes in Christ. But He does not wish us to remain babes. We are expected to grow and develop. If we fail to grow properly, we cannot remain pleasing to our Father in Heaven. We must come to the place where we shall love righteousness and hate iniquity, whatever its form. Otherwise we shall not be granted an entrance into the Kingdom.

REASONABLE, HARMONIOUS, ARE DIVINE PURPOSES

Seattle, Washington, September 17 -- Pastor Russell gave a masterly sermon today before the I. B. S. A. Convention assembled here this week. His text was from Isa. 1:18; "Come now, and let us reason together, said Jehovah: Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." He spoke as follows:

In the past, nearly everything that has ever been offered us in the way of religion has been something which must be taken without the exercise of reason. This has been especially true of most of the creedal teachings given us in the name of the Lord. They must be swallowed without reasoning or not at all; for they are too unreasonable to be received by any logical mind. In this connection I think of an incident which well illustrates my point. On one occasion a gentleman who had been giving the Bible some study related to me a conversation which he had recently had with his pastor, a Presbyterian minister. The gentleman had said to his pastor, "I cannot quite accept some of the statements of the Confession of Faith; for I cannot understand them." The minister replied, "You have taken the matter in a wrong light altogether. When you take the Confession of Faith, you must do so just as you would take a Brandreth pill. If you stop to chew it, you will never be able to swallow it!"

The Lord, on the contrary, says to us: "Come, let us reason together." God appeals to man's reason; and every feature of the Divine Plan, when understood, is thoroughly logical and worthy of our great Creator. It is only reasonable to expect that God, who gave man reasoning faculties, would give us a revelation of His Plan which would appeal to our reason. Man was created in the image of God; and even though our race is now in a fallen condition, the Lord still appeals to man's reason, as our text shows.

The word of God is in every way logical and beautiful; and our joy has been in proportion as we have needed His Message and responded to it. When He invites His people to reason with Him, He means that we are to search His revealed Word, the Bible, to find the true explanation for man's present condition, to discover the Lord's Plan relating to mankind, to exercise our minds in regard to God's declarations. What would be the use of having brains if we merely absorb a teaching, without having any mental understanding of the subject? To study with a view to finding what reason God gives us along lines of vital importance this constitutes true Bible study.

MAN'S REASON HANDICAPPED BY ERROR

While the lower animals are endowed to a very limited degree with the faculty of reason, yet of all the animal creation man alone is able to reason upon a high plane. He alone possesses moral faculties and ability to reason with his Creator through that Creator's revealed Word. In the present fallen condition of the race, some can reason better than others. Phrenologists can determine by the size and the shape of a man's head what are his natural mental endowments. They can give a very good description of a man's natural disposition what he would be likely to do and what not to do.

But no phrenologist can determine the character of a Christian as such as a New Creature in Christ; for a Christian of considerable development has so far overcome many of his natural weaknesses that he is much nobler in character than the shape of his head would seem to indicate. He now has a new will, a new mind the mind of Christ. But the particular point that we wish to emphasize is that the faculty for reasoning belongs to man, and that even in his fallen condition he delights to exercise this faculty. When we inquire for a reason why things are so, we are merely in line with God's will concerning us.

Along doctrinal lines, however, our reasoning is sadly handicapped by error; for the whole world is in a large measure of darkness respecting the Divine character and purposes. For the past few hundred years, the Lord's people have been gradually emerging from the darkness of the Dark Ages. There were twelve hundred years during which the Bible was not studied at all. Then came the Reformation, after which the Bible came back into the hands of God's people, and they began to study it again. But their poor heads were more or less confused with the errors of the creeds formulated during those twelve centuries when the Bible was set aside; and it would not be expected that they would be able then to see every point of doctrine clearly and to reason satisfactorily.

So we see that our forefathers, honest and sincere as many of them were, had great difficulties with which to contend in connection with the errors which were firmly entrenched in their minds. When a foundation of error has been laid in the mind, it will give trouble until all the error has been removed. Many of their errors we have inherited. We were born with our reasoning faculties more or less twisted; and these twists have been accentuated by our teaching at home, in the Sunday School, and in the pulpit. We have imbibed them in our reading. When we wished to reason, we were told, "You must not reason along doctrinal lines; for you will become an infidel if you do!"

REASON DIVINELY GUIDED A BLESSING

Many of us did become infidels respecting the teachings held out to us, however. This has proved to be a great blessing, in that it has led us to study the Word of God for ourselves, and to learn what is the real character of our Creator that He is not a monstrous Devil, but a God of Love, a God of Reason; that He has a Plan of Salvation worthy of all acceptance. We can now meet together and reason as God's people in harmony with His inspired Revelation the Bible. Our own poor, imperfect reasoning, perverted by the false teachings of centuries, would be a very unreliable guide and would surely lead us astray if we were unaided from Above as our text suggests. But reasoning according to the instructions of Scripture clarifies our minds, and leads us out of the bewildering darkness of error into the light of God as it shines from the face of our Redeemer and Lord, Jesus Christ.

As Bible Students we are learning that there is a beauty and a harmony in the Bible that is not to be found elsewhere, when the Word of God is rightly divided (2 Tim. 3:15-17; 2:15). As long as we reason within the lines of Divine Revelation we are on safe ground. What do any of us know regarding the origin and the destiny of man save as we are instructed by the Lord? Nothing whatever! No matter how much any man may boast of his knowledge and his wisdom, he knows nothing about these important subjects pertaining to our everlasting future except as information is given from Heaven. As the inspired Apostle Paul declares, the Word of God is sufficient, that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished. We have no other source of knowledge respecting our Creator and His purposes. We must have a "Thus saith the Lord" for every item of our faith.

PROVISION FOR MAN'S DELIVERANCE

Nearly all the theology of the Bible stands related to sin how sin came into the world, what are its effects, how God views it, how we should view it, how man is to get rid of it, what means God will adopt to lift mankind out of their present degradation to sin and to restore the race to perfection and everlasting life. This is the sum total of the theology of the Bible.

God's Word declares that our great Creator made man, not in the image of an ape, but in the Divine image, and crowned him with honor and glory, setting man over the beasts of the earth, the fishes of the sea and the birds of the air. Man was to be an earthly king, only “a little lower than the angels.” (Gen. 1:26-28, 31; Psa. 8:4-8) This great man, this perfect man, Adam, was our father, a human son of God. (Luke 3:38) The Heavenly Father has not said this about any one since Adam’s disobedience and fall into sin, except in the case of our Lord Jesus Christ, who came to earth a man, transferred from His glorious pre-human condition to man’s estate, in order that He might give His human nature a Ransom-sacrifice for Adam and all who fell in him.

Adam was put on trial in Eden with the understanding that if he remained obedient to his Creator he could live forever; but that if he was disobedient, he would die. He disobeyed; and the death penalty was pronounced upon him—“Dying, thou shalt die.” (Gen. 2:17, margin) Immediately he began to die not instant death, but a gradual dying process. It was nine hundred years before he was dead not more alive than ever. “The wages of sin is death.” “The soul that sinneth it shall die.” Rom. 6:23; Ezek. 18:4,20.

To understand the Scriptures, we must drop the foolishness handed down to us from the Dark Ages. “Come, let us reason together.” In line with this reasoning, we find that the whole world are sinners. Adam’s unborn posterity shared in his fall and in his condemnation. Some have gone down into the tomb more rapidly than have others, and on a lower plane. Some have tried their best to fight against sin. But all are sinners; all are dying because of the original sin in Eden. (Psa. 51:5; Gen. 3:20) None can keep God’s law; for all are imperfect. Rom. 3:20.

As all the race were condemned to death while still in the loins of their father Adam, so the Lord Jesus, by becoming a man, perfect and undefiled by sin, with an unborn race in his loins, could give Himself an exact corresponding price for Adam and all his posterity. This is the meaning of the word Ransom as applied to Jesus’ sacrifice for the purchase of the race. The Greek word is antilutron a price in offset, an equivalent price, a corresponding price. (1 Tim. 2:5, 6.)

MEANING OF CHRIST’S DEATH

Although our Lord was in the Heavenly Father’s likeness on the Heavenly plane, He could not give a corresponding price for man while He was still a spirit being; for God’s Law demanded a man’s life for a man’s life. (Deut. 19:21) It was necessary, therefore, that He become a perfect man, as Adam was before he fell. As such our Lord died for “the sin of the world”—the original sin, the sin of Father Adam, on account of which Adam was sentenced to death. Thus we see that Jesus must bear Adam’s penalty, whatever that was. Did our Lord suffer eternal torture for man? No; He suffered death. He gave up forever in death His human nature, and was raised from death by the Father a glorious Divine being, as a reward for His faithfulness. His human nature He never took back; for it was the price of man's redemption.

It is very evident, then, that the penalty for sin pronounced by God upon Adam and his race was not eternal torment, but death. Had not our Lord Jesus Christ died for the world, mankind would not have a future life. But because our Lord has died, "the just for the unjust," death is referred to in the Bible as a "sleep." Man will awaken from his death sleep. He will live again in the resurrection. 1 Cor. 15:21-23.

God's standard is perfection; and no one who comes short of it can attain life everlasting. The entire race of Adam is dying on account of their father Adam's sin. The great majority of them have died in infancy. Moreover, the Bible distinctly declares that no flesh can be justified in God's sight through keeping His Law; for fallen man cannot keep God's perfect Law inviolate. Only through Divine compassion and mercy can any human being become justified in the sight of God, through the death of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. The Ransom-price which our Lord gave for Adam and his race is "to be testified in due time." (1 Tim. 2:5,6) To some the due time comes in this life. To the great majority it will come in the next life, during the Messianic Reign of a thousand years the world's great Judgment Day.

THE TWO SALVATIONS

But although God has provided a great Savior for the fallen race of Adam, and although the death of our Lord Jesus is sufficient for the sins of the whole world, the world has not yet received the benefits of that death. The reason for the delay is given in the Bible. There are two phases of salvation: one salvation for the Church, to spirit nature; and another for the world in general, to perfect human nature. The Bible says that Jesus Christ "brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel." (2 Tim. 1:10) The Apostle Paul mentions the "so great salvation, which first begun to be spoken by the Lord." (Heb. 2:3) This salvation for the Church was a secret from before the foundation of the world.

The other phase, "the common salvation," is for whosoever will of mankind. During the Millennial Age this salvation will be made known to every person in the world. The knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the earth. (Hab. 2:14; Psa. 72:19) Everybody will know that Christ has died for the sin of the world, and that all may then have a share in the blessing of Restitution secured by the death of Christ. All will then have the opportunity to receive again that which was lost. (Luke 19:10) At the Second Coming of Christ, in "the Times of Restitution of all things," mankind will be given an opportunity to rise out of ignorance and sin back to the image of God. Jude 3; Acts 3:19-23.

The “strong meat” of the Word of God needs careful mastication. (Heb. 5:12-14) The husks on which we were fed in Babylon could not be masticated. There was no real food there. The true Christian is to progress from the milk of the Word to the strong meat thereof. He is to grow in grace and in knowledge. At first we were only “babes in Christ,” babes in the knowledge of things spiritual. (1 Cor. 3:1-3) But in order to grow strong in the Lord, we must have the strong meat and digest it.

SPIRIT BEGETTING AND SPIRIT BIRTH

After Adam fell, Jesus was the first human son of God. “He came unto His own (the Jews), and His own received Him not.” They crucified Him. “But as many as received Him (first of the Jews and then of the Gentiles), to them gave He power to become the sons of God.” (John 1:11, 12) As spirit-begotten New Creatures, these are sons of God; and they will have their birth in the First Resurrection, when they shall be made like their Lord and Head 1 John 3:2.

As a spirit-begotten son of God, our Lord Jesus offered Himself in sacrifice to God at Jordan. For three and one-half years thereafter He was laying down in death that sacrifice, which was consummated on the cross. The third day thereafter He was born of the Spirit, in His resurrection. So the sacrifice which we make when we consecrate ourselves fully to God through Christ is finished at our actual death. Meantime, we must keep our bodies in a presentable condition—“faithful unto death”. (Rev. 2:10) For this the Church is waiting. We are not to receive merely the ordinary human life which is coming to the world in the Times of Restitution. The opportunity to get the crown of life will never again be offered; for it is limited to a special number the Elect. When all of this elect number shall have been found and prepared for their future work, then the purpose of the Gospel Age will have been accomplished, and the uplift of the world of mankind will begin.

BROTHERLY LOVE

St. Paul, Minnesota, September 22, 1916 -- Pastor Russell announced for his text the familiar saying of Paul, “Let brotherly love continue,” (Heb. 13:1) and made substantially the following remarks:—

The exhortation to let brotherly love continue implies that it has started. In fact, it is impossible to come into the Divine Family without it. It is a trait always to be found in every member of that family. It will be found to be so, not only among the earthly children of that family, but among all the Heavenly. Wherever the Spirit of God is, there will be found the Spirit of Love.

Brotherly love is a thing that is easily disturbed. It can be done with but a few words of envy, malice or hatred, and in less than five minutes of time. Such works are the works that emanate from the spirit of the Devil. We are not to incite each other with such a spirit, but are rather admonished to incite one another to love and good works. It is God's spirit that thus incites.

We often hear it said that we find it harder to obey this admonition as we come to be better acquainted with each other, because we come to see each others' faults so well. We get to know each other too well. But we are further reminded that we are not to know, not to recognize each other according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit. And in this connection we are reminded that it is not an easy matter to judge according to the Spirit, it requires great carefulness, because we cannot see one another's hearts. How, then, are we to proceed? It is in this way: We are compelled to judge each other according to our professions. These professions will have to be taken at their face value. This would seem to be the only safe rule.

What do we as Christians profess? We all profess to be fighting the Devil and his works. He and his works surround us on every hand, and these are the things to which we profess hostility and which we profess we are trying to conquer. All our personal weaknesses are of the Adversary, and these are among the things we profess ourselves to be striving to overcome. If we are striving to gain the mastery over these things, certainly every one of us has his hands full and more than full.

We have our responsibilities as members of our earthly families, and we have our responsibilities as neighbors, and we profess to be devoted to these; but our chief concern is over the struggle with ourselves as individuals. This is our profession as brethren.

Our fleshly bodies, which we "put under" at consecration, fail to stay under. Hence it becomes necessary for us to put them under repeatedly, daily and hourly. If we do not do this, we prove that we are not thoroughly loyal to the Lord. And it is certain that He will not exalt us to glory and power if we are not loyal to Him. We must be loyal to the very moment of death. Such is our profession.

It may be said by some that this is a discouraging standard which we proclaim. But we reply that it will not discourage any true soldier, such as the Lord is calling. It may discourage shirkers. But the Lord is not looking for shirkers. He has no need for such. We should not be discouraged, however, at the weakness of our flesh, for the Lord has provided the gracious arrangement whereby that is covered from His sight by the Robe of Righteousness. The Lord deals with our wills, and our wills are to deal with our flesh. If He dealt directly with our flesh, we might well be discouraged. The arrangement makes it possible for us to make a good fight.

We have been amazed as we have read in the newspapers of the loyalty displayed by the warring soldiers of Europe. They have rushed into the face of death, have made tremendous sacrifices under an impulse of loyalty that has been promoted, not by the grace of God, but by the spirit of demons. How much more should be the loyalty of those who are inspired and assisted by the grace of God, how much more eager they should be to sacrifice their lives even unto death, as they have covenanted. The soldiers of Europe do not really know what they are fighting for; whereas we know well what we are fighting for. They are paid about twenty cents a day for the sacrifices they are making; whereas we are getting far more than that at this present time, and have the guarantee of pay at the end of the way, glory, honor and immortality, adoption into the great Royal Family of the Universe. None of the soldiers who are fighting across the ocean can get into any royal family. They have no such hope. But the promise is given to us that if we are loyal soldiers, we will be adopted into that Royal Family. How it should nerve us to go on.

But we must suffer, even as they suffer, and we must go beyond them in suffering. The greater value of the prize well warrants this thought. And how much more glorious is our commission than theirs. They are commissioned to slay their fellow men. We are commissioned to do good unto all men as we have opportunity, especially to the household of faith, our brothers.

Let us keep the banner clearly before us. Let us notice what Jesus fought for. He is our Leader we are to walk in His steps. We are to suffer as He suffered. He was fighting for a Kingdom. He declared that He came to possess a kingdom. The Jews ridiculed Him. He did not look to them as if He has any show of a Kingdom. They said He was mad. And so with us. The world will not see anything to make them think that we are likely to inherit a kingdom. They will tell us we are mad, when in our devotion to the affairs of the Kingdom we refuse to follow them in the pursuit of things of time and of this present world. But let us be faithful soldiers of the Kingdom.

What are we living for? To get the best we can out of this life? Then we are not living as do those who are members of God's family. Those who are in God's family live for God. They do not live for time. A certain elder once had a chance to take a position in business that would increase his material prosperity very considerably, but would make such demands upon his time and energy as to seriously curtail his privileges for service as a soldier of the great King. He sought advice. His duty would seem clearly to be that of making sacrifices as a good soldier. And so with all of us.

If we are loyal to Him, we may be more than sure that He will be loyal to us. Let this thought inspire us in our every thought, our every word, our every act.

RIISING OF THE SUN OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

“The Sun of Righteousness Shall Arise With Healing In His Beams.” Jesus the Light that Will Heal the World.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 24 Pastor Russell delivered a characteristic address before the I. B. S. A. convention here today. He took for his text John 8:12—“ I am the Light of the world; he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.” He said in part:

At the time that our Lord used these words, He was the Man Christ Jesus, and had not yet become the Light of the world save in prospect. He was then the Light of the world in the same sense that He was the Savior of the world. The ultimate result of His coming into the world would be that the world would be enlightened and saved. To this end He had become a man. To this end He died. At His first advent our Lord came into the world to accomplish a work that would result in the world’s salvation and uplift from sin and death at His Second Advent. The interim has been devoted to the selection and the preparation of a class which God has ordained to be associated with His Son in the great work for mankind to be inaugurated at the opening of the next Age.

Our Lord not only said, “I am the Light of the world,” but declared to His followers, “Ye are the light of the world.” He pointed out the way in which they were to be lights at the present time, saying, “Men do not light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.” (Matt. 5:14-16) So our Lord put His light on a candlestick; and it is still giving light to all in the House, but not to the world. Likewise Christ’s disciples are to let their light shine to all within the Household of Faith not to the world at large. They are not to expect, however, that their light will dispel the darkness now.

The sin, the jealousies, the misunderstandings and the pride of the Jewish rulers led them to secure the crucifixion of our Lord Jesus; and thus His light was temporarily extinguished. So it has been with His disciples all down the Gospel Age. We are not to expect that our light will now dispel the darkness; but rather, as has been the case throughout this Age, that the darkness will ever seek to quench the light. John 3:19-21

WHY THE WORLD IS IN DARKNESS

The Bible tells us about two great Kingdoms: Satan's Kingdom of Darkness and Christ's Kingdom of Light. As the Scriptures declare, "Darkness covers the earth and gross darkness the people. (Isa. 60:2) This is because Satan's Kingdom is in power. Satan is "the prince of this Age." (John 14:30) It is not that God made Satan to be the prince; but rather, as St. Paul explains, Satan is the god, or ruler, of this world because he is now ruling in the hearts of the children of disobedience. (2 Cor. 4:4; Eph. 2:2) Today the children of disobedience are so numerous that fully nine-tenths of the human race are under the domination of the Prince of Darkness. Many who render him service do not realize what they are doing. But "his servants ye are to whom ye render service." If people knew that they are serving Satan, things would soon be different. But they are deceived.

We are only now beginning to get out of the darkened, drunken condition in which the Bible declares that the world has been for centuries. (Rev. 17:1-6) The majority of mankind are still in a large measure of darkness. All of us have had more or less experience with this stupid condition of spiritual drunkenness. We are very thankful to God that we are getting awakened and sobered up, even though the majority of mankind are still serving Satan. (1 John 5:19 R. V.) This may seem a hard thing to say, but it is true.

God refuses to accept any service except that which is rendered by His sons. Consequently whoever would render acceptable service must first become a child of God by entering into a Covenant of Sacrifice with Him. (Psa. 50:5) This we do by presenting our bodies a living sacrifice, becoming acceptable to the Father through the imputed merit of Jesus, receiving the begetting of the Holy Spirit, and thus becoming children of God, joint-heirs with the Lord Jesus Christ to all that God has promised. (Rom. 12:1, 2; 8:17) Unless this is true of us, we are not serving God.

As we give careful heed to the Word of God and see what are the terms of service, we realize that there are very few who are serving God, who are following in the footsteps of Jesus. But we rejoice that the light is beginning to break through the darkness, and that the glorious character of our God is beginning to be understood as never before by those who are humble and teachable.

DARKNESS BEGINNING TO DISAPPEAR

According to the words of our Lord Jesus, the Sun of Righteousness was to rise at the close of the Gospel Age and the beginning of the Millennial Age. Both the teachings of the Scriptures and the signs of the times indicate that we are now living in the day when the Sun of Righteousness is about to rise, to scatter all the mists of darkness that envelope the earth. The Bible gives us a beautiful picture of what will take place when this Sun shall have risen over all the world. All other lights will be obscured by its brilliancy. All the dark places of the world will be opened up. Every hidden thing will be manifested. The light of the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the sea. Isa. 11:9; Hab. 2:14

3H851

Then there will be ocean-deep knowledge of God. That will be the time when the true Light will lighten every man that has come into the world. It has not come during this Age because the Church must first be selected; first, the faithful ones from amongst the Jews, and then the remainder from amongst the Gentiles. Only a "remnant" from Israel after the flesh, and only a "remnant" from Israel after the Spirit, will be of this true Church of Christ. (Isa. 10:20-22; Rom. 9:23-29; 11:5; Matt. 7:21-23) It was the Divine purpose that, after the Gospel of Christ had first been presented to the Jews, God's professed people, it should then go to the Gentiles, to take out of them "a people for His name." Acts 15:13-18

TARES SOWN AMONGST THE WHEAT

In the Divine Plan, the Gospel Age has been set aside for the gathering out of the faithful "Israelites indeed" from both Jews and Gentiles, to constitute the Church of Christ which is to reign with Him in His Kingdom. Our Lord Jesus tells us that when this number shall have been completed and glorified with Him, then the Kingdom will come and the Sun of Righteousness will rise to shine over all the earth. This Sun cannot rise before that time; for the Church is, with her Lord, to constitute this Sun.

In the parable of the Wheat and the Tares (Matt. 13:36-43) is pictured the work of the Gospel Age. Our Lord Jesus and the Apostles sowed the good seed of the Kingdom. They proclaimed that the Kingdom of God was yet to be set up on the earth. After the Apostles "fell asleep" in death, Satan came and over-sowed the field with tare-seed. The tare-seed represented the false message, not the true Message of the Kingdom. The Kingdom seed brought forth the true children of God; but the tare-seed brought forth children of error—" tares."

During this Gospel Age the wheat and the tares have been growing side by side in the nominal church organization. Our Lord forewarned His followers that no attempt should be made to separate these two classes until the close of the Age the Harvest time when He would return and supervise the separating work in person, though unseen, as He is now a glorious spirit being. During this Harvest time the “wheat” would be gathered into the “garner” while the “tares” would be figuratively burned; that is, destroyed as tares. The garner into which the wheat were to be gathered represents their change in the First Resurrection. “Then shall the righteous shine forth as the Sun in the Kingdom of their Father.” Then will be the time when our Lord Jesus Christ will, in the fullest sense of the word, become the Light of the world. Mal. 4:2; Matt. 13:43

We are now in the closing days of the Gospel Age. The Harvest is nearly finished. The last members of the Bride, the Body of Christ, are now in the flesh; and their course, we believe, is nearly run. This whole Christ Head and Body, Bridegroom and Bride will constitute the Sun of Righteousness, the Light of the world. When this Sun shall have risen, then the world will see. Now they cannot see. As the Apostle Paul says, “The god of this world (Satan) hath blinded the minds of them that believe not.” This is the reason why many cannot understand the Message of Truth when it is presented to them.

But when the Sun of Righteousness arises, then all mankind will see. All the blind eyes shall be opened; all the deaf ears shall be unstopped. “The glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together.” (Isa. 40:5) What a beautiful picture the Bible places before our minds! Truly earth’s coming glory will compensate for the darkness, ignorance and superstition which for many centuries have prevailed throughout the world.

THE CHILDREN OF THE LIGHT

In the words of our text, the Master declared, “He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.” His followers were to be enlightened while the world was still in darkness. The humble, teachable ones into whose minds the light of Truth shone carried in turn the light to others who were meek, who had the “ear to hear.” The Truth of the Gospel, the Message of the Kingdom, gave zeal and courage to all who received it into good and honest hearts.

We read about the courage of St. Peter and St. John. After they had been illuminated by the begetting of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost, they went forth to proclaim Jesus of Nazareth as the Son of God, the Messiah, who was to bless the whole world. Although they were imprisoned for preaching in Jesus’ name, they continued to do so after the Lord delivered them from prison. When again called before the authorities and threatened, they answered, “Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye; for we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.” Acts 4:19,

The words of these faithful servants of God confounded their enemies; for although even the people noted that they were ignorant and unlearned men, still the wisdom with which the disciples spoke could not be resisted nor gainsaid. Truly the power of God was manifested in His humble, faithful children. They knew what they believed and why they believed it. Therefore the people “took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jesus and had learned of Him.” Thus it has ever been. The Lord’s promise has been abundantly fulfilled to His people that they should not walk in darkness, but should have the light of life.

In the Truth of God’s Word there is a transforming power which affects the entire life. In proportion as it is received, it gives its possessor the spirit of a sound mind. It makes him more efficient in business. It makes better husbands and fathers, better wives and mothers, better sons and daughters, better neighbors and friends. Even the worldly recognize the fact that the Lord’s people have nobler ideals, better judgment, a broader outlook and kindlier sympathies than have others.

NO MORE ENCIRCLING GLOOM TO THESE

It is not sufficient that one give his heart to the Lord, and then receive the illumination of the Holy Spirit which comes at that time. The good beginning must be carried on daily, if we are to walk in the light and be transformed in character. Our Lord Jesus is to be our great Teacher; and we must go to Him continually, receiving the lessons and the blessings that come through the daily study of His Word.

When we thought, as once we did, that nearly everybody was bound for eternal torment and that probably we might go there, too, it is no wonder that we did not love the Bible. But when we come to know the Lord, all that darkness begins to vanish, and the love of God begins to be shed abroad in our hearts. It is a wonderful thing to know that we may be made sharers in the great Divine Plan, that we may be made joint-heirs with Christ Jesus in His glory; to know that “if we suffer with Him, we shall reign with Him,” and that “if we die with Him, we shall live with Him” as spirit beings having the Divine nature, as the Lord has promised. 2 Tim. 2:11, 12; 2 Pet. 1:4

Cardinal Newman’s beautiful hymn well expresses the doubt and uncertainty which have prevailed for centuries:

*“Lead kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom;
Lead Thou me on;
The night is dark, and I am far from Home;
Lead Thou me on!”*

This hymn seems to touch a popular chord; for all have realized this “encircling gloom.” All have realized that we need a “kindly light” to lead us. Our Lord Jesus Christ is the kindly Light that is leading His people. Through the Word of God He has been guiding His people during the dark time which has preceded the rising of the Sun of Righteousness. (2 Pet. 1:19-21) But that Word has been neglected. The creeds and the “traditions of men” have been substituted for the Scriptures. There has been an “encircling gloom,” a darkness that could be felt. The Cardinal realized that the night was dark, and that we were far from Home. He felt bewildered. He had been a Protestant; and in his search for light he had become a Catholic. Not knowing just what to believe, he said, “Lead Thou me on!”

GRAVE MISTAKES OF CHURCH LEADERS

In the attempt to separate wheat from tares, contrary to the Master’s instructions, various denominations have been formed, each of which has claimed to be the Church of Christ. Each denomination has tried to console itself with the thought that its gloom was no greater than that of the others. But all of them have been in the “encircling gloom,” and all have felt it. Instead of following our Lord Jesus Christ, they have followed Luther, Calvin, Knox, Wesley and other men. We do not read that the Apostle John or the Apostle Peter or the Apostle Paul started a Church which was called after his own name. On the contrary, they denounced the spirit of division as wrong. 1 Cor. 1:10-13; 3:1-7; Ephesians 4:1-6

Seeing, however, that we have gotten ourselves into this difficulty, the only thing for us to do is to extricate ourselves from these entanglements by obedience to the Lord. We need not fight the denominations. Let them take care of themselves. But let each true disciple of Jesus see that he follows his Master, and that he lets his light shine. Be “as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves.” The people are more or less confused in mind. They contend for their creeds; and yet, if asked, they acknowledge that they do not believe their creeds. No intelligent person today could believe the monstrous teachings of the creeds.

Let us be true followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. He is the Light of the world, and will soon begin to enlighten the whole race of mankind. Soon the Church will be glorified with Him, and with Him will constitute the great Sun of Righteousness which is to rise and fill the earth with the light of the knowledge of the glory of God. Let this thought, dear brethren, inspire our hearts to faithfulness. Let us follow closely in the Master’s steps; and shortly we shall receive a glorious share in the great blessings which He has promised to His faithful followers.

THE CALL OF THE NEW NATION OF SPIRIT BEINGS

New York City, October 1 Pastor Russell occupied his pulpit in the New York City Temple, W. Sixty-third Street, near Broadway, this evening. His discourse was based upon Rev. 2:26,27—"He that overcometh and keepeth My works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers, even as I received of My Father." He said:

The Bible tells us that from before the foundation of the world our Heavenly Father purposed in Himself the great Plan of Salvation which He has since been carrying out. He will make no changes in that Plan; for He knew the end from the beginning. (Isa. 46:9, 10; 55:8-11). Such a wise, gracious Almighty God is ours! Although He had this plan from before the foundation of the world, the Scriptures show that He did not make it known, except very vaguely, until the time of Abraham. This, you remember, St. Paul points out to us, saying that God first made declaration of His Purpose, first preached the Gospel, to Abraham. (Gal. 3:8; Gen. 12:3). To faithful, loyal, obedient Abraham, God said, "It is My Purpose to bless all mankind, and that great blessing shall come through your posterity."

Then God seemed to ignore His own promise; for century after century passed without anything apparently being done. In the meantime, Abraham's natural seed through Isaac had gone into bondage in Egypt. Four hundred years after the Abrahamic Covenant had been made, the Israelites were still in bondage with that Covenant still standing. Then God sent a message through Moses to this effect: "Are you ready to have fulfilled to you the Promise which I made to your ancestor Abraham?" You can imagine how the Israelites felt. They quickly indicated that they were ready. Then God purposed that Moses should lead them out of Egypt and onward into the land of Canaan, where they supposed that they would become so mighty that they could conquer the whole world and rule mankind in righteousness.

When God had brought Israel as far as Mount Sinai, He indicated to them that before they could, as Abraham's seed, bless the world, they must demonstrate their fitness. Then He gave them His Law in a great Covenant, and told them that if they would keep that Law Covenant, they would have both the right and the opportunity to become the blessers of the remainder of mankind. You remember that God gave Israel the Ten Commandments at Mount Sinai, through Moses; and that Israel said, “All these things will we do.” Ex. 19:1-9; 24:1-8.

NATURAL ISRAEL’S FAILURE

The Israelites appreciated God’s great offer; they wished to be the blessers of all mankind. It must necessarily be a great people who could conquer and bless the whole world. They could see no other way to bless humanity except by first conquering the world, although they were only a little nation amongst others older and stronger than themselves.

But Israel could not keep the Law of God. No fallen man can do so; for it is the measure of a perfect man’s ability. None but a perfect man could love the Lord his God with all his mind, heart, soul and strength; and his neighbor as himself. (Matt. 22:35-40; Luke 10:25-28). The Israelites did not realize how imperfect they were. But as the years passed by, they gradually learned that they were not able to bless the world.

You remember that God gave them an annual Atonement Day. On that day He said, so to speak, “I will wipe off the slate again; and you may try on a clean slate for the coming year.” Year after year they tried in this way. But those annual sacrifices of bulls and goats which were arranged for them could never take away sin. They merely represented in a typical manner that Israel was given another opportunity for life through keeping the Law. (Heb. 10:1-4) Finally the Israelites became very much discouraged; for they saw that they were accomplishing nothing along this line. They did not have everlasting life any more than had other people or than they themselves had before they entered into the Law Covenant. They were in no condition to bless the world.

GOD’S PROMISE OF A NEW COVENANT

Then God sent Israel word through His Prophet, saying, “The day is coming when I will make a New Covenant with the House of Israel and the House of Judah.... I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.” (Jer. 31:31-34). Under that New Covenant God will take away the stony heart out of their flesh and will give them a heart of flesh. (Ezek. 11:14-21; 37:26-28) This wonderful promise has not yet been fulfilled to the Jews; but soon it will be. In the light of St. Paul’s testimony we see that God has an arrangement for an antitypical Moses and for the offering of “better sacrifices” than those of bulls and goats, by reason of which He will effectually take away sins forever. Heb. 9:11-23.

The point we have in mind is not the difference between the Law Covenant and the New Covenant, between the Covenant made with the Jews in the remote past and that to be made with them in the near future, but the fact that God has made certain promises to that nation, and that while they had hoped to have those promises fulfilled in them, yet they have failed to get what they had hoped for. They had hoped to be a nation of overcomers, a victorious nation that God would bless and exalt in order that they might bring all the world into subjection to Jehovah and might impress upon all nations the Law given at Mount Sinai. They had hoped to be judges, rulers, to accomplish the work which God has purposed for the world. This they failed to do.

HOW GOD'S PURPOSE WILL BE OUTWORKED

We have a God who knows what He is about. His Plan was completed from the beginning; and it has met with no reverses at any time. When there was any seeming failure, it was something that God had foreknown and had foretold through the Prophets. He was not surprised that Israel failed to become the blessers of the world.

Then in due time God sent His son into the world. This feature of the great Plan of the Ages was already purposed by the Father from before the foundation of the world that His Son, the Logos, should come to earth, become a man, and die as a Roman for the sins of all mankind. Our Lord came as the natural seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Judah, born under the Law Covenant, and obligated to keep all the terms of that Law. (Heb. 2:16, 17; Gal. 4:4, 5) But unless He could keep the Law, even He could not become the promised Seed of Blessing, to bless all the families of the earth.

Our Lord Jesus Christ was found wholly obedient to the Divine Law, and fulfilled the requirements of the Law Covenant to the uttermost. Thus He gained all of the rights which that Covenant held out. The Law Covenant promises earthly life, earthly blessings and earthly dominion that which Adam had lost. But the Man Jesus could not give these blessings to mankind. He might, indeed, have set up a kingdom, established upon wise principles. He might have been recognized as a great teacher and reformer. The whole world might have bowed down to Him, acknowledging their willingness to serve Him as their King. He might have taught them how to speak and act better, how to do all things more wisely. But all this would not have brought them the blessing of everlasting life which God designed that man should attain.

Jesus would have had everlasting life on the human plane for Himself as a result of His keeping the Law Covenant. (Lev. 18:5; Gal. 3:11, 12) But He could not have given everlasting life to even one individual. He might have awakened some out of death by the use of His power, but He could not have kept them awake; for He had not this right, because the Divine sentence against Adam and his posterity was, "Dying, thou shalt die." (Gen. 2:17, margin) Hence it was necessary that Jesus first attain relationship to God as the Spiritual Seed of Abraham before He could be the One to save and bless the world.

A RANSOM FOR ALL

To accomplish this great work, our Lord gave His life as the Ransom-price for Father Adam, in whom all the world were condemned to death. Inasmuch as all mankind died in Adam, the sacrifice of the one perfect Man, Christ Jesus, was sufficient to accomplish the redemption of the whole human race, which was in Adam's loins when he sinned. What beautiful harmony Bible students find in all of God's arrangements! 1 Tim. 2:5, 6; 1 Cor. 15:21, 22; John 1:14

The word Ransom, as used in the Bible when speaking of our Lord's sacrificial death for man, signifies a Corresponding Price. It was the perfect man Adam who sinned; and it was the perfect Man Jesus who gave His life as Adam's Redemption price. It was not enough, however, that Jesus lay down His human life. He must receive a spirit life; for if in His resurrection He took back the earthly life which He had laid down, He would need it for Himself, and consequently would have no life to appropriate for Adam and his race. Had our Lord merely died and been resurrected to human life again, His death would have been of no avail.

Here we see the beauty of God's Plan of Salvation. In permitting Jesus' life to be taken away unjustly, God had arranged to give our Lord a new life, on a new plane of being, as a New Creature. Then, having received life as a Divine being as a reward for His faithfulness, our Lord as a New Creature, would still have to His credit the earthly nature, the human life which He had not forfeited by sinning. Thus He had a right to two lives. He needed the spirit life for Himself; and the human life He had to give for Adam and his race. He needed the two; for nothing less would accomplish the Divine Purpose.

GOD'S WONDERFUL NEW CREATION

God's Plan having carried out thus far, the next step was that our Lord Jesus should start a new nation; for when Jehovah spoke to Abraham, He had intimated that the Seed of Blessing would be a nation, not merely an individual. (Gen. 22:17—"the stars") The natural seed of Abraham as a nation had high hopes. When the suggestion was made to the Jews of our Lord's day that they might not be fit to be God's special people, they were amazed; for they supposed that since they were Abraham's seed, and since God's Word cannot be broken, He must take them. (Matt. 3:9; John 8:39) But God would not have them unless they were in the right heart condition. He would fulfill His Promise, but not through Israel as a nation.

We might not have understood the matter had it not been that God's providence revealed it through the Apostles. St. Peter, writing to the Church, says, "Ye are a Royal Priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people (a people for a purpose), that ye should show forth the praises of Him who hath called you out of darkness into His marvelous light." (1 Pet. 2:9) This is God's arrangement, then. For nearly 1900 years He has been selecting the members of this nation individually not taking a whole nation, as He did with the Jews. It is to be a new creation as well as a new nation—" created in Christ Jesus unto good works". Eph. 2:10; 2 Cor. 5:17.

The one Church of Christ is to be the New Creation, according to the teachings of Scripture. We do not know who the members are; but St. Paul declares, "the Lord knoweth them that are His." (2 Tim. 2:19) It was this class to which God referred away back in Abraham's day, when He declared that the Seed of Abraham should bless all the families of the earth. Whoever is in Christ is of that seed. Gal. 3:8, 16, 29.

For many centuries God gave the nation of Israel an opportunity to try to accomplish the desired end through their Law Covenant. But they failed. Therefore there would be no use in attempting to bless the world under that Covenant. Only one kept the Law Covenant, and He therefore has all the rights accruing from the keeping of it. That One is now choosing a select nation, to be His joint-heir in all of His possessions and honors as His Bride. It is God's proposition. No matter how poor a maiden may be, if a rich king accepts her as his wife, she becomes his joint-heir. This is exactly the picture which God gives us of Jesus and the Church. Rev. 21:9, 10; Eph. 5:25-32.

Those Jews who were living in Jesus' day could become united to Him as members of The Christ heirs of god and joint-heirs with Christ Jesus. the Gentiles, who were never in covenant relationship with God, and who therefore had no rights as Jews, have been invited to become fellow-heirs with the faithful Jews, to share with them all that they will receive through Christ. (Eph. 3:1-7) Thank God that the door was opened to the Gentiles also! So for nearly 1900 years our Lord has been selecting this Bride class to inherit with Himself the Promise made to Abraham. Isa. 55:1-3

CHURCH OF CHRIST UNDER GOD'S LAW

God is still of the same mind as in the beginning. No one will be fit to bless others unless he himself is in harmony with Jehovah through His Law. But the Church is not under the Law Covenant. According to the flesh we could not keep the Divine Law, but we can keep it according to the spirit. Covered with the merit of Christ' sacrificial death, we can keep the just requirements of the Law of God. The righteousness of the Law is fulfilled in us, "who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit."

(Rom. 8:1-4) God tells us that He has reckoned us dead to ourselves, to our fallen human nature; and that He will judge us according to the spirit, the intention. If our hearts are loyal, and if our endeavors are the best that we can put forward, He will cover our defects with the sacrificial merit of Christ.

God keeps us clean by continually applying to us the virtue of Jesus' blood as we ask for it. (1 John 1:7-10) Having willingly given ourselves over entirely to God, and using all our strength in seeking to live according to His will, we have been accepted through Christ Jesus as members of this wonderful new nation which, when developed in the School of Christ, will be fully qualified for bringing in the great blessings long ago promised to all the kindreds of the earth both the living and the dead.

The Spiritual Seed of Abraham are to be overcomers, conquerors. Their future work is the uplifting of mankind from degradation and sin, and the bringing of them back to God. The necessary preparation for this work is in themselves. They are not expected to perfect the flesh; but they are to bring their minds so thoroughly into subjection to the will of God that they will do the best that they can do. They are to Overcome, if they would win the great prize of their High Calling in Christ Jesus.

Many and varied are their besetments from the world, the flesh and the Adversary. All about them is the spirit of the world, which is altogether different from the Spirit of the Lord. The world, spirit is sometimes more noble and sometimes less noble than at other times; but it is always a selfish spirit. It is also an ambitious spirit, desirous of having the good things of this life, the approval of the world, and everything of a worldly kind. Then the flesh has certain tendencies which have come down to us through 6000 years of sin and selfishness tendencies toward pride, show, vanity, etc. Then there are many contrivances of the Devil with which to contend. Many of these have come through the teachings of the various religious systems of this world. All these things must be overcome, if we would be granted to sit with our Lord in His Throne.

St. Paul Enterprise, October 10, 1916

MERCY TRIUMPHANT YET JUSTICE ABIDES

Dayton, Ohio, October 8 Pastor Russell was the principal speaker today before the I. B. S. A. assembled in convention at the Soldiers' Home Memorial Hall for the past few days. His discourse was based upon the literal rendering of the last clause of Jas. 2:13 "Mercy glorieth against judgment." The Pastor said:

To the careful Bible student the Scriptures present a wonderful picture of the victory of Love, or Mercy, over Justice in God's great Plan of the Ages for man's recovery from the fallen condition into which the human race was plunged by the disobedience of Adam, the father of mankind. The Bible shows how our mighty creator was able to provide for the rescue of the race from the penalty of Death, pronounced upon our first parents and inherited by all of Adam's posterity; and how this rescue could be accomplished without violation of the Divine decree or of the principle of Justice, which God declares to be the very foundation of His Throne. Psa. 97:2

It has been said that "the proper study of mankind is man"; but we can more truly say that the greatest study of mankind is our great Creator. The character of Jehovah is the example, the pattern for all His intelligent creatures to follow. How important, then, it is that we understand aright the real character of our God in order that we may be able to imitate Him and develop characters like His! (Matt. 5:48; 1 Pet. 1:16) All who are children of God are called to partake of their Father's holiness; and ultimately the standard of perfect holiness righteousness will be required of all.

In the past, our lack of a knowledge of the true character of God has been one of our greatest difficulties. How could we copy the character of the God of the Bible unless we understood Him? We have not properly known our God. Thus the Bible declares, "My people perish for lack of knowledge." (Hos. 4:6) The necessary knowledge has been supplied by the Lord in His Word; but in the main His people have permitted themselves to be drawn aside and misled by the great Adversary. (1 Tim. 4:1; 2 Pet. 2:2) the Lord has permitted this as a test to all of His professed servants.

OUR EYES OF UNDERSTANDING OPENING

We believe that today there are many honest people feeling after God, if haply they might find Him. (Acts 17:27) But, alas! Christian people have been misled, and have unintentionally misled others, by the terrible doctrines of the Dark Ages, introduced into the Christian Church after the Apostles "fell asleep". (Matt. 13:24-30) Thus harm has been done where only good was intended. Although sure that our Heavenly Father will not lay to our charge that which was unintentionally done, nevertheless we cannot but feel remorse for our serious mistake in thus maligning the character of our gracious God. How thankful we are that the light is now breaking in, and that we can see as never before, the lengths, the breadths, the heights and the depths of our great Creator's Love; that we can see in clear outline in His Word His glorious Plan for the salvation of the whole world!

By nature the highest organs of our head are those that tend toward love and reverence. Spirituality, veneration, hope, conscientiousness, are the very highest qualities in our organism. The baneful influences of the Adamic fall have dwarfed these qualities in all mankind; nevertheless they have made their influence felt to some extent in our natural character. Yet despite all this, error has been creeping in. The Bible tells us that the one to whom we should charge this imperfection is "your Adversary, the Devil."

The spirit of impatience and discontent is everywhere prevalent today. Satan is responsible for this condition. When we speak of Satan we mean a personal Devil. We believe in a real Adversary, once a glorious and powerful angel, created in full accord with his Maker, but later a rebel against the Divine Government. we also believe in the existence of a host of fallen angels, or evil spirits, who followed Satan's lead and over whom he became prince, as the Scriptures plainly declare. Eph. 2:2; 6:12; margin; Gen. 6:1-4; Jude 6, etc.

These powerful enemies of poor, fallen humanity have their mission and are working in so secret and crafty a manner that in our fallen condition we are no match for these higher intelligences, with the wisdom of ages at their command. They well know how to entrap; and they have entrapped some. In thus seeking to delude and mislead mankind, they know that they can cause humanity to dread their Creator, to hate rather than to love Him. The Apostle Paul declares that "the god of this world (Satan) hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them." (2 Cor. 4:4) The Adversary knows full well that if the light of the knowledge of God's glorious character should shine into men's hearts, it would make a great transformation. God's work in the heart of the Christian is for the purpose of transforming him by the renewing of the mind. Rom. 12:2.

What a blessed thought it is, dear brethren in Christ, that we are getting rid of this blindness? The eyes of our understanding are indeed opening. The Apostle Paul thus prayed for the Church—"I pray for you, that the eyes of your understanding being enlightened, ye may know what is the hope of your calling, and what the riches of the glory of His inheritance in the saints, and what the exceeding greatness of His power to us-ward who believe." (Eph. 1:16-19) Further on, he prays, "that ye may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and height and depth, and know the Love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God." Eph. 3:14-19.

TRUE LOVE FOUNDED UPON JUSTICE

In our text the Apostle is showing us that in God's wonderful Plan for man's recovery from sin and death Divine Mercy, which means Divine Love, has triumphed over Divine Justice, and yet without impinging God's Justice in the slightest degree. It is a very interesting and important study for us to learn just how this was accomplished; for if we do not see it clearly we shall have confused ideas of God's Plan as revealed in His Word. If we do see it clearly many of the theological tangles which long have troubled and hindered us will be unraveled.

We remember that it is written, "Righteousness and Judgment (Justice) are the habitation of His Throne." God's whole Empire is founded upon Justice not Love, but Justice. We see the propriety of this. How else could He be the proper Administrator of the universe! This statement does not conflict with the other Scriptural declaration, "God is Love." Justice is the very basis upon which true love is built. At first these two elements of the Divine character might seem to conflict, when we remember that while God's Justice demanded the punishment of the sinner, nevertheless His Love provided a way to bless that sinner. Let us see how the Word of God harmonizes these facts of theology.

This matter is very simple to understand in our day; whereas in the past our forefathers had great confusion on the subject. Many and fierce were the theological battles fought along this line. They had long arguments as to whether God's Justice would finally prevail, or whether God's Love would override His Justice, and how this would be accomplished. Here was the difficulty in our minds.

Before we can understand what constitutes God's Justice, we must rid ourselves of the errors embodied in the creeds of the Dark Ages, whether these errors be Calvinistic, Arminian, or whatsoever they may be. We are astonished today at the monstrous errors held by some of these well-meaning forefathers of ours. Take, for instance, Jonathan Edwards, who doubtless was a wonderful man, of wide influence. He believed in a literal Hell of fire and torture, into which the great majority of humanity were to be cast. He preached eloquently upon the subject. When asked on one occasion whether Christians would not be unhappy in Heaven, knowing that the majority of their friends and relatives were suffering agony in Hell, he replied: “No, we shall be so changed that we shall not suffer in seeing our friends in Hell. We shall look over the battlements of Heaven and see their agony; and then, turning around, we shall praise God the louder that His Justice is made manifest.”

MINDS SADLY PERVERTED

It seems past belief that an intelligent, sincere man could have so perverted an idea of justice. Can any sane mind today see any justice in a God who would create billions of human beings, with powers of feeling, with capabilities of the most acute suffering, who would permit them to be born into the world under conditions of weakness, prone to sin as the sparks to fly upward, surrounded by temptation, beset by evil angels, and who would then declare that if they did not live saintly lives and love supremely the God who thus created them they should be damned to an eternity of torture? Ah, something is radically wrong with the brain of the man who can accept such a creed and worship such a God! Such is not the God of the Bible, but a monstrous Demon. The god that originated such a creed is “the god of this world” the Devil.

No human being would ascribe such a character to any human parent. How, then, can any believe such a monstrous libel upon the character of the God of all grace! How strange that we should ever have been thus trapped by this wicked lie of Satan’s!

Many who have long discarded the creeds of the Dark Ages still profess to believe them, and still retain membership in the denomination which holds one or another of these creeds. No intelligent minister of our day believes these monstrosities of medieval doctrine. We need God’s leading and teaching. The difficulty has been that we have leaned upon the creeds of human tradition, instead of relying upon the Word of God.

THE ROOT OF ALL DOCTRINAL ERROR

Let us see what God says of His Justice. He declares that the penalty pronounced upon man for sin was Death. “The wages of sin is death.” “The soul that sinneth, it shall die.” “In the day that thou eatest thereof, dying, thou shalt die.” (Rom. 6:23; Ezek. 18:4, 20; Gen. 2:17, margin) The entire Scriptures bear out this declaration. Only a few highly figurative statements could be so misinterpreted as to seem to teach otherwise. But when the symbolic character of such passages is recognized, they are seen to be in full harmony with the plain declarations of the Bible.

The pagan doctrines of the immortality of the soul, a trinity of gods, etc., are responsible for the great confusion of Christendom regarding the fundamental doctrines of the Word of God. There is not a word of Scripture for the almost universally accepted idea of the natural immortality of the soul. The Bible declares that man is mortal. How absurd the thought that God would so make a soul that even He could not destroy it under any circumstances, however desirable this might later prove to be! The generally accepted idea is that man has a soul. The Scriptural teaching is that man is a soul. (Gen. 2:7) It is man's physical organism that makes him superior to the brute creation.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE RANSOM

What a marvelous mind must have been possessed by the perfect man Adam before his fall! The measure of the image of God possessed by mankind today is only what remains after the blighting effects of six thousand years of weakness and sin. The perfect Adam, in his Maker's image and likeness, must have been a very wonderful and beautiful specimen of manhood, physically, mentally and morally. The size and the shape of the head, the form of the features, the expression of the face, the poise and the carriage of the body, the shape of the hands, the feet all would proclaim the glorious perfection of the first man, Adam.

This perfect man brought the penalty of death upon his posterity, however, by reason of his disobedience of God's just commands. Therefore the whole Adamic race has been born in a dying condition. All mankind came under sin and death conditions because of one man's disobedience. God provided that only this one man Adam should be condemned to death, and that through him condemnation should come upon all his posterity while they were still in his loins. By this arrangement one man could pay the penalty for all. One man sinned. One Man was to be the Redeemer. 1 Cor. 15:21-23.

We have never heard of anything so wonderful as the Divine economy manifested in the great Divine Plan for human salvation. In this marvelous Plan, covering six thousand years, the salvation of twenty billions of human creatures involved; and yet every feature is easily and is perfectly poised! Justice will not be cheated out of its dues; but Love gains the victory and provides the way out of the difficulty, at the expense of the One through whom the whole Plan is consummated our blessed Lord Jesus Christ. His perfect human life offset Adam's perfect human life; and the whole Adamic race is included, because they were all children of the one sinner, merely sharers by heredity in his sin.

MERCY FINALLY TRIUMPHANT

The Ransom is the very foundation of all God's dealings with the race of mankind. It is even through that Ransom that He is now showing mercy. the Bible assures us that to the Logos, the Word, the Messenger Michael, The Godlike One God made the proposition that by the purchase of the whole race of Adam through His sacrifice He might obtain the honor and glory of Messiah the opportunity of blessing the billions who had been condemned to death in Adam; and that then, as a reward, He should be supremely exalted, even to the Divine nature far above angels, principalities, powers and every name that is named. Heb. 2:9; Phil. 2:8-11.

In God's due time, the Logos laid aside His glorious spirit nature, came to earth as a man, and by the grace of God tasted death for Every Man. By purchasing the forfeited life of Adam. He purchases all who fell in Adam while yet unborn. It is only when we see the nature of man that he is mortal, not immortal and the penalty of sin Death, not an eternity of torture that we begin to see the significance of the death of our Lord Jesus Christ. He "gave Himself a Ransom (Greek, antilutron, a corresponding price) for all, to be testified in due time." 1 Tim. 2:5,6.

For the Church the due time is in the present life. For the world it is during the thousand years of the Reign of Christ. All this is the triumph of Love over Justice. While Justice remains forever inviolate, yet Love is the victor. Mercy rejoiceth against Judgment Justice. Christ and the Church will have the great work of uplifting the world from their degradation and of bringing them up to that full perfection, that image and likeness of God, lost by Father Adam in Eden. Then, when the world shall have been recovered from the Adamic fall all willful sinners having been utterly destroyed in the Second Death all will see the infinite Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power of our great Creator, and bow in loving adoration and praise.

The faithful Church will be associated with our Lord in all His Kingdom glory and honor. In order to be of this class, not only must we be begotten by the Holy Spirit of God, but we must be quickened by it. We must manifest the fruits of that Holy Spirit meekness, gentleness, patience, brotherly kindness, love. Then in the first Resurrection we shall be born of the spirit, and shall share with our Lord this work of Divine Mercy will have been accomplished, through all the varied features of which will be observed operating in full harmony, absolute Love and absolute Justice.

CONSIDER HIM

“Consider him who endured such contradiction of sinners, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds.” Heb. 12:3

[On Wednesday evening, October 11th, 1916, at the Brooklyn Tabernacle, after the Church Activities Committee had read the various reports of the work done during the past quarter, Brother Russell gave a short address to the New York City Congregation, which proved to be his last words to the church in the midst of which he lived and labored. Those words were taken down at the time and are here transcribed for the benefit of the friends. The topic and text were those of the Manna for the week, and were the same as those used on the same evening by classes of the I. B. S. A. the world over.]

There is a natural tendency amongst people to tire of a thing when the novelty wears off. Even the hearing of the truth, strange as it may seem, causes weariness to some after a time. It is the same way with the soldier. It is easy for him to enlist and march forward when the drums are beating and the bands are playing, and enthusiasm runs high; but when the damp, cold weather comes, when ice forms in the trenches and there is no martial music, he is liable to grow weary; and army life does not seem to be nearly so attractive as it appeared at the first. This is true in our spiritual warfare--in fighting the good fight of faith. There are times when all around seem joyous, when the Christian soldiers are marching, and all are stimulated and encouraged; whereas there are times when the clouds hang low and are dark, chilliness surrounds us, ardor is abated, and we are liable to get discouraged. It is partly for this reason that the Lord has directed us to “consider him,” that thereby we might be stimulated and encouraged to press on and to inspire others. He knew just what we would need.

LEST YE BE WEARIED AND FAINT IN YOUR MINDS

The Apostle Paul exhorts us not to forget the assembling of ourselves together, and so much the more as we see the day approaching. Why so? Because “the day” will have its peculiar trials, its difficulties, its attractions in various directions; and the story of the Cross will likely seem old not as new as some things; and consequently we shall need to bear each other up. Because there is danger of becoming luke warm spiritually, it is generally recommended that the Lord’s people meet together; for to do so is stimulating. In proportion as we seek to stir up others in the way by putting them in remembrance, we are thereby reviving our own minds. We can, therefore, see a wisdom in all of God's arrangements with respect to the truth.

I believe that in every congregation there is danger of growing weary in well-doing. Well-doing costs something. It means sacrificing. If you are serving the Lord's cause, you are denying yourself in some way. Unless we have some special love for the Lord and for the truth, we might say, "This is a very tedious work, I am pressed in many other directions, and there are those who are inviting me to see them." So many things come to you, and to us all, that we might consequently be retarded and slacken our efforts. The world, the flesh and the adversary are pressing hard to draw us, not exactly from the prize, but from the narrow way that leads to the prize. They would slacken our zeal and beat our courage down; they would make us faint and cause us to say, "Oh, I am so tired; I cannot do any more!" Doubtless we all have had such experiences. If we get faint in body, we can rest ourselves; but if we get faint in mind, it is more difficult to become refreshed.

WHAT SHALL WE CONSIDER ABOUT HIM

What, then, shall we do, in case we get weary and faint in our minds? The Apostle tells us: "CONSIDER HIM!" Whom? We all know that he is referring to our Lord Jesus, the one great "HIM" in all the whole world. What shall we consider about him? His birth? Yes, that is profitable; but it is not what the Apostle here suggests. His glory and honor? Not that exactly; but rather, how much HE ENDURED WITHOUT GETTING FAINT AND WEARY, without giving up the work which he undertook to do. He undertook to do a certain work, and so have we! In some respects we have undertaken to do the same work that Jesus did. Let us consider him, lest we get weary and faint in following on in his footsteps!

Of course, the world is not exhorted in this text, but merely those who have come into the Lord's family, and have taken up their cross to follow him those who have consecrated themselves to him, those who have made a covenant with the Lord by sacrifice, declaring that they will give all to him in his service that they will follow him at any cost. These are the ones who are exhorted to consider him.

But what about him shall they consider? What he endured without fainting, in carrying out the Father's will. What he endured in the way of contradiction of sinners against himself. This is the very kind of difficulty which we have in our endeavor to carry out the Father's will. If there were no devil, no sinners and no trials, this would be a very pleasant world to go through. It is because we have to swim up-stream, against the current, when almost everything is going in the opposite direction, that we have such a difficult work. Watch the swimmer! He must battle up-stream against the down-flowing current; a moment's relaxation and the current carries him downward. With us there is a natural tendency in ourselves, as well as in the currents of thought and activity about us in the world, to pull us back in the opposite direction from which we are trying to go.

OUR LORD'S LOYALTY AND OBEDIENCE

Let us consider his example, his words; or else we may become faint. There are many reasons why we might become so. One of them is that we might consider that the opposition against us is too great. Jesus had the opposition of all those of national influence in his day. He was continually misrepresented, until finally the slanders culminated in his being called a profane person, one who had spoken blasphemies against God, who had said that he was like God, and was as great as God. This was a part of the charge against him. Although the accusation was not true, nevertheless he endured it, even though he had power to stop it. If he could cast out demons and open the eyes of the blind, then surely he could have done something to change things in his own case. Why, then, did he not do it? Because he was doing the Father's will; and it was the Father's will that he should bear witness to the truth and demonstrate his loyalty in connection with it.

Is it not the same with us? But why does the Father care about our loyalty? Because he is seeking a certain class for a certain purpose. In Jesus' case, he was seeking one to be the Head of the church. In our case, he is selecting those who will be members of the body. He has a great plan that contemplates the overthrow of sin and the blessing of all the families of the earth; and he is now looking for a class who is in sympathy with all his plans and arrangements. He is seeking for those who would rather suffer death than violate his Word, or shrink from doing his will.

This is our glorious position, and we are considering one who never made a mistake in carrying out the Father's will. Yet he suffered as though he had made a great many serious mistakes. He suffered as a disloyal person, although he had always been loyal. The Jews declared that he had no patriotism at all, yet he was loyal to his own nation in every respect. As Jesus said, "They hated me without a cause."

HIS TEMPTATIONS SUBTLE

Turn these things over in your mind! Consider him! This kind of suffering is necessary; for the Father would not be wise in exalting to such a high position any one who was not thoroughly loyal. He could not give even his own son the divine nature without a thorough testing. Our Lord, as a new creature, was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin. He was not tempted as a fallen man or as a father; he was not tempted with liquor, etc. The temptations coming to the new creature are different from those which come to the sinner.

Jesus was tempted to grow weary and faint in his mind. This was one of the ways through which special temptations from Satan were placed before him. Satan told our Lord that he would get rid of these difficulties if he would cooperate with him and would avoid those things which would necessarily and surely come to him if he should continue in the way marked out by Jehovah. Our Lord's Answer--was, "Get thee behind me, Satan!" Another temptation was to show the great power which he had received as a spirit-begotten Son, to use this power either to gratify his own natural appetite or to make a display before the people. So it is with those of us who may wish to do things in a showy way instead of in the humble way marked out for us. We may expect to have the same temptations that our Lord had. Therefore we should be on guard that we may prove loyal to the Father.

CHRIST CALLED TO SACRIFICE— "THE BODY" ALSO TO SACRIFICE

"If we suffer with him, we shall also reign with him." The reason why the Father is so careful in making the selection of the church class, is that they are to reign. He could not take hypocrites or any disloyal ones or even careless ones to be rulers and teachers of the people in the coming kingdom. He would not select those who had not first learned humility before he could use them to teach humility to others. God desires such a company of priests and judges to be associated with his Son for a thousand years in ruling and blessing the world as will prove faithful under all circumstances those in whom he can place absolute confidence, who have been tested and found faithful. This is the reason that he tests and proves during this Gospel age every one whom he will receive for that future work.

The call of the Gospel age is, therefore, one to sacrifice. God does not hide this fact from us. He does not call us to simply stand up and say that we wish to be followers of Jesus. No! Our Lord says, "If any man will be my disciple, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me." There is no deception about the matter. If we have been deceived, it is our own fault. The Old Testament says the same thing: "Gather my saints together unto me; those who have made a covenant with me by sacrifice." There is nothing hidden. Whoever would follow Jesus must prove his faithfulness by his willingness to sacrifice.

In the past, false doctrines confused us; but now "we see Jesus" we see what he accomplished, and how he endured without growing weary or giving up. It makes our course plain when we consider him. We sometimes say that we have not been careful enough in this or that matter, and have consequently made some mistakes. We can often find some fault in ourselves, thus demonstrating that we are partly to blame for our sufferings. But in our Lord's case it was different. He received the slanders, the misrepresentation, and everything else that came against him, without having any fault in him at all. "He was holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners, still he endured. We, though following in his footsteps, have not as much to endure as had the Master.

THE OUTCOME OF OUR FAITHFUL ENDURANCE

We are also to consider the outcome. While the Father let Jesus die on the cross as a malefactor, yet he did not let our Lord go permanently, but kept his promise to raise him from the dead. We have the promise that, as the Father raised Jesus from the dead, so also will he raise those up who are found worthy by being faithful unto death. In raising up Jesus the Father has given us a testimony to his faithfulness. In the case of Jesus, no one had set him an example. It was all by faith with him; none had gone before. With us it is different. Besides, we have not so much to lose as had our Lord. However, if we trust God, he is faithful to keep us and to do what he has promised to raise us up with our Head. Consider what great things God has done for his Son. Consider also that he has promised us a share in our Lord's glory if we be found faithful. It is amazing almost beyond conception! Unless God had made it plain, I fear that I would not be able to receive it. If he had said it but once, I might have doubted it; but since he has stated it over and over again in so many ways as to remove all grounds for doubt, I must believe it. How wonderful it seems!

Consider him! Consider that God has highly exalted him! Consider what a great privilege has been afforded us of walking in his footsteps, especially as our lives are so imperfect, so unsatisfactory even to ourselves, and as life is all that we have to give. What a thought that God will count our little sacrifice as a part of that which Jesus gave! We are to be heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ, "to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed at the last time." Then to think that we are in the last time now! We are right at the close of the age. The new dispensation is opening all around us, and the great majority of the people are so bewildered that they do not know what to make of the wonderful things of our day. "None of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand." (Dan. 12:10) The Lord's true people are the only ones who have a correct understanding of these things.

How carefully the people of God, therefore, should weigh their thoughts and deeds! "Seeing that these [present] things are to be dissolved, what manner of person ought we to be in all holy living and godliness, looking for and earnestly desiring the coming of the day of God!... According to his promise we look for a new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for these things, give diligence that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot and blameless” in his sight. “Ye therefore, beloved, knowing these things beforehand, beware lest, being carried away with the error of the wicked, ye fall from your own steadfastness. But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be the glory both now and forever. Amen.” 2 Pet. 3:13-18

CLOSING EXHORTATION

In view of what we see ahead of us as sharers with Jesus of his glory, honor and immortality, we should be leading holy lives. We should be living in the future rather than in the past. Do not think too much of the past. Let us not live in the past and dwell upon our mistakes and shortcomings, and thus be cast down; but let us believe that “if we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.” (1 John 1:9) And we should have such an appreciation of these mercies and blessings of forgiveness as to show it forth in our conduct.

Let us give heed more and more to the suggestion of our text, and consider him whom the Father has so greatly exalted so highly exalted. Let us remember that he has called us with the same high and heavenly calling and has promised to help us all the way through! If we remember this, we shall cease to be weary and faint and shall become strong in the Lord and in the power of his might; we shall go on from grace to grace, from glory to glory; we shall be transformed by the renewing of our minds, more and more proving what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God. Then, finally, we shall attain unto the glorious things which he has in reservation for those who love him more than parents, or children, or self, or any other person or thing.

*“Hold on thy way with hope unchilled
By faith and not by sight;
And thou shalt own his Word fulfilled—
At eve it shall be light.”*

DOUBTING CHRISTIANS DISHONOR THEIR GOD

Providence, R. I., October 15 -- Pastor Russell was here today and addressed a large audience upon the theme, "Full Assurance of Faith." His discourse was based upon Heb. 10:22—"Let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water." He said in part:

Full assurance of faith is something that every Christian should have; and yet we are all sadly aware that in our day but comparatively few professing Christians have this assurance. The great majority seem to be losing their faith; and, worse than this, they are in many cases losing the very foundation, or basis, for faith. For years the great colleges of Christendom have been undermining faith by undermining the Bible. They do not make an attach upon faith itself; indeed, they all admit that it has its place, and is a glorious quality. But straightway they proceed to do the same work that Thomas Paine and Robert Ingersoll tried to do to undermine confidence in the Bible as the Word of God.

Confidence in the Bible is the very basis of faith. After one has lost his confidence in it as the Word of God, what has he left? He would have merely the vagaries and guesses of Higher Criticism and Evolution. We have very little use for guesses. We have little confidence in fallen flesh. We know that all men are imperfect in every sense of the word, that their judgments are exceedingly fallible. When men undertake to picture a God to their own liking, we have as many gods as there are men.

Looking into the past, we see what many of the noblest minds came to in the way of image-worship, bowing down to some of the worst idols, that could be imagined; for more black misrepresentation can be done by pen and ink or by the printing-press than by making the most hideous idols of the heathen nations. The creeds of Christendom have carved out the worst idol in all the Universe. Yet great men made these creeds men of noble minds. This shows us how little confidence we can have in any theory that men can evolve. We may be sure that if we had been in their places we could not have done any better. We are not finding fault with them. We are finding fault with the real source of the whole matter. This the Apostle Paul declares when he tells us that "the god of this world" has been responsible for this misleading. Satan has done this lest the light of God's goodness should shine into men's hearts. 2 Cor. 4:4-6

BASIS OF FAITH GONE WITH MANY

The Apostle also explains why it is that many Christians cannot see the light of the Gospel of Christ the true Message of salvation. Satan has gotten his bandages upon their eyes, and as a result they cannot see the things of God. The Apostles warned the Church that after their time many would depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of demons. (1 Pet. 2:1,2; 1 Tim. 4:1) We have come to the time when many good, intelligent people including ministers in the various pulpits, professors, theologians, presidents of colleges, etc. confess that they have lost the basis of their faith.

We are not for one moment to suppose that those who have lost confidence in the Bible as the Word of God are wicked people. On the contrary, the majority of them are fine, well-intentioned people. But they are under a delusion. The delusions of the Dark Ages coming in contact now with the full blaze of the New Dispensation just upon us, there is a conflict between the light of our day and the darkness of the past. There is such a clash that everybody sees stars, so to speak. People are astonished, and do not know what to think.

Some are still holding to the Bible, in a sort of blind way, bewildered and uncertain as to their real position, hoping against hope that they will not lose what little faith they have left, afraid to think and afraid to read lest they be cast adrift in an unknown sea. We sympathize with these people. But the fact is that they never have had faith enough to worry about. It was not a well-established faith, a full assurance of faith. On the contrary, it was a blind faith, a kind of credulity. They have hoped that they were of the

Elect; but they had little or no conception of what is meant by election or to what this class were elected. In the light of our day such faith, or rather credulity, is crumbling to pieces.

THE CHRISTIAN'S FIRM FOUNDATION

Yet at this very time when Higher Criticism and Evolution are undermining the foundation of religion, and when nearly all thinking people are losing faith in the Bible as the Word of God, how gracious our Creator had been to those who have retained their faith in His sure Word! The eyes of their understanding are opening more and more widely; and they are coming to see that the Bible is the most wonderful book in the world. Never before have God's people understood the Divine Plan as they do now, in the midst of the turmoil of all the denominations and of the learned men of all lands. Truly we can sing with the poet:

*“How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith in His excellent Word!
What more can He say than to you He hath said,
You who unto Jesus for refuge have fled!”*

We have often wondered whether God did not partially inspire some of these precious hymns that have cheered, comforted and refreshed the Lord’s people in their journey through the wilderness of this world; for they seem to fit so wonderfully our time and our condition, and the real knowledge of God’s Word seemed so misty at the time when many of them were written. The strongest language would not be strong enough today to express the faith, the confidence, the trust, which we have in our god through seeing His real character and His real plan as outlined in His Word. This is full assurance of faith.

There is a vast difference, however, between a full assurance of faith and a full assurance of credulity. Credulity is a readiness to swallow everything and anything, without any real basis for believing, without proof. This is what most people have called faith. But it is not. Faith must have a basis; and the basis must have some intelligent presentation.

When asked, “Why do you believe the Bible?” many people will reply, “My father and my mother believed it; and I was taught to believe it.” When asked as to what is their real basis of faith, they look bewildered, hesitate, and either acknowledge that they have none, or else change the subject of conversation. This is not faith; it is mere credulity. Heathen people could do as well; for their parents and their grandparents believed their heathen books. To really believe the Bible it is necessary that we understand it. That which gives us faith in the Bible is proof that it is the Word of God. To understand it we must understand God’s Plan therein outlined; we must learn rightly to “divide the Word of Truth.” 2 Tim. 2:15.

Higher critics are busy trying to prove that Isaiah never wrote the book of Isaiah, but that it was written by different persons; that Moses never wrote the Pentateuch; that Daniel never wrote the book called by his name. The fact that Jesus and the Apostles quoted from these books and ascribe them to the very authors claimed in the books has no weight whatever.

THE BASIS FOR OUR FAITH

Our confidence in the Bible is based upon the fact that it contains a great Divine Plan, far superior to anything that mortal man could have produced. Show me a watch with the wheels revolving with perfect precision and with perfect relationship to each other, a watch that keeps correct time without variation; and I shall know that some skilful hand, guided by an intelligent mind, made that watch. Such a piece of workmanship never came by chance. The hands did not get on the dial by accident. There was some intelligent power in operation there.

So it is with the Bible. When we find the prophecies of the Old Testament, the types of the Mosaic Law, and the teachings of our Lord Jesus and His Apostles all interlocking, based and dependent one upon another in the most marvelous way, all telling the same story, although written by various men, in various ages, and under various conditions, with Genesis describing the fall of man into sin, with Revelation portraying his recovery from that fall, with each intervening book corroborating both tell me, who made that Plan? No one could convince me that any human beings made it. The very conditions of today, so wonderfully fulfilling the prophecies of the Bible, are amongst the strongest proofs of its Divine inspiration.

AN ARGUMENT WITH AN INFIDEL

Once in early life I had an argument with an infidel, who claimed that “the Bible was written by priests and knaves.” When I asked him, “which set of priests and knaves do you think made it up?” he hesitated; for he had not anticipated that question. Then I suggested that we reason a little on the subject. I showed him that if any of the denominations had made the Bible, they would surely have put into it many things that are not there, and would have left out of it many things that are therein.

For instance, they do not know what to do with the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead. Having a theory that at death people go to Heaven, Purgatory or Hell, they have no need of a resurrection. Yet they know that it is in the Bible. If ever they come across it in their reading, it is a sort of “thorn in the flesh” to them; for it disturbs their peace of mind. Nor do they know what to do with the Judgment Day. They must think that the Judgment is past. Otherwise how could the dead be in Heaven, Hell or Purgatory? Then there is the theory of the Trinity, in which all, practically believe, though not a word of Scripture justifies such a belief.

Surely our Calvinistic friends would not make up the Bible as it is today. Neither would our Arminian friends. The latter would surely leave out all of those texts which speak of an election, of foreordination, of predestination, of making our calling and election sure, of “the very elect,” etc. The former would doubtless leave out some of the texts which tell about free grace; for these do not fit with their idea of election. Of course both would put in something about a Trinity; for all hold that theory as the very essence of faith. The thing which you cannot understand, and which is the most mysterious, is the most important! 1 Cor. 8:6, 7; Eph. 4:4-6

THE BIBLE SIMPLE, REASONABLE

But, dear friends, from the standpoint of itself the Bible is simple; and everything is thoroughly explained, when we get our mental telescope properly adjusted and see the wonderful Plan of God as it is mapped out in His Word. However, no amount of learning or of worldly wisdom or of knowledge will enable one to see this and to have a heart appreciation of it. The deep things of God are revealed only by His Holy Spirit. (1 Cor. 2:10) They are especially clear at this time, because God's due time has come for the full unfolding of His Plan. These deep things are revealed to the faithful, watching children of God, who are walking hand in hand with the Master, seeking in all things to be guided by Him.

Thank God for the Morning light! Thank God that we are living in the time when the path of the just is shining so brightly! For it was to shine more and more unto the perfect Day. (Prov. 4:18) Now the perfect Day is almost here. It is so near that we can see the first rays of its dawning, although before its full glory breaks upon the world the storm clouds will gather dark and gloomy, and soon will let fall "hailstones and coals of fire." But it is merely the darkness that precedes the full dawning.

The creeds formulated during the Dark Ages have greatly injured the whole world. Doubtless many people today are following sin who would, if they had a right knowledge of God, be following after righteousness. Many men have been led to drink, to debauchery and to all sorts of sin simply by reason of not seeing the true God. For any one to see the real God is to love Him. Mankind are made upon that basis. Notwithstanding the six thousand years of the Adamic fall, there is in every man's head unless he be an idiot or in some way deformed that quality of reverence of a Supreme Being and a desire to render worship.

PROFITABLE QUESTIONS FOR GOD'S PEOPLE

The Christian's assurance of faith is based upon the Word of God and the realization that he has taken the various steps which God therein directs. He tells us that by nature we are sinners, that Christ Jesus tasted death for every man, that by and by He will give Restitution to human perfection to whosoever will accept the arrangement which He has made and which is soon to be opened up to all mankind. He tells us, too, that during this Gospel Age there is a Call for those who desire to come out from the world to be a peculiar people unto Him, a Royal Priesthood, a holy nation, zealous of good works, zealous of everything that is God's will, and ready to lay down their lives in the doing of it. Have you heard and accepted this Call?

To those Christians who do not have that full assurance regarding their standing with the Lord which they wish to have, and which is their privilege, we would suggest that they ask themselves the following questions:

Have I forsaken sin and accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as my personal Redeemer? Have I made a full consecration of myself to God through Christ, giving Him my time, my means, my all, surrendering myself fully to His keeping, to be henceforth guided by His Holy Spirit in all things as His will is made clear to me through His Word?

As I thus gave myself to the Lord, did I realize that I am still imperfect, and that my standing before God is only in Christ? Did I realize that thus He imputed, or counted, to me the perfection which He would otherwise give me in the next Age, in order that now I might lay it down in sacrifice with Jesus, sharing His sufferings and death that I might also share His glory, when His Kingdom is set up for the blessing of the world?

As the result of my consecration to the Lord, am I able, to some extent at least, to grasp spiritual things? Do they appeal to me? Am I gradually attaining a holy mind, a holy disposition? Do I desire above all things to do God's will, and is my holy mind bearing fruitage to the Lord's praise so that others can see it? Am I gradually growing more meek, more gentle, more patient, more long-suffering, more kind and loving? Is my heart growing broader, deeper and more sympathetic?

Whoever can say "Yes!" to these questions, even though keenly realizing, as all God's children should, that he has many imperfections, may have full assurance of faith that he is a child of God in full standing, that the Father's smile of approval is upon him, and that if he continues thus to develop in the likeness of Christ he will inherit the Kingdom as a joint-heir with Christ Jesus our Lord.

It is our Heavenly Father's will that we have this full assurance, that thus we may be kept in perfect peace of heart, and may demonstrate our trust in Him and in His precious promises, despite our sufferings for righteousness' sake. But let us never suffer as busy-bodies in other men's matters. Yet if we suffer as Christians, let us glorify God on this behalf. 1 Pet. 4:15,16.

The Final Truth-Message Society—FORWARD by Menta Sturgeon

PASTOR RUSSELL'S LAST MESSAGE

Within these quiet borders you will find the last, sweet words spoken to the Church by that faithful Pastor whom you so sincerely loved. Receive them in the Lord in this simple way as a message from him, and accept them in this humble form as evidently his will. In so doing, you will receive a blessing from our Unseen yet ever-present Lord and Head, to Whom the thanks will be due.

Our dear Brother Russell had served the church faithfully for more than forty years during that period in the history of the church which was specially characterized by the spirit of brotherly love, and since the Harvest was now rapidly drawing to a close when the first work of the new age would be due to begin, within the next ten days he was going to lay aside his harvest clothes, in advance of those he was leaving behind to finish up the last few things remaining to be done before the Gospel Age would forever end, but, before doing so, he was to speak his last words to the church he loved so well, and these words are now sent to you in love and with prayer.

He had just attended the Convention held at Dallas, Texas, on Sunday, October 22nd, 1916, and had reached Galveston, after a night's ride on the train, weary and worn, and hardly able to proceed much farther. The harvest work had always made deep inroads upon his physical strength, but, at this crisis, it was doing so more than ever. One could easily see him passing away with the harness on. He had often been weary, but now, more so, and soon he would rest from his labors.

Upon his arrival in Galveston, Texas, on Monday morning, October 23rd, 1916, loving friends were present to see that he was properly cared for in the Hotel Galvez, so beautifully located on the bank of the Gulf of Mexico. His apartment overlooked the rhythmic waters of the deep blue sea. Presently, he was alone, and in the quiet recess of a comfortable environment, the faithful servant, weak and worn, drew from his pocket his fountain pen, and wrote these words:

“WHEN YE SEE THESE THINGS begin to come to pass, then lift up your heads, and rejoice, knowing that your deliverance draweth nigh.”

*“Then let your songs abound,
And every tear be dried;
We’re travelling through Immanuel’s ground,
To fairer prospects nigh.”*

This was to be the basis of his last message, and his mind was becoming so weak that it was written down beforehand, lest he should forget it at the time appointed for its delivery. We have these words in his own handwriting, and they carry a special blessing as we now gaze upon them.

Further down the Sea-Wall Boulevard along the Gulf front than the Hotel Galvez, in an Auditorium on the second floor, facing the beautiful Gulf, a company of the Lord’s people had gathered for the purpose of hearing this aged man of God deliver his message. They had waited patiently upon the Lord, and now they were not to be disappointed. Wrapped in the spirit of the Lord he came, in the presence of the Lord he spoke, and these words of heavenly benediction are herewith sent to you in the name of our blessed Lord Jesus.

They proved to be his last words for the church, and you have them as a gift of love.

*“TRUTH, like the light, is pure;
And no device to rob it of its glory,
Or drag it down base purposes to serve,
Can e’er succeed. Ah, no! its heav’nly glory Shall in due time the universe pervade.”*

PASTOR RUSSELL’S LAST MESSAGE

“And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh.” Luke 21; 28.

Jesus looking down to our day, said, “When ye see these things begin to come to pass, then lift up your heads, and rejoice knowing that your deliverance draweth nigh.”

There is a blessed thought here, that the Master knew about us. He knew that the disciples of that day would never see these things, so He was thinking about us of this day. What a blessing to know that God knows all about us, all about our difficulties, and has planned our deliverance which is now so near! He took notice of us down here, and, knowing that we would have much opposition, and people would think of us as calamity howlers when we would call their attention to the time of trouble, and would say, you are pessimists to talk about the trouble to come, you are off in your minds, deranged a little, and that we would not have courage to lift our heads very high, He caused the words of our text to be written down beforehand for our comfort, so that we have quietly gone along while all the enlightened minds and all the Doctors of Divinity, and preachers as well, said “Foolishness we are going to convert the world, and the world is pretty nearly converted now.” But we knew that the Master had said differently, and as enlightened Bible Students, we had God’s Word for it that the time of trouble would come and that the Kingdom of Heaven would be established in the midst of it. We knew that these kingdoms were not God’s kingdom in the world, and that that which calls itself Christendom, is not so. We had God’s Word for it, and we were holding fast to the sure Word of the Lord. Therefore, we have not been discouraged. When we knew that the Gentile Times would end somewhere about 1914, we talked about it, and have done so for the last 40 years. We have been talking about the end of the age, of the end of the Gentile Times, the time when the present kingdoms would all fall down, and it required some courage to stand in the face of everything else, and against all the people, and learned minds of our day. We believed God although everything was going in the other direction. We said the world was far from being converted, although they said it was nearly converted. But now, we see, and the whole world is seeing, especially we of America who can look over with calmness of mind, and can see that there is a lack of any confidence that these are kingdoms of God, for they are fighting like demons with all manner of devices trying to blow each other off the face of the earth and of the sea. Twelve million shells costing from $16 to $350 a piece were thrown in preparation for a single attack. Supposing only one-tenth were thrown, still it would be awful that one Christian should throw such stuff against another Christian. They call themselves Christians, and each claiming to be Christians and saying each other is a Christian nation. Confidence is lacking everywhere that any of these are Christian nations. They have not the spirit of Christ. They have no meekness, but are boasters of what they will do with those Germans, etc. Both sides boast of what they will do. Gentleness! Where is the gentleness in raining down fire upon each other and blowing each other up? How much patience do they have, or brotherly kindness, or love? There is not a sign of any of these fruits of the Holy Spirit among them not a sign of any of these fruits anywhere among these contending nations. We see just the contrary; the spirit of the Adversary, anger, malice, hatred, envy, strife, bitterness works of the flesh and of the devil, St. Paul and St. Peter say, and all the Bible says.

The time has come when you and I may lift up our heads a little, not with pride and boastfulness, and say, we did or did not do so and so. Oh, no! the spirit of the Lord is always to be a meek and quiet spirit, and always be humble under all circumstances. We feel sorry for those who are in this great struggle. How glad we would be to bring the views to the world which the Lord says we will bring to the world shortly, only His time has not yet come. They must learn a lesson that will last them throughout all eternity, for all future time, what all this spirit of pride and anger and malice lead to. They must see the culmination of it all in that time of trouble, so terrible as to be greater than any trouble since there was a nation. They must! It is God's arrangement. They must have learned the lesson before He will pour out the blessing. He is waiting, and has been gathering the church for this very purpose of blessing all these people. We will rejoice in the time when the spirit of the Lord will be poured out upon all flesh helping them.

But now is the time when Jesus said to lift up your heads, when you see these things begin to come to pass. It may be two, or three, or more years, I cannot say. I will not prophesy. I know nothing beyond 1914. It is not for us to prophesy, but to await God's time and see His salvation for ourselves. We see these things now beginning to come to pass. Lift up your heads, says Jesus. Rejoice; not at their suffering. Nothing could be further from the spirit of our Master than that we should rejoice because of the sufferings of any, but rejoice because our deliverance draweth nigh. How glad we will be to pass beyond the veil! How glad all of us will be to pass beyond and hear the Master say, "Well done, good and faithful servant. You have been faithful over a few things not many I will make you ruler over many things." No one can accomplish anything great in this world. We have merely tried to stand loyal to the Captain of our salvation, and to God and the principles of His character which represent Him. We have tried to lift up the Royal Banner and show men the right way. We have not done much, or been very successful and accomplished much in the world. He told us that darkness would hate the light, and would not come to the light, and we would have to suffer for righteousness sake. We have found it so. Any sufferings for righteousness sake we may have had will be so many marks in our favor. Along this line the Apostle said, "I bear about in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ." He was talking about slaves. He declared that he, himself, was a bond slave of the Lord Jesus Christ. It was the custom that slaves should be branded the same as pack mules when they take them to the army. So, they would mark the slave. Wherever you find him, bring him to his master. So the Apostle Paul says, "I bear about in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." I am His slave, a marked slave.

What were these marks? They were the stripes that he bore. "Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep; in journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren; in weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. Besides those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches." His back was lacerated with stripes until the blood flowed, and the wounds were washed in salt water, and the Apostle was glorying in these things. In any way that we can suffer for righteousness sake there is something in which to glory. "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you: But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that, when His glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy.... If any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God on this behalf." "But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil-doer, or as a busybody in other men's matters" put these all away. But, if we suffer as Christians, no matter where, from our feelings being lacerated, or our bodies, these marks will by and by be cause for rejoicing, the Lord will say, You have been faithful over a few things, I will make you a ruler over many things. Every mark will be something that we will rejoice in. These marks will indicate the amount or degree of our glory. How is this? This suffering will indicate faithfulness on your part and mine. The Lord is going to glorify His people in proportion to their faithfulness. The more faithful you are, the more you will suffer for the truth, or for righteousness sake. We are not to feel hard toward them for doing evil against us. We are to remember that they are blinded by the God of this world.—" They know not what they do," St. Peter said, about those who crucified the Lord, on the day of Pentecost, addressing the Jews, "I wot brethren that in ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers, for if they had known, they would not have crucified the Prince of life." If they had known, they would not have persecuted any of the body of Christ. The world does not know the followers of Jesus. The Apostle, therefore, says, "The world knoweth us not, even as it knew Him not."

Never mind these things in the past. Lift up your heads, and rejoice! Rejoice that the time is so near when the suffering will be over, and our opportunity for blessing all the families of the earth will have come. What a glorious future we have! The Apostle calls it an inheritance. Everybody is anxious to enter upon their inheritance. The Apostle says we have an inheritance reserved in heaven for us, ready to be revealed in the last time. It is now the last time, and it is ready to be revealed. When you see these things, they are signs that the kingdom is soon to be set up, your blessing is nigh, and the things promised are about to be accomplished these things you have believed in are about to be fulfilled therefore, rejoice! This reminds me of the words of the poet,

*"Then let our songs abound,
And every tear be dried,
We're travelling through Immanuel's ground
To fairer prospects nigh."*

They are very true. We are travelling through Immanuel's ground. The whole world belongs to Immanuel, our Lord, the whole earth, because He has already died. As a perfect man who kept the law, He had a right to the earth. Whoever would keep the law would be the one who would inherit all things. He, therefore, merited it because He kept the law perfectly. This was the divine arrangement. If He had not died at all, He would be the owner of the earth. So then, this is Immanuel's ground. Everything is His. When we are His, all things are ours. "All things are for your sakes, for ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's." Everywhere it all belongs to our Lord. Jesus has not yet applied the ransom-price on behalf of the world, but, there is a difference between the world and the earth. He did not need to give His life to become the owner of the earth. By keeping the law He became the owner of the earth. But the merit of His sacrifice was necessary to purchase the world in due time. The imputation of that merit was necessary during this age that we might be acceptable to the Father and be received into His family by the begetting of His spirit to be sons of God. All this He has done through the imputation which He has in the Father's hands as a deposit; and this He is about to apply for the world of mankind, and all the children of Adam, in a short time. He is about to purchase the world of mankind, but the right to the earth He has had ever since He proved Himself able to keep the law. That is one of the reasons that restitution, so far as the earth is concerned, can begin before such blessings come to the world of mankind. Restitution has been going on since 1874, especially since entering the seventh great day. He had a right to bring these restitution blessings to the earth even before He applies the merit for the world of mankind.

We need not hold our heads down. Others are holding down their heads. We want them to do so because we know that unless their heads and hearts be down they will never be ready to receive the blessings that will come from the Lord to the world of mankind. We know this is necessary, and so the Apostle says, "Humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time." The world must learn to humble itself, the same as we have. They need to look away from self and look to the Lord for every blessing. They have not learned this, yet. They are still boastful. Some great Professors tell us that they can get along without God, that everything will go along all right without Him. But they will have quite a different idea by the time the trouble is past. They will say, "Oh, God, have you forgotten the world?" when everything is going to ruin and wreck. They will call upon the Lord and He will hear them and deliver them. We see they will. We would like to give them the blessings right away, but they are not ready, and so He will not give it to them, since giving it prematurely would be an injury to them. So, let our tears be dried, and let us fill our hearts with songs of praise to Him who has called us out of darkness into His marvellous light!

A closing word. I find that many in the world, and some Christian people who have not seen with us in the past, are becoming much more reasonable, and are thinking seriously. I am told that many of the ministerial conferences are studying about what the Scripture Studies say about 1914 and the time of trouble, and they are wondering if there is not some truth in it. They are wondering a whole lot of them. It will do them good. Not only ministers, but thinking people generally who have not had their minds so thoroughly perverted by false theories. The people are waking up. I find them on the trains, and everywhere. People come to me on the train and say, "Is this Pastor Russell? I have been reading your sermons, have seen your picture, and am glad to meet you." It shows they are interested.

In Chicago on our last trip, while passing through the railroad station after purchasing a ticket, a lady with her daughter came up to me, and said, "This is Pastor Russell. We know you very well. We used to live in Pittsburgh when you did." (I did not know them.) I inquired, "Are you a Bible Student?" "No, but our sister was a Bible student." "Are you interested in the Bible?" "Yes, especially since the great trouble came on in connection with the war. We saw it then, that it was exactly what we had been told about it, and we have been interested ever since." "Have you given your heart to the Lord?" I asked. "Not yet, but I am thinking about it," she replied. "Don't think too long," said I, "if you want to have a part in the great blessing, if you want to have a share in all the good things which He has now for those who love Him more than friends, houses, etc." She said again, "We are thinking about it, and are going to think about it very seriously."

Another said, "Brother Russell, in our town, and a small town at that, we recently had an experience in a Methodist Bible class, wherein the whole class stood against the teacher on a certain point, and the teacher said, 'we took Pastor Russell's view of the matter.' All were on our side except the teacher. Similarly, in many of the little towns such things are going on.

I believe people are thinking, and are remembering that they have gotten some impressions somewhere about these things. All that we desire now, is that all of the people of the Lord shall come to the knowledge of the present truth, the same as we have. We are not expecting the world to come to this knowledge now, but all of the people of God will appreciate it, even as others have. We wish them to have a share in this precious truth, and bid them God-speed in this connection, Even worldly people who have not thought of consecrating themselves to the Lord they say, I don't believe in that doctrine of eternal torment, anyway; I believe what you teach about God's love must be the right thing." It commends itself to the natural mind.

THEN, LET OUR TEARS BE DRIED, AND FILL OUR MOUTHS WITH PRAISE; AND LET US SHOW FORTH HIS PRAISES WHO HAS CALLED US OUT OF DARKNESS INTO HIS MARVELLOUS LIGHT PATIENTLY, MEEKLY, LOVINGLY, HUMBLY!

12:15 P. M. Monday, October 23rd, 1916. Auditorium Overlooking Gulf of Mexico. Second floor, Galveston, Texas.

These were the last words spoken by that faithful man of God, C. T. Russell, directly to the church. His words at Los Angeles the following Sunday were applicable to that church alone. They remind us of the beautiful words of the poet:

3H866

A LIFE WELL SPENT

*"Softly, oh softly, the years have swept by thee,
Touching thee gently with tenderest care;
Sorrow and death they have often brought nigh thee,
Yet have they left thee but beauty to wear;
Growing old gracefully,
Gracefully fair.*

*Far from the storms that are lashing the ocean,
Nearer each day to the pleasant home-light;
Far from the waves that are big with commotion,
Under full sail and the harbor in sight;
Growing old cheerfully,
Cheerful and bright.*

*Past all the winds that were adverse and chilling,
Past all the islands that lured thee to rest;
Past all the currents that urged thee unwilling,
Far from thy course to the home of the blest;
Growing old peacefully,
Peaceful and blest.*

*Never a feeling of envy and sorrow
When the bright faces of children are seen;
Never a year from the young wouldst thou borrow—
Thou dost remember what liest between;
Growing old willingly,
Thankful, serene.*

*Rich in a faith that hath grown with thy years;
Rich in a love that grew from and above it,
Soothing thy sorrows and hushing thy fears;
Growing old wealthily,
Loving and dear.*

*Hearts at the sound of thy coming are lightened, Ready and willing thy hand to relieve;
Many a face at thy kind word hath brightened—
“It is more blessed to give than receive.”
Growing old happily,
Ceasing to grieve.*

*Eyes that grow dim to the earth and its glory
Have a sweet recompense youth cannot know;
Ears that grow dull to the earth and its story
Drink in the songs that from Paradise flow;
Growing old graciously,
PURER THAN SNOW.”*

AN AFTERWORD

You have now finished reading, with interest and profit, we trust, the last message of our faithful Pastor to the last members of the Body of Christ still remaining in the flesh. We wish to be true to his memory and endeavor to follow in the foot-steps of Jesus as he so earnestly taught and exemplified. We believe that he is now with the Lord, like Him since he has seen Him face to face, and is at present engaged in the work of the Kingdom together with the Holy Apostles and other Overcomers who are rejoicing in sharing together the glories of the first resurrection. Soon, we, too, if faithful, shall have our share in the same. Truly, we are now having our share in the work of the Kingdom on this side of the veil, and it is glorious, but we are hoping to have our full share on the other side within the next two years when the sowing work for the first crop on this side will be complete. To make sure of this, it would seem to be part of wisdom, to note, particularly, the three things he pointed out as constituting the last activities of the Little Flock on this side of the veil. They are as follows: 1. The writing of the seventh volume, 2. The Smiting of the river Jordan, 3. The payment of the penny.

Brother Russell evidently had the mind of the Lord on these matters, since the book he indicated we were to expect is now in existence, the penny is being paid, and the smiting of the Jordan is in progress. He did not leave us in the dark concerning these important matters. He gave us wise counsel. We gave heed to it, and are consequently “joyful in glory” and singing aloud upon our beds. We find ourselves rejoicing in the Lord all the day long. He taught us to expect a harmonized treatment of the Book of Revelation which would be the comfort and encouragement of the Saints until they have finished their course. We were taught to expect a plan that would harmonize the Apocalypse the same as the Plan of the Ages did the Bible. This plan or key was to be in harmony with and the outgrowth of, The Divine Plan of the Ages. The Lord has now rewarded those who have waited patiently upon Him, and granted to them the desires of their hearts. In doing this, He has given them their Penny, and also provided a way and time wherein they might have their share in the Smiting of the Jordan.

You may have already been “sealed with the seal of the living God” by having an accurate knowledge of The Divine Plan of the Ages, which came to you from the Lord, by the Holy Spirit, through His faithful servant. You now have the privilege, for a short time, of “Standing on Mount Zion with the Lamb” and having the Father’s name written in your forehead by the Holy Spirit. This will come from an accurate knowledge of the plan that harmonizes the Book of Revelation.

Many of the friends now have this Treatise, and are consequently singing, “A new song before the Throne,” they are “harping with their harps.” In a final sense the Word of the Lord is now fulfilling, “Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear My voice, and open the door, I will come in to Him, and will sup with Him, and He with Me.” This is constituting The Last Supper. The one who was privileged to be the companion of Brother Russell on his last trip is loaning, giving away, selling and otherwise distributing “A TREATISE ON THE REVELATION,” and would be glad to serve you with one if you so desire. In this way he is endeavoring to fulfill his vow to the Lord made, under the most solemn conditions, on that last memorable journey. It was after this manner, Brother Russell had died on the rapidly moving through-train near Pampa, and he and his companion left that train at Waynoka, having reached that point about seven o’clock on the evening of October 31st, 1916. It was a sad, unusual scene. It seemed that the whole town had gathered at the railroad station because they had heard that Pastor Russell’s body was to be taken from the train at that point. When several large, strong men lifted his body, into the basket for the dead and carried him out, the night had fallen, and we were soon found in the rear of the furniture store where the embalming and preparation for continuance of our journey were to take place. All through that night, and until the early morning of the next day, did the silent and sad work continue. He had fallen into the hands of the undertaker, but was soon to be released. Friends from a town about 25 miles distant arrived in their auto at midnight, and helped us out. At 3:00 o’clock in the morning we took him away in their auto to the train, and, after thanking and saying good-bye to them, the silent-partner with his companion were once more on the move en route for Kansas City. How changed and solemn everything seemed! The two who had journeyed so closely together all the way were now separated. Brother Russell was now riding in the baggage-car in perfect peace, whereas his companion was left alone in the small apartment of the Pullman car, formerly occupied by the two of them, to meditate and pray. There was no time for sleep there. The mind and heart were too active. This brother who loved Brother Russell to the very end, and who loved him still, was seated alone on the couch in the little room, toward four o'clock in the morning, gazing upon the place in the berth now made vacant by the absence of that dear and loving man. His thoughts were upon the absent one. All the incidents of this last journey together were reviewed, the heart-strings were stretched to the limit, and while the mind of the thoughtful was permitted with heavenly views and the heart was moved with holy emotions, a solemn resolution, in the presence of the Lamb, and before the Throne, was made, which found mental expression in these then unwritten words: "By the grace of God, I will endeavor to be just as true and loyal to Brother Russell now that he has gone, as I had been to him while still in the flesh." At that time I had but little appreciation of the depths of the meaning of this resolution as it would afterwards be worked out in experience. The spirit of this resolution has been the moving force behind my movements ever since, and indeed it has taken the grace of God to carry it out. 'Tis true, that, it has been imperfectly done; nevertheless, it has been done: with the result that I find myself practically separated from everything to which our dear Pastor died on the last day of October, 1916. The Lord is with me, and has been with me all the way through, although I am far away from all others out in the pine woods of Maine, on the shores of the beautiful Messalonskee Lake, within the hallowed confines of a blessed little camp, dedicated to the Lord, and equipped with all the things necessary for study, meditation, prayer and communion.

Light upon the book of Revelation has constituted the burden of my prayer during these quiet days upon the farm. This light has now come to me in this sacred spot. It is found in "A Treatise on the Revelation" by Brother Carl W. Olson of Minneapolis, Minnesota, which carries with it the sweet and blessed influences of the Holy Spirit, which permeate every page.

By doing everything in my power to spread this book among the friends for their comfort and encouragement, I am conscious of being in harmony with Brother Russell's wishes, and in line with loyalty to him as the Lord's servant, and consequently of loyalty and whole-hearted devotion to the Heavenly Father and His Dear Son, in connection with the best and highest interests of His people. TO HIM BE THE GLORY, HONOR, MAJESTY AND POWER, NOW AND EVERMORE. Please call to mind, loved one, some of the words of the first composition in Poems of Dawn words so appropriate, so precious and true:

*GREAT TRUTHS are dearly bought.
The common truth,
Such as men give and take from day to day,
Comes in the common walk of easy life,
Blown by the careless wind across our way.*

*GREAT TRUTHS are dearly won; not found by chance,
Nor wafted on the breath of summer dream;
But grasped in the great struggle of the soul,
Hard buffeting with adverse wind and stream.*

*TRUTH springs like harvest from the well-ploughed fields,
Rewarding patient toil, and faith, and zeal.
TO THOSE THUS SEEKING HER, she ever yields
Her richest treasures for their lasting weal."*

“May the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God, and communion of the Holy Spirit, be with you all! Amen.” Your brother in the Lord, by grace divine, Companion in the tribulation and patience of Jesus,

IS JESUS CHRIST YOUR ADVOCATE WITH GOD?

Pastor Russell is here today, in attendance upon the I. B. S. A. Convention. His address to the Bible Students was based upon 1 John 2:1—“We have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous.” He said:

For some time we have been deeply impressed with the thought that no one can have a proper understanding and appreciation of the Plan of God unless he has taken the steps of repentance from sin, of faith in Christ as his atoning Sacrifice, and of full consecration to God. We have noted that many who express great appreciation of God’s wonderful Plan of Salvation still neglect or postpone the giving of themselves to God. This is a serious mistake. When one sees that he is a sinner, the first thing that he should do is to repent of his sins and accept Christ as his Savior. Then he should dedicate his life to God, yielding up his will to be guided thenceforth by the Divine will. After these steps have been taken, the individual is for the first time able to have a heart appreciation of Heavenly things.

One who is living in unrepented of sin is in no condition to appreciate the deep things of God; for Jehovah has declared that “none of the wicked shall understand,” but only the Heavenly wise. (Dan. 12:10.) God does not wish these glorious things to be understood by the wicked or even by those who prefer earthly things. The Lord is not trying now to break men’s hearts. The very reverse is true. It is His design to bind up the broken-hearted those whose hearts are already broken by the experiences of life. The Message of God speaks peace to those who are looking to Him and seeking for the righteousness which He will provide.

Some, we think, have made a great mistake in thinking that the Gospel is a hammer wherewith to break men's hearts. We believe that the Devil does a great deal of the breaking of hearts, but we know of no commission from the Lord for His people to do so. In the great Time of Trouble, even now coming upon the world, many hard hearts will be broken because of conditions resulting from man's selfishness and sin. This breaking up of men's hearts will do them good, bringing them into a humble, teachable condition where the Voice of God may be heard. During the incoming Age, the Lord will take away the stoniness of heart from mankind and will give them hearts of flesh. Instead of being callous and selfish, men's hearts will gradually become soft, tender, kind, gentle. Ezek. 11:19; 36:26

GOSPEL CALL FOR MEEK ONLY

But now, in advance of the Messianic Kingdom, God is seeking those whose hearts are already in a receptive attitude. On one occasion our Lord Jesus quoted, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me (Christ), because He hath anointed Me to preach Good Tidings to the meek; He hath sent Me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound." (Isa. 61:1-3.) This is the Divine commission for the Gospel Age. So we are especially to seek for the meek, the teachable. The proud and haughty are not in the heart attitude to be blessed by the Gospel Message. The Lord is not looking for such characters to compose the Body of Christ. He will deal with them later.

This is an important point to be borne mind by those who desire to present the Truth to others. If, when the Message is being presented, any attend who have not the hearing ear, it will bear no fruit in them. But as Christian people we should know how to deal with such. We should give them the thought that they will not see the Divine Plan clearly unless they fully consecrate themselves to God and receive the gift of the Holy Spirit; for unless one becomes a New Creature in Christ he will never understand the Divine Plan. 2 Cor. 5:17; 1 Cor. 2:14

But if the Lord's ambassadors find one who realizes that he is a sinner weary of sin, and who feels his need of a strong Burden-bearer, a Savior, let them remind him of the Master's words, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden and I will give you rest." Point him to the right path, and say, "This is the way; walk in it." Show him the steps which he must take to become a disciple of Christ. The step of turning from sin is sometimes spoken of as conversion, and it is a conversion to some extent. Whoever seeks to draw near to God will seek to leave sin. Whoever continues to live in sin wishes to be far from God.

The repentant one must not only turn from sin, but must accept the Lord Jesus Christ as his Savior. He must turn fully to God and give himself, with all that he has or hopes to have, to the Lord in entire surrender. He must renounce his human nature to be a joint-sacrificer with the Lord Jesus, in order that he may be begotten to the new spiritual nature, to be thenceforth a New Creature in Christ. Then our Lord Jesus becomes his Advocate. He receives the robe of Christ's imputed righteousness, covering all his imperfections.

THE WORK OF THE ADVOCATE

An advocate is one who pleads the cause of another, standing as his representative. The word is used as a synonym of the word attorney, lawyer, a representative of a court of law. All mankind, represented in Father Adam, stood before the Divine Court of the Universe. Father Adam was on trial, and was sentenced to death. He was a sinner, and all of his posterity have been born in a sin and death condition. If any of the Adamic race would now come back to the Divine Court and ask that as far as he was concerned the record of sin be blotted out, the great Court of Heaven would say to him, "We cannot receive you; for We do not receive sinners. The only way to approach Us is through the Advocate whom we have appointed Jesus Christ, the Righteous."

Our text says, "We (the Church) have an Advocate with the father." Our Lord Jesus Christ became the Advocate of the Church after His resurrection, when He ascended on High and appeared in the presence of God for His followers. (Heb. 9:24) This word "appeared" is a legal term. A lawyer appears for his client when he goes into court and gives his name as his client's representative. Thenceforth the court refers to the lawyer anything that it has to say regarding that particular case. When our Lord ascended on High, He appeared in the Divine Presence for His Church, not for the world. The world wishes to forget God, having no hope and busy with its own affairs. Furthermore, Satan has so blinded the majority of mankind that they do not desire to have an Advocate with the Father. Only a few feel their need of an Advocate those who desire to come into fellowship with God.

Our Lord Jesus appeared for the whole Church at once; for this was the Divine arrangement. In His wisdom God foreknew just what He would do. He had foreordained the Call of the Gospel Church, the number of the Elect and the character which they must attain. They must become copies of His dear Son. They must become living sacrifices, holy, desirous of pleasing God.

(Rom. 8:28,29, 30; 12:1) The work of the entire Gospel Age is the finding of this class; and at the very beginning of the Age Christ Jesus appeared in the Heavenly Court as the Advocate for all who would come to the Father through Him. There He made a presentation of His sacrificial merit to the Heavenly Father on behalf of the Church. He advocates our cause by imputing to us the merit of His sacrifice, thus making us presentable in the Father's presence and acceptable as sons of God. John 1: 12; 1 John 3:2

Because of this advocacy those who have offered themselves in full consecration to God have, through Jesus Christ, received the Holy Spirit and have been begotten as New Creatures. As such they still need their Advocate; for they cannot do the things that they would cannot fully control the imperfections of the flesh. Hence they need the Throne of Grace and an Advocate through whom they may maintain their relationship with the Father; for although our Advocate cancelled all sins and weaknesses resulting from Adam's sin, yet there are daily trespasses, daily shortcomings, for which we must daily ask forgiveness.

EXPERIENCES IN THE NARROW WAY

From the moment that one who has forsaken sin, accepted Christ as his Redeemer and presented himself to God in full consecration, the old nature is reckoned dead and the New Creature is begotten of the Holy Spirit. Thenceforth his human body is counted as the property of the New Creature, and is to be quickened, energized, by the Holy Spirit of God, in order to serve the interests of the new nature. The natural tendencies must now be crucified, and the affections and aspirations trained Heavenward. This will be a continuous work until the death of the human body. But grace and help are furnished by the Lord, through study of the Word of God, through daily providences in life, through prayer, and often through the helpful ministrations of the brethren. Prunings and disciplinings will be applied by the Lord, in order that the character may be developed and crystallized, and thus the New Creature made ready for the Kingdom.

Our ability as New Creatures to endure faithfully is in proportion to our appreciation of the Heavenly things. When first we came into Christ, we saw only in a measure. We could suffer somewhat; we could sacrifice a little. God kindly veiled our eyes to an extent until we had grown stronger. Gradually He showed us more and more what was comprehended in our consecration. He showed us a little more that we could do for Him. As we followed the light, it grew brighter. Faithfulness, obedience, light and knowledge kept pace with each other.

The Christian walk is a path that "shines more and more unto the perfect Day." (Prov. 4:18) It is a path that indeed shows more and more the sufferings with Christ, but not necessarily more of unhappiness. Quite the reverse. Instead of meaning unhappiness to the true child of God, it means great joy; for the sufferings of Christ participated in by His people bring the highest and sweetest joy. As the Apostle declared, we rejoice in tribulation. We recall how he learned to rejoice in tribulation himself. In the prison at Philippi, with their backs bleeding from the scourge, with their feet fast in the stocks, St. Paul and Silas could rejoice and sing praises to the Lord because they were accounted worthy to suffer for Christ's sake. Acts 16:23-25; Rom. 5:1-5

CUTTING AND POLISHING OF JEWELS

The Apostle Peter, who also rejoiced in his sufferings for Christ, says that when severe experiences come upon us for Christ's sake we should remember that "the Spirit of glory and of God resteth upon us." (1 Pet. 4:12-16) We are assured that in proportion as we are found faithful, and worthy to suffer for Christ's sake, we may expect a heavier, richer weight of glory in the future. So this matter of suffering with Christ in the flesh is something that the Christian can appreciate and enjoy; for it is a witness of the Spirit that we belong to Christ. Rom. 8:16-18

In His Word the Lord gives us a picture of the experiences of the Church. He tells us that we are His jewels, now being made ready to be mounted. When His jewels are all gathered and placed in the Kingdom, they are to be a royal diadem in His hand. (Mal. 3:16,17; Isa. 62:1-3) If we are the Lord's jewels, taken from the earth to be prepared as precious gems, we may expect to receive the trials, and tribulations necessary to this end. A jewel that is uncut and unpolished is worth but little; that is to say, it would have no value were it to remain uncut. The real value is brought forth in the cutting and polishing. So the Lord gives His children, His jewels, the necessary cutting and polishing to enable them to reflect the glorious light of His goodness by and by.

A small diamond can be cut more easily, and requires less polishing, than a large diamond. The larger the diamond, the more work must be put upon it and the greater its value; and the more gloriously will it show forth the skill of the hand that prepared it. So let us hope, dear brethren, that we may be large jewels in the Lord's hands, that we may be accounted worthy of a good deal of cutting and polishing, that by His grace

"We may have a glorious part When grace hath well refined our heart."

THE JEWELS SOON TO BE MOUNTED

We are instructed in the Lord's Word that when all the jewels are ready, Jehovah will "make up" His jewels. When a jeweler wishes to arrange a gorgeous collection of precious stones into a coronet, he selects with great care the stones he wishes to use, and arranges them in their places, deciding the relative position of each of the others, in order that each will shed upon the others more or less of beauty. This is called making up the jewels. This well illustrates what the Lord is doing.

Throughout the entire Gospel Age God has been gathering out from the world a select class, which He has been cutting and grinding as jewels, preparatory to setting them in the gold of the Divine nature. (2 Pet. 1:4) Those that contained flaws He has laid aside; for they could not bear the necessary processes, could not reflect the Lapidary's skill. Only those that would submit to all the preparation needed could be used. Now, at the close of the Age, the jewels are being "made up." They are being gathered together and arranged into a glorious Diadem. They are now being set in the gold of the Divine nature, as they are being taken one by one beyond the veil. The moment of their death is now the moment of their glorious "change." 1 Cor. 15:50-53

FAITHFUL JEWEL CLASS TO BE KNOWN

Glorious indeed will this great Diadem of God be when completed. But the Almighty is not to wear it upon His head. There is no such incongruous picture in the Bible. There we read that His jewels are to be a Diadem, a glorious Crown, in the hand of our God. He will so turn it around in the light that all of His intelligent creatures may behold its glory. He will show forth these priceless gems which He has been cutting, grinding and polishing for the past eighteen hundred years. Angels and men will know something of the grandeur of these jewels.

The question has sometimes been asked, "Will the world ever know the names of those who constitute this jewel class?" We answer, Yes; they will know. It is written in the Word, "and of Zion it shall be said, This and that man was born in her." (Psa. 87:5) After the faithful Church have all passed beyond the veil, a complete list will be made. Mankind will know who have gone to the other side, who have made their calling and election sure, who have gained "the prize of the High Calling."--Phil. 3:14

It is a matter of the utmost importance that we keep our name written in "the Lamb's Book of Life." It is one thing to have our names written, but another to have them remain there. If we would not have ours blotted out, we must be wholly faithful to our covenant with the Lord. We must confess Christ both by word and by our daily lives, in our business dealings, in our daily walk, in all the affairs of life; for if we deny Him, He will deny us. Whether we eat or drink or whatever we do, let us do all to the glory of God. Our Lord declared that if we thus confess Him, He will not deny us, but will confess us before His Father in Heaven.

AWAKENING OF THE SOUL, ARISE, OH SLEEPER!

San Diego, California, October 29 Pastor Russell was in our city today, and preached a stirring sermon from the text, "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light!" (Eph. 5:14) He said in part:

The world in general is asleep. In one sense of the word it is dead. As we know, the death sentence passed upon all men because of Adam's sin. (Rom. 5:12) Since that time all of the human family have been going into the tomb; and even those still having a measure of life are spoken of in the Scriptures as "dead in trespasses and sins." (Eph. 2:1) But this death sentence resting upon all mankind has been transmuted by the Lord to be a sentence of a period of sleep to be followed by an awakening. God had this arrangement in His glorious purpose from the beginning, from before mankind came into existence. In the Divine Program our Lord Jesus was the Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world. God purposed the redemption and restitution of mankind. For this reason the Bible refers to the death state as a "sleep".

When God spoke to Moses at the burning bush, He called Himself the God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob, although these men had long been dead. Our Lord Jesus referred to this statement, and declared that the fact that God so spoke of them when they were dead proved that there is to be a Resurrection of the Dead. (Luke 20:37,38; Ex. 3:6) He did not say that this proved that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were not dead, but alive in some other world, but that it proved that they were to be raised from the dead; "for all live unto Him" (God). In other words, it is God's purpose that all shall yet live (John 5:28, 29); and He can properly speak from the standpoint of His pre-determined purpose. In both Old and New Testaments death is spoken of as sleep, because of the redemption and the deliverance from the Adamic death penalty purposed through Christ's sacrificial death on the cross.

An understanding of the Plan of the Ages given in the Scriptures reveals the fact that all mankind will be awakened from the Adamic death state, in order that they may "come to a knowledge of the Truth," which will be made plain to all during the Messianic Reign of our Lord. (1 Tim. 2:3-6) This will be the individual enlightenment then brought to all mankind; and the attitude of each toward God's revealed provision for all will determine his case, whether he shall have life everlasting or shall be cast into the death state again. This will be the Second Death eternal destruction. In the Bible the Second Death is never spoken of as a “sleep”. This term is applied only to the Adamic death.

AWAKE, THOU THAT SLEEPEST!

Our text applies especially to those who, although still having an existence, are dead in trespasses and sins, who are sleeping so far as the highest interests of their souls, their being, are concerned, those who are under the benumbing influence of the potion administered by the great Adversary. (2 Cor. 4:4). Since our Lord’s death as the great Sacrifice for sin, the call has gone out in a general way to all who have heard the Gospel Message that they should repent of sin, should arise from their dormant condition, and live in accordance with the purpose for which they were created. To those who heed this Message comes the special Call of the Gospel Age.

The majority of the human family seem to be passing through life in a sort of maze. They are not awake; they seem to be in a dream. As a rule, they are not thinking about the more important things of life, but of the trivialities what they shall eat, what they shall drink, wherewithal shall they be clothed, where they shall find pleasure or amusement, how they can multiply their dollars. These matters are indeed very trifling compared to the weighty question—“Why am I living? What was the purpose of my creation? What are my responsibilities to my God and my fellowmen? What is to be my eternal destiny?”--Matt. 6:31-33.

In the experience of practically all who have come to the Lord there has been first a soul awakening. Their coming to Him has been preceded by an awakening of their inmost being, their nobler self, a dissatisfaction with the things of this world and a yearning for something that will satisfy, a hungering and thirsting for God. To the one who is beginning to experience this soul-stirring, the words of our text should be especially effective: “Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light!” First must come the awakening, the realization of our need, the hungering for God. Then the light will come, as the heart comes into the right attitude to receive it.

AN IMPORTANT CRISIS IN LIFE

This thought of the need of an awakening should give us sympathy for those who have never yet heard the voice of the Lord. They need our sympathy. “Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear,” said our Lord to His disciples. (Matt. 13:16,17) This benediction is for the disciples of Jesus today as well as for those to whom the words were directly spoken. These have had the soul awakening; they see and hear things unknown before things of incomparable value. A very large number of the poor world of mankind are steeped in sin and degradation. They are living merely for the things of time and sense. They seem to do very little profitable thinking. Although they have heard of God and of Heaven, yet what they heard seemingly has made but little impression upon them.

To some who have lived thus for years there comes a time of awakening. Suddenly, through the experiences of life, they are aroused from their lethargy to a realization that there is something to live for beyond what they have heretofore seen. They come to realize that they are sinners needing a Savior, that they are helpless and need a Helper. Perhaps they get the right view that the sentence resting upon fallen man is death. (Gen. 3:19) More likely they get the wrong view that it is eternal torment. But from the moment of their awakening they faced a crisis in their lives. How would they respond? Would they come near to God and receive a blessing? Or would they turn from Him and the voice of conscience, and wander off into greater darkness, greater sin and thereafter be more difficult to reach than ever before?

In the case of others, however, it was not an awakening to a realization of sin; for from childhood they had been children of the Lord, accustomed to the Bible, the hearing of prayer and the singing of hymns. They were Christians; yet their soul was not really awake. They were going through the form of singing hymns, of reading the Bible and of offering prayer, without thinking seriously what the words meant. They were asleep, in a sort of somnambulistic condition, as it were, going around in a stupid way, having a form of godliness with little or none of its power.

Then, in the Lord's providence, they were brought to a sudden standstill. They received a mental shock which shook them out of their torpid condition. They were brought face to face with a crisis in their lives. They saw in just what condition they were. They heard the Call to a higher, nobler life. We well remember when we received this soul-awakening. We were about fifteen years old at the time.

SUGGESTIONS TO PARENTS AND TEACHERS

This time of soul-awakening is an important period in the life of the young. About this time there seems to be a great change in human nature. It is the age when conditions of thoughtfulness are reached, the time when the forces making for spirituality have the most favorable effect upon the youthful mind. This is a thought which parents, guardians and teachers of youth do well to have before them. By this we do not mean, however, that no special attempt should be made to bring the child to the Lord previous to this time. Quite to the contrary, from birth the child should be trained in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

Indeed, the child's training should begin even earlier than this; for the parental influence upon the mind of the infant during the pre-natal period is of the utmost importance and has a decided bearing upon the character in later life.

In speaking of the importance of the period of life at the age of fifteen years or thereabouts, our thought is that at about that time the child's mind is sufficiently developed to begin to reach out as never before to wonder, to question, to see things in a new light, to look beyond the trivial things of the present time, to lose interest in previous childish diversions. Parents and teachers should use much wisdom in dealing with children at this crucial age. They should neither reprove nor seek to check these first stirrings of the mind toward higher, more important things.

It seems somewhat remarkable that at this age children reason with a great deal of accuracy, about as accurately, perhaps, as they will ever reason; but experience seems to show that this is true. It is afterward that their minds frequently become perverted by false reasoning, and their brain power becomes so confused that they do not know how to think or what to think. From their elders they learn deceit, and get improper views of life and its responsibilities. They imbibe erroneous teachings, which are often difficult to unlearn.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY VERY GREAT

Strange to say, there are parents and some of them professedly Christian who say, "All children must sow their wild oats." How surprising that any parent could so reason! Whoever sows wild oats will reap in kind. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." (Gal. 6:7) There is no escape from this inexorable law of nature.

From the first dawn of its understanding the child should be kept very near to the Divine standard. The parents should be able to express to the child in sympathetic terms those qualities of nobility and righteousness which the opening mind is so ready to receive, just as a sponge sucks up water. The child mind is ready to absorb very fully the thoughts which are given to it by sincere parents or by any one in whom it has confidence. But children soon lose confidence in one whom they find to be deceitful, one who tells them untruths.

Children are very quick to note whether the parent is untruthful or unjust. Thus their confidence is destroyed; and in time they learn to deceive others, to practice falsehood and injustice. We regret to say that there are parents who seemingly think it wise and proper to teach their children to be shrewd and "thrifty", as they call it to take advantage of others and to fib a little. We are sure that all who come to a real knowledge of Divine Truth, and who have imbibed its spirit, will have no such sentiments.

Having learned the right way themselves, they will be very desirous that their children and all whom they can influence shall take the same Godlike viewpoint as themselves.

AFTER AWAKENING, REMAIN AWAKE

Those who have experienced an awakening of soul should be very watchful lest they fall asleep again drift back into the old worldly ways. After one has awakened in the morning, and his senses have become fully aroused, it is possible for him to turn over and fall asleep once more. Upon a second awakening, however, the energies are sluggish, and the mind is more or less dull and stupid. Upon first awakening after a refreshing sleep, there is a freshness of mind which seems to be lost if one permits himself to doze off again; and perhaps after his second awakening there is a languor or torpidity of feeling for the entire day.

So it is with those that fall asleep again after having been awakened to a realization of the higher and nobler aspirations and enjoyments. Such may be awakened a second time; but if they are, the perceptions of the soul are likely to be less acute, the conscience less sensitive. For this reason we should encourage those who have awakened to arise at once from the dead world and to be separate from those around them who are still asleep.

After one has awakened and begun to arise from the dead world, the soul is in the attitude to receive the light of Heaven. "Christ shall give thee light." "Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart." (Psa. 97:11) Those who are arising from the dead world are approaching this condition of uprightness. The dead are represented as being prostrate. (1 John 5:19) Arising to a standing position represents an entire change of sentiment.

The awakened one should at once seek to know what the Lord desires him to do. He should begin to study the Word of God. There he finds that the Way to God is Christ the only way. The path that leads to God is by way of the Cross of Calvary. The soul must lay hold upon Jesus, by acceptance of the merit of His sacrificial death and by a complete surrender to God through Christ Jesus as the great Advocate. When he has taken this step, the light will begin to dawn upon him. Heavenly things can now for the first time be grasped by the soul. Light, increasing light, is his portion; for each step of obedience brings greater knowledge. "The path of the just is as a shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." Prov. 4:18

In the past many of us made the great mistake of supposing that we became Christians when first we awakened, when first we arose from the dead world about us. But we were merely looking toward Christianity, merely awakening to the fact that there is such a thing as harmony with God and an escape from the condemnation that is upon the world because of sin.

There is still condemnation upon all except those who are in Christ. The Apostle truly says, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." (Rom. 8:1) From the moment we come into Christ we are counted members of His Body, and we lose all condemnation of Adamic death. His sacrificial merit has been imputed to cover all our imperfections, as well as the sins of the past. Arising from the dead, in this sense of the expression, means that we are living the resurrection life, that the new life in Christ is begun in us. (Rom. 6:4) This life will, if we continue in the good way, be completed when we receive our glorious spiritual bodies in the First Resurrection.

ON TRIAL FOR LIFE OR DEATH

From the time that we lose the condemnation of death that came upon mankind through Adam's disobedience, by taking the steps of faith in Jesus as our Redeemer and of full consecration to God through Him, we are again placed on trial for life. The first trial for life was given to Father Adam, and when he failed, condemnation came upon all his posterity. But no one can be tried twice for a capital offense unless in the meantime he has been cleared of the previous condemnation. Therefore no one can have a second trial until he gets from under the condemnation that came through Adam.

Only the Church of Christ is now on trial for life eternal. They are reckoned as having passed from death unto life, but this is a salvation only by hope. They have yet to be proved, to be developed as New Creatures in Christ. They are now on probation. they have entered the School of Christ, to be perfected in character, to be made copies of God's dear Son, who is their great instructor. They must be prepared for their future work in the Kingdom; for, if they prove faithful even unto death, they will become the teachers of the next Age instructing, uplifting, encouraging, blessing, the whole world of mankind, who died in Adam and who are to be awakened and dealt with during the incoming Dispensation.

PASTOR RUSSELL DIES IN TEXAS TRAIN

Canadaian, Texas, October 31 Charles Taze Russell, pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle and known all over the country as "Pastor Russell" died from heart disease at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon on an Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe train, en route from Los Angeles to New York. He complained of feeling ill after leaving Los Angeles, his secretary said, and gradually grew worse. The end came while the train was stopped at Pampa, Texas, near here. His body is being sent to Kansas City, Mo.

Pastor Russell, who was President of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society of Pennsylvania, of the International Bible Students Association of London and the Peoples Pulpit Association of New York, was in his sixty-fifth year. He was an independent minister and was born in Pittsburgh, receiving his education from private tutors. Pastor Russell began his work as an independent minister in 1878, in Pittsburgh.

At the time of his death he was pastor of churches all over the country from Maine to California, devoting the greater part of his time to the Brooklyn Tabernacle. Pastor Russell traveled nearly 30,000 miles each year in pursuance of his pastoral duties, including a trip to London, Eng., in connection with the work of the London Tabernacle congregation, of which he was pastor.

He always disclaimed being the founder of a new religion and he interpreted the punishment of the Bible as eternal death and not eternal torture.

Pastor Russell first came to this city in 1900, when he removed from Philadelphia and bought the old Bethel Chapel, at 17 Hicks Street, under the Brooklyn Bridge, in Brooklyn, and called it the People's Church. Not long after his congregation overflowed this little edifice and he rented the Brooklyn Academy of Music for his Sunday services.

In addition to being pastor of many congregations. Pastor Russell's Sunday sermons were published in about 2,000 newspapers. He was the author of a series of books of "Studies in the Scriptures," of which more than 700,000 copies were published each year since 1886. Pastor Russell was also editor of The Watch Tower and Herald of Christ's Presence, a semi-monthly journal of large circulation.

He received much publicity for several incidents of his life. One of these was in connection with the "Miracle Wheat," which was supposed to give wonderful crops and which was said to come out of the Tabernacle by some mysterious process. There was a certain amount of scandal connected with this, and Pastor Russell sued The Brooklyn Eagle for $100,000 damages for a story published about it in that paper. During this suit it was brought out that the millennium was due in the Fall of 1914 at about the time the European war started.

In addition to other things, Pastor Russell came into prominence when his wife sued him for divorce and on June 8, 1900, he paid her $6,000 alimony following a court order handed down in Pittsburgh. When he first arrived in Brooklyn, Pastor Russell attracted favorable attention by abolishing Hell. In this doctrine he said that he was only indorsing the belief of "Honest Abe" Lincoln, the martyred President.

THE BATTLE OF ARMAGEDDON

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 3, 1912 The Brooklyn Academy of Music was crowded to the limits today to hear Pastor Russell's discourse on the "Battle of Armageddon." His text was: "He gathered them together unto a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon." (Rev. 16:16) The speaker said:

Armageddon in the Hebrew signifies the "Hill of Megiddo," or Mount of Destruction. It was famous as a battlefield in Old Testament times.

The Lord has seen fit to associate the name Armageddon, with the great controversy between Truth and Error, Right and Wrong, God and Mammon, with which this age will close, perish; and the New Age of Messiah's glory be ushered in. He has purposely used highly symbolical figures of speech in the last book of the Bible, evidently with a view to hiding certain important truths until the due time for their revealment. But even in the due time, the Bible assured us, "None of the wicked shall understand" (Dan. 12:9,10) none who are out of heart harmony with God but only the wise of His people the "wise virgin" class of the Master's parable.

I have long avoided presentation of my understanding of our text and its context. I take it up now by request and because I believe it is due time to be understood. I disclaim any special inspiration. In some particulars my views agree with those of other Bible students, and in other respects they disagree. Each hearer must use his own judgment, do his own Bible study, and reach his own conclusions.

Kindly remember that I am not responsible for the figures of speech used by the Lord. My interpretations do indeed constitute a terrible arraignment of institutions which we have all revered and which embrace good people, of good words and works. God's saintly people in these various institutions, being comparatively few, are ignored when systems as a whole are dealt with in prophecy.

Our context tells us that three impure spirits (teachings) will go forth from the mouths of the Dragon, the Beast and the False Prophet, and these three will be in accord, and symbolically the doctrines are represented by "frogs". These three doctrines are to have a mighty influence throughout the civilized earth. They are to gather the kings and their armies to the great Battle of Armageddon.

The ecclesiastical kings and princes, and their retinues of clergy and faithful adherents, will be gathered in solid phalanx Protestant and Catholic. The kings and captains of industry, and as many as can be influenced by them, will be gathered to the same side. The political kings and princes, with all their henchmen and retainers, will follow in line on the same side. The financial kings and merchant princes, and all whom they can influence by the most gigantic power ever yet exercised in the world, will join the same side, according to this prophecy.

These "doctrines of demons", represented by the "frog", will lead many noble people in this great army to assume an attitude quite contrary to their preference. For a time the wheels of liberty and progress will be turned backward and medieval restraints will be considered necessary for self-preservation for the maintenance of the present order of things.

In giving this interpretation, it is necessary for us to indicate what is symbolized by the Dragon, the Beast and the False Prophet, Bible students of nearly all denominations agree with us that the "Dragon" of Revelation represents the purely Civil Power. Protestant interpreters generally agree that the "Beast like a leopard" (Rev. 13:2) represents the Papacy. But fewer still, we fear, will be ready to support our view that Protestantism is the "Image of the Beast" (Rev. 13:15) in our context given another name, "the False Prophet". We urge no one to accept our interpretation, nor shall we think hard of any who refuse it. We will neither slander nor otherwise injure them now, nor threaten them with eternal torture. They have the same right to their views that I have, and the same right to make them known to others. And I, for one, will be very glad to consider anything which opponents may set forth as their interpretations of our text.

UNCLEAN SPIRITS LIKE FROGS

The symbolisms of Scripture, rightly understood, are always forceful. When the Holy Spirit used a "frog" to symbolically represent certain doctrines or teachings, we may be sure the true application will fit well. A frog has a sage look, a wise look. It swells itself up in an apparent endeavor to impress the beholder. Its great mouth well represents its chief power, used to croak.

Applying these symbols, we learn that an evil spirit, influence, teaching, will come from the Protestant churches federated, from the Church of Rome, and from the Civil authorities, all in full agreement. The spirit of all will be boastful; an air of superior wisdom and knowledge will be proudly assumed all will croak in harmony. All will tell of dire results that would follow, involving the interests of both the present and the future life, if their counsel be not followed. However conflicting the creeds, the differences will be ignored in the general proposition that nothing ancient must be disturbed, or looked into, or repudiated.

The Divine authority of the Church, and the Divine right of kings, aside from the Church, will not be allowed to conflict. Any persons or teachings in conflict with these boastful and unscriptural claims will be branded as everything vile, at the mouths of these “frogs” speaking from pulpits and platforms and through the religious and secular press. The nobler sentiments of some will be strangled by the philosophy of the same evil spirit which spoke through Caiaphas, the high priest, respecting Jesus. As Caiaphas declared it expedient to commit a crime in violation of justice, human and Divine, to be rid of Jesus and His teachings, so this “frog” spirit will approve every violation of principle necessary to self-protection.

The croaking of these “frog” spirits or doctrines will gather the kings and princes, financial, political, religious and industrial into one great army. the spirit of fear, inspired by the croaking of these “frogs” will scourge THE passions of otherwise good and reasonable men to fury, desperation. In their blind following of these evil spirits, evil doctrines, they will be ready to sacrifice life and everything on the altar of what they mistakenly suppose is justice, truth and righteousness, under a Divine arrangement.

For a brief time, as we understand the Scriptures, these combined forces of Armageddon will triumph. Free speech, free mails, and other liberties which have come to be the very breath of the masses in our day, will be ruthlessly shut off under the plea of necessity, the glory of God, the commands of the church, etc. All will seem to be serene, until the great social explosion in our context described as the “great Earthquake”. An “earthquake”, in symbolic language, signifies social revolution, and the declaration of the context is that none like unto it ever before occurred. (Rev. 16:18,19) Jesus described it as a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation. Matt. 24:21.

THE LORD WILL GATHER THEM

The false, frog-like teachings will gather together into one host the great, the rich, the wise, the learned and the kings of the earth, to battle. At this juncture Divine Power will step forward, and our text tells us that He shall gather the marshaled hosts to Armageddon to the Mountain of Destruction. The very thing which they sought to avert by their union, federation, etc., will be the very thing they will hasten. Other Scriptures tell us that God will be represented by the Great Messiah, and that He will be on the side of the masses. Thus we read in Dan. 12:1: "At that time shall Michael (the Godlike One Messiah) stand up" assume authority. He will take possession of His Kingdom in a manner little looked for by many of those who erroneously have been claiming that they were His Kingdom, and authorized by Him to reign in His name and in His stead.

Jesus declared, "His servants ye are unto whom ye render service." Some may be rendering service to Satan and to error, who claim to be rendering service to God and to righteousness; and some of these may be serving ignorantly, as did Saul of Tarsus, who "verily thought that he did God a service" in persecuting the Church. The same principle holds true reversely. As an earthly king does not hold himself responsible for the moral character of each soldier who fights in his battles, so the Lord does not vouch for the moral character of all who will enlist and fight on His side of any question. "His servants they are to whom they render service," whatever the motive or object prompting them.

The same principles will apply in the coming Battle of Armageddon. God's side of that battle will be the people's side, and the very nondescript host, the people, will be pitted at the beginning of the battle. Anarchists, Socialists, and hot-headed radicals of every school of reason and unreason, will be in the forefront of that battle. The majority of the poor and the middle class prefer peace at almost any price. A comparatively small number, God's consecrated people, will at heart be longing for Messiah's Kingdom. These will bide the Lord's time and wait patiently for it; they will be of good courage, knowing the outcome outlined in the "more sure word of prophecy," to which they have done well to take heed, "as unto a light shining in a dark place until the Day dawn." 2 Pet. 1:19.

The masses will be restless of their restraints, but will be conscious of their own weakness as compared to the kings and princes, financial, religious and political, which will then hold sway. Besides, the masses have no sympathy with anarchy. They realize truly that the worst form of government is better than none. The masses will seek relief through the ballot and peaceful re-adjustment of earth's affairs for the elimination of evil, for the placing of monopolies and utilities and the supplies of nature in the hands of the people for the public good. The crisis will be reached when the hitherto upholders of law shall become violators of the law and resisters of the will of the majority as expressed by the ballot. Fear for the future will lead the well-meaning masses to desperation; and anarchy will result when Socialism fails.

THE CLOUD'S SILVER LINING

Horrible would be this outlook for the future did we not have the infallible Word of God assuring us of a glorious outcome! Divine Wisdom has withheld until our day the great knowledge and skill which is at the same time breeding millionaires and discontents. Had God lifted the veil a thousand years sooner, the world would have lined up for its Armageddon a thousand years sooner. But that would have been too soon for the Divine purpose, because Messiah's Kingdom is to be the great Thousand-year Sabbath of the world's history. God in kindness veiled our eyes until the time when the gathering to Armageddon would immediately precede Messiah's taking to Himself His great power and beginning His reign. Rev. 11:17,18

SEND THEM STRONG DELUSIONS

St. Paul wrote prophetically of our time, that it would be one of serious trial and testing to many professing to be Christians. The reason for this he states they received not the Truth in the love of it. (2 Thess. 2:10,11) They preferred their own erroneous theories, the Apostle explains, and therefore God will give them over to a "strong delusion," and let them believe the lie which they preferred, and let them suffer for missing the Truth which they did not love. Thus they will be in the condemned host, "fighting against God," because of their lack of love for the Truth.

It is sad to say that we all as Christians have been laboring under a thorough delusion respecting God's Plan. We have claimed that Christ set up His Church in Kingdom power, and that the Church has been reigning on the earth as His representative. On the strength of this delusion, Jews and heretics have been persecuted to death as opponents to Christ's Kingdom. All the while we thoughtlessly repeated the Lord's prayer: "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, as in Heaven." We knew that the Redeemer said that He would come again to make us His Bride and joint-heirs; but we ignored the Scriptures. We were drunk, as the Scriptures symbolically say, "all nations were drunk" with the false doctrine. It is this false doctrine that will constitute the "frog" spirit which soon will begin to croak and to prepare for Armageddon.

The Bible presentation is that the world is a section of the universe in rebellion against Divine authority, under the captaincy of Satan and his associated fallen angels. By Divine grace Jesus has already "tasted death for every man," and the merit of that sacrifice must eventually, grant Adam and his posterity a full, fair opportunity for the attainment of everlasting life. All who thus seek the Divine program and are walking in the light may know something at least respecting the “times and seasons.” These brethren “are not in darkness, that that day (and that battle of Armageddon) should overtake” them “as a thief” unawares.

ARMAGEDDON NOT YET, BUT SOON

For forty years the Armageddon forces have been mustering for both sides of the conflict. Strikes, lockouts and riots, great and small, have been merely incidental skirmishes as the belligerent parties crossed each other’s paths. Court and Army scandals in Europe, Insurance, Trust and Court scandals in America, have shaken public confidence. Dynamite plots, charged by turns on employees and on employers, have further shaken confidence and tended to make each distrustful of the other. Bitter and angry feelings on both sides are more and more manifest. The lines of battle are daily becoming more distinctly marked. Nevertheless Armageddon cannot yet be fought. Other matters intervene according to prophecy.

Gentile Times have still two years to run. The “Image of the Beast” of our context must yet receive life power. The Image must be transformed from a mechanism to a living force. Protestant Federation realize that its organization will still be futile unless it receive vitalization unless its clergy directly or indirectly shall be recognized as possessed of apostolic ordination and authority to teach. This the prophecy indicates will come from the two-horned beast, which, we believe, symbolically represents the Church of England. High-handed activities of Protestantism and Catholicism, operating in conjunction for the suppression of human liberties, await this vivifying of the Image. This may come soon, but Armageddon cannot precede it, but must follow perhaps a year after it, according to our view of the Prophecy.

Still another thing intervenes: Although the Jews are gradually flowing into Palestine, gradually obtaining control of the land of Canaan, and although reports say that already nineteen millionaires are there, nevertheless prophecy requires an evidently larger number of wealthy Hebrews to be there before the Armageddon crisis be reached. Indeed we understand that “Jacob’s trouble” in the Holy Land will come at the very close of Armageddon. Then Messiah’s Kingdom will begin to be manifested. Thenceforth Israel in the land of promise will gradually rise from the ashes of the past to the grandeur of prophecy. Through its Divinely appointed princes Messiah’s Kingdom, all-powerful but invisible, will begin to roll away the curse and to lift up mankind.

PASTOR'S ADVICE ON ELECTING ELDERS

Question: Do the elders of the ecclesia at Brooklyn appoint deacons to lead the classes without a congregation election as set forth, etc.?

Answer: This is supposed to be a pastoral work and not a work for the elders. One of the elders of the congregation at Brooklyn is charged with the responsibility of looking over the meetings and being an assistant to the pastor in that respect, and, with the pastor's consent, now and then a deacon is selected for this work, and other work. That is supposed to be the very object in electing a pastor, that he may have that supervision of the needs of the congregation and fill in here or there according as the need might be. But it would not be the thought there, or elsewhere, that anyone would be appointed permanently to a service which is the same as if he were chosen by the congregation an elder. It would be merely a temporary matter to fill an emergency and to give the deacon an opportunity of being tried out.

AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER?

Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached here today under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association (Local Branch unsectarian), composed of the truth-hungry from all denominations. Asked why such great crowds always attend his addresses, while the churches of all denominations are complaining of slim attendance, Pastor Russell replied: "The people are thinking. Perplexed by the infidelity and higher criticism taught in the principal colleges and pulpits, many desire to have an interpretation of the Bible consistent with itself and not at war with reverential exercise of reason. The Scriptures foretell of our day, saying, 'There shall be a famine in the land; not a famine for bread nor a thirst for water, but for the hearing of the Word of the Lord' (Amos 8:11). No fairy tales can thoroughly satisfy intelligent thinkers, whose numbers are increasing. Many of those who attend my services and many who read my sermons in the public print long since ceased to attend the church services."

Two services were held, one for the public, considering the great "Here-after;" the other, which we report, had for its text God's call to Cain after he had slain his brother, "Where is thy brother?" and Cain's reply, "Am I my brother's keeper?" (Gen. 4:9). The speaker said in part:

No one can dispute that individualism, personal independence, personal responsibility, has done much for the development of our race. The serfdom and paternalism of the past were unfavorable to individual thought, responsibility and action. No wise and good man would desire to rob his follows of independence of mind.

ONE EXTREME, THEN THE OPPOSITE

We are in danger, however, of going to the opposite extreme in danger of carrying the subject of personal independence too far in danger of neglecting some who should have assistance in danger of thinking of all men as being not only free but equal. While we all should have proper freedom of will, yet all are more or less handicapped in the exercise of the will. As St. Paul said, "We cannot do the things which we would." We are slaves of sin and death, some more and some less. The Prophet David's explanation applies to us all, "I was shapen in iniquity, in sin did my mother conceive me." Psa. 51:5.

It was in view of such inequalities of the flesh that St. Paul wrote to the Church, "We that are strong should bear with the infirmities of the weak, and not please ourselves (merely)" (Rom. 15:1). This principle, applied by the Apostle to the Church, would certainly be appropriate and beneficial in the natural family. And as our hearts enlarge we should all come to realize more and more the oneness, the solidarity of our race the entire human family, of which St. Paul says, "Of one blood God created all men, to dwell upon the face of the whole earth." Acts 17:26.

WHERE IS THY BROTHER

God's inquiry of Cain implied Cain's responsibility, and teaches us a lesson respecting our responsibility in God's sight for one another. We will begin with the Church, the highest type of brotherhood imaginable: We should not be content to split into sects and parties. Whatever was the ignorance of the past, which led to the formation of the various creeds and denominations, there can be no excuse for these now, because Christians of all denominations have come to discredit the old creeds. Should there not, then, be a movement toward heart unity and fellowship, outside of denominational and creedal lines, amongst those who recognize God as Father, the Lord Jesus Christ as the Redeemer, and the Bible as a Divine Revelation?

It is not proper to say, as did Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper?" Every true Christian should realize that today Christianity is being assaulted in its own House and by its professed friends. In the universities, colleges and seminaries of all denominations a battle is raging, which threatens the destruction of our Christian faith. Possibly a few are blind to the situation, but the insurgents the Higher Critics and Evolutionists realize the situation and are craftily saying to the people, "We are the Watchmen upon the walls of Zion! Harken to our cry: All is well!" These Higher Critics seem to have no conscience. They claim that the people must be gradually taken by guile. They encourage them to "sleep" while they raise over them the banner of infidelity called Higher Criticism.

Many who see the killing of this anti-typical Abel shirk the responsibility by saying, "Am I my brother's keeper?" not realizing that from the Divine standpoint they have a responsibility toward every other Christian with whom they are in contact. They should realize that loyalty to God means that they "should show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into His marvelous light."

In a word, every true Christian who has made a full consecration of himself to the Lord, to walk in the footsteps of the Savior, should waken to the fact that we are in a critical time. We are in the time mentioned by St. Paul, when "every man's work shall be tried so as by fire" (1 Cor. 3:13). The testing will be along the lines both of faith and of works. Only those holding firmly to "the faith once delivered to the saints" will be able to bring forth such fruits, such good works, as the testings of this hour require. This class, awake to their responsibility toward God and the brethren and the Bible, and full of zeal therefor, will thereby be kept in this "evil day." God will bless them in their endeavors to glorify Him.

MY BROTHER'S KEEPER--SOCIALY

In the days of slavery and serfdom, every master, every feudal lord, recognized a responsibility for his servants or slaves. He was interested in their health and in their morals, for they were his property, and any depreciation meant financial loss to him. Thus selfish interest kept him alive to his responsibility, to a considerable degree. But now all that has changed. Serfs and slaves, released from obligation, are without supervision and care. The less fit of our race are in serious danger of being crowded to the wall. Our lawmakers have recognized the fact and have thrown around the weaker sex and children safeguards in the laws, protecting them from designing people who would exploit them for selfish purposes.

Nevertheless, with all that human law has yet been able to accomplish, the danger is increased. As knowledge increases, trusts and combinations selfishly boost the price of life's necessities and luxuries. Those members of our race less favorably equipped for the battle of life are seriously disadvantaged, some by reason of less intellectual powers, others by reason of unfavorable circumstances and environments.

Under such conditions it is not surprising that all who are able are banding together into unions for their own protection; nor should it surprise us that these, also, selfish and hard of heart, should sometimes be unjust in their demands, and sometimes cruel and ready to slay their brother who joins them not in their organization. In their desire to promote the best interests of their craft, they may, indeed, reasonably exhort fellow-craftsmen to support the organization, and may show its advantages, but beyond that they dare not go without infracting the principles of justice and bringing Divine condemnation, which, sooner or later, in one way or another, will surely be meted out.

Seen from this standpoint, unionism has a responsibility toward brethren not members of the union to treat them justly, kindly, helpfully. And no doubt this attitude would bring the larger blessing and truer prosperity.

MY BROTHER'S KEEPER--FINANCIALLY

Gradually the world is realizing its responsibility to the weak and incompetent and aged. The Orphanages, Hospitals, Homes for the Poor, etc., are all proper recognitions of the brotherhood of man aside from the higher brotherhood in Christ. We cannot claim that these institutions are the product of pure benevolence. We must admit that politics has much to do with them. The desire for contracts and for labor in connection with these institutions has, of course, much to do with their existence. The expenditure of such enormous sums as annually go to these institutions naturally enough draws an army of political healers and onlookers.

THE DAY OF RECOMPENSE

The All-Seeing eye of our Creator keeps watch over the affairs of His creatures today as it kept watch over Abel's interests. God allowed Cain to have his way; allowed him to kill his brother; allowed the righteous to suffer; yet Cain did not escape, but was held accountable for the death of his brother. God's sentence upon him separated him from his brethren until he cried out that his punishment was greater than he could bear. And, similarly, we may be sure that the Cain class of our day will be held accountable for the willful slaying of their brother, especially to the extent that the brother despised may be a child of God. As God declared that the blood of Abel cried to Him from the ground cried for justice so the intimation of the Scriptures is that all injustice of every kind, everywhere, will bring a "just recompense of reward."

St. James figuratively represents the laborers, the toilers in the field of labor today, as crying out to God, and as being heard, and its resulting in a great "time of trouble," in which the great, the mighty and the rich shall weep bitterly (Jas. 5:1). As these are not the union men, generally, who are crying out at the present time, we may look more especially amongst those on the outside; but the lesson is that those who suffer oppression will ultimately have Divine power exercised in their defense and for their relief. St. James intimates that this release will come to this class at the coming of Messiah, in power and great glory, for the establishment of His Kingdom of Righteousness in the world. To those who are the Lord's people he says, "Have patience, brethren, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh." The Lord speaks of this "Day of Recompense" as a "time of trouble" of the overthrow of oppression, the uplifting of the poor and those that have no helper. Psa. 22:12.

THE DESIRE OF ALL NATIONS SHALL COME

Those who are entirely satisfied with present conditions are the comparatively few who have special advantages. The masses are discontented some of them properly so, and others of them more discontented than is reasonable. All but the very poorest and worst situated are better off today than were their grandfathers yet less contented. The spirit of discontent, selfishness and a failure to note and to enjoy the great blessings which God has provided so bountifully, as well as wonderfully, in our day, prevails. Nevertheless, some have reason for discontent; and some, looking into the future, are fearing worse conditions, as the monopolies have gained a firmer grip upon all the necessities of life.

Surely their forebodings are not without grounds. Unless something shall occur to lift matters out of their present rut, human intelligence sees, at a not far distant day, a new serfdom, with masters directing all the forces of the world, and with the common people at their mercy, glad to have a sufficiency of work and of wage for life's necessities.

Long ago the speaker harbored the theory taught him in his creed, that mankind is totally depraved; but surely none are totally depraved except the idiotic. The speaker believed that there is an element favorable to righteousness in every member of our race, and that sin is largely the result of unfavorable environments; and that the majority of mankind would be glad, indeed, if some Divine interposition were to lift them and their affairs out of present conditions and put them upon a plane of absolute righteousness, justice, equity. This, the speaker believes, is the desire of a large element in every nation, a predominating class. Such a reign of righteousness, justice, equity in the world, will speedily result, he said, from the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom, for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

Most explicitly do the Scriptures declare this saying, "The desire of all nations shall come" (Hag. 2:7). This declaration is in conjunction with the foretelling of the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom. The reign of righteousness which it will inaugurate will be the ideal of the masses of mankind, although quite probably the overthrow of Trusts and Combines will, for a time, not be viewed sympathetically by the rich, the wise, the preferred, the favoured class, under present conditions. As it required time for the slaveholders of the past to become reconciled to the loss of their slaves and to see the righteousness of their being freed, so it will be with those who at present are closely identified with great institutions which are bringing mankind into slavery. Our Lord sized up the situation, saying, "Blessed are you who weep and mourn, for you shall be comforted. Woe unto those who are full, for they shall have distress." Luke 6:21,25.

The reign of justice and righteousness will ultimately appeal to all in heart harmony with Jehovah, and all who fail to thus come into heart harmony with Him will be accounted as unworthy of His gift of everlasting life; for "He who loves not his brother whom he hath seen, how could he love God whom he hath not seen?"

The thousand years of Messiah's reign, during which His Bride, the Elect Church, will be associated with Him, will be quite sufficient for the equalization of all of life's affairs for the entire race. "In His day shall the righteous flourish," and not the merely strong. In His day evil-doers and not well-doers will be crushed. It is written of His Kingdom that it "shall lift up the poor out of the dunghill, and shall bring down the mighty from their seats."

THE DISCIPLINES ACCORDING TO PREVIOUS CHARACTER-DEVELOPMENT

The whole world of mankind will then be transferred into the hands of Messiah, who will take them just as they are. They will be in various conditions. Some will be more depraved, others less depraved; some will be more seared in their consciences and some less; and these deficiencies of character will depend upon the way in which each one accepted or rejected light and opportunity in the present time. Those who knew not His will and did it not will receive few stripes; those who knew His will and did it not will receive many stripes, because of previous hardening of character. Everybody will be required, eventually, to come up to the full standard of Divine requirements. Those more depraved will have greater difficulty and those less depraved will have less difficulty and receive fewer stripes, in the coming up to Divine requirements.

Those who most willingly and most gladly assent to the leveling process will most quickly receive the Divine blessing and make the most rapid progress along the Highway of Holiness, back to full human perfection and eternal life. And those who now, in advance of the establishment of the Kingdom, love righteousness and hate iniquity, come at present into favor with the King of kings, and thus are specially favored with light and knowledge, and are invited to become associates with Messiah in His glorious Kingdom, which is to effect the long-promised, great reformation of earth's affairs. Let us all take to heart and apply well this lesson, but especially those who have heard and who have responded to the Divine invitation to become heirs of God and joint-heirs with our Redeemer.

St. Paul Enterprise, September 25, 1917

RIGHTEOUSNESS ON EARTH BY POWER

Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn, delivered two addresses here today under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association. One of these was more particularly for the public, the other, which we report, was more for Bible Students. The Pastor took for his text God's message to Adam after the latter had become a transgressor in Eden, when he hid from his Maker: "Where Art Thou, Adam?" (Gen. 3:9.) The speaker said in part:

"Be sure your sin will find you out." Adam learned this lesson early in his career. Highly favored by his Maker, crowned with the glory and honor of human perfection and the lordship of earth, Adam had the offer of everlasting life, under Edenic conditions. But while condemning his disobedience we cannot help sympathizing with him when we realize that the act of disloyalty which brought the Divine sentence upon Adam, and, by heredity, upon all of his race, was caused by love for his wife.

The unvarnished narrative is that Mother Eve thirsted for knowledge and was not content to await the Almighty's time for giving them knowledge. She hearkened to the Serpent's plea that the Almighty was seeking to keep herself and her husband in ignorance by forbidding them to partake of the fruit of the tree of knowledge. She had not come to know the benevolence of her Maker, and that no good thing would He withhold from His obedient creatures. She had not yet learned that the fruit of that tree was forbidden for a time only, and that the premature eating of it could bring no blessing, but Divine disfavor. The Apostle shows this when he declares that Mother Eve was deceived; but with equal positiveness he declares that Father Adam was not, himself, deceived; that he partook of the fruit knowingly, intentionally, willfully and with a full realization of the disobedient act which brought upon him death—"The wages of sin is death"; "Thou shalt surely die." Rom. 6:23; Gen. 2:17

But while Adam's act was one of chivalry--was really suicide because of love for his wife, who had transgressed--nevertheless, it was an act of disobedience. He should have had loyalty to his Creator first, above his loyalty to his wife. Indeed, we have reason to believe that Mother Eve's transgression might have been cancelled in some manner, since it was committed under deception. Father Adam's course should have been to remain loyal to God at all hazards, and to have trusted to Divine love and wisdom in respect to the results. Everywhere the Scriptures lay stress upon Adam's disobedience, which was a willful sin against light and knowledge.

The sinners hid themselves in the Garden. The inference is that, previously, they had enjoyed fellowship and communion with their Creator, but as soon as they sinned they realized their unworthiness of Divine fellowship--in turned them away from God. Instead of the happiness of His fellowship, they had discontent and evil forebodings of estrangement. They had lost their God, and, by virtue of their very nature, they would, in consequence, be measurably unhappy one of the principal elements of their nature, thenceforth, was hunger and thirst for God, which was not gratified. A barrier had come between the Creator and His creatures.

ESTRANGED FROM BIRTH

The estrangement which our first parents experienced, dating from the time of their sin, is one which all mankind had inherited from them. The Prophet David speaks of this, saying that the world is estranged from birth; and, speaking of himself, declares, "I was shapen in iniquity, in sin did my mother conceive me" (Psa. 51:5). God is not to be charged with the responsibility of this estrangement. It comes to all as the result or outworking of sin. All are sinners and all feel themselves unworthy of the fellowship of their Creator, and realize themselves undeserving of His blessing. The fear which drove our first parents to hide has since then driven many still further from God as they had delved yet more deeply into sin, not only because of heredity, but also through taking a perverse course themselves. The fear has increased, and today one of the most terrible maladies on earth is fear dread. It is not surprising that we find the heathen, thousands of millions, fearing, dreading, not with that fear which is the beginning of wisdom, and which leads back to God, but with that fear or terror which leads them to think of Him as a great demon, who had provided for their eternal torture.

The same principle operates in the minds of people born in civilized lands. There is a fear, a dread respecting the future, a dread which takes hold also upon things of the present life. This fear toward God, the Scriptures declare, is wrong, saying, "Their fear toward Me is taught by the precepts of men.” (Isa. 29:13.) These precepts of men are represented in our various creeds, all of which claim to be the Word of God, but all of which are the product of fearful, human minds.

God’s Word does not uphold a single creed of Christendom, nor does a single creed of Christendom uphold God’s Word. They all contain certain elements of Truth, around which great masses of error have gathered. However, if only such as conscientiously believe every feature of their creeds should remain with them, and if all others were to step out, honestly and fearlessly, the creeds would be found to have very few worshippers. They are fetishes of idol worship, surely displeasing to the Lord. Let everyone oppose this fear which has done so much to discredit God and His Word and so much to turn the hearts and minds of the best people in the world away from God and the Bible.

WHERE ART THOU, SINNER

While our first parents hid from God, and all of our race have the same disposition because of fear, God, nevertheless, had not hidden from His creatures. As He called after Adam, saying, “Where art thou?” and brought Adam forth from his hiding place, so in due time all of Adam’s children will be pursued by His grace and mercy until all shall come to know of the love of God which passeth all human understanding.

We are not informed that our first parents afterward hearkened to God and repented of their disobedience. We merely know that they could not retrace their steps. The sentence of death upon them was enforced. They were driven out of Eden away from the life-sustaining fruits. The Divine sentence against them was, “Dying, thou shalt die.” Gradually the dying process operated against the perfect man until, after nine hundred and thirty years of struggling, he succumbed he was dead. The Divine sentence against our first parents descended to their posterity. As God said to Mother Eve, “I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception,” so has it been with all of her daughters.

And God said to Adam, “In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread until thou return unto the ground from whence thou wast taken.” So Adam’s sons also have contended with the thorns and thistles, and, in sweat of face, have labored for sustenance, gradually succumbing to the cares of human life dust to dust returning. But as God called after the sinner in Eden, so He has called after the sinner since, but remarkably few have had the hearing ear.

Amongst those mentioned in the Bible who heard the voice of God and obtained reconciliation, we remember Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the prophets, the Apostles, etc. But the masses of mankind have not at any time been ready to hearken to God’s voice. Fear has driven them further and further away from the Only Name. The question is a proper one here.

How long will God call after the sinner? How long will the sinner continue to be fearful of his Creator, and continue to go further from Him? And is God calling as loudly as Divine Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power can call? If not, why not?

WHY NOT CALL MORE LOUDLY

God's call was greatly increased in the days of our Savior and since. Men have heard of God's love and mercy and His invitation to become reconciled to Him, but many still believe in the teachings of the Dark Ages regarding eternal torment, which tends to drive them to fear and away from God. The Apostle declares what we, as Bible students, more and more appreciate, namely, that it is the Love of God that constrains, that makes us happy, that brings "the peace of God which passeth all understanding." On the contrary, as St. Paul declares, the doctrines of devils bring fear, tormenting dread, and cause men to hide from God. Many, unquestionably, in the past have attended church services, not because of love for God, not because of any truly worshipful spirit, but from fear, and in hope that by thus rendering some outward homage to the Name Divine they might escape torture in the future.

We are not for a moment to think of such people as hearing the Divine Voice. They are serving as are the heathen, who have never heard of the true God, in any sense of the word.

We may be inclined to wonder that our Almighty Creator has apparently pursued the human family with His voice of love and mercy and invitation to reconciliation for so long in so peculiar a manner--affecting such a small proportion of the thousands of millions of our race. Once this greatly perplexed us all; now, through our study of the Scriptures, we are learning, dear Bible students, why things are thus. We are learning that God is now calling merely a special class—"the elect" those who love righteousness and hate iniquity those who hunger and thirst after righteousness and fellowship Divine. To these God is now holding out a special invitation. His message is, "Gather together My saints unto Me those who have made a covenant with Me by sacrifice."

WHY NOT A GREATER WORK

Some may inquire: Why does not God do a greater work? Why does He allow clouds and darkness to obscure His Character, and Word, and Plan? Why does He allow darkness to cover the earth and gross darkness the heathen? Why does He permit sin to be so prevalent that whosoever will live godly shall suffer persecution, shall find the way of righteousness a narrow one, a difficult one?

Why does God not restrain the powers of Satan, and spread the light of the knowledge of His glory throughout the whole earth? Why does He seem to leave the entire matter in our poor, bungling, imperfect hands?

Why does He seem thus indifferent to the heathen thousands of millions and to the masses of Christendom? Ah! there is a reason, which saintly ones are gradually coming to see, and which, more and more, is causing them to rejoice, through faith. We now see plainly stated in God's Word that the class now being selected is called for a purpose a glorious purpose in which Adam and all of his race shall eventually have a blessing. We see that Divine grace is now selecting the Church, and that while few have been called as compared with the masses of mankind, many more are called than will eventually be chosen. The "elect" class is to be made associates with Jesus in His Messianic Kingdom, "heirs of God, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ."

So, as soon as the full number of "elect" shall have been found and shall have been tested and found worthy, the present method of Divine operation will change completely. No longer will God call after the sinner, "Where are thou?" No longer will preaching be the Divine method of pursuing sinners. On the contrary, everything pertaining to human interests will, for a thousand years, be turned over to Messiah's Kingdom. "He shall reign from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth." His Kingdom will exercise force. "The Law shall go forth from Mt. Zion, and the Word of the Lord," respecting that Law, "from Jerusalem;" "and it shall come to pass that the soul who will not obey that great Prophet (Priest, King, Instructor) will be destroyed from amongst the people." Acts 3:19-23

ALL THE BLIND EYES SHALL BE OPENED

To what extent the various beliefs of the heathen and the creeds of Christendom are the work of demons, Satan and his hosts, no human being can tell. We may merely surmise, on the strength of the Apostle's words, that we wrestle not with flesh and blood merely, but with invisible "principalities and powers, wicked spirits in high places." We may judge this also from the intimation that Satan has been deceiving the whole world. We remember the Apostle's declaration respecting the "doctrines of demons."--Eph. 6:11,12, R. V.; 1 Tim. 4:1

When the True Light shall shine, when the Prince of Light, the King of Glory, shall take to Himself His great power and reign, and the Prince of Darkness shall be bound, then the light of the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth then the many misrepresentations of the Divine Character and Divine Plan will vanish; the blind eyes shall be opened, the deaf ears shall be unstopped, and the knowledge of God's will and of His gracious Plan of Salvation will be fully made known to every creature.

As we have already seen, these blessings will begin at the same time when the Elect Church shall be completed. The blessings of the Messianic Kingdom, according to the Bible, will come first to the Jews. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the Prophets will be the earthly representatives of the invisible Messiah. These will be the princes in all the earth.--Psa. 45:16

THE JUDGMENTS OF THE LORD SOON

Soon the race will be started up the Highway of Holiness, encouraged by rewards of health and strength and uplifting blessings, and stimulated by the stripes and punishments which will be visited upon evil-doers in that time. Thus “The judgments of the Lord will be abroad in the earth,” rewarding righteousness and promptly punishing every evil deed and word and thought. The result is clearly stated in the Scriptures—“The inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness.”--Isa. 26:9

Nevertheless, we are not to forget the explicit teaching of God’s Word to the effect that at the conclusion of Messiah’s reign, when sin and death shall have been fully subjected, and when all shall have been lifted up to perfection except the willful sinners, who will be destroyed in the Second Death even then God will not permit the perfect ones of that time to enter upon eternal conditions until first they shall have been subjected to severe trial and testing. Satan shall be loosed from his prison-house “for a little season,” for this very purpose of testing the perfected world. All then living, perfect in mind and body, should be loyal to God to the very core should be able to stand any test of loyalty. Such as yield to sin and become disobedient to God will be counted unworthy of eternal life, and will be destroyed in the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery. St. Peter tells us of such that they will die like natural, brute beasts.

In conclusion, Pastor Russell urged upon his hearers that such of them as have become Christians indeed by entire consecration to God and endeavor to do His will such as are seeking joint-heirship with Christ in His Kingdom of glory, honor and immortality should “lay aside every weight and every besetting sin, and run with patience the race set before them” in the Gospel. Thus they will make their “calling and election sure” and gain an abundant entrance into the everlasting Kingdom which is to bless the world.--2 Pet. 3:13

ENGAGEMENT OF BRIDE TO BE CONSUMMATED

Pastor Russell preached twice here today [Boston, Mass., May 28, 1911]. He had large and intellectual audiences as usual. We report one of his discourses from the text, "I go to prepare a place for you; ... and I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also" (John 14:2,3). The speaker said:

Doubtless we all have in mind the fact that we have just passed the anniversary of our Redeemer's Ascension to the right hand of the Father-to the highest place in all the Universe, next to the Almighty Father. He ascended up where He was before-to the spirit plane of being, with added excellence of glory and honor, the reward of His faithfulness and obedience to the Father's will, even to the sacrificing of His life at Calvary. He ascended, the Scriptures declare, from the more humble condition of human nature, a little lower than the angels, to the exalted condition of the Divine nature-far above angels, principalities and powers and every name that is named.

The work for which the Logos left the heavenly glory has not yet been accomplished. He has suffered the just for the unjust, giving His life a Ransom-price for all; but this was merely a means toward an end, and that end has not yet been accomplished-the blessing of Adam and his fallen race. Thank God, however, that the great, broad foundation has been laid. Thanks be to God, also, that a great preliminary work has been in progress during more than 18 centuries since His ascension. That preliminary work is the preparation of the Church of Christ to follow Him in faithfulness and self-sacrifice to exaltation with Him to the Divine nature, glory, honor and immortality, which was His reward. -- 2 Pet. 1: 4

A CHASTE VIRGIN ESPOUSED

If, in times past, we have too carelessly studied our Bibles and confused God's special blessing for the Church as the Bride of Christ, with His subsequent blessing for the world through Messiah and His Bride, let us do so no longer. Let us note that as the Divine Plan for the salvation of the world could not begin before the coming of Jesus, except in a typical sense, neither can it begin to operate until the complete selection of the Church-until her perfecting as the "Bride, the Lamb's Wife, " in the First or Chief Resurrection.

The antitypical sacrifices which Jesus began still continue to be offered by Him. Those desirous of becoming His Bride and joint-heirs with Him in His Kingdom are now qualifying for that exaltation. The invitation to them is that, renouncing sin and accepting the Savior, they shall "present their bodies living sacrifices, holy and acceptable to God'-following in the footsteps of their Redeemer.

In a certain sense this presentation of the entire Church took place, representatively, in the Apostles and others of the five hundred brethren who believed at the first. They were representatives of the entire Church, and the acceptance of their sacrifice and their begetting of the Holy Spirit, their espousal at Pentecost, represented the acceptance, the begetting and espousal of the entire Church from then until now. We are merely following in their steps; we are merely under-members in the same body – "The Church of the first-borns, whose names are written in heaven."--Heb. 12:23

St. Paul distinctly points out that the Church is not yet the Bride of Christ, but merely espoused. He writes, "I have espoused you as a chaste virgin unto one Husband, who is Christ." The period of espousal will not be complete until the close of this Age, when the last member of the body shall have been accepted, and when the first or Chief Resurrection (to the spirit plane) shall have been accomplished-the marriage or complete union between Christ and His Bride in the heavenly glory.

THE WAY AND THE PLACE

As the Redeemer was the first to ascend to the glorious station of the Divine nature, far above angels, principalities and powers, and as the church is to be His associate in that glory, it was necessary that He should precede her to prepare the way. Our Lord's own worthiness of exaltation to the Divine nature was witnessed by the Father in that He raised Him from the dead a quickening Spirit, to glory, honor and immortality.

But before the Church could, in any sense of the word, be made acceptable in the heavenly courts, it was necessary that the Redeemer should "appear in the presence of God for us" (Heb. 9:24). It was necessary that He make application or imputation of the merit of His sacrifice on behalf of the Church before their sacrifices could be "Holy and acceptable unto God;" and only by their sacrifices and the Divine acceptance of them could they be begotten of the Holy Spirit to the new nature, the Divine nature, which they will fully receive, if faithful, in the chief resurrection.

What force we thus see is attached to the Master's words, "I go to prepare a place for you." Unless He had thus prepared the way, unless He had become our Surety, we never could have become acceptable in the Father's sight, and the Redeemer's associates on the spirit plane. But there is still another sense in which the Redeemer is preparing for His Church, His followers. He has, as their great High Priest, not only opened up the way to God, but He continues to be their Intercessor and to appropriate to them of His merit to cover their continual trespasses and shortcomings, which are the result, not of wilfulness but of weakness and heredity-shortcomings against which they strive, but by which at times they are overtaken-sins of omission if not of commission.

How precious to every child of God are the words of the Apostle, "If we sin we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous!" Let us, therefore, come with courage to the Throne of heavenly grace that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in every time of need, for we have an High Priest who can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, having been tempted in all points like as we of the new creation are tempted. (I John 2:1, 2; Heb. 4:15, 16)

I WILL COME AGAIN

There appears to be a disposition on the part of many to deny that there will be a second advent of the Redeemer. They reason that what has not occurred in more than 18 centuries should cease to be expected. They endeavor to find the fulfillment, the promised second coming of the Savior, in the Pentecostal blessing. But this cannot satisfy those who have implicit trust in the Lord, and who believe that the Apostles were his specially appointed mouthpieces, for did not the Apostles, long after Pentecost, tell of the second coming of the Lord, and did not Jesus Himself in the last book of the Bible declare His coming and His marriage to the Church, His acceptance to her and the giving of her a share in His glory?

The erroneous thought that Jesus is still a man and that His second coming will be as a man in glory and power, has done much injury to the Church. It has turned the attention of some to looking for and expecting Messiah's Empire to be purely an earthly one. It has led others to deny the second coming and the Kingdom entirely. The proper view of our Lord's ascension to the glory of the Divine nature and honor next to the Father, never more to return to earthly conditions, lifts us above the difficulties mentioned.

We now see that the One who will come in power and great glory will be a Spirit Being wholly invisible to mankind, but nevertheless the very same Jesus, the same personality, the same Ego who was once amongst men; the same Ego or personality who previously was with the Father on the spirit plane, and who humbled Himself to man's estate in order that He might accomplish a work of redemption for Adam and his race. The Redeemer says of Himself, "I am He who was dead, and behold I am alive forevermore." And He who was dead, was He not the same One who previously was rich and for our sakes became poor? Can we not, therefore, hold clearly to the distinctions of nature, and yet see through the two changes the maintenance of the original personality?

HE WILL COME IN LIKE MANNER

The angels who appeared to the Apostles when the Master vanished from their sight declared that He would come in like manner as He went away. Did He go in a blaze of glory witnessed by the whole world of mankind? No! Neither will He so come. Did He go amid great convulsions and the blast of trumpets? No! Neither will He so come. Was His departure seen and known throughout the world? No! Neither will his arrival be seen and known; as He declared, He will come as a thief in the night and will be present, unknown to the world. Only a few knew of His departure and could tell it to others. In like manner a second coming will be known only to the few, who will declare it to such as have the hearing ear.

Concerning this secret arrival of the Lord, “as a thief in the night,” the Apostle declares, “Ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief.” (I Cor. 5:4)

The day of revelation will come, but it will be after the Bride class, the elect Church, is with the Bridegroom, a sharer of His glory, honor and immortality. “When He shall appear, ye also shall appear with Him in glory” (I John 3:2). The revelation will be in flaming fire—a manifestation of righteousness, opposition to all things sinful and approval of all things in harmony with the Golden Rule. This will mean at first a great time of trouble, an overturning and transformation in the world's affairs. As the Prophet declares, “The rich men shall weep bitterly.” Many poor ones doubtless will also weep, for unrighteousness is not confined to race or class. All evil-doers will suffer, all well-doers will be blessed.

As soon as this new ruling of Messiah's Kingdom shall come to be thoroughly recognized and appreciated, “the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness” (Isa. 26:9). Then the great blessing of Emmanuel's government will kiss away the world's sorrow and tears and death, as a great Sun of Righteousness arising. Messiah's Kingdom will flood the earth with the light of the knowledge of the goodness of God and with His blessing, “which maketh rich and addeth no sorrow therewith.” Ignorance, superstition, sin and death will flee away before the light of that New Dispensation, and only those who resist it wilfully will be smitten with the Second Death.

RULE WITH A ROD OF IRON

The great Heavenly King and His Bride will rule man's affairs with a rod of iron, which will break in pieces and destroy institutions contrary to the Golden Rule. This power over the nations belongs to the Redeemer and will be shared, as promised, with His Church. But first, before that manifestation of the Kingdom in power and glory and with flaming fire, will come the Master's parousia, or secret presence, unknown to the world-known only to the "watchers" - to the saints, through their understanding of the Divine prophesies, to which their eyes of understanding will be opened.

In the harvest time He will be present to gather the wheat into His garner, through the change of the Chief Resurrection, which will take place in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, because "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God." During this period of parousia, preceding the outward manifestation to the world, the Heavenly Lord, invisible to men, will judge amongst those who have professed to be His servants determining which may enter into the Kingdom and share its glories, and which have been unprofitable servants, who may not share with Him in the Kingdom glory, because they have failed to share with Him in the sacrifice and ignominy of the present time.

This judging of the Church is particularly indicated in two of our Lord's parables relating to the pounds and the talents given to His servants when He took His departure. In His parousia He will reckon with his servants, rewarding the faithful with a share with Him in His Kingdom, saying, "Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord - have thou dominion over two cities, over five cities," etc. (Matt. 25:21; Luke 19:16-18) The garnering of the wheat, the change of the saints, will be the marriage or union with their glorious Head and Bridegroom. Meantime, those purposing to be of the Bride, win make themselves ready and assist each other in preparation for the glorious consummation of their most wonderful hopes.

THE THOUSAND-YEAR-JUDGMENT DAY OF THE WORLD

The Master said, "My word shall judge you in the last day.' Happy has it been for the few who have heard the Master's Word in this present life, and have judged themselves thereby, and submitted themselves to His righteous precepts! These blessed ones will share with Messiah the glories of His Spiritual Empire, invisible to men. But during the Thousand-Year-Judgment Day of the world (2 Pet. 3:7,8) the same words—"the wonderful words of life" to those who will obey and words of death to those who will refuse obedience-will be the standard of justice for all mankind.-Acts 3:21-23.

This judgment of the world will not be merely of those living at the time of the establishment of the Kingdom, but will include all that are in their graves (John 5:28). As all are condemned through one man's disobedience, so the redemption for all will be accomplished through the obedience of One, which will secure to each and all an opportunity for eternal life, either on the spirit plane, during this Gospel Age, or on the earthly plane to Paradise restored, during Messiah's reign.

The judgment of the Church is, not according to works, the perfection of which, under prevailing conditions, would be impossible, hence the Church's judgment is according to faith and the obedience of faith possible. But the world's judgment will be according to works, for the knowledge then will be so great that faith will no longer be at a premium. The great Mediator will accept of imperfect works according to the ability of the people; but, as they rise out of degradation, more and more will be required of them, until in the end they will be perfected and absolute perfection of works will be required.

Then death and the grave will be swallowed up in the antitypical Gehenna of annihilation-"the Second Death"-and all not worthy of record in the Book of Life will be destroyed from amongst the people.-Rev. 20:12-15; Acts 3:22

But, thank God, this irremediable destruction of the Second Death will come only upon willful evil-doers of the class mentioned in this text-often reprov'd and yet stiffnecked. Some of the Church might be classed in this category because of previous enlightenment, etc., enjoyed, but surely the world in general has not had such reproofs and such an intelligent understanding of the Lord as would make them properly amenable to the Second Death. And God proposes that every member of Adam's race must have this one full, complete privilege and opportunity for eternal life before he can be sentenced to the Second Death.

Pittsburgh Gazette, April 1, 1906

“THE LAMB OF GOD”

Pastor C.T. Russell preached to a large congregation here this afternoon from the text, "Behold the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world." -John 1: 29. The speaker said:

Our text refers not to the sins of the world in the plural, but to the sin of the world in the singular. From the Divine standpoint sin had its beginning in one act of disobedience on the part of our first parents; but the sentence of that sin falling upon them, a death sentence, has gradually affected and undermined their powers, mental, moral and physical, until as a result imperfection, weakness, depravity, sin, is somehow associated with almost every word and deed of the children of men. In some measure the world is responsible for this general depravity but in the general sense it is not responsible, because these tendencies toward sin were inherited.

Mark the apostle's words on the subject—"By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world, and death as the result of sin; and thus death has pawed upon all men because all are sinners." (Rom. 5:12.) Note again the statement of scripture that we are "born in sin and shapen in iniquity, and in sin did our mothers conceive us." (Psa. 51:5.) We are not responsible therefore for the general fact that we have inherited these blemishes, but we are responsible to the extent we may have cooperated with sin, and intensified its blight in our own persons and in our children.

Thank God that the light of Divine truth, which came into the world with the presence of our Savior, which set up a standard amongst the people, has had the effect of blessing in proportion as its influence has been accepted, and these lighter portions of the earth we call civilization. But, alas, how unsatisfactory our civilization is! How far from purity our types of Christianization! How few there are today who could say with the apostle, brethren, be ye followers of us, even as we are followers of the Lord Jesus (I Cor. 11: 1.) How few there are even reckonedly, in the spirit of their minds, in their daily life, in their daily course, walking not after the flesh but after the spirit.

GENERAL SIN AND PERSONAL SINS

Thus we discern that there is a general sin in the world, that it is in our blood, in our organization from birth, and the child of but a day is a participant in this sin, in this sinful condition that God disapproves and has declared to be unworthy of eternal life-worthy of death. In other words, our race is not worthy of perpetuation, is the Divine decree. The general penalty against this universal condition of sin is the one originally pronounced against father Adam, and still resting upon the world of mankind in general - "Dying thou shalt die. " Death is upon all because all are sinners under this general sentence pronounced in Eden.

As already intimated, it is possible for the individuals of the race to either strive against this downward tendency in which they were born or to fall in line with it, and hurry down the broad road of destruction more rapidly. For such as run in the way of sin, practicing iniquity, the Lord declares there is additional responsibility-they are worthy of stripes. Some evil-doers get the stripes, chastisements, in the present life through the natural course of affairs. Sowing to the flesh they reap the rewards of their wrong course under what we sometimes term natural laws. As, for instance, the libertine in many instances brings upon himself temporal and distressing sickness, which hastens his death and increases his sorrows and troubles.

In many other instances, however, the innocent suffer through laws of heredity as much as do the willful transgressors, and hence there could be no evening up of matters to an exact point of justice were there no provision for a future life, a future probation. The infant of a day suffering from some loathsome disease unjustly shares with its parents the penalty upon wrong-doing. The divine law might have left us in this position as a race and have done nothing for us. Justice could offer no plea on behalf of the suffering infant or other innocents, because the decree of justice against Adam and all of his posterity is that by disobedience and by inherited blemishes they are found unworthy of everlasting life-worthy of death. Hence justice decrees that any and everything which tends to hasten death amongst mankind is working out the sentence of justice, "Dying thou shalt die."

REDEMPTION AND REGENERATION

We will notice presently in what way the Lord takes away the sin of the church-the sins of believers in Jesus; but now we call attention to the fact that our text does not discuss this matter, but on the contrary deals with sin as a whole and the world of sinners as a whole. It points us to the fact that our Lord's mission is to take away the sin of the world-to take away the general blight and curse of death which came upon all mankind through Adam's disobedience. To accomplish this work two steps were necessary: (1) Justice must be satisfied, a legal redemption must be effected. When we look out over the world and note the 600,000,000 living today, and reckon up the thousands of millions who have died, our hearts would fail us as we would think of how a recompense could be made to Justice which would offset the obligation, the sins of all these.

But man's extremity is God's opportunity. As we look into the word of God we find that divine wisdom had foreseen the entire matter and had arranged for it in advance. If each individual of our race had been personally sentenced for his own misdeeds, his own shortcomings, then indeed it would have required as a corresponding price that some one should die for each individual in order to release that one from death. This would be an awful proposition-that twenty thousand millions of perfect men must die as redeemers for 20,000,000,000 of sinners. Where would such redeemers be found? Nowhere. Not a man on earth was found perfect, or capable of being his brother's redeemer. As we read, "There is none righteous, no not one;" and again, "all have sinned and come short;" "None of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him." (Rom. 3:10, 23; Psa. 49:7.) Where, we ask, is the remedy, the hope?

Ah, we must look to God! Harkening to the Divine message, we hear its statement that all mankind were tried and condemned with Father Adam, the payment of his death sentence, would not only redeem him from the curse, but likewise redeem all who are in him when he came under that death sentence. How amazing the Divine wisdom! This very fact, that once in our blindness we supposed was injustice toward us, is really an evidence of Divine foreknowledge and Divine mercy. God condemned the race as a whole that he might have mercy upon the race as a whole. "As by man came death, so also by man came the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, so in Christ shall all be made alive." (I Cor. 15:21,22.)

The meaning is very plain, very simple. We know how we all inherit sin and death conditions through Father Adam. We see the imperfections all about us, we feel many of them in us; and now we learn that as we have thus inherited blemishes and sins and imperfections and death, another one has acted on our behalf, has paid the penalty; and that by coming into relationship with him, by being regenerated, begotten again, born again, we may inherit eternal life through him who loved us and bought us with his precious blood.

TAKING AWAY THE SIN

From the foregoing we perceive that there are two steps necessary to the release of humanity from its present thralldom to sin and death: (1) It was necessary that the penalty against Father Adam should be paid to justice. (2) It is necessary that Adam and any of his posterity to be blessed must come into relationship to the Redeemer-must be regenerated, obtain a new life. The first father or life-giver, Adam, not only failed to keep the life bestowed upon him in his creation but failed to hand it down to his posterity. His children have been produced under sin-and-death conditions, suffering and dying.

The scriptures tell us that this satisfaction of Justice for the sin of the world was somehow connected with the death of our Lord Jesus Christ-that, "he died the just for the unjust that he might bring us to God." (I Pet. 3:18.) He has died, yet the world has not yet been brought to God. Indeed, amazing as the proposition may seem, the world as a whole gets farther away from God day by day. Counting all the population of civilized lands as though they were Christians-though many of them are really as much without God as the poor, ignorant ones whom we designate heathen-we find that those who are put down in statistics as the heathen people of the world are twice as many as they were a century ago, although the past century has been the most remarkable of all the world's history in the endeavor to carry the name of Jesus to the ends of the earth. How shall we understand this matter? Is the Divine plan miscarrying?

No, we answer. Other scriptures must be allowed to assist in clarifying our views of how the great plan of God is outworking. Other scriptures assure us that before the times of restitution of all things, before the time of the blotting out of the curse, when "there shall be no more curse, no more sighing, no more crying, no more dying" before that time shall come, God proposes the election or selection of a little flock, a kingly class, a royal priesthood, associated with the Redeemer in His work of glory during the millennial age. These very properly in the scriptures are called both a "peculiar people" and a "little flock." (Titus 2:14; Luke 12:32.) The work of their selection began with our Lord's ministry, and especially at Pentecost.

LONG AND CAREFUL CHOOSING

The selecting work has since progressed, and we have reason for believing that the number of the elect is almost complete, that the time of the permission of evil for their testing in faith and obedience is nearly at an end. When completed the church as the bride of Christ will be glorified with Him, to sit upon His throne.

We see, then, that it is the Divine purpose that this elect class, now being selected from amongst the world shall have the spirit of Christ-the spirit of self-sacrifice, the spirit of love for righteousness, the spirit of hatred for sin-to such an extent that they will rejoice to lay down their lives with their Master, in his cause, in cooperating with Him, under His direction and guidance. Thus we see that while the merit was in our Lord and in His sacrifice for sins nevertheless the world is waiting for the finding of the elect and for their glorification as the sons of God. Before they can be glorified they must be proven, they must be tested, they must be sacrificers.

In harmony with this is the scriptural exhortation, "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God (in providing the Lamb of God to take away the sin of the world, including your sins, and in giving you a knowledge of His grace in advance of the world), that ye present your bodies living sacrifices, holy, acceptable to God and your reasonable service."

WIPING AWAY SINS AND TEARS

While the sin of the world will be legally cancelled as soon as the great Redeemer shall make the application of His sacrifice to that end, and while this will be an instantaneous work, nevertheless the applying of the benefits of that work to mankind will be gradual, and will require all of the thousand years of the millennial reign of Christ and His church. Some grasp the one part of this work, some grasp the other feature, but few seem to see the absolute necessity of both features-the redemption of the world by the payment of the price, the death of Jesus and the restoration of the world, its uplifting. Respecting the first of these many scriptures could be cited, but we merely quote you one. The Apostle says, speaking of our Lord and His sacrifice, "Now once in the end of this age hath He appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. " (Heb. 9:26.) The sin of the world is not yet put away, but we are nearing the time therefor. The Apostle tells us that in the end of this age our Lord will appear a second time, not as a sin offering but unto salvation-first for the salvation of the church, the bride, to glorify her with Himself, and secondly for the salvation of the world. As at the first advent the sacrifice for sins was made, at the second advent the putting away of the sins will be accomplished. This putting away, as we have already seen, is first a judicial putting away, or a Divine acceptance of Christ's sacrifice and the approval of the introduction of the Millennial Reign of Christ for the world's uplift out of sin and death.

Notice that the Apostle describes this and tells of the time when sins will be blotted out-that it will be at the second coming of Christ-that it will be during the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began-that it will be a time of refreshing from God's presence. (Acts 3:19-23.) Now not even the church's sins are blotted out, merely, as the Apostle declares, the sins of believers are covered, the merit of Christ's righteousness is imputed to them as a robe of righteousness, a wedding garment covers the blemishes of the flesh, their hearts being true and loyal to the Lord. But when that which is perfect is come there will be no need of such a covering; and the perfect will come at the second coming of our Lord, when in the first resurrection the Father shall raise us by His power to glory, honor, immortality, in association with our Redeemer.

AWAKED, THEN GRADUALLY RAISED

But the instantaneous work of the first resurrection, by which the church will be made like her Lord in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, does not appertain to the world in general nor to the sins of the world. The sins of the world are not covered by Christ's robe now, for to those whom He accepts as His faithful He declares, "Ye are not of the world even as I am not of the world, for I have chosen you out of the world." (John 17:16; 15:19.) The world is still in its sins, but as soon as the church shall have been glorified the Great Redeemer will make general application of the merit of His sacrifice for the whole world, and the sins of the world will be judiciously cancelled in that moment in that instant. Thereafter there will be nothing to hinder the restitution of any who will to all the perfections and blessings which God is pleased to bestow upon those who are in His favor.

GOD'S WAY PERFECT

A few moments ago we noticed that had not the Divine plan made provision for a resurrection of the dead, there would have been no evening up of accounts as between those who in the present life have sought to live justly and honorably and those who on the contrary have deliberately violated right principles. But in the arrangement which we find scripturally set forth there is a provision whereby those who now seek to walk in the ways of righteousness will then find their blessing for having so done, while those who have wilfully transgressed will now find a retribution. Not merely believers in Christ and consecrated followers in his footsteps have sought to stem the downward tendencies of the fallen flesh and to rise to higher and nobler conditions of mind and deed. Yet only the church, the sanctified believers, get the blessing for which the Lord is now calling the little flock, the peculiar people.

Even amongst the heathen there have been some wonderfully noble characters-Confucius, for instance, as an illustration, an example. Likewise in civilized lands many noble people have never seen with clearness the reasonableness of a full faith in and a full consecration to the service of the Lord Jesus. Such, having sought to live justly and honorably in the world, will be advantaged in the coming age; they will come forth on a higher plane proportionately; mentally, morally, every way they will be superior to what they would have been had they not put forth efforts for righteousness. It still shall be required of them that they go on to perfection, but they will have fewer rungs of the ladder to climb than if they had misused their opportunities and privileges. Similarly those in the present life who have misused their opportunities, and degraded themselves and brought degradation upon others, in proportion as they knew better they will undoubtedly, as the Master declared, receive stripes or punishments. That is to say, they will find themselves that much nearer the foot of the ladder, and with that many more efforts necessary to be put forth to gain its topmost round, eternal life, perfection.

How much more reasonable this scriptural view is than would be any of the usual thoughts on this subject amongst Christians. Roman Catholics, with their view of purgatory and varying terms of incarceration and varying degrees of suffering, have gone outside of anything that is set forth as a basis of faith in God's word. Besides, their thought that the saying of prayers will relieve from these and cancel years of suffering is inconsistent with anything found in the scriptures. Protestant views, that only those fit for heaven go to heaven and that all others go to an eternity of woe, are thoroughly inconsistent, especially when they claim that there is no hope of relief, no hope of mitigation.

If only those who are fit for heaven are received there, how few will enter in! It will be a little flock indeed.

Contrast such unreasonable propositions with the simplicity of the divine plan: The church, the sacrificers, the bride of Christ, glorified with him in his kingdom, rewarded for all their sufferings and self-denials, exceedingly and abundantly more than they could have asked or thought. The world, coming forth to a fair and equitable trial, in which the conduct of the present life will have its weight and bearing on the advantages of the future life, and all with the prospect, if they will, of reaching life eternal through the merit of him who, as the Lamb of God, died for the cancellation of their guilt, and shall at his second coming under the blessed influences of His kingdom, lift them out of sin and degradation and death conditions up to full human perfection, restoring to them the Edenic home and utterly destroying in the second death such as will not hear and obey the laws of His kingdom.

THE LAMB OF GOD

It is not the sacrificing of the church that takes away the sin of the world. We have nothing to sacrifice that would be acceptable at the bar of justice except those blessings which are counted ours through faith in Christ. Our sacrificing therefore, is merely a test of our loyalty and devotion; the merit of the sacrifice for sins is all in the Lamb of God—all in our Lord Jesus. And so the scriptures everywhere differentiate between the Lord and His perfection and the Church, which comes into Divine favor through Christ's robe of righteousness, under His merit. The highest honor declared respecting the church is that she shall occupy a position which figuratively is described as that of a bride and joint heir. She is to be "the bride, the Lamb's wife." Having attested her loyalty to principles of righteousness by suffering with her Master now in the present time, she shall be counted worthy to share with him the honors of his throne, as he declared, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne. -- Rev. 3:21.

The expression, "Lamb of God," is a very forceful one. Man would not choose such a symbol as Divine inspiration has chosen. Look at all the emblems of heraldry and note how various ferocious beasts and birds are used as symbols of the earthly great; some have the lion, some the unicorn, some have dragons, others eagles, others foxes, others wolves, tiger's heads, etc., emblems indicating the ferociousness and rapaciousness of the character behind, when it even did not intend to tell of its ungainly qualities, but sought rather to glorify itself. But look at our Lord's emblem, a meek, innocent, gentle lamb. John the Baptist, the last of the prophets, tells us that he was specially commissioned of God to bear this witness at the beginning of Jesus' ministry—that Jesus was the "Lamb of God, " that he was the gentle, patient, uncomplaining one who would die on our behalf, that we by his stripes might be healed; that through his paying for us the death penalty, ultimately the whole world of mankind would be released from death, and so many of them as will would be brought up out of sin and death conditions to the full perfection of life everlasting.

John cried, "Behold the Lamb of God." Let us behold him-not as the Pharisees and Scribes did with eyes of malice and envy and hatred. Let us look at him in the light of the Divine revelation, and perceive that he was without spot or blemish-that "in him was no sin"-that "he was holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners." How came it that all this perfection should be found in Jesus?

The scriptures answer our query, and assure us that he was not born like others of the race-that while he received his human organization from his mother, the life principle was from above, and that by the selective processes of perfection even in his embryo condition he maintained himself in mind and every attribute perfectly. The scriptures tell us that he was thus born of a woman, separate from sinners, was previously with the Father, from before the foundation of the world-indeed that he had been the Father's special representative in the creative work, as it is written, "All things were made by him, and without him was not one thing made that was made. "

The more we look into the Divine word the more astonished are we with the lengths and breadths and heights and depths of the love and wisdom, justice and power of God which are being revealed to us through his Son and through the great plan of salvation. It will do us good, dear brethren and sisters, not only for the week beginning, I trust, but for the remainder of life, to frequently hearken to the words of the prophet, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." Day by day we may behold him, more hilly more completely, as the eyes of our understanding open more and more widely and as we become more and more informed respecting the Divine plan of which he is the hub, the very center. And as we learn of him, and come more to admire him, let us not forget that all who are to be members of his bride clan, joint-heirs with him in the kingdom, must in order to attain this position, become copies of God's dear Son.

“PALM SUNDAY”

Pastor C. T. Russell preached yesterday in Carnegie Hall, Allegheny, to a large audience. He took for his text John 12:13, “They took branches of palm trees and went forth to meet Him, and cried, Hosanna! Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord, even the King of Israel.” He said:

Today is celebrated by a large proportion of nominal Christendom as Palm Sunday, in celebration of the event mentioned in our text. I recall to your memory the circumstances connected with the event. It occurred on the first day of the week, just five days before our Lord’s crucifixion. The Passover season was at hand, when the most devoted Jews gathered at Jerusalem for its celebration, in harmony with the commands of the law. Our Lord and his disciples came from Galilee, and en route Jesus had explained to His followers that it meant His death that He was to be crucified, but that He would be raised again from the dead on the third day. It was on this occasion that the impulsive St. Peter forgot his place as a disciple and undertook to chide the Master for entertaining such thoughts, saying, “Far be it from Thee, Lord.” Peter’s expectations were for the Lord’s increasing dignity and honor until He should be established in the kingly power, when the apostles, according to His promise, would be sharers of His kingdom. Our Lord, however, was gradually drawing the attention of His followers to the fact that the kingdom glory belonged to a future time, and that first Himself and all accounted worthy of a share in that kingdom must be subjected to tests of loyalty to righteousness and the divine will even unto death.

THE FEAST AT BETHANY

Nearing Jerusalem they stopped over the seventh day (the Jewish Sabbath) at Bethany, at the home of Lazarus, Martha and Mary. The last time they were there was on the occasion of the calling of Lazarus from the tomb, to the great joy of the sorrowing sisters. That home was always open to our Redeemer, but we may be sure that He was thrice honored and welcomed on this occasion. As the Jewish Sabbath ended at sundown, a feast was prepared for the evening. At the feast Mary and Martha both served, but at an arranged time Mary brought a vase of very costly ointment and anointed His feet her tribute of love and esteem and gratitude. Her humility was displayed by the fact that she anointed not her Lord’s head, but His feet; the most menial members of His body she esteemed worthy of her highest reverence and service, most humbly wiping them with her hair.

A COSTLY LOVE TOKEN

We remember the indignation of Judas, the traitor, the thief, who carried the bag, the treasurer of the Lord's band of disciples; how he allowed greed to blunt his mind so that he could not appreciate the perfume and the love behind it, secretly wishing that the price of the perfume were in his possession. He cloaked his acquisitiveness with an affectation of interest in the poor, saying: This ointment might have been sold for a great price and the proceeds given to the poor. Our Lord, however, reproved him, and commended Mary with the words, "The poor ye have always with you, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good, but Me ye have not always." It would appear that Judas noticed the alabaster vase before it was opened, and expostulated that the ointment would not have been used, for it could have been sold for 300 pence a sum equivalent in our money to nearly $300.00.

It did indeed seem a very extravagant gift, and many of us of economical tendencies, very necessary in the ordinary affairs of life, might have been inclined to have doubted the propriety of so expensive an anointing. Our Lord's words give us the true key; He said, "Let her alone (do not hinder her from this sacrifice that she has purposed); against the day of my burying hath she kept this." One thought we may gather is that nothing is too good for our Master, nothing is a waste that is done in His service and with an endeavor to honor Him. The sacrifice of earthly interests on His behalf is approved. Then, drawing the same lesson as before, we find that this same principle may properly apply to all the members of the body of Christ, the true church. We cannot do too much for them from the proper motives even for the least of them, as symbolized by the fact that it was our Lord's feet that were anointed.

THE FIRST PALM SUNDAY

The next morning, the first day of the week, our Lord sent two of the apostles for an ass, a donkey an animal very much in use for riding purposes in Palestine and Egypt to this day. Meantime the people of surrounding villages, and in the city of Jerusalem near by, had heard of Jesus' arrival, and that He was at the house of Lazarus, whom He had called back from death. They were curious both to see Lazarus and the One who raised him from the dead, so that by the time the donkey arrived quite a crowd of people were there. It was the custom of Jewish kings to ride to their inauguration in this manner, and when our Lord mounted the ass the assembled multitude imbued already with a strong presentiment that Jesus was indeed the Messiah they caught the inspiration of His actions, that He was by His conduct thus declaring himself the King, and immediately they cried out in the language of our text, "Hosanna; Blessed is He that cometh in the name of Jehovah, even the King of Israel." They made haste also to treat Him as a king, gathering palm branches for the donkey to walk over, casting some of their garments in the way also, as an evidence of their appreciation of His dignity of office, and of their desire to serve Him and His cause in any manner.

The Scribes and Pharisees were devout people in many respects, but they had become so filled with their own theories respecting the fulfillment of the prophecies that they could not conceive of any fulfillment except along the lines of their anticipations that the coming Messiah would recognize them as His holy people and certainly be no friend to publicans and sinners, but denounce them. A few of these Pharisees were in the mixed company surrounding Jesus, and they were highly incensed and appealed to the disciples that they should call the attention of the Master to the fact that He was being hailed as Messiah, and that He should rebuke the people and assure them that He was not.

Our Lord's reply was: "If these should hold their peace the very stones would cry out." Why? do you ask. Was it necessary that some such shout be made? Yes, we answer. God, through the Prophet Zechariah (9:9), had centuries before, indicated that there should be such an acclaim of Messiah, and at this particular time on this particular day. The prophet's words are: "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem; behold, thy King cometh unto thee; He is just and having salvation; lowly and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass." The shout called for in the prophecy must be given, as our Lord had declared no feature of the law or the prophets could pass without fulfillment. This prophecy was fulfilled by the multitude who knew not. When we see this particularity in the fulfillment of the prophecies it gives us assurance of other prophecies not yet fulfilled. Through another prophet it was foretold that Jesus would be rejected by his own nation and would suffer as the Redeemer of the world, and yet His coming in kingly power at the end of this age, at the opening of the new Millennial age, is with equal clearness set forth. Seeing the fulfillment in the one particular instance gives us the stronger faith in the ultimate fulfillment of every feature of the divine plan in due time.

The company preceding and following Jesus, still shouting Hosanna and still providing the palm branches and robes, wended its way to the hilltop overlooking Jerusalem, called the Mount of Olives. There the procession halted, and our Lord, beholding the Holy City with its grand temple and precious memories, and foreknowing the trouble and sorrow and destruction which should come upon it because of its rejection of Him, wept over it, saying: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that killest the prophets and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children as a hen gathereth her brood under her wings, and you would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, ye shall not see Me henceforth till ye shall say, blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord.”

That was the critical moment when the interests of fleshly Israel were in the balances. The Lord had done for them as a Nation all that was proper for Him to do, and as a Nation they had rejected Him. To have been ready to receive Him would have meant that the officials of the city would by this time have waited upon Him to tender Him the sovereignty, but only the common people had heard Him gladly. Those who should have received Him the teachers, the chief priests, the leaders of the people were angry and at this very time were plotting His death because He was not in harmony with any of their great sects. Little did they know how much was meant by those words, “Your house is left unto you desolate.”

Looking back over nearly 19 centuries we can see how accurately those words were fulfilled. At that moment their national hopes of becoming the elect Church of God, the Bride of Messiah, ended. Favor was continued, however, in another form for three and a half years the Gospel was preached to them exclusively, and for 33 years thereafter it was as open to them as to the Gentiles; and in that harvest period, a total of 40 years from the beginning of our Lord’s ministry, He gathered out of that Nation all the Israelites indeed in whom was no guile, and the rest, as the Apostle says, were blinded and stumbled in such a manner as to render themselves and their children practically immune to the influences of the Gospel for all these centuries, in which as a dead Nation they have nevertheless suffered trouble and torture of various kinds, as symbolically represented in the parable of the rich man and Lazarus.

THEIR FALL A BLESSING

If we believed that their failure implied their eternal torment it would indeed seem harsh to speak of Israel’s fall from divine favor as bringing a blessing to the Gentiles which they could not have otherwise attained. But there is no question of eternal torment about this matter. We want to rid our minds of that false thought, which so interferes with every proper interpretation of the Divine Word. In rejecting Jesus the Jews did not fall into hell and everlasting torment, but they did fall away from those special blessings and privileges which they had enjoyed as the Lord’s peculiar people, the seed of Abraham. They were cut off from those special blessings, and instead have had special trials, ignominies, persecutions. And the promise of the Lord is that when His time shall come, and they shall have learned certain lessons by experience, He will bring them back again into his favor He will recover them or save them from the blindness into which they went and under which they have suffered these many centuries. What was the blessing that came to us who were Gentiles through their failure, their fall? We Answer--that it was the blessing or privilege of becoming the kingdom class, Messiah's bride and joint heir. This privilege belongs to the Jew first as the natural seed of Abraham; hence, as the apostle points out, speaking to them, "It was necessary that the gospel should be first preached to you." (Acts 13:46.) The gospel of the kingdom could not have been preached to the Gentiles except first the natural Israelites had rejected the offer. Not that they could have claimed it by right, because their own law hindered this and stipulated that only those who could keep the law could inherit eternal life and the kingdom; and the truth of the apostle's declaration that none of them kept the law is evident, for none of them lived forever. Nor have they received the kingdom of the world promised to Abraham. When they failed to accept Jesus as the Messiah and He declared their house left desolate, it threw open the kingdom privileges to others, and it is in this manner that a blessing has come to us who were Gentiles, through the fall, the failure of those who were the natural heirs of that blessing, that promise.

EXACTNESS OF FULFILLMENT

It strengthens our faith to note the exactness of the fulfillment of the prophecies respecting our Redeemer's affairs. For instance, it assists our faith when we learn that our Lord's presentation of himself as King on this occasion was in harmony with the Passover type and his suffering as the antitypical Lamb. We have already noted that this scene occurred on the fifth day before the Passover. This we learn from John 12:1, which declares that the day at Bethany was the sixth before the Passover. The Passover always began on the 15th. day of the first Jewish month, and the Passover Lamb was to be killed on the 14th; the fifth day previous, therefore, marked the date of our Lord's riding on the ass as the ninth of Nisan. The Scriptures have something to say respecting that ninth of Nisan, namely, that on that day the Israelites should take the Passover Lamb into their houses. As a nation they did not receive the Lamb of God on that day; only the remnant of their nation accepted him, and hence the special Passover blessing did not come to them. Nevertheless in God's due time they will come into other blessings already foretold respecting them, and be amongst the first of the nations of the world to experience the favors of the Millennial age and its restitution work.

In a general way the Passover type shows forth a coming blessing upon all the families of the earth in the sense that Israel, in bondage to Egypt and Pharaoh, typified the human family in bondage to Satan, and the unfavorable conditions of this present time, to which through the fall they are slaves, "sold under sin." (Rom. 7:14.) The Passover type shows that ultimately, as a result, all who desire to worship the Lord will have full opportunity for going forth from under the control of Satan and his hosts, typified by Pharaoh and his army, and that the Lord will see to their deliverance.

But the main part of this type of the Passover affected only the first-born only the firstborn were in any danger only they, therefore, were passed over or spared in that night. This, as we have already seen on other occasions, and as we shall more particularly refer to the matter this evening, is a type which belongs to this Gospel age exclusively. This is the night time; we are still waiting for the Millennial morning, when the sun of righteousness will arise with healing in its beams. (Mal. 4:2.) In this night, more than 18 centuries ago, the antitypical Lamb died at the appointed time, and, by his blood sprinkling the doorpost and lintel of our hearts, we, who become members of the Church of the firstborn, are passed over, and will in due time, at the dawning of the day, become the Royal Priesthood, who will lead forth our brothers, yea, all who desire to worship God in sincerity, from the dominion of sin and death, across the Red Sea to Canaan.

HOSANNAH IN THE HIGHEST

It will be remembered that these first-born ones in all the tribes and families of Israel were exchanged for the one tribe of Levi, which thereafter represented them. The experiences of the tribe of Levi, therefore, typified the experiences of the Church of the first-born. From that tribe of Levi the Lord selected the special priesthood, the Royal Priest-hood, and so the Royal Priesthood who will be joint heirs with Jesus in his Kingdom are members of this household of faith, typified by the tribe of Levi. As the priests and the Levites led and instructed the people, so the Church of the first-born, composed of a "little flock" of Royal Priests and of a great company of justified ones, assistants, co-laborers, will, during the Millennial age, under the lead of the antitypical Moses, guide and bless and bring into full harmony with God all the willing and obedient.

How is it with us to-day, dear friends? Have we all without exception acclaimed Jesus as our Redeemer and King, or are we standing aside like the Pharisee, doctors of divinity, and higher critics of old, objecting and insisting that our Lord must establish His kingdom according to their ideas or be rejected? Let us be Israelites indeed in whom there is no guile, that the Lord may teach us and guide us, as He declared He will do to those who are of a right condition of heart—"The meek will He guide in judgment; and the meek will He teach His way." (Psalms 25:9.) Let us hearken less to the voices and creeds of the "Dark Ages" and more and more to the voice of Him who spake as never man spake, and to the words of His inspired apostles whom He commissioned to be our instructors. Let us take our instruction from the foundation and not from any of the polluted streams of Churchianity.

In conclusion I call your attention to the fact that those who adhered to the Church calendar, Romanists, Episcopalians and some others, and who have named this as Palm Sunday, have arranged their reckonings so as to have the anniversary of Palm Sunday, Good Friday and Easter Sunday fall on the days of the week corresponding to the original transactions. This, however, was not the custom followed originally; instead the Jewish method was followed, namely, lunar time, celebrating the ninth day, the fourteenth day and the sixteenth day irrespective of how these corresponded with the original days of the week, Monday, Friday and Saturday.
